The current level of the bay and also of Lake Ontario is 249 feet above sea level — a drop of about a foot from its peak in late May and June.

The International Joint Commission on lake levels held its public hearing in Rochester, N.Y., on Tuesday and met in Toronto on Wednesday.

Cool Greeting for Her Majesty

Little Susan Applegate looks on shyly as Queen Elizabeth comes out of a house in Hemel Hempstead, Eng. Little Susan was shy, but she certainly knew how to dress in order to beat the heat. Her Majesty seemed to appreciate Susan's view on the weather. — Central Press Canadian.

Warm Weather Demand Cleans Out Supply of Bathing Caps in City

There are a few bathing caps in town, a very scarce few and when they are gone, in the opinion of merchants, there won't be any more.

Apparently it is the old story of supply and demand. Manufacturers base their demand on the previous year's sales in most items of this nature. Last year was a cool summer and there wasn't anywhere the demand there is this year.

Even the manufacturers have not the supply on hand to meet merchants' orders. The retailers either receive a "sorry" in place of the caps or have their order cut.

Most stores in the city are sold out completely. One druggist ordered caps and got three. He advises that he isn't too badly off as he had a surplus from last year.

Another concerning factor, merchants say, is the swimming pool. To go swimming there girls and women must wear a bathing cap and as one retailer put it, "They don't care what they pay, just as long as they get a cap."

"Bathing caps!" a retailer said this morning, "have you got some to sell?" he asked with a hopeful glint in his eye. According to this merchant, his manufacturer hasn't any to send him and he is sold right out. "Why my manufacturer is being pestered by even the chain stores for caps," he said. "They have promised me I will get some, but not before the order comes up from the States."

Another retailer can see no caps in sight. "I'm sold right out and I don't expect to have anymore until next summer," he said. "Manufacturers only make so many and when they are gone, they are gone," he explained.

So that's the story girls, if you want a bathing cap, you had better get looking right now, for in a short while the limited supply still in the city will be gone completely and you just won't wear a bathing cap for the rest of the summer.

Hand in Cast No Handicap to Angler Grabs 17-lb. Fish by Gills, Lands It

TRENTON (Special) — Carl Austin had no gaff hook or landing net so he grabbed a 17½-pound grey trout by the gills and heaved the whopper into the boat. The Wooler sportsman was fishing at Weslemkoon Lake east of Gilmour the other day when he felt a terrific tug on the line. During the battle that followed the big fish came twice within reach at the side of the boat. The third time Austin saw its mouth open and took action. He figured he could not have taken it any other way. He has scars on his left hand to show that the trout had sharp teeth. His right hand was in a cast from a recent ball game accident.

The day earlier Austin's friend, Jack Bell of Noranda, landed a 21-pound grey trout. He battled almost a half hour before he subdued the "whale."

Fishermen in the district claim they have never seen anything like the Austin party catch.

Both fish hit spoons on copper lines trolling in about 250 feet of water at an almost identical spot in the lake. Both had three small mouth bass in their stomachs, one of the bass was nine inches long.

Other members of the party included A. G. Austin and grandson Guy Austin, 13, of Wooler. The party stayed at Scotholm Lodge.

A prominent citizen, Max Waldorf, 55, died at Kingston General Hospital Wednesday afternoon after an illness of several months. The funeral will be held here Saturday under the auspices of the Trent Masonic Lodge 38.

The annual picnic for personnel of the Bata Shoe Company slated for this weekend has been postponed. Officials will make the announcement of the new date in the near future.

Workmen have completed the job of placing 19 wooden poles and two steel masts in the area of the R.C.A.F.'s Carrying Place receiving station on highway No. 33 on the way to Consecon. The two masts are over 100 feet high.

On top of the poles and masts are red lights kept burning at night as a warning to aircraft flying in the vicinity of the station. The lights can be seen for miles on the ground.

their state's November ballot, under the democratic label.

Wrangle After Vote

In the two-hour wrangle that followed this test vote, Representative John McCormack of Massachusetts—filling in for convention chairman Sam Rayburn — gavelled the South Carolina and Louisiana delegations back on the roll call from which they had been stricken when they refused to take the loyalty pledge.

The net result was to leave the three delegations in a position to cast a total of 64 convention votes for the south's champion, Senator Richard B. Russell. Then, if they didn't like the eventual nominee, they could go home and name their own candidate for president in state conventions. All they appeared to be pledged to do, as Governor James F. Byrnes of South Carolina explained it, was to give the national party a place on their state ballots.

Unscheduled Excitement

Byrnes was in the centre of an unscheduled bit of excitement when a newspaper caught fire near him while he was speaking. Peter J. Cloherty of Boston, an assistant sergant at arms, seized the microphone from Byrnes and shouted: "Don't get panicky. It's only a newspaper. It will be put out in a minute."

Fire Commissioner Anthony J Mullaney said he thought the blaze may have been set deliberately in an effort to force an adjournment of the proceedings.

Stevenson, who has insisted that he could hold the south in line and apparently were counting on some of the delegations to go his way if Russell faded.

Barclay Re-enters Race

But Senator Thomas Hennings of Missouri threw up something of a roadblock against any Dixie swerve to Stevenson by re-entering the name of Vice-President Alben Barkley in the nomination race.

Barkley had quit the race early in the week when some labor union leaders told him he was too old at 74.

Barkley's re-entrance added to the stop-Stevenson movement, since votes for Barkley will come largely from pro-Stevenson areas.

Stevenson backers were confident he doesn't want the nomination and is seeking only re-election as Governor, showed more interest after his name formally had been placed in nomination.

"I had hoped they would not nominate me, but I am deeply affected by this expression of confidence and goodwill," he said in a statement.

Earlier in the day word had come to party leaders from the White House that President Truman prefers Stevenson. Truman is scheduled to arrive later in the day to present the new party nominee to the convention tonight—if the meeting can get back on schedule.

In between the parliamentary rows, speakers succeeded in offering in nomination the names of Stevenson, Kefauver, Harriman, Russell, Barkley, Senators Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, William Fulbright of Arkansas, Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, Governors G. Mennen Williams of Michigan and Paul Dever of Massachusetts, and Oscar Ewing, federal security administrator.

Senator Sparkman was getting top billing as a possible running mate for Stevenson, if the Illinois Governor gets the nomination. By custom, however, the presidential nominee will pick his own running mate.

WINNIPEG (CP)—R.C.M.P. yesterday announced that the victim of a gun battle near Vivian, Man., Sunday night was not John R. Zahara, 42, of Kelowna, B.C., as previously stated.

Police had identified the man as Zahara from personal papers found in his possession. They declined to say who the man is until his next-of-kin in Ottawa has been notified.

The man, a suspected bank robber, was felled by police bullets in an exchange of shots of Vivian, 30 miles east of here. Another suspected robber, Alexander Zakopiac, 33, of Winnipeg and Const. John Friend of the R.C.M.P. were wounded.

The two suspects were believed implicated in a $7,000 bank holdup in suburban East Kildonan. The money was recovered. Zakopiac has been charged with armed robbery.

West Germany Admitted To Red Cross League

TORONTO, (CP)—Admission of West Germany into the League of Red Cross Societies was approved today over Communist opposition.

The board of governors of the league voted 33 to 5, with three countries abstaining, to admit West Germany. Voting against the admission were Russia, Romania, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Red China.

Those abstaining were not recorded.

The Soviet view was expressed by Nikolai Vasilievich Slavin of the Russian Red Cross. He repeated views expressed yesterday when the Russians and Chinese were outvoted 15-2 on whether consideration should be given to West German admission.

He said the application was filed too late and therefore was out of order. Also, it was made on behalf of only one part of Germany and therefore was illegal.

A Romanian delegate echoed his comment.

Admission of West Germany today and Ceylon and San Marino yesterday brought the strength of the International Red Cross to 71 from 68.

Marshall Appeals Prison Sentence

LONDON (AP)—William M. Marshall, 24-year-old British Foreign Office radio operator convicted of slipping state secrets to Russia, today appealed his five-year prison sentence.

Marshall was caught in a park on June 13 with Pavel Kuznetsov, second secretary in the Soviet Embassy here. Marshall admitted meeting the Russian numerous times before and had a secret document in his pocket when picked up.

Marshall at his trial admitted a liking for the Communist way of life but protested his innocence of the spy charges.

Hot Time and Weather in Chicago

Auto Industry Won't Predict Work Resumption

DETROIT (CP) — Automobile industry heads were reluctant today to predict when the industry would be back in production following the ending yesterday of the United States steel strike which began June 2.

More than 180,000 Detroit area automobile workers are jobless on account of the strike.

General Motors Corporation officials said they are "laying plans to get back into normal operation as fast as possible but there is no way at present of estimating how long it will take." It would be "several weeks" before depleted steel stocks were restored.

Some 126,000 G.M. workers are idle. Layoffs involving a further 10,500, announced yesterday, will be unaffected by the strike-ending, officials said.

Chrysler Corporation — with virtually all operations closed down and with more than 60,000 workers idle in the Detroit area — said there was little hope of resumption "until about three weeks after the steel mills are reopened."

Can't See Quake 8-Year-Old Mad

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Dickie Love, 8, wanted to see the earthquake in southern California.

He tried to make the trip by train. Conductors twice put him off less than five miles from his home in Redwood City.

Then he decided to go by plane. For 25 cents he bought an insurance policy from a slot machine, handed the stub to a ticket agent and boarded a Los Angeles-bound plane.

Stewardess Carol Torgerson, counting noses about 100 miles south of San Fransico, found one crew-cut passenger too many.

Dickie reached Los Angeles—but was sent back home yesterday.

Said Dickie: "I didn't get to see the earthquake. That makes me mad."

Jamaicans Win 400 Metres Semis, Canadians Out

OLYMPIC STADIUM, Helsinki (CP)—Two Jamaican stars, Arthur Wint and Herb McKenley, won the semi-final heats of the Olympic 400-metre event today in which two Canadians were eliminated.

Jack Carroll of Verdun, Que., placed fifth in the heat won by McKenley.

Jim Lavery of Calgary was sixth in the heat won by Wint.

The sensational nature of the 400-metre field was shown by the fact every man had to run under 47 seconds to qualify.

Carroll's time was 47.4 and Lavery's 47.7.

McKenley is the former world record holder. In the 1948 games at London he was second to Wint.

Ruest Hanged At Montreal

MONTREAL, (CP) — Genereux Ruest, 54-year-old crippled watchmaker from Quebec, was hanged early today for his part in Quebec's bizarre airlines murder case in 1949.

Ruest, suffering from tuberculosis of the bones and unable to walk without support, was taken in a wheel-chair from his cell to the scaffold in Montreal's Bordeaux jail.

The trapdoor was sprung at 1:12 a.m. and he was cut down and declared dead at 1:28 a.m. He had attended Mass at 12:30 a.m., and was attended to the gallows by Rev. Roger Jeannotte, the prison's Roman Catholic chaplain.

He is the second person to die for their part in Mrs. Guay's death.

Charged With Murder Attempt

UXBRIDGE. (CP)— Richard Fowler of Toronto, yesterday was committed for trial on a charge of attempting to murder 27-year-old Edward Brown, of Utica, near Oshawa.

The charge was laid after Brown reported that four shots were fired through the window of his one-room frame house June 28, while he and his common-law wife were sleeping. Brown's two-year-old son was asleep in a crib and a visitor, Shirley Pallister, 19, was asleep on the floor.

Miss Pallister said she had known the 47-year-old Fowler for five years and had lived with him for a while in Toronto. They separated because neither had work. She said that while she lived with the Browns Fowler had threatened her with a revolver and asked her to live with him again. She refused.

DEMOCRATS

"An objective appraisal of the past record clearly demonstrates that the Democratic party has been the chosen American instrument to achieve prosperity, build a stronger democracy, erect the structure of world peace, and continue on the path of progress."

The Democrats, like the Republicans, escaped a threatened convention floor battle this year between northern and southern delegates over the civil rights issue.

The Democrats pledged federal legislation to "effectively secure" for Negroes and other racial groups equal opportunities to vote and work and security of person. The Republicans declared this problem was largely one for the states to handle, but expressed belief that the federal government should take "supplemental" action.

Major Issues

The stands taken by the Democratic and Republican platforms on other major issues included:

Foreign policy—Democrats endorsed Truman administration foreign policies, which they said, are designed to secure and maintain peace through co-operation with friendly nations. The Republicans would follow the same general policies, but would limit them to the "enlightened self-interest' of this country.

National defence—both pledged strong air, sea and land forces. The Republicans charged the administration has been lagging in achieving this goal.

Would Repeal T-H Law

Labor—The Democrats pledged repeal of the Taft-Hartley law. The Republicans promised such amendments as are found to be needed to safeguard rights of workers, employers and the public.

Agriculture—the Democrats endorsed rigid, high farm price supports. The Republicans promised supports at "whatever levels are necessary to maintain balanced production."

Corruption and Communism—the Democrats said they had been alert to dishonesty and disloyalty in public office and had punished the guilty. Republicans charged the Democrats had "shielded" traitors and had written a "sordid" record of corruption.

Taxation—Democrats promised tax reduction, especially on small incomes, as rapidly as defence requirements permit. Republicans said they would "eliminate waste," balance the budget and make a general reduction in taxes.

Masons Elect Officers

TORONTO (CP)—J. Wes. McKnight of Toronto has been elected Grand Senior Warden of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Canada in the Province of Ontario. Other top officers included—Grand Junior Warden, J. F. Heap, Guelph; Grand Chaplain, C. D. Donald, Ottawa; Grand Registrar, F. E. Mason, Windsor.

General Synod Rejects Proposal

The synod decided that suggestions that the present name is keeping non-Anglo Saxons from joining the Church are not founded in fact.

NEED FOR HIGHWAY URGENT

The stretch of highway linking Trenton and Belleville as been described as one of the most-travelled routes in ntario's highway network. A recent count estimated hat 4,000 vehicles cover this section daily and this figure ncludes the estimated 1,500 cars and trucks passing over o. 2 highway between Oshawa and the Quebec border.

Although work is now underway on a four-lane highay which will by-pass Belleville just beyond its northern mits, this number of automobiles using the highway nderscores the urgency for early completion of the roject.

With the installation of a modern electric traffic ontrol system and the elimination of left-hand turns at he Bridge Street - Front Street intersection, the city has one its best to cope with its traffic difficulties. But there s a limit to what the municipality can do in this regard imply because existing routes were not designed to carry he volume of traffic they must now bear. And this volume s increasing yearly.

It will be a happy day for Belleville when the new ection of No. 2 highway is completed. It will at least ease he traffic problem by removing many transport trucks of reight-car dimensions from the streets and avenues of ur city.

THE DOUKHOBORS ARE STILL WITH US

After touring several South American countries with a view to finding new and better homes for his people, the "spiritual leader" of the most violent sect of the Sons of Freedom has returned to British Columbia to report to his people that Canada is their best bet.

Earlier, these Doukhobors whose enterprize sometimes includes nude parades and setting fire to schools, pondered leaving Canada and settling elsewhere. Somewhere in South America was considered.

Now assured by their leader that their future lies in Canada, it is suggested that the Doukhobors terminate their disobedience to authority and behave themselves. Canada would have been willing to facilitate the Doukhobors' departure from her shores because of the past performances of the sect. Their acts of violence have cost the Canadian people money and filled Canadian jails. Now is the time for the Doukhobors to realize that if their future does lie in Canada, they must conform to Canadian laws.

CHURCHILL GROWS OLD

Churchill has grown old; in a few months he will be seventy-eight. Like all old men he often repeats himself and shows a great ability in doing the things he has always done. In Parliament he is still master, perhaps nowadays more fox than lion. His deafness embarrasses him in catching the interruptions and replies, the slowness of his reactions often deprives a phrase of its vigor. But he is still a master in debate, especially on foreign affairs, and in his subtle polemics with his opponents.

This human drama thrills the English. Churchill had to wait for power until he was over sixty. The war gave him power and carried him into the world of heroes. But the peace again denied him power, although now his party had come under his authoritarian and impatient leadership. When finally he had achieved an electoral victory and had formed his own government, his own party began to revolt silently against him. Churchill is a pilot for times of storm. This common-place serves equally for those who want to get rid of him, who say that as there is no war there is no storm, and for those who want to keep him in power and declare that Britain's present conditions are even more difficult than those of 1940. In fact, there is a storm raging, but it is different from the other, and the old pilot seems to have lost his bearings and is tired. — (Corriere della Sera, Italy.)

GARDEN THOUGHT

It's comforting at times to see
How patient growing things can be;
How true, in spite of wind and rain,
The peonies and phlox remain.

Who walks a garden round may find
The rare delight of peace of mind.
Though mortals change from day to day,
Both bud and blossom steadfast stay.

As we have known it down the years,
Each bloom we see again appears.
One never thinks to ask how old
Are candytuft and marigold.

No sign of age! No weakness shows!
Still young and lovely is the rose.
And it is comforting to know
The flowers will stay though we must go.

The original name of Belleville. Here is an interesting article from our old files, July 25th., 1892 — 60 years ago: "The Rev. H. Pahatahquahong Chase, Sarnia is visiting the home of his childhood, he having been born in Belleville in 1818 and baptized in St. Thomas' Church by the Rev. Thomas Campbell. He is a lineal chief of the Objiways and for many years he was in the civil service, having received an appointment from Lord Metcalf when he was Governor General. Twenty-seven years ago he offered himself to the Church of England as a missionary to his own people. He has been four times in England as representative, not only of his own tribe, but of all the tribes in Ontario. He was presented to Queen Victoria in 1876 and twice he has been presented to the Prince and Princess of Wales. He says that the original name of what is now Belleville was ASAUKHKNOSK which means "the place where the rushes ended", derived from the fact that the rushes grew along the Bay of Quinte, but terminated at Belleville. Napanee, he says, should be spelled "Napana" and that it means "the place of flour," because it was the only place where there was a flour mill. Mr. Chase carries with him the Chief's medal which was given to his grandfather by King George III, and held by him as his lineal successor, also a medal given to him by the queen in acknowledgement of his Chieftainship. Through the kindness of Rev. Canon J. W. Burke, Rector of St. Thomas' Church, and Mayor Curtis Bogart, Mr. Chase has met some of our prominent citizens who have been delighted with him and his fund of interesting information.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE COUNTRY CHURCHYARD

There is something ennobling and thought provoking about a Country Churchyard. The poet Thomas Gray immortalized it in his famous "Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard." Every few days I pass one of these beautiful memorials near my island retreat during the summer months, with its graves of those who worked and lived near by.

I like to look upon these graves in a Country Churchyard, for they memoralize those who lived out useful lives and were an example of the fulfillment of life itself. Most of those who lie in these peaceful spots were loved and blessed in life in the territory about, and many a prayer of rememberance is silently offered by those who pass and look upon these graves.

Sometime I hope I may visit a New England Churchyard and look upon that simple little stone that marks the grave of a little girl, with the simple inscription engraved thereon as follows: "She was so pleasant." I can imagine the thoughts of those who look upon such an inscription. No one could help but be inspired to carry away that line in his memory and heart.

No longer is there room for a resting place in many of these Country Churchyards. Many of them contain no graves at all, being surrounded with no more than a white picket fence, with a simple garden of flowers within. These little churches are always beautiful and inspiring, and upon a sabbath you will note people coming from miles around to worship within them. Country folks are most always God-fearing, honest and sturdy — the backbone of any community.

Wherever you look upon a Country Churchyard, you know that thereabout are those who are the salt of this earth, representatives of what has made life worth while — developers of the land and builders of the nation. It is from such sections that the great of this earth have sprung!

Effective Economic Suicide

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

I asked a neighbor of mine where he was going for his holidays. He looked at me with a blank expression. "Holidays," he said, "what's that?" I tried to explain, but he interrupted me by fondly recalling old and happy far-off things, and fishing long ago. Then he informed me that his partner had left him. They were in partnership as consulting engineers, and up to about six months ago had employed a staff of draftsmen drawing plans for steel construction. He explained that when the government corralled 90 per cent of the steel production for defence purposes, it created a shortage of steel for private building, and he was put out of business along with many small contractors.

This is just one example of the effect of the steel "shortage" in Canada, as created by a government decree. As if that were not bad enough, the steel workers' unions of the United States decided to stage a strike, which created a still further shortage of steel by putting all the steel plants out of operation. In doing so the steelworkers not only created a total loss of steel production; they put themselves out of employment and incurred a total loss of income for themselves and families, and they did the same for thousands of workers in other industries that depended upon steel products for their livelihood.

National Calamity

In a news item from Ottawa, Mr. K. S. Harris, defence steel director, is quoted as saying that the U. S. steel strike may shape into a "national calamity" for Canada. Steel supplies, he said, were drying up to a trickle. But the most serious effects on Canadian industry may not become evident until the end of the strike, when they would persist for months thereafter. "It is tough now," said Mr. Harris, "but it is going to be really tough when the strike is over. The big fear is that the quarterly allotment of U. S. steel for Canada will be cut in the strike's wake. This would cause many Canadian durable and consumer goods to be in short supply for a long while."

That is a grim prospect, and if an enemy had done this thing to us it would have been regarded as an act of war, and the whole country would have been up in arms against it. But it is an "inside job," and a virtual act of sabotage against a vital industry, which could not have been more serious if it had been carried out by third column saboteurs. And the irony of the situation is that it has all been brought about as a means of increasing the take-home pay and improving the lot of the workers. The effects of the strike have and will be the extreme opposites to those aims. The striking steelworkers have had no take-home pay at all for the last six weeks, and whatever nominal increase in hourly wage rates they may gain, it will never make up for the loss of $350 million they have suffered during the strike — to say nothing of the enormous loss and injury to the national economy. The loss of steel is estimated at 13 million tons, almost as much as the entire British steel industry produces in a year.

Economic Suicide

As I write this, a newspaper comes to hand with a front page headline which reads: "Fear 10,000 in Stelco in Ontario and Quebec May Strike Within Ten Days." The report states that "the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) are threatening effective economic action against Stelco's mill and fabricating plants to bring their wages in line with U. S. rates." What do those words, "effective economic action," mean? To take effective action against an enemy country would mean to bring that country into bankruptcy and its people to starvation. For a trade union to take such action against an industry might well bring it into bankruptcy, but it would at the same time bankrupt the union and deprive its members of their means of earning a living. That would, in plain English, be an act of economic suicide. The economy of the steelworkers or any other workers is inseparable from the economy of the industry in which they work and that of the nation as a whole. One need not be an economist to grasp that simple truth.

Board Rejects Russian Protest

HAMEENLINA, Finland (AP)—An 11-man board of appeal decided last night to reject a Russian protest against a United States competitor in the swimming event of competition.

The ruling left the United States in third place back of Hungary and Sweden.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

BRICKLAYING

Some time ago I stood at the bedside of a friend about my age who has passed through a severe illness. His outstanding symptoms were profound melancholy and a conviction on his part that his life had been a failure. "How little I have accomplished," he complained. "What, as a matter of fact, have I ever done that can really be called worthwhile?"

Well, the truth is that he has done many good things, just as we all have. A person who calls himself a complete failure is undoubtedly sick — in both body and mind. For we all have done something in life in which we can take a great deal of satisfaction. Human life is a vast enterprise. None of us is ever permitted to do anything except lay just a few bricks. Quickly we lay them and pass on. Some day a great super-structure will tower into the heavens and our few bricks will be in that resplendent wall of glory. But even the greatest saints and world leaders will have laid but few. Everyone of us has had significance. Everyone of us has significance today. If you feel otherwise, call the doctor. You're sick.

Yes, we have all laid a few bricks, and personally I thank the Lord that I have been able to throw a few. How about you?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

As you drive the highways, you will notice a considerable variation from time to time in the quality of the pavement. You assume this is due to the age of it, the date at which it was laid down. For several miles you will hum along on a beautiful stretch of concrete or asphalt and then come to another stretch, several miles long, which is rough, uneven and with a pitted surface that obliges you to hold the steering wheel consciously, instead of lightly and instinctively, as you do on a well laid pavement.

I too have supposed that this variation in highway quality was due to the varying age of the different sections until recently I drove on a brand new highway that was built by four or five different contractors. And it was perfectly obvious that the differences in the pavement were due to the differences in the contractors. There were differences in engineering, in the work, in the materials, which even an ordinary motorist could perceive. Pavements are no different from shirts or boots or biscuits. Some people make them good. Others make them bad.

It stands to reason that government engineers and inspectors watch the laying of these public highways. But it also stands to reason that governments cannot hand all the contracts to one company, even if it is the best. If governments did give all the contracts to one company, because it was the best, it would not long remain the best. That is the basic wisdom of competition.

But there is one little device that governments might resort to, in their own and the public's interest. And that is to have each contractor sign his work in public. At each end of a contractor's section of highway, there should be a standardized sign saying: "The next so-many miles of pavement were laid by The So-and-So Company on such and such a date." This would add a new and very important factor to the already trick business of making tenders and awarding contracts. Even a good man works better when he has to put his signature to his work. And second-raters would almost certainly be improved.

THIS LITTLE BOY CRIES AT NIGHT

My son is 5½ years old and weighs 54 pounds, wrties Mrs. M. H. He complains of having sore feet and legs during the night and wakes up crying and holding his feet.

So far the boy's mother behaves well enough. But there follows the inevitable hokum bunkem:

He has worn shoes with arches and right now wears shoes with a "cookie" in them and a triangular piece of metal in the heel.

His father has flat feet, so we took it for granted...

The little boy's parents mean well, but it does seem regrettable that the child's trouble should be neglected while the parents spend time and money experimenting with this and that.

...took it for granted that he did too, but the foot specialist in the shoestore said...everyone urges me to have him X-rayed..

This crying at night isn't every night, but only at intervals of a few weeks perhaps... (Mrs. M. H.)

True to type, Mrs. H. expresses her opinion of the case — you know, just as so many laymen do when they consult a physician—they want to help the doctor make a diagnosis. This little boy is "very heavy, so maybe that's hy his feet ache" suggests his mother. And then, lest I get any wrong idea, she assures me the little boy has sufficient vitamins, thank you, for "he eats very heartily."

The little boy is, say, ten pounds heavier than the average—but this is only one factor—mother does not mention his height. But excess weight alone would hardly cause the trouble described.

Apparently it has not yet occrred to this little boy's parents to consult a physician. They are so preoccupied with the "foot specialist in the shoe store" and with everyone's advice about X-ray and the like that the suggestion of medical advice for the little boy's trouble probably strikes them as absurd.

I can assure Mrs. M. H. that millions of Americans, young and old, suffer from various vitamin and/or mineral nutritional deficiency troubles even though they eat heartily—of ultrarefined food.

As a diagnostician I have never set the world afire, especially via long distance, but I hope Mrs. H. will give her young son the benefit of (a) high calcium diet, (b) a suitable daily ration of calcium and vitamin D to supplement his diet, not for a week or two but for a year or more—this is not medicine, but merely food which the young body requires and too often does not get from ordinary diet.

On written request any reader who provides stamped, self-addressed envelope may have the pamphlet Adult Tetany and Growing Pains. It deals with aching and painful cramps in the legs or feet at night.

Infantry Training Courses Replace Japanese Holiday Of Canada's Korean Troops

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HARAMURA, Japan (CP)—The day of the soft lay-over in Japan is over for the Korea-bound Canadian infantry reinforcement.

No more lotus-eating while awaiting the call to battle, once the final training is over. No more sitting around the reinforcement centre waiting for a vacancy at the training camp.

From the moment he leaves ship at Yokohama, his every thought and every action are oriented to the reality awaiting him in a Korean slit trench.

Waiting trains whisk arrivals from Yokohama to Kure, whence trucks take them 30 miles north, through beautiful rural Japanese countryside, to Haramura. There a rigid regime devised by Lt.-Col. M.R. Lonsdale of the British army awaits them.

Haramura is an old Japanese army training ground. It is holly—no more and no less than Korea—and is thickly overgrown.

Old Training Ground

The 1st Japanese jungle division and its successors were trained here.

Lonsdale's syllabus suits the ruggedness of the terrain.

Brig. M.P. Bogert, commander of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade, explaining the policy which sent the men here, told them during a recent visit:

"A nice holiday isn't the best way to prepare you to go into battle, so we have brought you here, where you will acquire the fine points and become as fit as it is possible to make you."

The organization to which the men go is the Commonwealth division battle school, in which the Canadians operate a wing.

Present commander of the wing is Capt. Harry O'Dell of Montreal, who served in Korea with the 2nd Battalion Royal Canadian Regiment. He also commands the English-speaking wing, while French-speaking soldiers go to a company commanded by Capt. Rolly Leclerc of Rimouski and Lachine, Que., also a veteran of Korea where he served with the 2nd Battalion Royal 22nd Regiment.

Month's Training

Soldiers spend approximately one month in either "Harry" or "Rolly" company and then are posted immediately to their battalions without the intermediate stage of a period in a holding depot.

The system makes it important from Canada be so regulated that brigade requirements will be met almost exactly by graduates from the battle school.

Even if the number turned out is excessive for the immediate need, the men will still go to their battalions. It is felt better psychologically and militarily to send them straight away to the theatre than to risk a let-down from their peak form by a period of waiting in Japan.

Program and living conditions are rigorous.

The men are confined to barracks during their time here, except for one week-end. They live in large Japanese-style barracks with raised-floor platforms for their cots. There are no amenities in the buildings.

In winter the quarters are unheated. Throughout the year the men wash and shave in cold water. They are worked from morning to night, have ravenous appetites but get supplementary potatoes and bread in their Australian rations.

Canteens Policy

One compensation Lonsdale allows is a relatively free canteen policy.

"I believe in letting a fellow have as much beer as he wants," he says. "You can always sweat it out of him the next day—it just pours out.

"The canteen profits provide extra messing—salads, sauces and things like that."

Lonsdale is a hard-bitten, enthusiastic infantry officer who goes about his camp in shirt sleeves or bare-chested, as the mood fits, with never a rank badge. He wears neither socks nor hat. He is immediately recognizable and expects to be.

He is a devil for fitness, goes through the obstacle course and tramps over the exercise areas with the men, controlling the supporting fire of live ammunition that

An aim of the course is to accustom the men to the noises of the battlefield. Haramura noise exceed anything Korea has yet produced.

Of the 600 Commonwealth soldiers under Lonsdale's command, 400 are Canadian. With the opening the Canadian Infantry School at Nipponbara has been closed.

Tossed Salads

"Sallett" is an old name for salad, a favorite dish hundreds of years ago. It is said that Roman Emperors were served dressed lettuce on plates of gold, with radishes sliced so thin that the gold gleamed through. The French and Spanish borrowed the custom of mixing greens with oil and herbs from the early Greeks and Italians and they, in turn, brought salads to America. Today, such salads are still favorites and quite often they are tossed or mixed right at the table.

It has been said that the aesthetic chef pours his heart and soul into a salad. Perhaps this is why a salad so often reflects the personality of the person that makes it, A cautious, methodical person will follow the recipe to the letter, but one with an adventurous spirit will experiment with everything and anything on hand. Some prefer to use simple, familiar ingredients, while others will use an exotic mixture of herbs and spices.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture say that there are 2 schools of thought in regard to the preparation of tossed salads. One claims only greens should be used, the other that practically any combination of vegetables is permissible. It is preferable that the vegetables should be raw, but cooked, canned or frozen ones may be combined with the fresh. Those who prefer only greens sometimes add onion or pepper rings and thin slices of radish or cucumber for extra flavor.

Salad Greens

Greens are the basis of any tossed salad. Use only fresh, crisp greens kept cold, clean and dry. As soon as they are brought into the kitchen, remove the outside damaged leaves and store in a tightly covered vegetable crisper or plastic bag in the refrigerator or other cold place. Wash the greens as they are needed; be sure to dry them thoroughly, for wet greens dilute the dressing and give the salad a watery taste and soggy appearance.

Several types of greens can be combined for delicate flavor and color contrast. Lettuce, both head and leaf, is probably the most common green. The fresh "peppery" flavor of watercress lends character to any salad and curly endive gives a different appearance and texture. Red, green or Chinese cabbage, spinach, Swiss chard, parsley, celery and nasturtium leaves are other greens that can go into the tossed salad bowl.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture in Ottawa point out that the rules for preparing salads are few and simple but they make all the difference in the world between a fresh crisp salad and a soggy one. First, tear, rather than cut, the greens into medium sized pieces. A salad which has large, straggly lettuce leaves is most difficult to eat. On the other hand, pieces that are too small lose their identity so it is best to choose a happy medium. Always combine a tossed salad lightly, using two forks to keep the greens fresh and crisp — never mix or stir them. Use only a small amount of dressing and serve the salad as soon as the dressing is added to keep it from getting soggy and wilted.

Add interest to tossed salads by using the right seasonings and accompaniments. From the French we get the idea of rubbing the bowl with garlic although some prefer to add the garlic to the dressing. For those who do not like garlic, onion or onion juice can be used instead. Add other seasonings, like curry powder, cloves, nutmeg, horseradish, Tobasco or Worcestershire sauce to the dressing for extra flavor. Roquefort - type cheese or small pieces of bacon sprinkled over a tossed salad add that special "something". Another trick is to add salad croutons. To make them, add two garlic cloves to one-quarter cup of oil and let stand two or three hours until the oil is well flavored. Then marinate tiny bread cubes about three-eighths of an inch in size in oil and place them on a cookie sheet. Toast them for about five minutes under the broiler, turning frequently.

Stevenson's Oratory Impresses Democratic Convention

The "reluctant candidate" of the Democratic party, Adlai Stevenson, shows in these four poses the technique of winning support at the Chicago convention. He is recognized as a skilful orator who achieves an impression of sincerity as he speaks. Democrats, conscious of the colorful personality of Gen. Eisenhower, the Republican candidate, are openly stating that Stevenson is the one person who could win the Nov. 4 election against Ike. — Central Press Canadian.

Verify All Dead in R.C.A.F. Crash Over Quebec Bush

After parachuting to the scene of the crash of two RCAF planes near Baggotville, Que., Flt.-Lieut. Andre Peller, Nursing Sister Isabelle Thompson and Sergt. Warren Dawson say they were glad to be out of the worst bush they had even seen. They found the bodies of five of the six-man crew of the Lancaster bomber which had crashed following a mid-air collision with a Vampire jet, and believe the sixth to be still under the wreckage. Five miles from where the bombers' crashed they found the body of the jet pilot. The flyers' remains will be taken out by helicopter. — Central Press Canadian.

Mr. Justice McLennan said Hewitt's loss of wages to the date of trial amounted to $2,900 and that he is permanently disabled.

U.S. Expected to Bring Issue On Humanitarian Treatment Of Prisoners Before Conference

TORONTO (CP)—The United States, expected to be the target of Communist accusations arising from the Korean war at the International Red Cross conference, took steps yesterday which may thrust into the discussions charges of its own.

At Washington, the State Department announced it has asked Russia to use its good offices to get North Korea and Communist China to comply with the 1940 Geneva Convention rules for humanitarian treatment of prisoners of war.

What may bring the issue into the international meetings here is a further request to the International Red Cross committee to persuade North Korea and Red China to agree on means of applying the Geneva convention principles.

Makes Several Charges

The U.S. note to Russia said the following provisions have not been observed: "Inspection of prisoner-of-war camps by an impartial international body has not been permitted; relief parcels have not been delivered; and the prisoner-of-war camps have been placed in areas in proximity to military objectives, exposing the prisoners to danger of attack."

Paul Ruegger, president of the International Red Cross committee, declined comment here last night on the charges, saying he had not yet received the U.S. note.

B.M. Zonov, Russian delegate, said he hadn't heard from Moscow about the appeal. "I don't even know yet whether it will effect our delegation at all," he said. "we might have nothing to do with it." Boris Pashkov, another Russian delegate, said he understood the North Korean government had expressed its willingness to abide by the Geneva Convention.

Some western delegations looked on the U.S. action as a move in anticipation of expected Communist charges before the conference that the united Nations have resorted to germ warfare.

First U. S. Step

It was the first aggressive step by the U.S. government which announced through the State Department July 18 that it would not send a voting delegation to the conference in an effort to avoid a direct clash with the Reds over Korean-war charges. . . .

Yesterday's sessions saw the Russians and Chinese outvoted 15 to 2 on the question of whether West Germany should be admitted to the Red Cross. There was no debate on admittance of Ceylon and San Marino, two other applicants, and the admission of these countries and West Germany will bring the International Red Cross strength to 71 from 68.

WEDDINGS

CROWE—ADSETT

The marriage of Janet Marilyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Charles Adsett, to Mr. Christopher Crowe, London, Ontario, son of Mrs. Crowe of Toronto, and the late Mr. G. Kenneth Crowe, was solemnized in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, on July 12th. Reverend Duncan McTavish officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white eyelet organdy over taffeta, her shoulder length veil held by lily-of-the-valley. She carried lilies and pink carnations.

Mrs. H. Murphy, of Sault Ste. Marie, wearing a gown of white eyelet organdy over orchid taffeta, was her sister's matron of honor. The two bridesmaids, Misses Barbara Cotter and Jane Cooley, of Toronto, wore similarly styled gowns of eyelet over green. All carried fans of white net on which were arranged pink, mauve, and white Shasta daisies.

Mr. Cameron Crowe, of Montreal, was best man for his cousin; the ushers were Mr. Moore Smalley, of London, and Dr. Harvey Murphy, of Sault Ste. Marie.

The bridal party received the guests on the shaded lawn at Albert College. Later refreshments were served in the dining hall, which was tastefully decorated with foliage and summer flowers.

After a holiday in the north, Mr. and Mrs. Crowe will reside in London.

Interesting Survey of Canada's Postal Services Outlined At Chatterton Women's Institute

Mr. Wilton, student pastor of Sidney Baptist Church, who was the guest speaker at the recent July meeting of the Chatterton Women's Institute which met at the home of Mrs. Cecil Ross, gave a most interesting account of the establishment of the postal service in Canada, using as his topic "The High Order of Our Postal Service".

Following Mr. Wilton's introduction by Mrs. Harry Reid, he said: "The earliest records of postal service in Canada date from the days of the French regime. In 1705 the Intendant of Quebec, Randot, commissioned Pierre De Silva Dit Portugais as courier to carry official correspondence between Quebec, Three Rivers and Montreal, and in addition any letters entrusted to him by private persons.

In 1734, a post road was completed between Quebec, Three Rivers and Montreal and 'maitres de poste' were appointed who maintained a line of post houses for travellers. It was this road on which postal service was first regularly established.

The present postal system is based on that of Great Britain and from 1760 on to 1857 when the service was finally taken over by the Canadian authorities. The post offices in Canada were under the control of the British postmaster, generally administered by deputies of his own choosing.

First Postmaster General

Benjamin Franklin was in charge of the postal system in the British colonies in North America. As soon as Canada came under British rule, he opened up a post office in Quebec with subordinate offices in Montreal, and Three Rivers. These offices were in charge of Hugh Finlay and was Canada's first deputy postmaster general under British rule. It was the first government institution to be placed on a settled basis after Canada became a British colony.

In 1851, the provinces of Canada, the present, Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, took over control of their own postal system from the mother country.

In Canada, the postmaster general was a member of the executive council, (the provincial cabinet). In Nova Scotia, the postmaster general was not a member of the council, but administered the postal department as a subordinate official, the same system was maintained in New Brunswick until 1855, after which time the head of the department in that province was always a member of the provincial government.

The years between 1851 and 1867 saw great extensions of postal systems. In 1851 the number of post offices in the provinces of Canada was 601. The first year the province took over, they numbered 844, and at the confederation there were 2,333.

First Postage Stamps

The first postage stamps were introduced in Great Britain in 1840, and issued here in 1851.

Post office money order system was established in 1855; railway services were started in 1851. The first railway was only 16 miles long and was operated by horses, but locomotives were substituted in 1837.

Up to 1853 the various projects brought the advantage of railway communications to all the settlements throughout Upper and Lower Canada, and, as construction on them proceeded, they were utilized by the post office authorities for the conveyance of the mail.

In 1855 the seat of government for Canada was removed from Quebec to Toronto, and with it the post office department, consisting of a staff of 17. The use of travelling post offices with mail clerks sorting and distributing the mails from the railway in the course of their trips began in England in 1838. This was studied by Canada and it was introduced here in 1854 and in 1857 the system was in full course in Canada.

Parcel Post Service

In May of 1856 began the first voyage to the St. Lawrence of the time of Canadian mail steamers under contract between Mr. Hugh Allan, of Montreal, and the provincial government.

A parcel post service within the province of Canada was instituted in January of 1859 with a weight limit of two pounds, which was soon increased to three pounds. Postage stamps to value of one, five and ten cents, and 12 1-2 and 17 cents were issued on the 1st of July 1859. Money order service was in operation at Confederation, and in 1868 there were 515 order offices and the amount of orders issued were $3,342,374.

The post office savings bank was not in operation prior to Confederation. It was established in April 1868, and at the end of the first year, there were 213 post offices acting as saving bank offices, with deposits of $861,655.

Post Cards—Air Mail

In 1871, post cards were introduced into Canada. In 1882, the first railway mail service in the west was established over the Winnipeg-Brandon section of the Canadian Pacific.

Rural mail delivery was introduced in 1908. In 1914, the parcel post service was established in Canada. In 1925, the limit of weight for parcel post was increased from 11 pounds to 15 pounds and in 1937 to 25 pounds. One of the wartime activities was the airgraph messages written on special forms obtainable at all post offices; when properly prepared and completed they were flown to Toronto and photographed on a miniature micro film—1,600 messages being contained on a three and three-quarter ounce roll. These were carried by air to England where photographic enlargements were made, enclosed and delivered.

The Canada air letter postage of ten cents was introduced in 1942. To facilitate correspondence with prisoners-of-war, air letter cards, postage of five cents, were introduced for reaching prisoners-of-war in Italy and in Germany, and also special air mail post cards (five cent postage) to prisoners-of-war and civilian internees in the Far East.

Leading Agency

The post office was Canada's leading agency in the sale of war savings stamps and certificates. The post office assisted in the registration of enemy aliens in the national registration of Canadian manpower.

To provide reading matter to the armed forces, the postmaster general arranged for all post offices to become collecting depots for books and magazines handed in unwrapped and unaddressed.

Not only do Canadians possess one of the largest air mail systems in operation, but the railway mail service and land mail service are among the most extensive in the world.

As the postal service in Canada has expanded so rapidly in recent years, every effort has been made to keep the organization of the department, and its facilities attuned to the demand upon it.

The present postmaster general is the Honorable Alcide Cote, and the deputy postmaster general, W. J. Turnbull.

Present Air Mail Service

Canada's air mail service connects with direct routes to the United States, to Australasia, the Orient, and the United Kingdom, and links up with every air mail system to all parts of the world. Even the remote Arctic is brought close to the centres of population, as are the newly opened mining and oil areas in the hinterland by means of air-stage service. The eastern Arctic patrol carries mail to the inhabitants of Labrador.

Appreciative thanks were tendered Mr. Wilton for the fine address.

The business part of the Institute meeting included the ordering of six more Institute badges to accommodate the new members coming in; a trip over the Ivy Lea Bridge for all members and their husbands was planned for August 5th.

The program was under the convenership of Mrs. Berson Mitts. The theme of the meeting was "Citizenship". Mrs. Mitts gave a message in reading and reviewed the last issue of the "Home and Country", and spoke of its new look, which was an improvement over the old.

Miss V. Demille gave a reading on "Aspiration", and Mrs. Mitts a pamphlet on, "A Christian Home and Its Children".

There were 12 members present with the president, Mrs. Earl Snider, presiding.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Too young to marry a boy in service?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 18, and have been dating a boy of 21 for three years. He is in the Navy, and we want to get married the next time he comes in on leave. Since he will be in service for several years, it would mean that I would either stay here at home and work, as I am now doing, or go with him from one base to another.

My mother neither encourages nor objects to my getting married, but everyone else is trying to talk me out of it. They say we are too young, and it wouldn't last, and find many other reasons why it would be a mistake. I think my boy friend and I are capable of adjusting to married life under all conditions.

Do you think we should listen to others, or should we do what we want and try to make a success of it?—Y.

Dear Y.:

Ordinarily, I feel that 18 is pretty young for a girl to take on the responsibilities of marriage, particularly under the sort of circumstances you describe. There are many serious difficulties to be met whether a young wife remains at home and puts in her time on a job, while waiting for the periods when her husband can be with her, or whether she travels about from one place to another in order to be near him as much as possible.

At the same time, I am keenly aware of the fact that these are not normal times, and hence the ordinary rules do not always apply. Therefore, I would say that in your case, since you and this boy have been in close association for as long as three years, you should be able to judge for yourselves whether or not you can make a go of marriage, and you should be permitted to make your own decision. Since your mother makes no objection to your marriage, my own feeling is that it is up to the two of you.

He has another girl—She wants him back

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My boy friend and I had been going steady for eight months when he called me up one night and, after telling me that he loved me very much, said he was sorry he couldn't see me the next night because he was going to be busy. So he made a date for the following night.

When the night of our date came, he didn't show up and somehow I guessed what had happened—he had found another girl. What hurt me most was that he didn't tell me himself, I had to hear it from my best friends. Then, when he knew I had heard, he called me up and told me about the other girl, but said he wanted me to be the one to break off with him. I love him so much that I couldn't do it, so we parted just as friends.

I wish him all the luck in the world with his new girl, but I want him back. We made so many plans, and now when I remember all the things he said to me, they hurt so much. Can't you tell me how I can win him back?—A. S.

Dear A. S.:

The smart thing to do when your boy friend seems to have lost interest in you is to take it calmly and don't let him think it bothers you too much. I don't mean that you should treat him coldly, or snub him when you happen to meet him, because that is one way of showing him that it really does bother you a lot.

What I do mean is to go your own way, go out with other friends, whether you feel like it or not, and just live your life normally. The fact is that when a boy sees that a girl doesn't go into a tailspin when she loses a boy friend, but goes on having fun and good times with others, he is much more likely to get interested in her again. Boys just don't like girls who are over-dependent on them, or who make a big fuss if the romance cools off.

If you will do as I have suggested, I think I can promise you that in time you will discover that this one particular boy does not matter to you so much any more and you won't really care whether he comes back or not. If he does, and you still want him, well and good; if he doesn't, you will probably already be well on the way to finding another boy friend.

4 qts. washed berries, 10 cups sugar, 1 box (pectin) crystals. Mix sugar and berries in heavy bottom kettle, stir until juice appears, to keep from sticking, try not to break too many of the berriees. Boil 20 min. Add 1 box of (pectin) crystals and boil hard for 2 min. longer. Seal in sterile pint jars—makes 7 pints.—E. J. P.

ANSWER:

I made this jam according to the recipe. So far it has not faded. Fading is due to air. Jam should be boiling hot when poured into hot sterile jars and sealed at once. Be sure to work quickly with boiling hot jam and jars and filling jars to exclude air, and sealing at once. Let me know if you have any more trouble.

QUESTION:

. . .Enjoy your articles. . . my daughter is getting married . . . could you give me some suggestions for a trousseau tea. . . and reception afterward following the wedding. . . I would like to make a good white cake and decorated small cakes and cookies. . . I have made 4 chiffon cakes and they all fall out of the pan and are rubbery on the bottom. . . have you ever made a cookbook of your own for sale?—(Mrs.) A. J. L.

ANSWER:

Whenever I am asked for my cookbook I am sorry to have to say "no". I hope some day to have time to work on one—if so I'll let you know.

POUND CAKE

for the foundation of Petit Fours

Three and 3-4 cups sifted cake flour, 1 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon finely grated lemon rind, 1 teaspoon nutmeg (optional), 1 3-4 cups butter, 2 1-4 cup sugar, 8 eggs, yolks and whites separated. Sift together flour, baking powder three times. Add lemon rind and nutmeg if used to butter and cream until fluffy. Gradually beat in 1 3-4 cups of the sugar. Beat yolks until they are approximately tripled in volume. Add yolks to butter mixture and beat in with spoon. Beat whites until stiff enough to stand up in peaks but not dry. Add remaining 1-2 cup sugar to whites, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating after each addition until just blended. Stir 1-3 of the flour mixture into the butter mixture, then 1-2 of the egg whites, repeating until all is used, beating well with spoon between every addition. Bake in 2 greased and paper-lined pans 13x9x2 inches at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour or until cakes shrink from sides. Cool on cake racks. Twenty-four hours later cut into 1-inch squares, or tiny crescents, or diamonds or rounds. Frost with

FONDANT GLAZE

(For Petit Fours)

Two cups granulated sugar, 1-8 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 cup hot water, confectioners' sugar. Combine granulated sugar, cream of tartar, and water in saucepan. Stir constantly over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Wipe down sides with damp cloth then cook gently to 226 deg. Fahr. Cool to lukewarm (110 deg. Fahr.) then add enough icing sugar to make of consistency to pour over cakes. Arrange cut cake shapes on cake rack or waxed paper. Pour glaze over each row moving steadily to end of row and back again to cover tops and sides. Let glaze set for five minutes then repeat. If glaze hardens while working, reheat over hot water. Decorate glazed cakes with slivered almonds, candied fruit, etc. Tint glaze different pale shades if desired, with liquid vegetable coloring.

Raise the temperature by 25 deg. to bake your chiffon cakes as you live at very high altitude. I am mailing you the copy of the column on wedding reception menu.

Fashion Flashes

Notice how the black dress is returning to high favor? For summer in the city, every store is showing delightful blacks in silks, cottons and mixture blends. Black sheer rayon crepe is used for an attractive late afternoon dress, slim of line, but with floating panels of taffeta at either side of the skirt. There's a deep, draped collar of taffeta and short sleeves.

No matter the size, dots give dash to summer clothes. White organdy dotted in red is the fabric used for a ballerina-length summer dance dress. The deep, almost off-shoulder neckline owes its all to a separate, knife-pleated cape that ties on and covers the strapless top. Shirring makes for a molded bodice. The skirt is very full.

No sooner does it get hot, than velvet begins to be the big millinery fabric! Anyway, the streets are full of pretty young things wearing little black velvet caps, much of the fabric cut away to reveal the hair.

15TH CHILD WELCOMED

NEW YORK (AP)—There's a young woman who lives in Brooklyn and she has so many children she's delighted. "The more the merrier," laughed Mrs. Anne Giacalone, 38, after the birth Tuesday of her 15th child in the 17 years of her marriage.

Evening Separates

By TRACY ADRIAN

A PLAY of contrast in fabric handling and color is one of the outstanding characteristics of Dorothy Dickerson's collection of informal evening clothes for fall and winter. This important American designer is a firm believer in separates for after dark occasions and has created many of these chic and becoming costumes.

The outfit that is pictured consists of sleeveles bodice made of imported eggshell wool lace cut with a rounded neckline and a skirt of black heavy satin-ribbed silk. A snugly fitted line extends from the waist to above the knees, where a pleated flounce gives fullness when in motion, to an otherwise slim skirt.

GOOD MANNERS

By CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Memo to mothers. . . mind your manners

Attention, Mothers! Are you careless about saying "Please", indifferent about saying "Thank you?" Then inevitably your child will follow your careless and unattractive example. And that means, alas, that your relatives and friends and neighbors will blame your child for the discourtesy for which you are responsible.

Better do some constructive thinking about this. . .for instilling in your child the gentle habit of mannerliness is of vast importance, incalculable importance, to your child and to his or her future.

Special problem of at-home hours for wedding anniversary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother and father are to celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary on Wednesday, the last week in September, and they would like to have Open House at their home. My sister and I are their only children, and as we live near them, we can, I think, make every arrangement. Our special problem is that because mother is not very well she would not be able to receive for as many hours together as the usual three-to-seven o'clock. Also father thinks there should be, if possible, one or two hours 'At Home' in the evening, for those not able to come in the afternoon. What would your suggestions be?—Nina F.

I suggest this as one possible procedure: Plan to have the afternoon At Home hours from two-to-four o'clock, or three-to-five o'clock. . . which will mean that your mother can have a rest after luncheon, and will not receive for more than two hours. Then have her rest until the evening At Home hours for the other guests, say from seven or seven-thirty to nine o'clock, no later. Another possible procedure, to avoid the two-group At Home hours, might be to have the celebration on Sunday following the actual date (this is very often done, for greatest convenience for the greatest number of guests), and name only two or three afternoon hours. . three-to-five, say, or four-to-six.

Should she go to the shower?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just been invited to a bridal shower, but I am not being invited to the wedding, which will take place several weeks after the shower. The ones who are giving the shower are not relatives, but are connected with the family. I am undecided if I should attend the shower. Will you kindly advise me what to do?—Perplexed.

I wouldn't be able to advise you without knowing more about the circumstances. If it is to be a large wedding, I should think you would naturally be invited to the wedding if you know the bride-to-be well enough to be invited to the shower. If it is to be a small wedding, perhaps only close relatives and a few very intimate friends, then you would not expect to be invited, but you might enjoy going to the shower.

However, if you have no interest in going to the shower and in giving the bride a shower present (your letter doesn't seem to indicate that you have any enthusiasm about going to the shower), there is certainly no reason for you to accept the invitation . . . and if you don't accept, you needn't send a shower present.

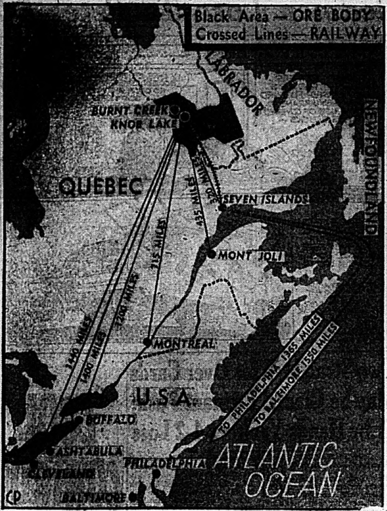
Awakening Land



This vast peninsula, 450,000 square miles — comprising about one-eighth of all Canada — is being opened up as great mineral treasures, especially iron ore, are found. A 360-mile railway is being built from the vicinity of Burnt Creek to Seven Islands, Que., at the wide mouth of the St. Lawrence Iron for Canada and the United States will come from the huge development in the Labrador-Ungava region. — (CP Photo.)

Railway and Shipping Network Overcomes Problems of Transporting Ungava Ore

This is one of a series by Forbes Rhude, Canadian Press Business Editor, after a visit to the huge iron-ore development in northern Quebec and Labrador. In it he tells how the transportation problem is being overcome so the rich deposit can be mined successfully and sold.

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

What makes up the $200,000,000 iron-ore development in Labrador-Ungava?

In the first place, more than 400,000,000 tons of ore is known to exist right in the centre of the peninsula.

That is enough to start mining, and to justify the $200,000,000 expenditure; but geologists feel sure it is only the beginning of what will be found later.

The known ore bodies straddle the boundary of Newfoundland's Labrador and Quebec's Ungava—or New Quebec—with one-third on the Labrador side and two-thirds on the Ungava side.

Digging the ore is a relatively simple mining operation. You don't need to sink shafts or tunnel underground. You just take off a light overburden of rocks and earth, which averages about seven feet deep, and dig out the ore.

Series of Pits

Open-pit mining it is called Small mountains will be dug away and their places taken by big holes; the ordinary surface of today will become a series of pits several hundred feet deep.

The problem, and the major expense, comes when you try to get the ore out of the centre of Labrador-Ungava and down to a shipping port.

For that job, a 360-mile railway, which is called the Quebec North Shore and Labrador Railway, is being built almost due south from Knob Lake, in central Labrador-Iles—at the wide mouth of the St. Lawrence River. The railway will cost $100,000,000, and the ore-handling terminal at Seven Islands $18,000,000.

From Seven Islands, most of the ore will go by ship to Montreal, where it will be trans-shipped at a terminal to be built there. It will be loaded on canal boats or railway cars and go to its markets in the United States mid-west. Some of the ore probably will follow an Atlantic route to United States seaboard points or Britain.

Initially, 10,000,000 tons a year will be shipped; but if the St. Lawrence Seaway is built, it is planned to ship 20,000,000 tons. Given favorable transportation and favorable markets, the figure can be increased indefinitely.

Canada's Needs Small

There appears to be little market in Canada for the ore, until Canada has more population. Canadian steel mills consume 4,900,000 tons of ore a year, of which 4,700,000 tons is supplied by existing Canadian mines. The remaining 200,000 tons would require only a few days of mining once production starts in Labrador-Ungava.

Due to cold winter weather, which would freeze the ore, mining will be confined to about six months of the year, but stockpiles will be built at Seven Islands to supply the nine-month navigation season.

About half the grading has been done for the railway and steel will be laid to mile 190, more than half-way, by the end of the year. The railway will carry its first ore in 1954.

It will be a modern railway in every way, on communications and equipment. Rails will weigh 132 pounds, heaviest in Canada. Four diesel-electric locomotive units, each unit 1,600 horsepower, will haul 125-car ore trains, each train weighing 14,000 tons.

The 13½-hour run from Knob Lake to Seven Islands will be first an easy climb, and then mostly down-grade for the last 150 miles.

It is probably the first present-day railway venture in Canada to be built without government assistance.

Hub of Mining Area

It is expected to be declared a "common carrier," and so will be available for all traffic that develops in Labrador-Ungava. As W. H. Durrell, general manager of Iron Ore Company, puts it:

"I see the northern terminus of our railroad as a point from which prospectors will radiate all over the vast territory of New Quebec and Labrador and locate and place in production minerals known to be there."

The ore-receiving, stockpiling and loading terminal at Seven Islands is a story in itself. N. D. Vernon, borrowed from the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, says it will have the "best, biggest, fastest, most modern ore-handling facilities in the world."

The terminal is 2½ miles long and covers 525 acres. It will be able to put 8,000 tons of ore an hour into the ore-carrying ships.

It is a "hump" yard. Once the ore cars are pushed over the hump, they are in the hands of gravity, cables and men in control towers. They are virtually untouched by human hands until after their ore is dumped into a ship or into a stockpile, and they are moved to the pick-up point for empties.

Careful Direction

Analysis of the ore in each car will have preceded it by teleprinter from Knob Lake. The control-tower men will direct the movement of each car so the required blend of ore reaches each ship.

The dock for the project will be 2,200 feet long; 600 feet for a government dock; 800 feet of mooring space for ore ships waiting to be loaded and 800 feet for the ship being loaded.

Two ore-carrying ships, each 650 feet, each to carry 30,000 long tons, are being built in Britain to supplement present ore-carrying fleets.

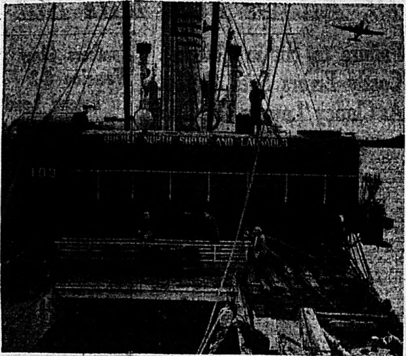
Two hydro projects, each costing $5,000,000, will supply power—one at Menihek Lake, 30 miles south of Knob Lake, for mining operations; one at Marguerite River, 20 miles from Seven Islands, for operations at Seven Islands. Each will develop something like 20,000 horsepower.

Should greater power projects be needed in the future, there is a potential 500,000 horsepower at Eton Canyon in the north, and another 1,500,000 horsepower at Hamilton River to the east.

Head Development

Jules Timmins, left, of Montreal, is the driving force behind the development of iron ore in Labrador-Ungava. He consults with W. G. Durrell, general manager of Iron Ore Company of Canada, the company formed to handle the iron-ore concession. — (CP Photo.)

Modern Travel



Modern diesel-electric locomotives will go north into Labrador-Ungava as the railway line from Seven Islands, Que., to Knob Lake is built. Until now the airplane, inset, has been used to transport everything from buns to bulldozers into the far-north iron-ore development project. The locomotives are just part of the 200,000 tons of freight which will cross the docks at Seven Islands, during the summer. — (CP Photo.)

Art Wright Fans 19, Allows Four Hits But Redmen Lose To Petes 5-2

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"LOWERS THE BOOM"

To use an old sports cliche, that tiff between the Petes and the Redmen last night was a "heartbreaker to lose" for Art. Wright. The righthander had the Petes sluggers waving at more air than a political convention orator, but the sad story is, his mates failed to support him both afield and at bat. Art's fast ball was whizzing by the Liftlock laddies so fast, 50,000 mosquitoes crawled back in their holes to escape the gale. He sent 19 of 'em, the Petes, not the skitters, down via the whiff route and allowed but four measly hits. But, kiddies, the way the mates kicked and tossed that ball around when run-hungry Petes were base-poised was nothing short of heartbreaking.

The Reds were hitting all right, they got ten all told, one of them Tony "Push 'Em Up" Pettitt's ringing triple to right centre, good for a marker, but they were woefully weak with the wood when the boys were on base itching to gallop home.

But don't forget young Master Clancy had something to do with that. While Wright's performance overshadowed that of the spectacled youngster on paper, the kidlet really lowered the boom on our side when a hit meant a run, mebbe two or three. He was exceptionally effective in the second when Carson, Semark and Kelleher got aboard safely with nary an out on the scorebook. He forced the next three to pop or fly out.

Singles by Goyer and Bush put the kid in a hole in the eighth while 600 fans fairly screamed for a hit, but the son of Ole Man Clancy calmly speared a pop fly and struck out the next two batters, just like that. Again in the ninth he whiffed Art Wright, first man up, then Fitz drove out his third clout of the game to give the pewsters another gleam of hope. But not so Master Clancy. Gilmour waved at the ozone and so did Tony Pettitt and that was that.

But we repeat that cliche. It was a heartbreaker to lose for Wright and a well-deserved victory for Master Clancy.

A GOOD LINE!

It seems you're just wasting your time sitting on the lazy end of a fishing pole, if you want to catch a fish. According to two stories just come to light all you have to do is flip the rod, line hook and sinker overboard, let it stay there for a while, grapple for it and nine chances out of ten you'll find anything from a fresh-water sprat to a miniature Jonah chewing on the hook.

A conservation officer tells the story of an angler up around Salmon Lake way (probably the ex-sheriff, the scribe or the income tax man) who when fishing caught his line on something or other at the bottom of the lake. Finally retrieving his line he found attached to the bait a metal fish line. Out of curiosity (this must have been the scribe) he began to pull the line in. During this operation (on advice from the ex-sheriff) he felt a tug and was delighted to discover that the lost tackle had attached to it a four-pound lake trout.

Jack Balyx, one of Chief Walter Probert's "finest" was fishing in West lake near Wellington the other siesta time. Somehow or another, mebbee he was gazing at what he thought was a Russian submarine cruising off the Sandbanks, he lost his tackle. The whole kit and kaboodle sloshed overboard and there he was. Nary a line, hook or sinker did he have. Overboard he went and got lost in the submerged bullrushes finally coming up without even the luck of Pharoah's daughter.

Eventually he secured some grappling tackle and scraped the bottom of the lake near the spot where the tackle took a nose-dive. He retrieved the gear all right and what was on the end of it placidly chewing at a June bug? A thirteen inch black bass weighing a little over a pound.

FOR THE LADIES

Redmen manager Jack Carson tells us the arrangements for Ladies Night at Exhibition Grounds tomorrow evening have been completed. He has come to an agreement with Local 1456839 Bore and Bite Brotherhood of Loyal Mosquitos whereby the winged buzzards will spend the weekend at Lake Whatchamaycallit, three miles south of the Arctic Circle In addition he has arranged for ten handsome prizes for the gals included in which are cosmetics, powder puffs and other gadgets dear to the feminine heart. The price of admission is 25 cents for the diamondears, and with the ticket goes a chance for the draw. In short ten chances for prizes and a baseball game all for "two-bits". How about that, Pop?. You won't get a cheaper Saturday night in a decade, and besides the missus will find out where you spend your Saturday nights — or part of 'em.

Incidentally to keep the record straight for friend Mike Rodden, the game between the Petes and Redmen tomorrow night is the postponed affair from June 2nd. The game between the same teams scheduled for tonight in Peterborough has been laid over due to the fact the lacrossers hold forth in the Liftlock City. Got it, Miguel?

TALL, DARK AND HANDSOME

There won't be any panty-waisting, pussyfooting or pausing for a spot of tea tonight at Memorial Arena, and you can lay to that, says Barnacle Bill. Lord Athol Layton, the Man of a Thousand Chops and Bo Bo Brazil, the ebon hero of many a bonk-conking fiesta, toss torsos in a black-and-white melee that should make the faithful forget the heat, the "reluctant candidate", moonlight in Shannonville and who will win the Zwick's Island bunion derby next Spring. Twill be quite a joust since both gladiators tower well in the near-stratosphere and they tell me the heat wave hasn't reached their ear-drums yet. Best seats in the house should be the fifth and sixth rafters, unless the arena comish has them removed by bout-time. Taint likely, bub. One thing about the bout is there will be no danger of either gladiator nipping a snack from his own big toe, as has been done at times, unless Athol prefers the light meat and Bo-Bo the dusky type.

BAYSIDE RACES

Ken Kenney states as how there should be plenty of excitement at his Bayside Speedway tomorrow night when some fifteen drivers get under way in another Saturday evening stock car race classic. There will be special events which are attracting the best drivers in the district and Kenney adds, there will be fun and fireworks for all. The meets are operated under the aegis of the OSCAR (Operators Stock Car Auto Racers) and there is plenty of rivalry among these hot-rodders of the oval tracks. The first heat gets under way at seven o'clock and Kenney guarantees there'll be lots of excitement. The track is situated north of Highway No. 2 about 200 yards up the White Church sideroad.

Failure to Hit in Clutches Costly Errors Spell Defeat As Clancy 'Lowers The Boom'

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Failure to support a magnificent pitching performance by Art Wirght cost the Belleville Redmen a 5-2 COBL game here last night and boosted Peterborough Petes into a second-place tie with the Kingston Monarchs.

The hurling of Wright and Phil Clancy for the Petes featured a game that saw both teams kick the ball around when errors meant runs. But Wright, Redmen ace righthander deserved a better fate.

He struck out 19 Peterborough batters, retiring the side on straight strikes on two occasions. He pitched hitless ball for four innings, allowing only four singles over the nine inning route. He weakened slightly in the ninth when he issued four of seven walks forcing in a run, but at that he retired the side with whiffs.

Clutch Hurling

Clancy won his game with fine clutch hurling. He turned back the Reds in the second after loading the bases with none out. In the fourth and eighth he retired the side with two Reds aboard, and struck out three in the ninth with a Red runner on third. Clancy issued no walks and whiffed five.

While the Redmen touched the Petes hurler for ten safeties, one of them a triple by Tony Pettit for the only extra base hit of the game, they failed to come through in the clutches. They erred four costly times, all of the bobbles accounting for runs.

The Petes kicked the ball around six times but they were not costly, with Clancy's clutch hurling pulling them out of the holes. Tony Pettitt, Red catcher, got the only RBI of the game when his long centrefield triple in the first innings drove home Fitzpatrick who had singled ahead of him. Pettitt scored the Reds second and last run when he raced home on a passed ball.

Runless for Eight

The Petes scored a run in the first on an error, a walk and a sacrifice and hit-by-pitcher. Their second came in the third an a sacrifice, a walk and another Redman bobble.

The teams battled runless until the eighth with Wright doing a two-hit job, when Al Menzies and Arn Dugan singles combined with another Redman wild throw to score a pair. Wright forced in the fifth tally in the ninth with four consecutive walks before he retired the side on strikes.

On the other side of the fielding ledger the Petes came through with two twin-killings to choke off threatening Red rallies.

Fitzpatrick and Red Carson led the Reds at the plate with three singles each. Pettit tripled and Vern Goyer came through with a pair and Bush a lone single.

Arn Dugan rapped out two singles with Garvey and Menzies being the only other Petes to connect safely with Wright's shoots.

Panthers Claw Waterloo 6-2 To Extend Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener Panthers gave emphatic warning last night that they intend to hold first place in the senior Intercounty Baseball League. They trounced Waterloo Tigers 6-2 to stretch their lead over the fading Guelph Maple Leafs to 1½ games.

London Majors lost no time in regaining sole possession of fourth place, walloping Galt Terriers 7-2. The two teams had shared the fourth spot for one day.

Marchildon Weakens

Kitchener's Mel Duncan and Waterloo's Phil Marchildon were matched in a scoreless mound duel for the first six innings at Kitchener. The Tigers drew first blood in the seventh with one run but the Panthers bounced back in the same inning with four.

Marchildon gave up eight hits to Duncan's six. Duncan walked three and fanned seven. Marchildon allowed five walks and struck out three. Leftfielder Bill Flick topped the hitting with two for four and scored twice himself for the losers.

Bob Brake went the distance for the Majors at London to collect his eighth win against one loss. He allowed seven hits, walked one and fanned eight. The Majors picked up 10 hits off Jim Bell and Frank Howland with Bell counted the loser. Bob Deakin, 17-year-old London shortstop was top man at the plate with three for three. Catcher Bill Dixon contributed three for five.

Evon, Wilson Tied

Statistics released today show leftfielder Russ Evon of London tied for league batting honors with Brantford's Gerry Wilson, each with .348 averages. Each had 46 hits in 132 trips to the plate in games played up until Monday night.

Don Butler of St. Thomas is third with .343 while Nick Rhabe, also of the Elgins, is fourth with .337.

Evon is top man in runs batted in with 30. Vern Kaiser of Galt has 25 and Pat Seerey, Guelph, 23.

Pitcher Chuck Fedoris of Kitchener has most wins with nine. Brake has the best winning average with a 7-and-1 record.

Tonight Brantford is at St. Thomas and Kitchener at Guelph.

Two Straight Wins Over Cards May be Giants' Pennant Push; Tribe Hands Yankees 4-2 Loss

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Giants' two straight over the red-hot St. Louis Cardinals, along with Brooklyn's split of four games with their "cousins" from Cincinnati, has revived talk that the Giants have started their big push.

Still 6½ games behind the Brooks in the National League, the Giants can draw new hope from the performance of Max Lanier. A disappointment in early spring, Lanier appears to be rounding into his old hot-weather form.

Lanier's six-hitter against his old St. Louis mates yesterday for a 9-5 decision was his fourth win in his last five games.

Four Homers Count

Bobby Thomson, Dave Williams, Sal Yvars and Jim Rhodes hit home runs in the Giants' 11-hit attack on loser Harry Brecheen and three others.

The Giants almost made up more ground but Brooklyn came back to shade Cincinnati 2-1 on Duke Snider's 11th-inning homer after the Reds had won the first half of a doubleheader, 3-2.

Snider's smash, the 100th homer of his big-league career, came off Frank Smith who took over after Ewell Blackwell was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the 10th. Rookie Ben Wade went all the way for Brooklyn with a four-hitter.

Bubba Church shut out the Dodgers until the seventh inning of the opener. Despite Rube Walker's run-scoring double in the seventh and Jackie Robinson's homer in the eighth, he went the route for his second win. Andy Seminick homered for the Reds.

Ed Mathews hit his 16th homer and later scored on Walker Cooper's double in Boston's 3-1 victory over Chicago Cubs. Sid Gordon also homered for the Braves off loser Turk Lown. The Cubs had 13 hits off Jim Wilson and Lew Burdette.

The Phillies and Pittsburgh were not scheduled.

Tribe Beats Yanks

Talk of a New York Yankee runaway in the American League faded as Cleveland handed Tom Morgan a 4-2 loss. The win left the fourth-place Tribe 5½ games back of the Yanks.

Mike Garcia registered his 14th win with a seven-hitter. He had a shutout until the sixth when Yogi Berra's 21st homer tied the score. Homers by Joe Tipton and Dale Mitchell and a two-run single by Johnny Berardino off reliefer Ed Lopat accounted for the Cleveland scores.

With a chance to gain on the Yanks, both the runner-up Boston Red Sox and Washington fell down. Boston was shut out by Chicago's Lou Kretlow 3-0.

Walt Dropo continued his long-distance hitting for Detroit with a two-run tie-breaking homer in the eighth inning for a 4-2 edge over Washington. Bill Wight was the winner over Randy Gumpert.

St. Louis Browns ended their seven-game losing streak with a 4-3 win over Philadelphia Athletics on Bobby Young's sixth-inning homer. Ned Garver got the victory; Sam Zoldak suffered his fifth straight loss.

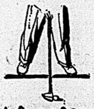
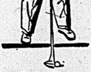
"COOL CONTROL"

THE STANCE



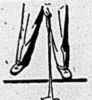
1-Square Stance

Balance and control are 'musts.' There are three basic stances — first, the Square Stance, as above. This stance requires both feet to be placed square to the intended line of flight.



2-Open Stance

All stances require the club to be soled directly back of the ball so that the bottom of the club sits evenly on the turf. If toe of club sticks up, you are too far away. If toe is down, you are too close. In Open Stance, left foot is drawn back from line of flight, and body is turned slightly toward left. Use when slice or fade is desired.



3-Closed Stance

Opposite from Open Stance. Draw right foot back from line of flight. Use when hook from right to left is required. Recommended for driving because of overspin imparted to ball when hit.

It's control that counts, in golf as in every sport — control which brings the balance, the comfort and the extra quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

Minor Event May Decide U.S.A.--Russia Olympics Duel

Reds Lead With 323 Points Americans Second With 221; Four Canucks in Semi-Finals

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—The great duel between the United States and Russia for point-winning team supremacy in the Olympic Games may well be decided by a comparatively minor event.

So far the United States has scored heavily in track and field competition although championships yesterday were well distributed nationally. Russia's men and women have rolled up points by the score in gymnastics.

But an indication of things to come was seen when first-round matches in Greco-Roman wrestling—the style where any hold below the waist is barred—ended last night. Russia won all eight first-round matches. The United States has no entrants in the event.

Going into the sixth day of competition today, Russia had piled up 323½ points in all sports against 221 by the United States. Hungary was a distant third with 87, followed by Sweden with 67½. Switzerland with 58 and Cechoslovakia with 56½.

Many Records Fall

Popular attraction, however, was still focussed on the glamorous track and field events in Helsinki's Olympic Stadium. With 20 events completed, 18 Olympic records have been broken. Twelve events still are to be decided before this division of the games ends.

Record-breaking went on yesterday, a daily pattern now in track and field.

A husband-wife combination broke two records. Emil Zatopek, the durable Czech, ran his opposition into the ground in the home stretch to win the 5,000-metre run in record time. His attractive wife, Dana, broke the record in the women's javelin throw. Her last name, in the Czech spelling for females, is Zatopekova.

Their duel accomplishment marked the first time a husband and wife have received Olympic medals on the same day.

Shirley Strickland de la Hunty of Australia clipped both world and Olympic records in winning the women's 80-metre hurdles in 10.9 seconds. The old world mark was 11.0; the Olympic mark 11.2.

World and Olympic records were broken again when Jozsef Csermak of Hungary won the hammer throw championship with a toss of 197 feet, 11.67 inches.

U. S. Slams in Hurdles

Harrison Dillard of the United States won his specialty—the 110-metre hurdles—in 13.7 seconds, lowering the old Olympic record by two-tenths of a second. Four years ago at London he won the 110-metre spring championship.

Two other Americans, Jack Davis and Arthur Barnard, followed Dillard to the tape to give the United States a slam. Another Olympic record fell when Bruno Junk of Russia won a heat in the 10,000-metre walk.

Canada's hopes for an end to the point-scoring famine were given a lift when four runners battled their way into semi-finals.

Bill Parnell of North Vancouver, BC., and John Ross of Oakville, Ont., each placed fourth in qualifying heats for the 1,500-metre run.

Jim Lavery of Calgary and Jack Carroll of Verdun, Que., survived two preliminary heats to qualify in the 400-metre semi-final. Lavery was first in one heat and second in another. Carroll placed second and third in his heats.

Russia Tops Gymnastics

Here's how other events stacked up yesterday:

Gymnastics — Russian women won four gold medals; Hungary won two and Sweden one in the wind-up of the event.

Fencing — France took three of the first six places in the men's individual foils competition.

Soccer — Germany eliminated Brazil and Hungary ousted Turkey in second-round matches.

Field Hockey — India came through, as expected, to win the Olympic tournament, defeating Holland in the finals. Great Britain was third and Pakistan fourth.

Modern pentathlon—Hungary still led at the end of swimming—second event of the five-sport competition which ends today with cross-country running. Sweden was second and the United States third.

Win M.B. Danes Memorial Trophy

The Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club was host to the 2nd Annual Inter-Service Club Golf tournament for the M. B. Davis Memorial trophy. Almost 60 local golfers participated with the net result that the combined team of Y's Men and Optimist Clubs won possession of the M. B. Davis trophy for the next year.

The Prize Winners

1st low gross: Spence Wonnacott; 2nd low gross: Don Ridley; 1st low net: Bill Holway; 2nd low net: Bob Melbourne; low gross, first nine: Stan Goodwin; low gross, 2nd nine: Ben Yanover-Bruce Graham tie; hidden score was won by Grant Badgley.

Visitor's prize won by D. R. Wiley, of Peterboro.

Others prizes were won by T. K. Franklin, Harry Knott and Newt Wilbur.

The Memorial trophy was presented to Bill Holway by Pres. Ben Yanover of the Kinsmen Club. Dinner followed the match and arrangements made for next year's match.

Glen Roy Juniors Take League Title With Two Straight Wins Over Diesels

Glen Roy Juniors are the 1952 champions of the Belleville and District Softball League.

The Juniors took the title last evening as they downed the CNR Diesels 8-7, to take their best-of-three playoff series in consecutive games. They won the first game Tuesday night 6-3.

The win gives the Juniors the city and district league championship while the Diesels wound up in second place. The Glens will take on the loser of the series between Point Anne and Frankford which stands at one game apiece, while the CNR will tangle with the RCAF Flyers in the first round of the league playoffs.

Glen Roys scored the first run of the game in the second inning with Batchelor singling, taking second on a passed ball, and scoring from second when the catcher's throw hit him and bounced into left field.

Diesels Score Five

The Diesels came up with five of their seven runs in a fourth inning rally. Leo Goyer reached second on an error in right field to lead off the inning and scored when the right fielder's relay went wild at third.

Vern Goyer and Glen Young walked, and Corbett beat out an infield roller to load the bases. Vern Goyer scored and the runners advanced on a passed ball, and Don Adams slammed a double to centrefield to plate Young and Corbett. Ronsky laid down a perfect bunt to advance Adams, and then drew a throw from the plate on an attempted steal. Ronsky danced around between first and second long enough to let Adams score on a steal from third before being tagged out.

Don Boyle popped to 3rd., Fitzpatrick singled, and Rogers fouled out to third to end the inning.

An error in left field that put Barclay aboard, a sacrifice bunt by Claude Carr, and singles by Doug Hull and Pete Green, and another error in left field were good for two junior tallies in the fifth.

In the sixth DeGray walked, stole second, and scored when the catcher's relay went into left field.

Don Adams scored for the Diesels in the bottom of the sixth. He walked to open the inning, moved to second on Ronsky's sacrifice bunt, and stole third, all in the same play. Don Boyle dumped a bunt in front of the mound that scored Adams from third on a fielder's choice.

The Glens stormed back in the seventh with a four-run rally to take the lead they never relinquished.

DeGray Homers

Carr opened with a walk and went to third on Hull's single to centre field. Hull went to second under the throw. Batchelor grounded out short to first to score Carr, and Hull scored on an error at short that let Pete Green take 2nd base. Nolan rolled out second-to-first and then Ted DeGray rounded a home run over the left fielder's head to drive in Green with the winning runs.

Don Boyle took himself out of the game at this point and Al Adams rushed to the rescue. He got Wannamaker on the first pitch with a hoist to left field. Adams struck out one, as he set the Glens down in order in the last two innings.

Vern Goyer homered with no one on in the bottom of the seventh for the Diesels final run.

Don Boyle walked three, struck out three, and gave up eight hits for seven runs in six and two thirds innings, to be charged with the loss.

Bob Green went all the way on the firing line for the Glens, walking five, striking out five, and giving up six hits for seven runs.

Lineup:

Glen Roy—Barclay lf; Carr 3b; Hull ss; Batchelor 2b; P. Green c; Nolan rf; DeGray 1b; Wannamaker cf; B. Green p.

Wings Edge Cubs By 4-3 Count Cut Royals Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rochester continues to put pressure on the first-place Montreal Royals in the International League, with Rip Repulski leading the attack.

Repulski hit his eighth homer in the fifth inning and singled home the winning run in the ninth last night for a 4-3 win over Springfield. Jack Faszholz allowed 12 hits but registered his sixth win against one loss.

Syracuse moved within four games of the top by scoring six runs in the seventh to swamp last-place Ottawa 7-2. It was a tense 0-0 duel between Syracuse's Jack Griffore and Ottawa's Vince Gohl when a walk, five singles and a double broke the spell in the seventh. Griffore went all the way for his ninth win.

Buffalo squeezed past Baltimore into fifth place by topping the Orioles 4-3.

Marlene Cracks Course Record

WINNIPEG (AP)—Marlene Stewart, Canadian women's Open and Close golf champion, yesterday cracked the women's course record at Niakwa Country Club here with a sizzling three-under-par 74.

Out in one-under-par 38, she came home in a two-under 36.

Playing in an exhibition foursome, the 18-year-old Fonthill golfer birdied four holes parred 13 and took one over par on the 6,322-yard course. Women's par is 77 and men's 71.

Her partner, professional Les Beven of St. Charles Country Club, took a six-over-par 38-39—77, while home professional Harold Eidsvig shot a one-under-par 35-35—70.

June Baker, Manitoba's women's Open champion, completed the foursome. Miss Baker had a 41-44—85.

Playing a low-ball, low-aggregate match partners Stewart and Beven won with a one-point edge.

The five-foot, 108-pound champion matched her personal low score in yesterday's play. Only a putt that rimmed the cup on the 18th green prevented her from carding a new low round.

Only once, on the 520-yard dog leg sixth, was Miss Stewart off the fairways. Her second shot from about two feet in the rough caught a trap after nicking the green. She blasted out, then rimmed the cup for a one-over-par six.

Miss Stewart left last night for Calgary where she will visit before leaving to defend her titles Aug. 7-16 in Edmonton.

Russians Wine, Dine Yank Victors With Caviar, Cognac, Filet Mignon

HELSINKI (AP)—The U.S. eight-oar Olympic rowing champions were wined and dined by the Russians yesterday.

The young midshipmen from the U.S. Naval Academy drank vodka, ate caviar, hugged pretty Russian girls and together toasted international friendship.

The Americans came loaded with gifts—chewing gum, candy, Olympic buttons and crew shirts.

They came back with boxes of Russian cigarets, bottles of cognac and pockets jingling with kopeks.

They were presented with a handsome red velvet banner inscribed: "From the Russian rowing team in the XV Olympics."

The unbeaten U.S. crew won the eight-oar championship Wednesday with Russia a surprisingly strong second.

The dinner was in a spacious hall decorated with Red flags bearing the hammer and sickle. On one wall were hung pictures of Stalin, Molotov and members of the Politburo—mammoth paintings in color.

In one corner was a display of huge cakes, reserved for Russian gold-medal winners. One weighed at least 20 pounds, made up to look like a fruit basket. Another was a model of the Kremlin.

There was caviar, rich tomato salads, fresh vegetables, fish and cheese. Waiters in full dress kept two glasses at each plate filled with strong cognac and vodka.

Then came the main dish—an inch-thick filet mignon, potatoes and peas.

St. Catharines Club Takes Over Lead In Royal Canadian Henley Regatta

By CRAIG SWAYZE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—Eleven North American rowing championships will be decided here today as the third afternoon of competition at the four-day Royal Canadian Henley Regatta gets under way on the Old Welland Canal.

The day's program, which also includes eight qualifying heats for tomorrow's races, is scheduled to begin at 3 p.m.

St. Catharines Rowing Club, hosts for this 70th regatta, yesterday earned a total of 44½ points to lead the record field in the grand aggregate for the Maple Leaf trophy, emblematic of regatta supremacy. Buffalo West Sides was second with 35 and the New York Athletic Club third with 34.

Finals to Six Clubs

St. Catharines gained one second and two third to pull up their point total. As it was, the six finals counting toward point competition were won by six different clubs.

Gabby Beaudry, formerly of Ottawa and now rowing under the Lachine Rowing Club's colors, provided one of the biggest upsets yesterday when he won the open quarter-mile-dash final from six United States scullers.

Beaudry finished a length in front of the U.S. dash champion, Rudy Jezek of the New York A.C., who held a deck-length lead over veteran dasher Joe Angyal, also of the New York A.C.

Two Brockville and St. Catherines lightweight crews battled in the junior 145-pound fours and the junior 135-pound fours. Both managed wins by a few yards over each other, St. Catharines taking the 145-pound event and Brockville coming back to capture the 135-pound race.

Don Guest Ducked

Don Guest of the Toronto Dons was a disappointment in the junior singles final won by Eugene Loveless of the New York A.C. Guest caught a crab on the sixth stroke and was left splashing in the muddy waters of the canal.

On the second afternoon of the 1951 regatta, brother Jack did the same thing in a driving finish of the open dash final. His plunge was taken in front of a packed grand stand.

Buffalo West Sides took the junior 155-pound four final in 7:23 over Hamilton and St. Catharines while Ottawa had an easy time of it in the junior fours. The eastern Ontario crew finished eight lengths in front of runner-up Buffalo with a Detroit boat club crew third.

Hal Sing and Bill Hammond gave Hamilton Leaders their win with a clean-cut victory over R. Alexander and W. Thornborough of Toronto Dons in the junior 140-pound doubles final. An Ecorse, Mich., entry finished third.

Canada's Points Hopes Rest On Four Runners

HELSINKI (CP) — Competitors and officials in the Canadian Olympic camp could be excused if they were a bit starry-eyed today.

Four Canadian runners went out on the Olympic Stadium track yesterday and battled their way into semi-finals. There was hope that Canada at last will get a place in the list of countries with point scores—event if 'way down.

Here is yesterday's record of the four runners:

1,500-metre preliminary heats (four qualifiers in each heat):

Bill Parnell, North Vancouver, placed fourth; time, 3:53.4. Heat won by Olow Aberg of Sweden in 3:51.0. Denis Johansson of Finland second in 3:51.2; Rolf Lamers, Germany, third in 3:52.4.

John Ross, Oakville, Ont., placed fourth; time, 3:55.2. Heat won by Werner Lueg of Germany in 3:52.0. Vaclav Cevona of Czechoslovakia second in 3:53.4; Audun Boysen of Norway third in 3:55.0.

400-metre preliminary heats, first round (first two in each heat qualifying for second-round heats):

Jim Lavery, Calgary, first in heat in 48.4 seconds. Beat Russia's Jurii Lituev by four-tenths second.

Jack Carroll, Verdun, Que., placed second; time, 48.0. Heat won by Arthur Wint of Jamaica in 47.3.

Second-round heats (three qualifiers):

Lavery placed second; time, 47.5. Heat won by Wint in 46.9.

Carroll placed third, time 47.7. Heat won by Mal Whitfield, United States, in 47.6. Hans Geister, Germany, second in 47.7.

Sport in Brief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario's nine junior A hockey teams are considering a plan calling for competition next season with the four clubs in Quebec.

The plan originated with Frank Selke, manager of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League. It calls for each Quebec team to play each Ontario team twice during the season. A decision from the Ontario teams is expected at a meeting in August of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Council.

"I think it is a good idea," manager Harold Ballard of the Toronto Marlboros club said last night. "It'll give the public something different. Every week it'll be like an Eastern Canada playoff preview. What we need here is an injection of new blood and this could be it."

Jack Roxburgh of Simcoe, O.H.A. president, said he hadn't heard of the proposal but that was understandable as the Junior A council runs its own affairs. He said the O.H.A. would have to sanction the plan and it would require approval of 75 per cent of the Junior A teams.

President Bob Moran of Toronto Argonauts football team said yesterday that Al Dekdebrun is definitely "out" as Argos' 1952 quarterback, and may be traded to Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Moran and coach Frank Clair decided they'll stick to Nobby Wirkowski. Argos would like to trade Dekdebrun to Hamilton for backfielder Doug Gray, but coach Carl Voyles of the Cats said earlier that Gray is worth three Dekdebruns.

The Stork, sailed by Jerry Cassell of Rochester, N.Y., yesterday won the first of three races for the George Cup, Lake Ontario's most coveted international sailing trophy. The defending champion, the Circle, handled by Reg Dixon of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, Toronto, placed second, 5 seconds behind the Stork. Circle won the trophy last year at Rochester to bring it to Canada for the first time since 1939. The second race will be run off in Toronto harbor later today.

Bobby Locke of South Africa has accepted an invitation to play for the Canadian Golf team against the United States in the International golf match at Montreal Aug. 26 and 27, it was announced in Montreal last night. Locke, recent winner of the British and French Open tournaments, was a former holder of the Canadian Open.

A New Zealand doctor and sportsman may set a record for long distance fishing trips this summer. Dr. T. Harold Pettit of Auckland is preparing to travel 25,000 miles to Wedgeport, N.S., and back just to take a crack at the giant bluefin tuna for which Wedgeport is famous. The doctor will represent his country on the British Commonwealth angling team in the annual international tuna cup match Sept. 10-12.

At Westbury, N.Y., Silver Riddle pulled a major harness racing upset last night by overtaking the favored Pronto Don in the final 20 yards of the $25,000 American Trotting championship at Roosevelt Raceway to score a half-length victory in world record time. Clint Hodgins of Clandeboye, Ont., drove the seven-year-old bay gelding. Hodgins won this race with the great Proximity in 1947 and again in 1950. Silver Riddle's time on the half-mile track was 2:37 2-5 for the 1¼ miles.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

From the power plant comes the bid known as an overcall in an opponent suit. It means a bid in the same suit an opponent has bid. Like when south opens with a heart and west defends with two hearts.

When so used it promises tricks enough, to help make a game, no losers in opponent suit, and is forcing to game. Defender may use it with nine tricks, expecting game with what partner may have.

As a rule we think of this skookum call as the weapon of a defending bidder. But it is not for the exclusive use of a defender. The opener or his partner can make it talk, too.

There is one main difference between its use by a defender and its use by the opening side. Defender may have only nine tricks; opening side shows tricks enough for game in their pair.

See the north hand shown here:

♠ None
♥ J 9 6 3
♦ A K 4 3
♣ K 6 5 4 2

South opened with a club and west bid a spade. North said two spades. This was an overcall in opponent suit. It signals: Tricks enough to help make game, no spade losers, forcing to game.

Such a signal applies only when the overcall in opponent suit is immediate and without a jump. Otherwise, a spade bid by north is what it usually means; a biddable spade suit.

Over the west bid of one spade, suppose north doubled or bid a different suit or made a bid in no-trump. Then, on a later round he bid a spade. This would not be an overcall in opponent suit.

Or, suppose north bid three spades over the west one spade. It would not be an overcall in opponent suit. In all such cases it would mean what it usually means; a biddable spade suit.

Main thing to remember is this: As a convention, overcall in opponent suit must be at first opportunity and without a jump.

If it was easier, some expert might change it.

Canuck Fourth In 100 Metres

HELSINKI (CP)—Bob Adams of Saskatoon, Canada's entry in the Olympic decathlon, today finished fourth in his heat in the 100 metres —first of the 10 events—to gain 650 points.

His point-score, awarded on a basis of times and distances in the various track and field events on the gruelling decathlon schedule, left him far behind the leader, Milton Campbell of the United States, who was timed in 10.7 seconds for 1,028 points.

Defending champion Bob Mathias of the U.S. ranked second, winning his heat in 10.9 seconds for 96 points.

Adams was tied for 22nd place among the 28 contestants.

Selke Pooh-Poohs Rocket Report

MONTREAL (CP)—Frank Selke, general manager of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, last night described as "ridiculous" a report that Maurice Richard has an abdominal growth and may never play hockey again.

Richard now "looks better and feels better than he ever has in his life," said Selke, commenting on a report in the Hamilton News which attributed its information to a "reliable source."

The high-scoring right wing missed some 20 games last season when he was troubled by pains in the lower abdomen. The Canadiens sent him to Florida on a holiday and he returned to help the club beat Boston in the Stanley Cup semi-final playoffs.

Washington, July 25 (AP)—The White House announced Thursday that President Truman has commuted the death sentence of Oscar Collazo, Blair House assassin, to life imprisonment.

The Puerto Rican, who took part in the shooting in which a White House policeman, Leslie Coffelt, was killed in an attempt on the life of President Truman on Nov. 1, 1950, was slated to die in the electric chair on August 1.

Announcement of the commutation of the death sentence was made by Presidential Secretary Joseph Short.

Hard to Recognize Best Friend

To qualify as a genuine mossback in the centennial celebrations of St. Thomas, Ont., you have to have a beard, not just an ordinary one, but something in the style of the 1850's. The streets of St. Thomas these days are filled with citizens sporting some of the best billy-goats, mutton-chops, vandykes and spade-ends seen since Confederation. Provincial Police Corporal Jack Futlon checks — with a ruler — the credentials of Norman Mallow, left, and Charlie Kennington, two of the 400 mossbacks of St. Thomas. — Central Press Canadian.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Riddle: What's better than a glamor girl in a bathtub? Answer: Two of 'em.

Rhonda Fleming and Jan Sterling were reported double-dipping for an epic called "Pony Express" at Paramount.

On the set, the tubs were emptier than a politician's promise. A guide found the film company on a western street.

Red-haired Rhonda explained how the big scene will be filmed.

Covered Cuties

"I'll be covered by a strapless bathing suit that has been dyed flesh color," she reported. "At least I think I'll be covered. The suit was shrunk since the dye job. See?" It resembled a pocket-sized magazine.

Jan Sterling said she also will wear a flesh-colored swim suit. She said she was willing to discard it for realism's sake, but that the studio wouldn't let her.

Director Jerry Hopper told why movie makers dote on bathtub scenes.

"I guess it's because audiences enjoy them," he replied. "People seem to think they're going to see more exposed flesh than they're supposed to."

The Fleming-Sterling scene takes place in a bathhouse in early-day Sacramento, before hotels had plumbing. Hopper said he had to order extra-deep tubs since the pioneers didn't have soap suds to keep bathing beauties within censorship limits. "The water will have to cover the cleavage," he remarked academically.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, JULY 26, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—May not find things to your liking, but buckle down and use your resourcefulness, seek sound advice, trust in God.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Approaching influences advise against haste, lack of concentration, insufficient preparation before acting. These can trip the smartest. Aim at smoothness.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Planetary aspects similar in tendency to Aries today; heed suggestions to them. Don't let silly little things upset; keep your fine humor on top.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Your planet favors personal magnetism and character, but other suggestions are that you be more cautious in money matters. Unpleasant discussions can upset best of plans.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Make every minute count during a.m. Double-check on suggestions offered. Don't be misled from straight way and you won't have regrets.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Those old teasers, irritability and impatience, can cause plenty of havoc if you aren't on guard. Don't make first glance deductions.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Few of us have major planets in auspicious configurations now, so you have plenty of company. Don't feel sorry for you. Take time to separate the useless from the useful.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Sterling effort needed this period. You will have to show you can "take it." Handle personal affairs gently, with same respect as you demand.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Don't become careless because you have had successes or because things run smoothly; they can change quickly if you become lax or heedless.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—May become discouraged that many tries seem to go astray. But do keep trying. you will hit, and splendidly some time. Courage, tenacity are your forte, use them now.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Progress may start slowly if you are not in right mood. Show spunk! Any haphazard effort gets us nowhere quickly.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — The unconventional may confront you today. Don't allow self to be talked into propositions you feel aren't good. Be alert!

YOU BORN TODAY while the Sun was in Leo are of an active, good-natured character, generous, fun-loving. Are fine companions, natural leaders; make good public officials, salesmen, managers, military officers.

Birthdate of: Geo. Bernard Shaw, great dramatist, publicist; Chas. Butterworth, actor.

Why We Say--

DOWN BUT NOT OUT
7-14

. . . Boer War

A Salvation Army worker started this expression during the Boer War. Many people who were left destitute and homeless at this time were referred to as "down and outers". But a Salvation Army worker shouted to the crowds, "A man may be down, but he's never out" and that's how it began.

13 CARS DERAILED

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Central Railroad interstate express sideswiped a freight train near Syracuse, N.Y., early today, derailing 13 cars of the freight. It apparently caused little damage to the passenger train, bound from Chicago to Boston.

Sunday School Lesson:

When God Picks A Mother

By ROY L. SMITH

Of all the women in the Bible two stands out in bold relief, like great towering peaks along a lofty range—Mary, the mother of Jesus, and Hannah, the mother of Samuel.

It is a tribute which cannot be surpassed that God should have chosen a humble peasant girl to become the mother of that one who should become the world's Redeemer, and Mary's place in history does not need any tributes from any of us. It is a fact, however, that we can trace very little of Jesus' greatness to Mary, herself.

In the case of Hannah, however, the situation is entirely different. There is no way to explain the amazing career of the great Old Testament hero, Samuel, if you leave his mother out of the story.

Prayed For Son

To be childless was, for a woman, the most terrible calamity life could hold. It was construed as evidence of the fact that she had been repudiated by God Himself, and as a natural consequence she was likewise repudiated by her neighbors.

To Hannah, her empty arms were an affliction too great to be endured. With passionate earnestness she prayed that God might remove her shame and grant her the glorious privilege of becoming the mother of a son. Mothering was, to her, the most divine and holy privilege to which any woman could aspire.

There was something about the reverence she attached to the privilege of motherhood which had the effect of sanctifying all of life. It was not the physical experince of giving birth to a child which made her a great soul. Many a woman has given birth to a baby and continued as she was—low, common, and lewd. But motherhood was accepted by Hannah as a divine commission, holy and sacred, and as such she brought to it the finest of which she was capable.

Marked Her Son

Every godly mother is apt to mark her child. Susannah Wesley did it, and her two sons, John and Charles saved England from a French Revolution, in the opinion of many competent historians.

There is no explanation for the magnitude of the character of Abraham Lincoln, if you leave out of account the remarkable influence of his mother, Nancy Hanks, and his step-mother, Sarah Bush Johnson Lincoln.

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for July 27: "God Prepares a Leader," I Samuel 1:1—4:1a.

It was impossible for a child to grow up in the highly spiritualized atmosphere of Hannah's home, without feeling something of the divine impact of God. The woman lived on that kind of personal relationship with Jehovah. The child sensed it from his first hour of consciousness. As a consequence Samuel felt himself a man "called" from this earlier hour of awareness.

Called For Sacrifice

There is something very touching about the sight of the devout mother as she comes to the temple with her young child, for the purpose of dedicating him to the service of Jehovah. She had barely felt his baby arms about her neck; she had known so little of the joy of mothering; she had been compensated so scantily for the tedious months she had carried him under her heart.

Hers was to be the joy that comes to those who see a great work started but are unable to complete it, those who produce a great idea which another carries to fruition, those who launch a worthy enterprise and see others gather the rewards.

But in the years that followed there was always the shadow of a great mother falling across the path of the prophet whose name was on everyone's lips. He might not know what God had in store for him, but he had learned to trust his mother's God. No boy is apt to go far astray who has a praying mother, and who himself in turn holds himself to a high respect for his mother's God.

Something New in Jail Breaks

Sheriff Lloyd Hilburn can't explain how prisoners in the Kansas City jail obtained an oxyacetylene torch, but he can see the results. The torch was used to cut through the bars and allow nine prisoners to escape. Three were captured almost immediately. — Central Press Canadian.

How to remodel and save money

It's easier than you think to build extra rooms or partition existing ones. With Armstrong's Temlok Insulation Board the job can be done quickly and inexpensively. It provides modern, attractive walls. Its ½" thickness of insulation will lower fuel costs in winter, help keep out heat in summer.

I Can't Cry Now

By Addie McElfresh

Dave Argus didn't even bother to laugh, but there was a twinkle deep in his voice. "Come out of it, Ted. Nobody's accusing Katy of anything."

"Of course not, Ted," Katy tried to sound as if she believed it.

Ted growled, "Just see that you don't." He felt for his pipe, found it on the mantel, leaned over to tap it on an andiron, and then tamped fresh tobacco into its fragrant bowl, all very deliberately. When he finished, he could say quietly, "Sorry, Argus. But I won't see Katy pushed around."

It was 10.30 when the two men left together, Dave to ride with Ted as far as the highway where he had parked his own car when he stumbled in the dark along the path which he said Agnes Jermoe had not taken.

And later as she stared wide-eyed into the darkness of her bedroom she had the uncomfortable feeling that Dave was right, so right. Even if Agnes Jerome had known about the short-cut to the mailbox, which Katy doubted, she would not have been familiar enough with the rough path to have risked it in the darkness.

Dave Argus was right, Katy reasoned with herself. If Agnes had been followed, she would have had a chance...but the killer had been waiting for her. He had come ... waited ... and killed. Here,

Katy sat up in bed, suddenly weak. The palms of her hands felt clammy-cold when she pressed them to her face.

"Where does that leave me" she thought frantically, almost wishing that she had taught Criminology or something instead of English Lit and Composition III and IV. Maybe then she would know if she were more suspect than ever despite Dave Argus's assurances... Sometime, somehow, lulled by the comforting rhythm of Major's breathing on his rug beside her bed, she slept.

Dawn was becoming mauve and pink and crimson out her east window when she awoke, as tired as if she had not slept at all. "Monday," she thought, "and what a ghastly hour. Especially when you have nothing to do...no school to go to." That was what hurt so, of course. What she missed, next to Chris.

She flung back the covers, swung her legs over the side of the bed. She frowned. Major wasn't there, his thick coat tickling her bare feet. She pulled on her robe, found her slippers. It wasn't like Major to leave her.

She found the dog in the kitchen, sitting on his lean haunches at a window overlooking the stairway and the barn. He thumped the floor with a wary tail when she spoke his name.

"What is it, Major?" She went to look out, too.

The barn looked as it always did, only perhaps a little more forlorn in the gray light of early morning. Through an open door—should that door be open? Perhaps, she thought. Ted might have forgotten to close it when he got the wood last night—she could see the ricks of apple wood and oak. The garden tools were stored there, too, and the lawn mover, and Chris had ripped out some dilapidated stalls and made a garage. Beside her, Major stirred, and a growl began deep in his barrel chest...Was there a movement, out there?

There was, Katy knew, although she didn't see it. Major's backbone seemed to rise, sharp-ridged, through his coat. She thought, "He's come back—the killer has come back!"

She ran through the house, to the front hall. Ted's number ... her mind groped for it as she snatched up the telephone. Ted had said the killer might come back. After an eternity, she realized what was happening. She was hearing absolutely nothing but her own frightened breathing. No "live" sound of an open telephone line, no operator, nothing!

"Major!" she cried then. "Major, come with me!"

Halfway to town, with Major erect in the seat beside her and the road unrolling behind the car like a dirty gray ribbon from a runaway spool, she realized she could not go to Ted. Not looking like this!

She was wearing her chenille robe and scuffed bedroom slippers and no make-up but her terror. Going to Ted like this was impossible. Heavens! she thought, Mrs. Porter—dear correct Abigail Porter—would be horrified, but not so horrified that her chattering tongue would be stilled.

Katy Elmo got a glimpse of her face, puckered with fright and worry, in the rearview mirror and eased up on the accelerator. There was no use going nowhere in such a hurry. Chris had always said that. Chris thought that people drove themselves too hard through life but he drove himself just a little harder than most. But with Chris it was the book, always the book. "I must read it," Katy thought, although she had not been able to touch the den where he had worked that night—so late.

She frowned as memory stirred. She had been over it all so many times, seeking the answer that had to be there, the answer to why Chris had gone out that night—why he had gone to the store.

She had graded test papers that night, Composition IV, until 11 o'clock and her head was splitting when she went to bed. Even upstairs, she could hear Chris thumping away on the old typewriter they both had used in high school and she drifted off to sleep in one of the creative silences that sometimes seemed loud in the den.

When she awakened it was to hear Chris hurrying downstairs and out the front door; she called to him but he didn't hear and a moment later his car spun gravel in the driveway. Chris was having one of his bad times with the book, she had guessed, and had gone back to sleep—and then Ted had come to awaken her. Chris was dead.

What now? What next? The tempo of the engine of her car seemed to be asking that question. What was in store for her? Someone had cut the phone line and there could be only one reason for that. The person who had killed Agnes Jerome wanted to kill Katy too.

It had been foolish to plunge headlong out of the house, foolhardy to leave the only advantage she had—shelter, with her and Major inside it. The killer was outside and so long as he was, "So am I outside. Outside and, therefore, vulnerable."

She realized she was thinking like Chris and Ted on those occasions when they were lost in memories of practice maneuvers ...you did this because if you did that your position was made known to the enemy and you were vulnerable. Katy shrugged off the memory of the two voices raised in friendly argument through so many pleasant evenings. She had made the wrong move, she was vulnerable.

She turned into the sleeping side street where Dave Argus lived with his sister and her husband. Emma Ward might think plenty about Dave's old girl coming calling at daybreak in robe and slippers, but she would keep her own counsel, at least. Dave would see to that.

Katy curbed the car, started to order Major to "Stay!" and thought better of it. Major at her side was reassuring. She touched the bell, heard it jangle discordantly somewhere inside, and waited. And waited. Forever, it seemed.

Then Deputy Sheriff Dave Argus was at the door, sleep dropping from him like a cloak at sight of her.

"Katy! What happened? Come inside!"

She was inside, she and Major, and the door closed behind them almost before he stopped talking.

"Is something wrong? Katy, you're shaking! Here, let me—sit down, Katy." He led her a step or two to a chair and his hands were gentle on her shoulders as he sat her down.

Katy sank into the chair gratefully. She had not realized how weak with fright she was until Dave touched her. She looked up, to the question in the cloudy gray eyes that could be so gay.

"I—" suddenly she didn't know how to tell him—"someone was there, in the barn." The words came then, pouring over one another. "I tried to call but the telephone was dead."

"What!" Dave Argus cried.

Katy stumbled on, All I could think of was that someone had cut the wires. It—it sounds s-silly, doesn't it?"

It did. Strangely, hearing her rushing words bog down in their own imaginative idiocy, it sounded utterly foolish. The mad nightmare of a frightened woman. Katy bit her lip. Dave didn't believe her, he'd think she was just trying to throw suspicion away from herself, she had read about murderers who did that.

"It does not!" Dave had the telephone in his hand. She heard him give a number, then, "Pete! Dave Argus. I'm coming by. I don't know. May be." He hung up. "You stay here, Katy. My sister Emma can fix you up with some clothes, if necessary, but stay here!"

"I'd rather—"

Dave went to the door, call- to his sister, and came back. "I shouldn't have let you stay out there, I should have guessed—"

"You and Ted," Katy smiled at his concern. "I'm sorry I ran like a baby, Dave. I won't again, I promise. Let me go back with with you,"

Argus shook his head. He turned to Mrs. Emma Ward, who came in belting a robe around her ample figure. "Can you dig Katy some clothes, Em? And keep her here?"

Emma looked from her brother to Katy. "Do I say yes?"

"He says so," Katy nodded.

"Yes to both questions, Em," Dave told her firmly. Then, with a twinkle, "You might feed her, too. They say it helps."

He was gone before either of them could retort, and a moment later they heard his car fairly leap from the garage beside the house. It sounded so like Chris's, that night. Katy losed her eyes.

The Ward living room had a lived in look that brought a nostalgic catch to Katy Elmo's throat. It was like Chris's den, with Chris in it—the smell of tobacco from the forgotten pouch on the coffee table, a book open on a chair arm, the shoes that someone—Dave?—had stepped out of before going to bed.

Accidents Claim Eleven Lives In Ontario Yesterday

Police Learn Identity of Girl Found Dead on Highway

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eleven persons were killed in accidents in Ontario Friday on the eve of a mid-summer week-end when the fatality rate usually soars. A 12th died of injuries in an accident last week-end.

Double fatalities in two accidents ran yesterday's traffic toll to seven.

Near Simcoe in southwestern Ontario, two Detroit residents were killed when their car collided with a transport truck. The dead are Walter Semeniuk, 30, and Bohdan Marciniw, 4. The boy's mother, Mrs. E. H. Henia Marciniw, was seriously injured.

Head-on Crash

Marion Clark, 20, of Port Perry and Mrs. John T. McDonald, 21, of Toronto were killed on Highway 28 some seven miles southwest of Peterborough in a head-on collision between two cars. Mr. McDonald, with his wife, was seriously injured. Clare Keowan of Woodville, riding in the same car as Miss Clark, was critically hurt. Two other persons, Gertrude Hogan of Peterborough and Ross Clarke of Woodville, who works at Oshawa, received minor injuries.

At Clarkson, near Toronto, Arthur Thomas, 60, of Hamilton was killed when struck by a car as he walked across the highway. Doris Christenson, 18, of Hamilton, was killed on the Queen Elizabeth Way near Clarkson early in the day when struck by a transport truck. Her identity was not learned by police until late last night.

Nine-year-old Judy Weldon of Kirkland Lake was killed near Matheson in Northern Ontario in a crash between a truck and a car driven by Mrs. Karl Eyre of Timmins, wife of the Liberal member of parliament for Timmins. Mrs. Eyre was not seriously hurt. R. A. Bastian, driver of the truck in which the Weldon girl was riding, was taken to hospital at Matheson. Mrs. Angus McNevan of Toronto, a passenger in the Eyre car, was shaken up slightly.

Flight Cadet Killed

Allan Robert Jackson, an 18-year-old university student from Newmarket, was killed near Colborne in eastern Ontario in the crash of an R.C.A.F. plane. He was a flight cadet in the air force university reserve.

Harold Taylor, 45-year-old farmer, was killed near Cobourg in eastern Ontario when his tractor overturned. Gordon Sheppy, 16-year-old farm boy from the Blenheim district, was killed near West Lorne when struck by a log racing down a chute. At Owen Sound, Mrs. Annie Cass, 65, was killed in a fall in a hotel.

William Heward, 72, of Toronto died in hospital at Port Hope of injuries received in an accident last Sunday.

Old-Age Security Fund Now $100 Million in Red; 660,000 Receiving Pension

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's old-age security fund, now six months old, is more than $100,000,000 in the red.

The fund was established Jan. 1, 1952, to finance pensions of $40 a month to all Canadians 70 and over regardless of means.

More than 660,000 Canadians are receiving the pension. Tax contributions into the fund so far have covered less than half of the cost of the pensions and the Treasury has had to lend the fund approximately $104,000,000 up to June 30.

Big Surplus Reported

The latest report on the fund's operations was released yesterday by the Finance Department. At the same time, the department released figures showing that the federal surplus totalled $262,475,000 in the first three months of the current fiscal year—almost 30 times more than the surplus forecast for the whole year.

The report showed that old-age security payments in the three-month period totalled $78,921,000. Tax collections for the pension fund totalled only $29,762,000. A government loan of $49,159,000 was needed to cover the deficit.

From Jan. 1 to march 31, the fund had a deficit of approximately $55,000,000.

The fund is to be built up from the receipts from three special taxes—a two-per-cent sales tax, a two-per-cent individual income tax and a two-per-cent corporation tax.

To Reduce Deficit

The collection of the sales and corporation taxes started from Jan. 1. The two-per-cent tax on personal incomes did not come into effect until July 1. It is expected to reduce the fund's deficit.

However, no estimate has been made as to when the fund will be operating on a self-supporting basis. Operations of the fund are scheduled for review at the end of the year.

No one in all income tax brackets will contribute more than $30 to the fund this year. A ceiling of $60 has been placed on contributions through personal income tax. Since collections did not start this year until July 1, they will be only half of what they would be in a full year.

Army Training Camp in N.B. Will Cost $30 Million

OTTAWA (CP) — The army's huge new training camp in New Brunswick is expected to cost $30,000,000, one of the biggest single outlays in the whole defence program of the next 12 to 18 months.

Roughly $5,000,000 of that is expected to be used to buy 600 square miles of land, enough to make it the largest army camp Canada has ever had and one capable of expansion to handle a full division if emergency makes that necessary.

The area chosen is between Gagetown and Westfield, a suburb of Saint John, in southern New Brunswick.

Work is expected to begin this fall and the aim is to start using the camp about September, 1953.

It will be the first army base in Canada capable of training a brigade all-year round. It and Wainwright, Alta., will be the two great training grounds for units slated for overseas duty.

ALLIES ACCUSE KOREAN REDS OF HYPOCRISY

Abandon Truce Talks For at Least Week

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—Allied negotiators today accused the Communists of "utter hypocrisy" and walked out of the Korean truce talks for a week.

Maj.-Gen. William K. Harrison, Jr., senior United Nations delegate, told the protesting Reds he would return Aug. 3.

"If you have anything worth saying (before Aug. 3) you can say it to our staff officers," Harrison said.

The walkout ended the first open session at Panmunjom in three weeks. Eighteen off-the-record meetings since July 4 failed to break the deadlock over how to exchange prisoners of war—key obstacle to an armistice.

Refused to Return

In Tokyo, Gen. Mark Clark, supreme Allied commander, said the closed sessions failed to produce results because the Communists "refused to recognize the inescapable fact that a large percentage of Communist prisoners refused to go back to their former masters."

Before leaving the tent, Harrison agreed to a Red request for daily staff officer meetings "on the detailed wording of the draft armistice agreement."

Staff officers then met for 39 minutes and will meet again Sunday.

Criticizes Allies

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, the chief Communist negotiator, harangued the Allies for insisting that no prisoner be repatriated against his will.

"In these meetings," Harrison said, "we have been restrained in our statements and have tried to be accurately faithful. Your statements on the other hand, have demonstrated utter hypocrisy. You have said we want to retain your personnel. What we know, what the world knows as a fact, is that those prisoners are afraid to be returned as slaves to the tender mercies of Communist control."

Men Fined $250 For Torturing Female Moose

HAILEYBURY (CP)—Magistrate S. Atkinson yesterday fined two men $250 and costs on charges of molesting a female moose for taking photographs. The animal, pursued about Lake Timiskaming for more than three hours, died of exhaustion.

The magistrate, who described the incident as "quite horrible," fined Ronald Manson, chief engineer on a lumbering tug, and Roland Lebrun, a deckhand. A similar charge against Andre Emery, another deckhand, was dismissed when he was not positively identified as one of the occupants of the boat which pursued the moose.

Haileybury is 75 miles north of North Bay.

Cornwall Assured of Compensation For Property Loss in Power Project

CORNWALL (CP)—Gen. A.G.L. McNaughton yesterday told residents of this area they will be properly compensated for any property loss during construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway and power project.

Gen. McNaughton, Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission, was answering residents along the International Rapids section of the river.

They had expressed fears to a sitting of the Joint Commission regarding property loss when a dam is erected three miles from here to tap the vast power potential of the river for New York state and Ontario.

Yesterday's was the fourth one-day hearing the commission has held. The others were at Ogdensburg, N.Y., Toronto and Rochester. The six-man body is being asked to pass on a proposal to harness St. Lawrence waterpower and report on the problem of high water levels in the Great Lakes.

Leslie Blackwell, representing Ontario and the Hydro-Electric Power Commission said compensation would be provided by Hydro at a "fair, current valuation." Provision was also to be made for special cases, such as highways, railroads and established businesses.

Spokesmen for the united counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, the city of Cornwall and many of the affected municipalities joined in urging the I.J.C. to recommend establishment of a special body to administer the matter of compensation. They also urged setting up of a regional rehabilitation planning authority to work with the authorized agency.

Unemployment Picture Shows Some Improvement in Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's employment picture has a dark spot here and there but shows general improvement on the crest of a seasonal upswing, increasing defence production and a buoyant economy.

The Labor Department reported yesterday that unemployment decreased by 16,000 during June. However, most of the decrease came in the first three weeks of the month. After that it levelled off because of the heavy registration of students and rapid deterioration of the labor market on the strike-ridden Pacific coast.

Job applicants registered at National Employment Service offices at July 3 totalled 196,200 compared with 212,600 at June 5. The latest figure is still about 55,000 greater than the comparative 1951 level and 1,000 higher than at the beginning of July, 1950.

The department said recruiting for work on defence projects in Newfoundland and Labrador has been absorbing large number of surplus construction workers. Production in electronics, aircraft and shipbuilding plants has been steadily increasing, while a pick-up in sales of consumer durable goods has been reflected in increased employment in furniture, radio, electrical appliance and automobile industries.

The department said, however, that the effects of the United States steel strike, now settled, "may cause some reduction in manufacturing employment this month, but most plants are trying to continue operations at a slightly reduced rate until they close for holidays."

The Ontario region registered a drop of more than 6,000 in unemployment rolls due to heavy hirings in the agricultural, construction and tourist resort industries. A heavy demand for farm workers has been partially alleviated by arrival of European immigrants and movement of farm workers from the Maritimes. The U.S. steel strike caused some production cutbacks and more may be necessary.

Committed to Trial

Churchill Soothes Labor Leaders Promises Action

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill yesterday pacified a delegation of angry labor leaders who called on him to protest against his Labor Minister's refusal to sanction wage increases for 1,500,000 store workers.

The delegation, representing the 8,000,000-member Trades Union Congress, accepted Churchill's promise that the protest would be carefully considered and agreed to further talks with the Minister, Sir Walter Monckton.

The T.U.C. maintains Monckton abused his powers under an industrial act by refusing to approve the increases after employers had already agreed to them. Monckton has defended his action in Parliament, pointing to the government's call for wage restraint to ease Britain's economic problems.

Tells Delegates Grave Tasks Face American People

Sen. Sparkman Favored For Vice-Presidency

By JACK BELL

CHICAGO (AP)—Governor Adlai Stevenson, the Democrats' choice for United States president, today picks a running mate to help him "talk sense to the American people" in the campaign to keep the presidency in Democratic hands.

The 52-year-old governor of Illinois, nominated on the third ballot in what President Truman described as "a real, honest-to-goodness draft," was reported as having chosen Senator John Sparkman of Alabama for vice-presidential candidate.

Stevenson's Choice

Aides said this choice was in line with the governor's determination to have a southerner "to strengthen me and our party immeasurably in the hard, implacable work that lies ahead for all of us."

Passed over in this reported decision were:

Senator Richard Russell of Georgia, who ran third to Stevenson in the final balloting but who says he is "uninterested" in the vice-presidency;

Senator Estes Kefauver, who had to give up his immediate dream of the White House on his 49th birthday. Said Kefauver: "I have never considered the vice-presidency and am not now;" and

Vice-President Alben Barkley, who at 74 was called too old by some labor union leaders for the presidential nomination and withdrew, but whose name still was entered in the contest.

Leaders called delegates back (11 a.m. EDT) after an eight-hour rest from their roaring reception of the party's new nominee in this smoke-hazed convention hall early this morning.

All the delegates had to do was to formalize Stevenson's choice of his running mate.

In Sparkman, Stevenson would be getting as his helper a man with somewhat comparable experience in United Nations affairs and the same stand on foreign and most domestic policies—but with widely different views on civil-rights issues.

Sparkman, 52, would give the deep south a place on the ticket for the first time in modern politics. This new accent on youth ticket promised to give the Democratic party a new look. Stevenson may start revamping its organization today by naming a new national chairman to replace Frank E. McKinney.

Keynotes Campaign

The Illinois governor, whose bandwagon rolled over Kefauver and Russell in tense convention balloting after W. Averell Harriman of New York had withdrawn, keynoted his own campaign in his acceptance speech early today.

"More important than winning the election is governing the nation," he told the Democrats. "That is the test of a political party—the acid, final test.

"When the tumult and the shouting die. . .there is the stark reality of responsibility in an hour haunted by those gaunt, grim spectres of strife, dissension and materialism at home and ruthless, inscrutable and hostile power abroad."

Asserting that the "bloodiest, most turbulent age of the Christian era is far from over," Stevenson said:

'Sacrifice, patience, understanding and implacable purpose may be our lot for years to come. Let's face it. Let's talk sense to the American people."

It was not the usual recital of glowing promises of the future and laudatory references to the party's past record expected from most nominees.

Stevenson said he expects the republicans will call the Democrats appeasers, the war party, reactionary and socialistic.

"I am not too much concerned with partisan denunciation, epithets and abuse," he said, "because the working man, the farmer the thoughtful business man, all know they are better off than ever before. . ."

Without naming the general directly, Stevenson said that Dwight D. Eisenhower is "a leader whom we all respect, but who has been called upon to minister to a helpless case of political schizophrenia (split personality)" in attempting to hold the Republican party together. Eisenhower is the Republican nominee.

Assails Republicans

Stevenson's talk contrasted sharply with the "give-'em-hell" speech with which Truman assailed the Republicans in introducing the new standard bearer formally to the convention.

Truman said the Republicans had tried to stop progress and they are at it again this year. Praising the Democratic platform, the President said his party is going to win again this year.

Applauding the choice of Stevenson, whom he helped along toward the nomination by getting Harriman to withdraw, Truman said he is going to "take my coat off and do everything I can" to help him."

Stevenson, who said he had accepted the nomination humbly in the belief that a better man could have been found for it, promised that "I will fight to win. . . with all my heart and soul."

Stevenson's nomination climaxed a day of slow and painful balloting during which Kefauver's fortunes rose only to crash in a third ballot last night.

Kefauver rolled to a high tide mark of 362½ votes on the second ballot. At this point, Stevenson had reached 324½ votes, Russell had 294 and Harriman brought up the rear with 121.

A two-hour recess gave Truman and other Stevenson backers time to bring up their heavy guns. Harriman went out of the race and broke open the New York delegation. That started things.

Governor Paul Dever of Massachusetts turned loose his state's delegation.

The handwriting was on the wall for all to see and members of the "Fair-Deal" wing of the party hurried to Kefauver to get him to withdraw in Stevenson's favor. Kefauver consented to go to the convention hall. But instead of withdrawing in favor of Stevenson, he wanted to pull out of the race with an endorsement of Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois. Douglas then would say he couldn't run and urge Stevenson's selection.

RCMP Plan Friendly U.S. Invasion With Their Famed Musical Ride

OTTAWA (CP)—In shady, suburban Rockliffe, red-coated men of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police are planning a friendly invasion of the United States.

The dress rehearsal for this invasion was staged yesterday in the R.C.M.P. riding school. There 32 mounties and their black horses went through the intricate patterns of their Musical Ride with which they will tour the U.S. this fall with a couple of shows in Canada, too.

The Mounties have performed in the U.S. before—in New York, St. Louis and Indianapolis—and found no trouble capturing their audience. They expect to do it again in Portland, Ore., Los Angeles and San Francisco with the first full-scale Musical Ride since 1949. Then they return to Canada for a performance at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto in mid-November.

Their boots, buttons and belts gleaming in the afternoon sun, the men and horses of the Ride were reviewed by their commanding officers—Commissioner L.H. Nicholson and Superintendent C.N.K. Kirk—and a battery of photographers and newspaper men.

Men and horses will wind up their month's intensive preparation for the tour this month with two performances in this area, one at nearby Connaught race track and the other at Belleville, Aug. 11. Then they will head for the U.S. unless plans mature for their appearance at the Toronto Exhibition Aug. 22-Sept. 6.

The Musical Ride is the climax of 10 months of tough training for 18 Mounties. That's how long it takes to put a recruit through all the steps needed to make him an expert horseman. Besides that, he's an expert with the lance he carries during the Ride, a yellow and blue pennant fluttering from its tip.

Fourteen men are old hands at horsemanship. They had graduated previously from the four-month horsemanship course which is a basic part of the Mounties' training. Many were out on regular police duties when they were picked to join the Ride.

About half of the horses have been used on previous Rides. An indication of the excellence of their training was the fact that not a horse moved a muscle when several planes flew overhead at less than 200 feet.

In command will be Inspector A.S. McNeil of Regina, one of the force's top horsemen who will come here to join his men later this month.

Training Plane Crashes in Field Newmarket Flight Cadet Killed

An eighteen-year-old flight cadet with the R.C.A.F. at Trenton air station died instantly Friday afternoon when his Harvard type Texan trainer crashed and burned in a farmer's field nine miles north of Colborne.

Killed was Flight Cadet Allen Robert Jackson, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Jackson, 11 Ragland Street, Newmarket. Jackson was a second year student at the University of Toronto studying chemical engineering. He was on a solo flight out of Trenton when his plane crashed.

The plane dove into the ground from a low altitude as the pilot turned apparently in an attempt to land. The engine was buried four feet into the ground and the crumpled fuselage trapped the young student pilot's body in the plane.

There were no eye-witnesses to the actual crash but Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blackwell on whose farm the plane crashed were on the scene within minutes.

Mr. Blackwell and his son, Franklin were on the roof of their farm house preparing it for new shingles when the plane passed overhead.

"We heard the plane go over, but paid no attention until we heard the motor suddenly roar out," Mr. Blackwell said. "The plane disappeared behind some trees and just before he glanced up it dove into the ground and exploded."

Mr. Blackwell said that he and his son ran as hard as they could to the corner of the field 200 yards away where the plane crashed but when they got there flames shooting high into the air prevented them nearing the wrecked machine.

Mrs. Blackwell turned in the alarm by phoning her telephone operator at Castleton and the Colborne fire department raced to the scene and put out the fire which was rapidly spreading through the dry grass at the roadside. The plane crashed in the corner of a field just over the fence from the road.

Air Force officials noted that the debris of the plane was not scattered and said it must have dove straight into the ground.

Mrs. Blackwell said the flames from the burning plane went "twice as high as the trees."

Firemen erected a rope barricade around the wrecked and burned plane and spectators were kept their distance by provincial police officers from Cobourg. Coroner Dr. F. M. Dure of Brighton went to the scene.

The Air Force ambulance racing to the scene missed the turn on the highway and as a result Air Force doctors were able to give first aid to a critically injured boy who was hurt when knocked from his bike by a motor car. The Air Force ambulance took the boy to hospital at Cobourg before returning to go to the scene of the air crash.

Proposes Boycott Of Bricklayers

TORONTO (CP)—J. M. Soules, president of the Ontario General Contractors Association, last night proposed a boycott of bricklayers by the construction industry unless the A.F.L. Bricklayers Union becomes more co-operative.

Mr. Soules, commenting on the union's refusal to lay bricks on a job at nearby Oakville because they were asked to punch a time clock, said: "There is a real possibility that owners, architects and general contractors will avoid the use of masonry in construction of new buildings unless the bricklayers' union comes to its senses."

At Oakville, the contracting firm of Anglin-Norcross, working on a new Ford of Canada assembly plant, is preparing to construct walls of poured concrete instead of brick.

Canterbury M.P. Hoping Petition Ousts Red Dean

WHITSTABLE, England (Reuters) — John Baker White, Member of Parliament for Canterbury, told a meeting here he hopes millions of persons will sign a petition asking the Queen to remove from office the "red" Dean of Canterbury.

White accused the dean, Hewlett Johnson, of speaking "words of hate against the people of the United States" in his sermon in Canterbury Cathedral last Sunday.

White said the dean, by repeating his allegations of germ warfare in Korea, had "praised evil, cruel men."

Canadian TV Makes Informal Debut at Montreal

MONTREAL — (CP)—Canadian television made an informal debut last night as the CBC experimentally produced its first live TV program by telecasting the nightcap of a double-header between Montreal Royals and Springfield Cubs of the International Baseball League.

Despite the fact that CBFT, Canada's first television station, was transmitting on only about one-quarter of its eventual power, reception was good and won the approval of throngs who crowded outside TV shops to watch the 2½-hour performance.

In suburban Verdun, furniture stores set chesterfields before their sets and served tea and cakes to the customers.

Canadian Brigade To Participate In War Manoeuvres

HANNOVER, Germany (CP)—A series of three large-scale training exercises culminating in mock war manoeuvres with the British Army of the Rhine lie immediately ahead for the 27th Canadian brigade.

Brig. Geoffrey Walsh's formation will launch this rugged spell of training next Thursday as part of a general toughening of the whole Atlantic Pact ground force in Germany.

It will be the most important period of training in the brigade's first year in Germany.

The first exercise, involving only the brigade itself, will take place in the so-called Sennelager area about 60 miles south of Hannover and in one of the traditional German training areas used to season Hitler's Wehrmacht.

Every type of weapon the brigade has will be used and they will use live ammunition. For two weeks the men will live in tents, bivouacs, slit trenches and weapon pits.

Following the Sennelager brigade concentration, units will return to their barracks from Aug. 15 to 20. On Aug. 20 the brigade will move into the field again to take part in a 10-day corps exercise with British forces.

At the end of a short refit period during the first two weeks of September, Canada's brigade is slated to join other Pact forces in British Army of the Rhine manoeuvres.

New Search Party from Trenton Enters Bush to Investigate Crash

BAGOTVILLE, Que. (CP)—An R.C.A.F. search party from Trenton, Ont., is scheduled to enter the hilly bush country near this northeastern Quebec community today to try to determine the fate of two men missing after the crash of a Lancaster bomber and a Vampire jet fighter.

The bodies of four of the bomber's crew and the body of the jet fighter pilot have been taken out of the bush.

It was thought earlier that the body of one of the missing men had been found crushed and burned examination showed it was burned material.

Report Parachutes Seen

No bodies were found in the comparatively undamaged tail section of the aircraft which fell some distance from the main, forward section of the fuselage.

While not denying the possibility the two men might be found alive, R.C.A.F. officials were not putting too much faith in unconfirmed reports that parachutes were seen in the air and on the ground shortly after the crash.

When an R.C.A.F. medical officer, a para-rescue nurse and a para-rescue sergeant came out of the bush Wednesday night, they reported finding the bodies of five of the six-man bomber crew and said it was possible the sixth might also be in the burned debris.

Thought Wreckage Body

The rescue crew said they didn't want to touch what they thought was a body under the engine because they feared it might break up. It was found to be a bit of burned and unidentifiable wreckage when helicopters arrived yesterday to take the bodies out.

Two bodies were found near the pilot's and co-pilot's seat, another behind them and one at a position where the radio operator would be normally stationed.

All search parties now have been recalled and the new one will go in.

The two planes were taking part in Exercise Signpost, joint Canada-United States air manoeuvres when the accident occurred. Some 800 Canadian and American aircraft are taking part.

The Vampire had just made a pass at an "attacking" bomber and was pulling away when the accident occurred. One wing of the Vampire was sheared off in the collision.

The R.C.A.F. is sending investigators to the scene of the crash to determine whether structural or mechanical defects caused the crash.

FRANKFORD

Frankford — The Frankford Fire Brigade was called out at noon Friday, to extinguish a grass fire near the premises of Thomas O'Sullivan on March St. The blaze was quickly brought under control. This is the second grass fire this week.

The girls of the Senior Girls Sunday School Class of the Frankford United Church and their invited guests, held a wiener roast Thursday night in Victoria Park. The young folks enjoyed swimming for over an hour, before wading into the "sizzle pups". A sing-song was enjoyed, and all report a splendid time, believe it or not, without the help of mosquitoes, who went into retirement for the evening.

A number of the male residents of North Trent Street, have set up tents outside their homes to enjoy a more comfortable sleep during the hot summer nights.

Churches Plan Bible Barrage Of Iron Curtain

EDINBURGH. (Reuters)—The International Council of Christian Churches announced plans yesterday to send a barrage of Bible-carrying balloons across the "iron curtain" into Communist Europe.

Council President Carl MacIntire, revealing the plan at the Council's British Isles regional conference here, also said that thousands of small Bibles and Testaments are being smuggled into eastern Europe from the Middle East.

In the conference's keynote address earlier yesterday, Dr. T. T. Shields of Toronto, said the principal enemy of the Christian church today is not Communism but Roman Catholicism.

"The papacy is the headquarters for the greatest counterfeiting religious system the world has ever known," he said.

Many a lonely heartache,
Many a silent tear,
Always a beautiful memory,
For the one we loved so dear.
God gave me strength to fight it,
And courage to bear the blow,
But what it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.

—Sadly missed by wife and son.

I Visit The Modern Athens

(Article 75)

(Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — Continuing my wanderings along paths followed by the ancient Greeks, I gradually worked my way southwards towards Athens.

Actually the ancient Greeks had very little say in the matter as to what path to choose since there was only one, and the elapse of several thousand years has failed to provide any other, barring the aeroplane which refuses to recognize the existence of nature made paths.

However the one route there is provides a goodly number of various views so that the trip is not boring by any means. Coming down from Thessalonika the first thing that one sees of any importance is Mount Olympus.

My excursion there in search of the gods and goddesses turned out to be a complete failure for there just did not seem to be any about. Almost the whole mountain was covered with snow and I rather think that neither Zeus nor any other self-respecting god would sit shivering on top of the mountain, which towers over 10,000 feet above the surrounding countryside.

All Greek to Me

A few hours after passing by Parnassus, another mountain only slightly less famous than Olympus, I entered the city of Athens, and after a great deal of diligent searching, finally found someone who could speak French.

I might add that my knowledge of Greek consists of a smattering of the language they spoke in Homer's time; but had Homer himself been present I doubt very much whether he would have understood anything I might have said to him.

Anyway this person took me to a hotel where the clerk not only spoke French too, but wanted to speak it for any length of time, since, as he said, it was very seldom that he got the chance to practise it.

Looking back over the history of the city it is surprising what varied times it has experienced. Rising in importance until it became the most influential and richest of the Greek city states, it then experienced a series of defeats, starting with the war with Sparta and the coming of Philip of Macedonia.

From then on it was little better than a provincial town. Before emerging as the capital of present day Greece it lay under the domination of the Romans for almost six centuries, the Byzantium Empire for over a thousand and the Turks for almost four hundred.

During this time the name of Athens rarely appears in any history book and so there is a clear-cut distinction between the ancient and the modern city.

For the city today is strikingly modern and a glance at its recent history will tell why. At the time of the liberation of Greece from the Turks in the early nineteenth century, the city, or perhaps it would be better to call it a village, contained only a few hundred run-down houses and three thousand inhabitants, who were certainly not characterized by their fine dress.

Capital City

It was this city which Otto of Bavaria, chosen as the first king of Greece, named as his capital city. From this time on the city grew rather steadily, but it remained for the first World War to give an impetus to a rapid growth.

In the course of very few years more than three hundred thousand refugees poured into the city, which necessitated the building of several new sections. Today the city, together with its port of Piraeus, contains well over a million inhabitants. Certainly a most remarkable growth.

As a result of this modern growth, the streets, unlike those in most European cities, are usually straight, but at the same time rather unbecoming, being lined with rather dingy-looking two-storied houses. The absence of large shade trees gives the whole city a rather sunbaked appearance, and only serves to accentuate the heat, which in the summer can be really stifling.

The centre of life in Athens is the Syntagma square, which is found right in the middle of the business section, and where any number of people meet to discuss things over a cool drink. In spite of the innumerable tables it is almost impossible to find a seat during the evening, and sometimes just as impossible to find a waiter who understands what you say.

Right across from this square stands the royal palace, a rather unimpressive building with far too many windows. Outside stand the famous Evzone guards, and the whole atmosphere is more of a military establishment than that of a home for royalty.

Lovely Park

Far more interesting is the lovely park which almost surrounds the palace, and which, with its numerous paths and shaded benches, was about the only cool place I could find in all Athens.

If few of the buildings fail to make any impression, the busy life of the city certainly does. In the early evening the people stream out into the streets, either just for the walk or to drink coffee, go to one of the many modern shows which the city boasts, or to do some late shopping.

Lining the streets are any number of vendors who have a wide variety of goods for sale. They act in a very matter-of-fact way, and seem to take no apparent notice until a customer approaches when they spring into action.

With all this hustle and bustle no modern Socrates would stand a chance. No one would let him stop long enough to think.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

VICTIMIZED

A great many birds, from the tiny, 5-inch warblers to the 11 or 12 inch brown thrashers, suffer from cowbirds. Not that the adults are injured by them, but they are victimized, having to nurse cowbird children when this is apt to mean destruction to their own.

Mrs. Cowbird is no respector of persons, laying her eggs in any available home. No shape of nest at any height is safe from intrusion, whether it be the open cup of a Savannah sparrow placed beside a clump of daisies, or the basket of a red-eyed vireo hanging from a branch 25 feet from the ground.

One, two, three, or even four cowbird eggs may be placed there to be incubated. The alien eggs nearly always hatch first. Cowbird babies have insatiable appetites, and snatch most of the food, grow quickly, and push the rightful owners from the nest.

Some householders, as the veerys, give in easily, but song sparrows, yellow-throats, and many, many other kinds of birds are too submissive. There are those that feel obliged to accept the foreign egg if they already have a family of their own, but when the unwelcome guest is found in their otherwise empty nest, they abandon the home.

This is the plan of the mourning warbler, a species that until recently was seldom disturbed by cowbirds because its nest is always so well hidden.

Pick on Warblers

For some unknown reason, cowbirds deposit their eggs more frequently in the homes of yellow warblers than those of any other bird. Few species are able actually to throw out the extra egg, though some manage to.

But this little warbler often displays unusual cleverness. It either abandons the site entirely, or builds another nest right on top of the first one.

Seemingly, the parasitic cowbirds are increasing. At one time they kept pretty much to grasslands, where they followed the cattle around, using only nests that could be reached conveniently from there. Now we are discovering their eggs in wooded country.

More than once phoebes nesting in shanties in a sugar bush have provided homes for young cowbirds. Not even oven-birds escape, though their habitat is the mature forest. The villains are extending their range to the northern coniferous woods.

Goldfinches that provide babies with seeds and cedar wax-wings that bring them cherries used to evade the danger by late nesting, but not now. While phoebes supply flying insects, most warblers consider little green worms perfect baby food. The foster children thrive on anything.

LOW CULTURAL LEVEL

LONDON (AP) — Pravda, Moscow's biggest newspaper, haughtily told Russian small town editors yesterday that their papers are pretty awful. The Communist party organ said in an editorial broadcast by Moscow radio that many Soviet local newspapers are "on a low cultural level . . . badly laid out" and "photographs and drawings are poor."

Bombed Areas In London Used For Parking

By ROBERT MARX

LONDON (Reuters)—London still bears the scars of war but they have been put to a practical use. Bombed-out cities have been turned into parking lots.

eYllow and black signs point to "shelter" in possible future air raids; signs hung on London's lamp posts mark past raids—"Bombed site: Car park."

When the bombs fell on London the rubble was cleared away almost immediately. Naturally no one wanted to start rebuilding right away, so the foundations or ruined buildings were scooped out, paved and lined with concrete and tar, and turned into water reservoirs.

When the city's water mains were destroyed fire brigades dropped a hose into the improvised reservoirs to fight blazes started by enemy bombers.

After the war these tanks were emptied and were a natural for parking spaces. In pre-war days there had been less of a traffic problem, but with more people owning cars and using them to commute to work from the suburbs the new lots became necessary.

The "ground rent" has to be paid any way, but if there's no developed property there's no property tax.

Many of the original owners were compensated for bomb damage and the property itself reverted to the city or borough. The government and police encouraged development of the parking lot program, but did not take over control.

Usually the borough council arranged the leasing of the spaces.

The bombed sites dot the dusty areas of London and are intended for commuters only. They close from dusk to dawn. Residents have to find garages or take a chance on leaving their cars on the street all night.

Rates are low—averaging 15 cents for the first three hours, a quarter more for the rest of the day. Some of the lots, staffed by wounded veterans, are free, though car owners are expected to drop a tip to pay for the attendant's salary.

Some business firms run their own lots for their employees.

The parking spaces themselves are well kept, but there is usually a reminder of the war—a crumbling arch, a jagged stone outcropping where two walls once joined, a scorched smear of black from the wartime fire.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

A Mighty Fortress Is Our God

A mighty fortress is our God,
A bulwark never failing:
Our helper He, amid the flood
Of mortal ills prevailing.
For still our ancient foe
Doth seek to work us woe;
His craft and power are great,
And, armed with cruel hate,
On earth is not his equal.

Did we in our own strength confide,
Our striving would be losing;
Were not the right Man on our side,
The Man of God's own choosing.
Dost ask who that may be?
Christ Jesus, it is He;
Lord Sabaoth is His name,
From age to age the same,
And He must win the battle.

And though this world with devils filled,
Should threaten to undo us;
We will not fear, for God hath willed
His truth to triumph through us.
The prince of darkness grim —
We tremble not for him;
His rage we can endure,
For lo! his doom is sure.
One little word shall fell him.

That word above all earthly powers—
No thanks to them—abideth;
The Spirit and the gifts are ours
Through Him who with us sideth.
Let goods and kindred go,
This mortal life also;
The body they may kill;
God's truth abideth still.
His Kingdom is forever!

The Protestant Reformation which rocked Germany four centuries ago swept along to success on the wings of evangelical song.

One of the greatest of the Reformation song writers was Dr. Martin Luther. Samuel Taylor Coleridge, the poet, once declared that "he did as much for the Reformation with his hymns as he did with his translation of the Bible." Luther realized the important role that music was bound to play in the religion of so musical a people as his countrymen. He found it much easier to spread his teachings over Germany after he had taught the people to sing his hymns.

He wrote 36 hymns during his life-time, but none of them begins to compare with his immortal lyric, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God." This masterpiece has been called the battle hymn of the Reformation. Written about 1530 while, it is said, the famous confession of faith drawn up by Luther and other Protestant leaders was on its way to be presented at the Diet of Auguburg, the hymn soon was ringing in every corner of Germany.

Luther and his friends sang it on countless occasions to sustain their spirits in the religious crusade in which they were engaged. Again and again, it was a hymn of triumph for Christian martyrs who refused, even in death, to surrender their faith. Today, it is still one of Protestant's most glorious songs.

The hymn was inspired by the forty-sixth Psalm: "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in time of trouble."

Sometimes, when perplexed in spirit, Luther would turn to one of his friends and co-workers, Melanchthen, and invite him to join in a song. "Come, Philip," he would say, "let us sing the forty-sixth Psalm."

The most popular English translation of Luther's hymn, the one which appears above, was made by Dr. Frederic Henry Hedge, for many years professor of German literature and ecclesiastical history at Harvard University, and later pastor of a Unitarian Church at Providence, Rhode Island.

MORE SECURITY NEEDED?

It is not necessary to be a Pinkerton detective to deduce that something is happening to our air force planes at the Royal Canadian Air Force base at Greenwood, in Nova Scotia. Press dispatches report that one of the nine Lancaster bombers at the Greenwood station recently limped back to its base with one engine dead. Investigation revealed that rags and metal waste placed in the engine had caused the failure. As a result of this find, all aircraft were grounded while engines were checked.

It is claimed that this is the first reported case of tampering with air force planes since the war. However, had this plane not managed to return to its base, it probably would have dropped into the ocean and another unsolved accident would be written into the record while next-of-kin of the crew were notified their loved ones were missing.

Any Canadian would be disinclined to believe that the damage caused the aircraft was an "inside job," but as a result of this disclosure, it would be in order for the air force — along with the army and navy — to check their security measures and plug possible holes where lack of precautions would permit damage to be done to military equipment.

MUST TOUGHEN UP

The summer toll of water and traffic accidents continues to mount in spite of the appeals for safety, and it is cause for concern that too many people have no respect for the lives of others.

The slaughter of the innocents is not an event of history; it is the current event that has another chapter added each day, but it seems that people have stopped reading history and current events.

In the law and the hands of the courts lies the power to curb this reckless waste of life on the highways.

Dismissals and light penalties for traffic charges and offences can hardly be considered a detriment to the commission of crime. Who is to deny that death and injury on the highways are not criminal? Does the difference in weapons — a car instead of a club or a gun — make that much difference?

There is some responsibility resting on the attorney-general's department at Queen's Park to see that crown attorneys and their assistants are instructed to vigorously prosecute every traffic case that comes before the court, whether it be careless driving or manslaughter.

The courts can do much to stem the traffic toll, and their hands can be strengthened by laws that will permanently cancel the driving privileges of those who are a menace on the highways. — (Sudbury Daily Star.)

A PULPIT OFFENCE

Countless numbers of readers no doubt by this time are sick and tired of hearing about Dr. Hewlett Johnson, the Red Dean of Canterbury. This prelate of the English Church who combines his office with an apostolic mission for Joe Stalin has an infinite capacity of breaking into the headlines. This time, he was not exercising the rights of a free Englishman; he actually polluted the pulpit on Sunday. At Canterbury Cathedral, he repeated his charges in his sermon that the United States had been waging germ warfare against Communist China. American visitors walked out. Where they had gone to worship, they left to revile.

The offence of the Red Dean without question was studied and deliberate. And on the face of it, it could be taken as a challenge to the Queen's advisers, lay and ecclesiastical, a challange to take action against him? By all logic and reasoning would not misuse of the pulpit in the House of God be an ecclesiastical crime? It had been said previously, that only for ecclesiastical offence could the Red Dean be unfrocked? In which event, the 78 year old boy communed with himself and concluded, "Well I'll give 'em one anyhow."

He attracted Reuter's world news coverage service and he hit the double column headlines on this side.

Stalin should give him an extra pat on the clerical back. — (St. Catharines Standard.)

PLANS 11-STOREY LIBRARY

Plans have been prepared for an 11-storey building as Vancouver's main public library. As universities, legislative and other public institutions in various parts of the world have taken to skyscrapers, a library is not to be criticized for thus going modern and functional. The projected library will cost $3 million. — (Vancouver News-Herald.)

MEMORIES

These things shape memories:
a childish game
That once delighted but was put aside;
The first flower that we learned to call by name;
The celebrations when the feast days came;
The happy greetings with the door flung wide;
A song that some lost loved one used to sing.
These from the past still fresh our memories bring.

They hold them from the pressing cares apart,
As if they were true treasures of the mind.
Some simple act or spoken word will start
Remembrance of a joy we've left behind.
A smile, a tear, an old song's
sweet refrain,
And those we've loved and lost return again.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

REFUGE OF UNDERSTANDING

Instead of running away from life when you leave your occupation for a spell of quiet and change, you run into life! It's then that you come face to face with yourself. You see yourself in the light, especially when that change is one that leads you into nature. There is scattered wisdom all about you when you become a guest of Nature.

We need, practically, to get alone with ourselves, that we may delve into our inner resources and learn to understand why it is that we are put into this world, what we should do, and how we should think and act so as to make the best of life, and prove ourselves worthy as God's guests here upon this earth.

How little we know about how rightly to live and to order our lives. The birds know how; so do the animals. They seek no advice. We, who have a mind and soul, blunder with our intelligence and wealth of opportunity. The single flower, budding and blooming in the forest, valley, or mountain top, furnishes us with an example of solitary silence, as it gives beauty and fragrance in its brief existence Everything has a purpose.

Self-forgetfulness can introduce us into many a new world about which we never even dreamed before. Simple pleasures tell us most, and help more than we realize, to accept temporary defeat, sorrow, or disappointment. We need escapes in our lives. We need silent communion with nature. It sweeps out the dross in our minds, and gives to us spiritual contracts with ideas and experiences that open up our understanding, putting us akin to all those about us. There are welcomes on every hand to the searching mind.

When we have learned to live happily with ourselves, all mankind belongs to us. There is unity to the scheme of life. We are not alone. We enter a universal understanding. It becomes our happiest of refuges!

Even Old Pompeii Built 'Thruways' To Cut Traffic Jams, Says Expert

NEW YORK. — The Appian Way, constructed by the Romans 2,200 years ago, is in better condition today than many of this country's streets and highways, according to William N. Carey, executive secretary of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

The first Roman road to which there is historical reference, the Appian Way owes its longevity to a combination of sound construction and superb maintenance, Mr. Carey, a veteran consulting highway engineer, explained in an interview here. He recently drove over parts of the road between Rome and Naples, digging inspection holes for his own satisfaction just as he had done officially thirty years ago for the Italian government.

"Traffic problems are one of civilization's most vexing perplexities," Mr. Carey declared. "They have existed since the first crude carts were fashioned, and seemingly traffic woes are destined to be with us for endless additional years. Highway construction always lags behind the demands of traffic."

Evidence of the antiquity and continuity of traffic "troubles" can be found in the Bible and the ruins of Pompeii, as well as in the more modern records of the 100-year-old engineering society, Mr. Carey said.

Repetitive Phases

Highway design has passed through repetitive phases, from gravel and stones spread over dirt trails to early road constuction of rock and broken stone as deep as three feet below the surface of the roadbed, Mr. Carey said. In the last fifty years the design of so-called heavy duty highways has changed from the relatively thin (three-to-six inch) surfacing of bituminous material of concrete cement to the thirty-six inches of built-up road foundations such as were used by the ancients, he noted.

A stone road for construction of the great Egyptian pyramid bearing his name was built by King Cheops about 4000 B.C. while later historians record paved highways, connecting Babylon with other important cities that flourished in Biblical times, Mr. Carey recalled.

However, credit for the earliest systematic and scientific attempt at road building belongs to the Carthaginians, for as early as the fifth century B.C., they had developed a road system through which they were able to maintain military ascendance for 400 years. Carthaginian roads and the Roman routes, copied from Carthage, were similar in appearance to what now is referred to as macadam, Mr. Carey added.

Reporting that many sections of the original Appian Way, named after Appius Claudius, the censor, still were in use, Mr. Carey said that the Romans had learned before the Christian era to construct pavements composed of several layers of stone, the upper parts mixed with natural cement mortar, with the surface made fairly smooth.

Pompeii Had Traffic Jams

Excavations at Pompeii have revealed some of the old streets just as they appeared when the city was destroyed in 79 A.D., buried under forty feet of ashes from Vesuvius. The excavations showed that the Pompeiians apparently had traffic woes of such magnitude that many streets were restricted to one-way flow.

Mr. Carey said that there must have been traffic control in Pompeii with the one-way routes restricted to chariots bound for market or the forum in the heart of the city at certain hours and the traffic pattern reversed when the need for returning to outlying areas was heaviest. At intersections flat topped stepping stones were provided, "a most desirable feature when sandals on bare feet were the style."

But No Hair Brush

(Vancouver Sun.)

Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin of Newark, N.J., have a dreadful time with two-year-old Jimmy, says the news.

They can't do a thing with him. He has taken to stealing papa's cigars, yearning for baseball games and leering at girls.

Mrs. McLaughlin says, "he is unbearable in the morning until after he's had a cigarette."

Aside from the fact that this infant phenomenon may create a demand for a new chapter in the Kinsey Report, it seems strange that in New Jersey, the very fount of streamlined civilization, nothing can be done to control this turbulent infant.

New Jersey claims to make the finest bathtubs, fabricate the most ornate glassware and turn out the newest patent medicines in the whole United States.

It's odd that up-to-the-minute New Jersey never heard, apparently, of the hardbacked hairbrush.

It's tragic that New Jersey, in its absorption with fancy tiled bathrooms, has seemingly lost touch with the old-fashioned woodshed.

It is hard to explain a radio set to a child. The conception that this invisible stuff around us is filled with electronic waves shooting in all directions, and that this box before us can reach out and translate these waves into music and voices, is not easy for the unscientific mind to grasp.

Yet we know the waves exist and can be received by a properly tuned radio. Though most of us cannot explain them very clearly, we should laugh at anyone who doubted their presence.

The world around us is filled with spiritual waves, too — equally invisible, equally real. We describe them in less scientific terms — conscience, inspiration, divine guidance, communion, answered prayer — and they are even harder to explain than radio waves, for we know less about them. Many people scoff at the idea of their presence, as only about forty years ago many people scoffed at the notion of radio.

A radio tends to wear out with use; as it ages, its reception gets poorer. Not so the reception of the soul tuned to receive spiritual communication: the more it receives, the better the reception. In fact, the only way to insure the best reception is to receive as much and as often as possible.

"Keep tuned to this station."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The other day I revisited a locality which last year was devastated by the tent caterpillar. Never in memory had the growth been so vigorous, the foliage so lush. The opinion of more than one observant old timer was that the gruesome visitation of the caterpillars had literally manured and fertilized the soil, creating all the vigorous growth of this year.

Last year, by early July, you would have supposed not a tree or shrub, except the conifers, would have survived. They were stripped as bare as by November's blasts. The whole earth crawled with a living chenille tapestry of worms. In the quiet evenings and in the windless night, you could hear a constant, tiny patter, as of rain. It was the droppings of these millions of worms per acre. The entire foliage and herbage of miles of earth were converted into the bodies and droppings of the worms.

By August, of course, the trees and shrubs had come out with a new if somewhat feeble covering of foliage. But this year, the growth, especially of the conifers, and of new seedlings is simply astonishing. To what more than the intensive act of fertilization by the caterpillars can this growth be ascribed? Areas usually attacked by this pest are second growth. They are often burned-over regions. They are filled with poplar, wild cherry and other trees that most attract the worm, though it soon spreads to almost all other species of tree. Being second growth, these areas propably require soil fertilization in rather a bad way.

How do we know that the visitation of the tent caterpillar is not one of nature's devices for looking after the needs of the soil? Her soil. It may be that the tent caterpillar's function, in nature's balance, is to invade second growth areas and give them a highly intensive cultivation.

No other process I can think of would fill every yard of ground and every crack and cranny of soil and rock with highly concentrated plant food as would the brief and stupendous visitation of the worms which consumed tons of greenery in two or three weeks and restored tons of manure to the soil in the same time. There are no disasters in nature. She employs everything to her best ends.

YOUTH, OLD AGE AND LIME

Up to date textbooks of physiology describe the functions of calcium (lime) as follows:

1. Essential for ossification of bone and the enamel of the teeth, and for development of sound and regular or even teeth.
2. Regulates excitability of nerves.
3. Necessary for vigorous contraction of heart muscle.
4. Necessary for clotting of blood.
5. Controls permeability of capillaries.

How come so many Americans are susceptible to or subject to these familiar complaints which, as I believe, are the manifestations of calcium deficiency?

The answer is as simple as rolling off a log. Most Americans, especially growing children and adolescents, do not consume enough milk—whole milk, skim milk, separator milk, dry whole milk powder or skim milk powder, buttermilk, sour milk, Bulgarian milk, Acidophilus milk, yoghurt, clabbered or curdled milk, whey, cottage cheese and every other kind of cheese. Milk and milk products constitute the best food source of calcium, to say nothing of other essentials of good nutrition. The minimum daily requirement of milk, or its equivalent in the milk products mentioned, for man, woman or growing child, is 1½ pints, three glasses, if the individual is to enjoy good nutrition and good health.

From time to time, in the past ten years, now this and now that "scientific investigator" or "laboratory expert" has discovered that "too much" vitamin D may cause deposits of calcium in various tissues and organs, the blood vessels, the kidneys, the lungs, for example.

Actual instances of such happening in human beings, substantiated by qualified medical examination, are so rare that one questions the motive for all the hullabaloo. There is no case on record in which any serious untoward effect has been produced by feeding infant or adult less than 5000 units of vitamin D daily over an indefinite period of time.

In advanced senility deposits of calcium (lime) in the walls of the arteries are commonly found. Whatever the old timers thought about this, no one today ascribes the hardening of the arteries (arteriosclerosis) of old age to this classification. Physicians and pathologists today regard it as a consequence of degeneration of the arterial wall—nature being no longer able to replace damaged or dead cells with new cells lays down fibrous, scar, nonfunctioning tissue or deposits calcium salts to repair the damage.

The degeneration of the arterial wall is part and parcel of premature aging, growing old, decline, dying. Everybody's doing it. In the natural course of life we are born, we grow and develop until we reach the peak, full maturity, and immediately we begin to decline, to degenerate, to die.

We like to deceive ourselves that we are as young and fit at fifty, let us say, as we were at thirty-five. But the truth is that most of us begin to decline, degenerate or die at thrity-five or thereabouts.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Restless Legs

Troubled by twitching and jerking of legs when I am trying to find a position to sleep. Doctor says it is muscular fatigue from being on my feet all day . . . (Mrs. S. A. E.)

Answer — It would help you considerably if you will lie on your back for a few moments and ride an imaginary bicycle upside down, three or four times in the day. This is especially good for persons with varicose veins. Perhaps a nitroglycerin tablet (1/200th grain) dissolved under your tongue after you get into bed, would relieve the restlessness of legs — you'll have to ask your doctor for nitroglycerin tablets.

Lakes, Rivers, Muskeg, Formidable Terrain For Construction of Ungava Railroad

The men opening the northern wilderness of Labrador-Ungava so rich iron deposits can be mines faced a tough transportation problem. The way they are pushing a new railway through some of the toughest country in Canada, and the perils they face, are told in this story, one of a series by Forbes Rhude, Canadian Press Business Editor.

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

From the air, Labrador-Ungava looks about the most unlikely place in which to build a railway. The country is covered with lakes of all sizes and shapes, through which it might seem almost impossible to thread a way.

Fortunately, the 360 miles between Knob Lake in the iron-ore interior and Seven Islands (Sept Iles) on the St. Lawrence is traversed by river systems. The job is to follow their valleys or take a foothold along their banks.

Starting northward from Seven Islands, the railway is being built along the Moisie and its tributaries, the Nipissis, Wacounh, Summit, Embarrasse, Menihek Lake, Astroy Lakes and, finally, Knob Lake.

All that water, even if is called the "grain of the country," can cause trouble. Along the way will be muskeg, sand, boulder cuts, rock cuts, ground cuts, loose rock cuts.

Just Like B.C.

Just 12 miles out from Seven Islands, for instance, the Moisie looks like something that has strayed out of the mountain gorges of British Columbia. It roars southward, and then suddenly turns at right angles.

At that spot, the railway comes through a 2,200-foot rock tunnel, directly onto a 708-foot bridge which crosses the river, 150 feet below.

Perhaps one of the greatest thrills of sharing, even as an observer, in something accomplished, was to travel on one of the first diesel-electric locomotives to go through the tunnel and over the bridge.

For the Moisie had been a bottleneck—and, for that matter, on the far side men still were finding difficulty in hacking out of the high hillsides a ledge on which to make a roadbed.

John E. Stokes, Iron Ore Company's office engineer, said that piece of road was more difficult than crossing the north shore of Lake Superior, though probably less hazardous than British Columbia's Fraser canyon.

"From Mile 12 to 22, men creep along the rocky sides of the hills and, at places, engineers, chairmen and drillers hang by ropes over the cliffs, cutting the ledge," he said.

From sea level at Seven Islands, the rails will climb to 2,050 feet at Mile 150, and drop slowly to 1,700 feet at Knob. There will be 24 bridges.

Having said that it is possible to build such a railway, how do you get started in the first place, with nothing but a wilderness in front of you?

You want to work simultaneously at several places along the line, and you get at them in various ways. You land some supplies on ice from a light plane, near a favorable location. You cut your way in, you use a light tractor, and finally you have a foothold.

Airstrips Next

Then you build an airstrip and there you are—you are a link in the Labrador-Ungava airlift, the greatest civilian airlift ever seen, with 10 such strips between Seven Islands and Knob.

Of course, in the meantime you may have lost a few trucks and tractors through the ice, and nearly frozen to death trying to get them out.

Norman Delmage, manager at Knob Lake, said:

"Last winter we had five tractors through the ice at one time, including a 29-ton tractor.

"A diver put a cable on it and we broke the ice ahead and pulled it towards shore. Fortunately there was a shoal 300 feet from where it went in. From there we were able to haul it under the ice to shallow water, and then blast the ice above it.

"That job took three days. We lost a few trucks. Next winter we will try to keep off the ice."

The tractors were coming in over a winter tote-road of frozen ground, frozen snow, and frozen lakes.

I heard something of those tractor trains down at Seven Islands. "A rugged deal," Harold McNamara, former newspaper man turned construction executive, called them.

Sleighs Take Over

The trains went out of Seven Islands on wheels as far as Mile 163. There their cargo was loaded on sleighs, which were taken in tow by tractors with relay points 25 to 30 miles apart.

A tractor would take two sleighs, each carrying 10 to 15 tons, to a relay point, hand them over to another tractor, and return to its base with empties.

Preferably, the convoys travelled in the long winter nights, when the road was firmest, getting away sometimes in crackling below-zero weather, in whipping winds.

The idea was to get in as much basic material as possible by winter road.

Three of the most frustrated creatures in Labrador came over that road last spring. They were horses, thin and tired from the 360-mile hike.

As summer came they longed for green grass and they were turned loose. They touched the white cariboo moss, but that wasn't grass. They nuzzled down into it, only to get into a tangle of roots. They gazed at the low-growing green, tough "buck" brush—but it only "bucked" back at them. It's like rubber—it can't be eaten and barely can be cut.

Finally they ate some green stuff that grew in the lake.

It was no land for horses—strictly for the caribou and the furry-legged three-toed ptarmigan—a sort of grouse—or the odd bear, fox, mink or squirrel. The streams and lakes are more kind. They abound in fish, especially speckled trout.

Tote Roads

Tote-roads along the route of the 360-mile railway site into Ungava are busy with trucks hauling supplies for the big construction job. Here, an early-morning convoy from Camp Mile 28 starts out with pre-fabricated building sections for a new campsite. Tractors stand by at intervals along the road to pull distressed trucks from mudholes. — (CP Photo.)

Bridge Moisie

The Moisie River, another of the grim barriers encountered in the battle to develop the Labrador-Ungava iron, finally has been spanned. A 708-foot steel structure, across which one day trains will thunder with ore, begins where a 2,200-foot tunnel through solid rock ends. Just under the bridge the Moisie turns at right angles. — (CP Photo.)

New Wrinkle in Radar Plotting Aids Navigation of Superliner

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—A new wrinkle in radar called reflection plotting rode with the super-liner United States on its record-breaking Atlantic crossings.

The device, built into a regular ship radar, enabled the navigator to keep constant check on all other ships in his area and, without leaving the radar, to determine any that might come within danger range.

It eliminates frequent, time-consuming trips to the chart room to make plots of the courses of other ships during fog, rain or night when visibility is poor and radar's X-ray eye is needed.

Plotting Process

All the navigator has to do is to take a soft crayon and make a dot on a glass surface above the radarscope or viewing screen when another vessel shows up on the map-like circular image. A few minutes later he makes another dot over the position of the ship at that time. He draws a straight line that passes through the two dots and projects it across the face of the glass. If it passes below or above the centre of the radar image—representing his own ship—he knows the other ship will pass well ahead or behind his own.

But if the projected line passes through the centre of the radar image, the navigator is aroused to the possibility of a collision unless one ship or the other changes its course or speed. He proceeds to keep close check on that ship to be ready to take whatever steps are necessary to avoid collision.

Meanwhile he doesn't have to worry about the pips or dots representing other ships unless one of them moves away from the line—marked in crayon—along which it has been moving If it does move away, it means that ship has changed its course or speed and has to be watched until its new course is determined.

The line drawn through two successive positions of a ship on the radar scope actually doesn't represent the other ship's course, but rather the relative course of that ship and your own.

AMAZING NEW MYSTERY SCENT TRAP LURES FLIES TO SURE DEATH!

Traps them, Kills them by Thousands

You never saw anything like it! It kills flies by thousands! It lures flies irresistibly to wholesale destruction with new fly odor that acts like radar! They fly straight into trap to sudden death.

Flies within ¼ mile radius are drawn by mysterious scent that only flies are attracted to. No effect on beneficial insects—not even detectable to humans except at close range. Yet flies cannot resist its "call". House flies, green bottle flies, blue bottle flies, large flesh flies, screw worm flies, midges—they all succumb to the lure. They are drawn away from houses, animals, even from barns, garbage and manure piles, to crawl right into escape-proof glass container and die with their eggs.

Just imagine! As many as 10,000 flies are caught in a single container. Here at last is real relief from the pests. Wherever there are flies, this sensational new outdoor fly trap is proving itself a boon — in backyards, on farms, dairies, livestock and poultry ranches—outside food markets, restaurants, fisheries, factories, hospitals, motels, etc. Use it outdoors to rid your place of flies—safely, surely, quickly.

COMPLETE OUTFIT includes half-gallon Fly Trap with Control Fluid sufficient for full season operation. $6.70 postpaid.

NEVER A DULL MOMENT

GODERICH — (CP) — David Evans, son of F. P. Evans, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is finding work on the railway can be rough. Last week while swinging a sledge hammer he gashed his forehead with a sliver of steel . . . The next day he dropped a 50-pound cage of ice on his foot. During the weekend he washed his trousers and returned to find a wren had built a nest in his hip pocket.

Simplicity to Mark Reign Chancellor Assures Labor

By E.S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The reign of the new Queen will not be marked by elaborate and costly ceremonies.

R.A. Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer, made this assurance in the House of Commons today in reply to Socialist demands for greater simplicity in palace activities.

Then the House gave final approval to the civil-list bill which grants an annual income of 475,000 pounds to the Queen and 40,000 pounds to the Duke of Edinburgh.

"Those members who are nervous that under the new reign there is to be an intensification of elaborate ceremonial which would put the Crown further away from the people, are making a mistake," Butler said. "It is neither the wish, so far as I know, nor the intention, nor indeed, the tradition of our present royal family."

Barrage of Criticism

His statement followed a barrage of criticism, led by Jennie Lee, wife of fiery Aneurin Bevan, over the size of the royal income and the manner in which it is spent.

Miss Lee, as she is addressed in the House, accused the Tory party of trying to maintain the royal family as a "centre of snobbery." She suggested Butler should let the nation know whether the Queen as a private person was immensely rich or whether her fortune, in the main, had been handed back for public service.

"When the Queen and the royal family have so many other public duties, I do not see why their energies should be taken up with the traditional reception of young women simply because they are rich," Miss Lee declared amid Socialist cheers. "It is bad for the royal family and not in keeping with the 20th century.

Hits Tory "Snobbery"

"Our criticisms are not disrespectful or nagging," Miss Lee went on, "for I believe the royal family can do a wonderful job for Britain and the Commonwealth. But it cannot do it unless it ceases to be the prisoner of the snobbery and class privilege for which the Tories stand."

E. Fernyhough, Labor member for Jarrow, said he believed the majority of the British people feel it would be much better if the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh could lead the lives of ordinary married people, spending far more time with their children.

J. Carmichael, Socialist member for Bridgeton, suggested it is wrong to give the Duke of Edinburgh an allowance for life without knowing what was going to happen in the next 10 or 20 years.

Ordinary people, he said, are unable to understand why the government is handing over to the royal household large sums of money every year, when at the same time it rejects the workers claims for wage increases to meet living costs.

Summer Theatre Enthusiast Scoffs at So-Called T-V Threat

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — A summer theatre with an international flavor has sprung up at Niagara Falls, Ont. Its producer, Maude Franchot of Niagara Falls, N.Y., declared neither hot air nor television will disturb her plans for its future.

Mrs. Franchot, aunt of movie-star Franchot Tone, scoffs at the "so-called T-V threat."

"Actors," she said in an interview while visiting Toronto, "prefer the stage."

People stayed home to see quiz shows and movies, but they still turned out for live theatre.

As for the hot air—an air-conditioning system she has installed in the Collegiate auditorium has solved that problem.

A small woman with a golden tan, Mrs. Franchot is a grandmother "the same age as this century."

She lives in a 23-room Georgian style mansion which she says is filled constantly with theatre folk, either dancers going through routines on the lawn or musicians practising on the front porch.

That has been her life since the Niagara Falls Summer Theatre opened last season. And she has managed to line up an imposing list of acting talent from both sides of the border.

Visiting Stars

Franchot Tone, Edward Everett Horton, Blanche Yurka are among the stars who have appeared with the resident company which is composed chiefly of Canadians.

Television, says Mrs. Franchot, doesn't appeal to actors because "they get a job on a half-hour television show and then, poof! They are out of work."

"If they strike a good play that has a long run they can make a lot of money in a short time," she said.

"Canadians," Mrs. Franchot continued, "are the most sought-after actors in the English-speaking world—because, having no union affiliation, they can act without threat of penalties."

If an English actor appeared in a United States production which failed, he was prohibited from acting in that country for six months.

Young Canadian actors had more experience than youthful U.S. performers.

"In the U.S., actors might get with 'Oklahoma!' or a similar hit and stay there for years," she said. "Here, they keep on the move and get more variety."

Scottish Nationalists Revive Hopes for Self-Government

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill caused a stir among Scottish home rulers last night by granting what they have long demanded—a Royal Commission of inquiry into arrangements for governing Scotland.

A Scotsman, the 49-year-old Earl of Balfour, will be chairman.

But the commission does not mean that Scots are well on their way to having their own Parliament in Edinburgh. Though 3,000,000 Scots have demanded this in a petition circulated by the Covenanters (home rulers) over the last two years, neither the Conservative nor the Labor party here has ever supported the idea.

Churchill's statement in Parliament came after the report of a committee, headed by Lord Catto, former governor of the Bank of England, which for over two years has been looking into the financial and economic relations between Scotland and England.

Can't Estimate Trade

The committee reported that without a customs barrier between Scotland and England it was impossible to determine Scotland's share of United Kingdom external trade and her balance of payments.

The financial angle of Scottish-English relationship is an important one to Scotsmen. A point made by many of the home-rule propagandists is:

Where would the British export drive be but for Scotch whisky, Scottish shipbuilding, Scottish engineering and all the other products that come from north of the border?

Scotland already has its own law, home, education, health and other government departments. And the Conservative government has given Scotland an extra Minister of State and an extra under-secretary. But nobody in the government has talked about separate Parliaments, which is what the Covenanters want.

BIRTHS, DEATHS DECREASE

TORONTO (CP)— There were 979 fewer births in Ontario in June than in the corresponding month of 1951, with 10,086 compared to 11,065. Figures announced last night also showed fewer marriages with 4,995 compared to 5,065 and fewer deaths with 3,615 against 3,640. Heart disease caused most deaths, 1,235.

Toronto Shops Hold No Appeal For Russian

TORONTO (CP)—Shopping in Toronto holds no appeal for Mrs. Sophie Mikhailovna Sperenskaia, secretary-general of the Russian Red Cross.

Not that the gracious woman who is nearly six feet tall doesn't like shopping but "I've brought all I need with me," she said yesterday.

She was one of two women delegates who attended a health luncheon yesterday in connection with the International Red Cross conference. She didn't let on she understood little of what was said—she knows hardly a word of English and follows conference discussions in French. She joined in a toast to the Queen and received a round of applause when she was introduced as "Mrs. Sperenskaia—straight from Moscow."

Although Toronto stores don't attract the tall secretary-general, other Russian women delegates to the conference have been busy window-shopping in the downtown business section.

Bride-to-be Honored By Staff With Useful Gifts

At the Ontario School for the Deaf, Madeline Robertson was recently honored with a presentation by her associates.

Eileen Nathan spoke briefly, expressing how much Madeline and her cheerful way would be missed among the workers at the school.

Madeline's fellow-workers presented her with a beautiful electric table lamp and a pair of silk pillow cases.

The supervisors also presented her with two lovely cups and saucers and Mrs. Simpkins gave her a lovely cream and sugar set.

Madeline thanked all for the beautiful gifts and invited them to come and visit her at her home in Foxboro.

Seventy-Eight C.G.I.T. Return from Camp At Quin-Mo-Lac

The intermediate C.G.I.T. camp sponsored by the Belleville Girls' Work Board, returned home on Saturday last after spending an enjoyable ten days at Camp Quin-Mo-Lac on Moira Lake.

Under the guidance of the director, Miss Helen Sawatsky, of Saskatoon, and her 12 leaders, the camp of 78 girls enjoyed a full program.

The day's activities began at 7 o'clock with a dip in the lake and morning watch. After breakfast, cabins had to be tidied before chapel and Bible study. A swimming period was also enjoyed before dinner.

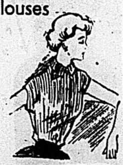
After dinner an hour's rest was taken before interest groups of lifesaving, campcraft, first-aid and music were attended. Each camper was also given a chance to develop her skill in one of the following crafts: plastic, felt or sewing.

Vespers and campfire concluded the day's program with lights out at 9.30 p.m.

A special church service was held in the outdoor chapel on Sunday with the director in charge assisted by the girls' choir. The offering which was to go to help under-privileged children in Germany amounted to $35.

Campers and leaders alike felt that this was a successful camp.

Beautiful Blouses



By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

THE beruffled sleeves of the new blouses certainly do bespeak the Spanish influence. White cotton is used for a blouse that would do nicely with a full skirt or a narrow one. It starts off tailored enough and has a pointed collar above the small pearl buttoned closing. The set-in sleeves sport three-tiered embroidered cuffs, the edges scalloped, and like the eyelets, these are done in bright red. Simple and elegant, here's another look at the blouse picture, a nice one for a summer suit or with a separate skirt. It is of pure silk shirting with one appliqued stitched arrow on the collar.

Food for Thought

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I have found your column very helpful. . . .there was a recipe for chocolate cake that I mislaid and would like to have. I believe it was called crazy cake. . .the dry ingredients were put in the pan it was to be cooked in and a number of holes made in this in which the vanilla (and other liquids) were put. . .I have trouble making white cake. . . they always fail.—Mauriece M.

ANSWER:

WACKY CAKE

Grease well a 9-inch pan. Sift into pan 1 1-2 cups flour, 1 cup white sugar, 3 tablespoons cocoa, 1 teaspoon each baking powder and soda, 1-4 teaspoon salt. Make 3 holes and into them put 1 teaspoon vinegar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 5 tablespoons melted butter. Over all pour 1 cup warm water and stir it in. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 30 or 35 minutes.

STANDARD WHITE CAKE

(Two 8-inch layer or one 9-inch square pan.)

Cream together until fluffy 1-2 cup mixed butter and shortening and 1 1-3 cups sugar. Sift together 2 1-4 cups sifted cake flour, 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-3 teaspoon salt. Stir these dry ingredients into the creamed mixture alternately with 1 cup milk mixed with 1 1-2 teaspoons vanilla. Then fold in 3 stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into greased and floured pans or pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. . . Bake layers for 30 to 35 minutes. Bake square or oblong cake 35 to 45 minutes.

QUESTION:

Once again writing for help . . . but first want to thank you for your help with my grille problem. The instruction book you mailed was the real answer. This time it is your Sour Cream cookies. I have just made a batch. . . there is no amount given for sour cream. . .I used a heaping tablespoon. . . they are delicious while warm but seemed dry when cool. . .so now I wonder about my judgment. . . I like so many other enjoy the informality of your writings and your family doings. . . my two have married and moved out of town . . . you make me a little lonely at times.—(Mrs.) L. McI.

ANSWER:

Both of my bairns will be away at school by next October, so I may not be so chipper either by then. Your letter was charming and certainly let me down easily about the ill-fated Sour Cream cookies. . . with hanging head I have to admit the amount was left cut and it was my fault— can't foist it onto the old "typographical error". The amount for Sour Cream cookies, of sour cream is 1- 2cup. You may have seen this correction a couple of weeks ago.

QUESTION:

. . .Can you help me with a freezing problem? I know apples can be frozen, but can all apples, or just late ones or early ones? We have a tree of beautiful early ones that make delicious sauce and jelly but would they freeze successfully? I would also appreciate information on freezing late fruits. . . peaches and blueberries will (freeze) but will pears? —Evelyn S.

ANSWER:

I have mailed you a copy of each of the columns I wrote for the paper for June 28 and July 3rd, on freezing fruits and vegetables. They do not mention early apples and do not give method of freezing pears. The pear varieties that freeze suitably under the heading of "good" (not excellent) are Keiffers and Baldwins. The apple varieties that freeze suitably under the heading of "good" (not excellent) are Baldwin, Greening, Northern Spy, Yellow Transparent; those four are good for sauce, and "any high acid variety" is "good" for pies. Because summer apples make delicious applesauce and because they are hard to keep it is advisable to freeze them in the form of applesauce.

FREEZING APPLESAUCE FROM SUMMER APPLES

Peel and core apples, cut into 8ths. Place in saucepan with only sufficient water to start apples cooking. Bring to quick boil, reduce heat and cook about 10 minutes until apples are mushy Add minimum amount of sugar for your family's taste and stir until dissolved. If sauce is not fine enough force through strainer. Cool thoroughly. Package in heavy cellophane lined bags or cartons. Freeze at once.

QUESTION:

Your column contains good common sense recipes that the average person would find usable. Mind you I like good food,. . . but common sense forbids me to indulge. . .could you give me a recipe for plebian bread pudding. This my husband refuses to eat. Perhaps a different recipe or two would make it more palatable.—Mrs. Stuart M.

ANSWER:

I printed an excellent bread pudding recipe in last Wednesday's paper for you and hope you saw it and hope your husband is won over.

Bikini Swim Suits So Tiny They Must be Tailor-Made

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters — Bikini bathing suits in France this year are tinier than ever.

In fact they are so skimpy, some of the wearers on the Riviera, to make sure they fit as they should, are having them specially tailored. Others—taking still fewer chances—are having them made by corset manufacturers, complete with stays to keep them in place.

In spite of trends toward one-piece bathing suits, the majority of suits worn at Cannes are still two-piece styles. But the briefer they are, the more they require good fitting. More and more women are choosing custom made bathing suits, beautifully boned and moulded by corsetiers.

Styles feature new high cuts, slanted up in a shape V over the hips. Bras are snugly boned, and usually strapless. A separate strap may be buttoned in for active swimming.

Colors follow many of the dress trends towards the light sand, wheat and biscuit shades, deepening into the spice and nutmeg tones which match a dark suntan.

One of the glamor girls of Cannes, a young French actress, appeared in a deep chocolate ensemble, especially effective with her bronzed skin.

A revolutionary bathing suit, this time in one piece, was made of leopard printed, satin lastex. The wearer had matched her swim suit to her car, a convertible sports model, entirely upholstered in real leopard skin.

Another bathing suit acclaimed as one of the stars of the season, is Jacques Heim's brief two piece suit made of bands of fringed string. It comes in the natural shade of cord, and achieves two straight rows for the bra, with three tiers which form the panties. It is worn with a huge parasol hat, made of natural straw.

Large hats appear as frequently on the beach as gaily striped umbrellas. New trends feature amusing peaked bonnets, or beachcombers' hats made of woven palm leaves.

Beach robes are featured in one in emerald green, copied from an ancient Roman toga. It is a long straight piece of fabric, with a hole cut out for the head. The sides are completely open, but the robe is gathered in at the waist with a cord. Other beach robes, knee or hip length, are styled like artists smocks.

Shorts parade everywhere. The majority are straight cut and tailored, though a few are generously pleated, similar to a tennis dress.

A few slacks and pedal pushers lend contrast, with the Spanish influence seen in snugly fitted torreador trousers.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

Some man is going to win $50 cash at the Canadian National Exhibition this year simply by lacing his shoes and tying a neat knot that will last all day. This is one of several special competitions in the women's department of the Ex and this one is "for men only." . . . On Saturday night August 23, those entering the shoe lace speed race will gather at the Coliseum. They will be given a pair of new shoe laces and will compete to see who can finish first and best. Any man can enter, but he must notify the C.N.E. by August 11. Even the losers will win a pair of new laces.

Police Lassie

Do you know that the Lord High Constable of Scotland is now a woman? She is the Countess of Errol who succeeded to this centuries-old hereditary office on the death of the last male of her family. But the Countess isn't actually a policewoman, because the office is purely honorary.

Safety Idea

Driving along the highway, we came to a place where a woman was holding up a red flag to warn motorists that her husband was about to drive the cows across the pavement to the lake for water. By cautioning drivers some yards up the road, it was possible for them to slow down on approaching the crossing . . . Could save an accident.

Funny Signs

Tourists in the province of Quebec always get a kick out of the signs some French Canadians put up over their shops. The difficulty in translating the exact meaning for some not-so-good bi-linguists results in many humorous signs.

One sign says "Groceries and Butcheries," which in a sense is logical. The problem of finding a French word for second-hand-store is something else again. One Frenchman has solved this by having an artist paint two hands on his store window with the words "le magasin" (the shop.)

Another sign in front of a tourist home reads: "Try Our Beds and Boards."

Uncle Frontenac says if you are having difficulty getting acquainted with people at a summer resort, just get out the sponge and start washing your car. You won't be able to finish the job. Seems human nature to interrupt a man who is working.

W. German Govt. Demands Release Of Kurt Meyer

OTTAWA — (CP) — The Kurt Meyer case, dormant for eeks is back in the news.

The name of the German S. S. General imprisoned for life for wartime atrocities against Canadian troops was listed among 146 Nazi war criminals whose release the West German government is reported demanding.

Official sources said the Canadian government is ready to refer the Meyer case to an international clemency court to be established once the treaty which will restore Germany to virtual sovereignty is ratified. A Canadian, probably a judge, would be one of six judges on the court.

But the Adenauer government has thrown a hitch into these plans by indicating that the 146 war criminals, including Meyer, must be released before West Germany's parliament will ratify the treaty.

No direct approach has yet been made to Canada by Germany but this latest development will likely land on the government's doorstep in the weeks ahead.

Kitchener Hospital Criticized By Supervisor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The chronic wing of Kitchener-Waterloo General Hospital came in for further criticism yesterday before a provincial government commission investigating the affairs of the 350-bed East Windsor Hospital for Incurables.

Mrs. Madeline Campbell, nursing supervisor at East Windsor, said she would be ashamed to work at the Kitchener-Waterloo hospital and that she didn't realize that "such a place" could exist.

Gordon Friesen, administrator of the Kitchener hospital, called earlier as a commission witness, criticized staff and dietary arrangements at East Windsor hospital. East Windsor Superintendent Dr. P. J. G. Morgan has directed analagous criticism at Kitchener-Waterloo hospital.

Mrs. Campbell gave detailed descriptions yesterday of staff organization at East Windsor hospital.

The inquiry is continuing.

No Trial For Guelph Rioters

GUELPH (CP) — Prisoners at the Guelph reformatory who took part in a July 5 riot will be punished inside the institution and will not face charges in court Col. G. Hedley Basher said today.

Col. Basher, deputy-minister of reform institutions, said that Reforms Minister Foote has authorized Superintendent Gerald Wright of the reformatory to deal with such prisoners and to give punishment he considered fitting.

Prisoners destroyed much of the reformatory's furnishings during the riot, causing thousands of dollars' damage.

Most of the 900 prisoners took part in the 12-hour demonstration. Ringleaders now will be punished inside the reformatory itself. Col. Basher said the minister's action was taken after conferences which went into the situation thoroughly.

He added that since the disturbance three prisoners have been strapped for defying regulations but these incidents had nothing to do with the riot.

British Wool To Red China

LONDON. (Reuters)— Bernard Buckman, director of London Export Corporation Ltd., said today that within five weeks his firm will ship the first of a $1,400,000 wool yarn order to Communist China.

He said 30 firms in Bradford, Yorkshire, are supplying the wool tops ordered by the Chinese.

The orders were placed at a recent trade conference in Moscow.

A spokesman for the government trade department said today: "There is a wide range of non-strategic goods with which Britain is ready to do trade with China providing we can spare them."

Guest Speakers Give Interesting Talks

Stirling—The July meeting of St. Paul's W.A. was held at the cool summer home of Mrs. Walter Elliott, Oak Lake, with an attendance of about 50 ladies.

The meeting opened by the president, Mrs. C. A. Wells who welcomed the visitors, among whom were Miss Marion Daniels, of Orillia, who took the devotional part of the meeting, and Mrs. A. Giffin, of Foxboro, who was guest speaker for the afternoon.

Reports were read and adopted, and "thank you" cards were read. Mrs. R. Stapley kindly offered to look after flowers in the church for the months of July and August. It was decided to send a letter of congratulation from St. Paul's W.A., to Rev. R. Barker, of the London and district United Church Ministerial Association.

Mrs. J. B. Thompson opened her program by introducing Miss Daniels, who opened the devotional with a hymn, followed by a prayer and Scripture lesson taken from 8th. chapter of Acts. Miss Daniels then gave a brief talk on what the training school is and how much it is needed to teach girls to give these services in different towns and cities as missionaries or deaconesses.

Two lovely duets were sung by Janet Ann Good and Laura Jeffrey.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. J. L. Good introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Giffin, of Foxboro, who took for her subject, "The Two Churches." The first church is in Hollywood, which is the largest church in the U.S., seating 1,700 people, which is filled every Sunday morning. The second church is a Presbyterian church, not as large as the first, situated on heights in New Jersey. This was an educational address and enjoyed by all.

Mrs. E. Bailey moved a vote of thanks to these two ladies, who took of their time to meet with St. Paul's W.A. Collection was $14.40, of which one-half was donated to the Training School fund.

Following benediction, a cup of tea and tasty refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

Sincere thanks to the hostess, guest speakers and all who took part in the program and the entire committee in charge was ably moved by Mrs. M. Bell.

Indians Bounce Back Into Top Four Society, Crowd Bosox For Second

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

COBL CONCLAVE

Tomorrow the Central Ontario Baseball League executive goes into conclave at the Queen's Hotel with the loop playoffs the main theme of discussion. There may be quite a gabfest at that over the winder-upper series as there are rumors two of the clubs differ in their opinions of the mode d'emploi of the closing games.

As is only natural all the clubs want the biggest share of games, as the box-office has not been too lavish with returns this season especially in the Kingston and Peterborough parks. The Petes officials made no bones about the fact here on Thursday night that their coffers could stand a right lusty chunk of lining and from what this corner has seen when hibernating in the Megaffin Stadium press-box Stan Scrutton's club's wallet must be extremely thin in spots.

The Reds have fared the best at the box office, but there is plenty of room, and use, for not a few of the shekels of the realm.

However, in a three-team set-up such as the Central Ontario Baseball League, if the powers-that-be decide to make the playoffs a straight semi-finals and finals series, it stands to reason the club finishing on top will get the mouse's share of the gravy while the winner of the semi-finals will come in for the lion-size loot. We doubt very much if this method gets the green-light by the full executive on Sunday and if we may be permitted to guess, all three clubs will decide on the round-robin procedure.

Earlier in the season when ways and means of playing an interlocking schedule with the St. Lawrence Baseball League was discussed and acted upon, it was agreed between the executives of the loops that the league winners would play off for the Eastern Ontario senior baseball championship. However the idea has simmered down somewhat since then. Peterborough the other night, in discussing the matter informally stated flatly, if they were returned COBL champions, the junket down east would not even be considered by them. Kingston may have other ideas, but we doubt if the Scruttoneers would go for the idea. The Redmen management hinted rather definitely that such a series would not be welcome.

We can well understand the attitude of the Peterborough and Belleville clubs. 'Tis a lengthy safari from Liftlockville to the outskirts of Cardinal, Prescott or whatever SLBL team wins the loop bauble and the returns from the series would not warrant the junket. Ditto for Belleville.

NO TRUTH IN IT

There's no truth in the story that the Redmen will wear kilts tonight so they can be eligible for the ladies prizes which are being drawn for at the Peterborough - Belleville game. Besides looking rather foolish, the boys might be embarrassed if they were forced to slide home at any time during the game. Not to mention the southern exposure might cause some of them to contract colds. And it might not be a bad idea at that. At least their noses would be running and that's a lot more than the rest of the anatomy has been doing the last game or two.

In any event, it is expected a large number of the fair sex will be on hand to view tonight's proceedings. The Reds are smarting under that 5-2 setback of Thursday night, and have vowed to avenge the defeat on the self-same Petes this gloaming. Manager Red Carson has ten handsome prizes awaiting the lucky ladies, so it should be an enjoyable evening all round

PLAYDOWN TIME

Next week will see some important decisions rendered in the District Softball League picture. Glen Roy juniors, first-place winners of the loop meet Frankford, on the latter's diamond on Monday night in the first of a best-of-three semi-finals series for the league championship and the Bill Ott Trophy. The teams clash in the second game on Wednesday night here. In the other half of the bracket, CNR Diesels clash with the RCAF at CNR Field Monday with the second tilt slated for Wednesday night on the RCAF diamond. The third game, if necessary will be played on Friday.

Crawfords and Belleville Motor Car tangle in their second game of the Intermediate "AA" semifinals on Tuesday night and a win for Motor Cars will send them against the Northern Electric squad in a series to decide the right to represent the city in the CASA playdowns.

We understand the Point Anne and CNR Diesels will play off for the right to represent the city in the Intermediate "A" playdowns, they being the only "A" teams in the league. Thus there might result the strange picture of the league champions staying at home while the runners-up go on into the provincial playdowns.

A REAL GUY

Sportsmen of the city paid well-deserved tribute to a popular confrere last night when they held a party farewell to Reg. Wardle of the Keyes Supply Company who has been transferred to Cornwall in a managerial capacity.

The Belleville Softball League president Don Lee and his executive played host and through secretary Cy Barriage presented Reg with a handsome Ronson lighter, tangible tribute to the high regard in which he is held in sports circles of the city.

Sportdom here can ill afford to lose "guys" like Reg. He spent time and money for baseball, softball, hockey and we wouldn't be a bit surprised if he tossed the odd shekel the way of the croquet and checker players. He's that kind of a guy.

Reg went out of his way to help and foster sport of all kinds. He served on directorates of recreational bodies and never once let down on the job. It was his hobby and interest. He loved it and served it well.

Along other lines Reg was an expert trombonist and a musician of excellent ability. He will be missed in the "melody" circles too as well as by a host of friends outside these spheres of activity. It will be a long time before another "Reg Wardle" comes into being in this city.

All sportdom, we feel sure, joins this column in wishing Reg every success in his new environment. Best o luck, chum.

Scalp Washington Senators As Yanks Lose Third Straight; Giants Edge Closer to 'Bums'

By RALPH RODEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

When the league-leading New York Yankees dumped Cleveland 7½ games off the pace by sweeping a doubleheader Tuesday, it looked like curtains for the Tribe.

But the Indians have bounced back. They knocked the Yanks off twice. Last night they whipped Washington 4-2 and took over third place from the Senators, 4½ games behind New York and only ½ back of second-place Boston.

Yanks Lose Another

The Yanks, meanwhile, suffered their third straight loss as they bowed to the Tigers in Detroit 2-1. The Red Sox remained four games astern of the Bombers by dropping a 3-2 squaker to St. Louis Browns. Philadelphia Athletics and Chicago White Sox divided a doubleheader, the White Sox winning the opener 5-0 and the A's the second game 5-4.

In the National League, New York Giants defeated Cincinnati 3-1 in the majors' only day game and climbed to within 5½ games of Brooklyn's pace-setting Dodgers. St. Louis Cardinals trounced the Dodgers 8-4, while in other games, Pittsburgh shaded Boston 3-2 and Chicago belted Philadelphia 8-3.

Early Wynn allowed the Senators only six hits in besting Bob Porterfield. Wynn blanked Washington after the first inning in hanging up his 11th victory. Home runs by Jim Hegan and Larry Doby featured Cleveland's seven-hit attack.

Former Yankee Steve Souchock homered in the ninth on Bob Kuzava's first pitch to fracture a 1-1 tie and beat his old mates.

Jim Hearn was the whole show in the Giants' triumph over Cincinnati. Hearn limited the Reds to four hits and won his own game with a two-run homer.

Tenders High

Tempers flew in the Cardinal-Dodger game. In the first inning Soly Hemus of the Cards and pitcher Chris Van Cuyk of the Dodgers exchanged punches after Hemus slid hard into third base, covered by Van Cuyk.

Later, Van Cuyk twice hit Hemus with pitched balls. Van Cuyk also was forced to bite the dust in the fourth when pitcher Joe Presko of the Cards threw a pitch high and inside. The Dodgers claimed Van Cuyk was hit by the pitch but umpire Frank Secory ruled the ball had struck his bat. The Dodgers protested violently and bench warmers Clem Labine, Ralph Branca and Roy Campanella were ejected. Van Cuyk suffered a contusion on his left index finger and was forced to retire.

Royals Divide With Springfield, Leafs Lose 2-1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The front-running Montreal Royals last night gained one-half game over second-place Rochester, splitting an International League with Springfield Cubs.

Tom Lasorda shut out the Cubs 5-0 in the opener for his fifth victory of the season. He held the losers to three hits.

In the nightcap, Jack Wallaesa broke up a 3-3 battle with a two-run homer in the eighth to give the Cubs a 5-3 win.

Rochester's Freddie Hahn held Baltimore Orioles hitless for seven innings, but the Orioles walked off with a 2-1 decision. Three safeties and an infield error gave the Red Wings their two runs in the seventh. The victory went to Paul Stuffel.

Buffalo Bisons slaughtered Syracuse Chiefs 14-7, clouting Bob Keegan for three home runs in the five innings he worked. Frank Carswell, Harvey Zernia and Eddie Kazak tapped Keegan for round-trippers, while Don Lund added another in the ninth.

In the other game of the night, tail-end Ottawa defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 2-1 behind Bill George, who also drove in the winning run.

Yanks Widen Decathlon Lead

HELSINKI (AP)—Three Americans today widened their lead in the Olympic decathlon by swift runs in the 110-metre hurdles, first event of the final day in the gruelling all-around test.

Bob Mathias, defending Olympic champion from Tubare, Calif. held on to first place. He ran the hurdles in 14.7 seconds to earn 894 points. This gave him an unofficial total of 5,261 for six events.

Saskatoon's Bob Adams was timed in 16.6 seconds, adding 489 points to bring his six-event total to 3,515 points. He was in 20th place at the end of yesterday's five events.

Today's performance dropped the 27-year-old school teacher to 21st place.

Milton Campbell, 18-year-old Plainfield, N.J., high school boy, stayed in second place with 14.5 seconds, good for 953 points and an unofficial total for six events of 5,064.

Floyd Simmons, Pasadena, Calif., ran 15.0 seconds in the hurdles, picking up 813 points for an unofficial total of 4,737.

Timbermen Trim Mimico 'Mounts'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough Timbermen with one blow last night chopped their way into a tie for second place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior series and pared the first-place Mimico Mountaineers' lead.

An 1-5 walloping for the Mounties at Peterborough cut Mimico's lead to four points and lifted Peterborough into a tie with Toronto West Yorks. Fergus Thistles trampled Hamilton Tigers 21-12 in Fergus.

Peterborough came from behind a 4-2 deficit at half-time to defeat Mimico. Nit O'Hearn paced the Timbermen with three goals and Curly Mason, Lou Nickle and Don Ashbee each collected two.

Bob Dobbie was the top scorer for Fergus as he piled up six goals. Don Gear contributed four and Len Caruso and Stan Abbott two each.

Thirteen North American Oar Titles Decided Today at Canadian Henley

By CRAIG SWAYZE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—Thirteen North American rowing championships will be decided here today as the 70th Royal Canadian Henley regatta draws to a close on the Old Welland Canal.

Headlining the display of United States and Canadian rowing talent will be three-way battles in the championship singles, the senior eights and the high school eights. With Buffalo West Sides and St. Catharines vieing for regatta supremacy and St. Catharines Collegiate seeking to retain its schoolboy eight title, competition should be keen.

Buffalo On Top

Yesterday, Buffalo West Sides won four finals while finishing second in two and earning a third in another. It was enough to move them into top spot in the aggregate standings for the Maple Leaf trophy, emblematic of the Henley championship.

The West Sides have amassed 185 points in the first three days of competition, 72 better than the host St. Catharines club, runner-up with 113. Toronto Argonauts gained a first and a fourth yesterday to move into third spot while the New York Athletic Club is fourth with 47½.

Don Platt of Toronto Dons provided yesterday's singles highlight with a three-length victory over Eugene Loveless of the New York A.C. in the association singles final.

Platt's victory over four United States scullers qualified him for today's championship singles. He will meet Gabby Beaudry of the Lachine Rowing Club and Joe Angyl of the New York A.C. in a three-way fight for the regatta's singles title.

A smooth-stroking St. Catharines crew set a Henley course record in the junior eight final when they pounded home ahead of Chicago Lincoln Park in 6:19 for the mile, 550-yard distance. A Buffalo West Side eight placed third.

The previous record was 6:19.4, set by a Toronto Argonaut crew in the 1914 senior eight final.

Buffalo's quartet of victories came in the junior 155-pound eight final, the senior pair-oars, the junior doubles and the junior 135-pound eights. All were keenly contested races with the exception of the senior pair-oars which was a row-over, the West Side entry being the only crew in the race.

Allen Park high school of Ecorse, Mich., took the high school four final over Mount Carmel of Wyandotte, Mich. Detroit Boat Club rallied to win the senior coxswain a field of five for the first half-mile.

Argos Win Easily

The Argonaut win came in the junior 145-pound eights, the opening race of the day. The Toronto crew romped home a good four lengths in front of Buffalo and Toronto Dons in that order. It was the first double-blue victory of the regatta.

Bill Lang of the Minnesota Boat Club won the only other singles event yesterday, the junior 145-pound competition. He edged Tom Walsh of the New York A.C. and Jim Albon of St. Catharines.

Don Guest and Len Stephan captured the high schools doubles title in a row-over. They were the only pair entered in the event.

Today's events open with the high school eights final at 2 p.m. Other races are the senior 145-pound eights, senior doubles, senior 145-pound singles, senior 155-pound eights, senior 145-pound doubles, senior 145-pound fours, senior 135-pound eights, championship singles, senior eights, senior 155-pound fours and senior heavy fours.

Canada Faced With Humiliating Prospect Of 'Duck Egg' At Helsinki

Yet to Garner Single Point; Australian Girl Star Shatters 2nd Olympic World's Record

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP) — While the Americans and athletes from some Commonwealth countries are breaking records and collecting scoring points, Canada is faced with the humiliating prospect of finishing the Olympic track and field program without a point for the first time.

The Americans were expected to be powerful in track and field. They have been.

The Russians didn't turn loose any supermen and superwomen on the cinder path and grass infield at Olympic Stadium. But they've picked up points. In other sports, particularly gymnastics and Greco-Roman-style wrestling, the Russians have collected gold medals with both hands.

So far as the Commonwealth track and field performers are concerned, yesterday's display before 70,000 persons is an example, a rather startling one, perhaps, but there it is.

Aussie Lowers Record

Twenty-one-year-old Marjorie Jackson of Australia ran so fast in the women's 200-metre semi-final, an entry in the world-record book was torn out and fluttered away.

Big George Rhoden of Jamaica broke the Olympic record of 46.2 seconds in winning the 400-metre championship in 45.9. It was one-two for Jamaica when Herb McKenley placed second in a hair-raising finish. What's more, Arthur Wint of Jamaica was fifth.

Horancee Ashenfelter of New York, who works for the F.B.I. was considered something of an outsider in the gruelling 3,000-metre steeplechase with its hazards or hurdles and water jump. But he outlasted Russia's Vladimir Kazantsev in a brilliant finish and set an Olympic record in winning the championship.

Canada had some hopefuls going into semi-final brackets in the 400-metre run, the 1,500-metre run and the women's 200-metre dash.

None Outstanding

It was hardly to be expected there would suddenly appear another Percy Williams, Jimmy Ball, Phil Edwards, Johnny Loaring or Alex Wilson.

It was unbelievable, but when the semi-final heats ended the men of Canada were last, each in his own heat Jim Lavery of Calgary was sixth; Jack Carroll of Verdun, Que., fifth in a five-man heat, in the 400. Bill Parnell of North Vancouver trailed in 10th in his 1,500-metre semi-final and John Ross of Oakville, Ont., 12th in the other semi-final.

In the girls' division, Eleanor McKenzie and Luella Law of Vancouver placed second in 200-metre preliminary heats. Tiny O'Halloran of Toronto was fourth and was eliminated. In the semi-finals Misses McKenzie and Law were sixth.

That was the occasion Marjorie Jackson selected to smash the world record with a mark of 23.4 seconds. The old mark was 23.6, held by the sensational Polish-American star Stella Walsh.

The decathlon event—10 different track and field performances—will conclude today. At the half-way mark defending champion Bob Mathias of the United States was well out in front on points. Bob Adams of Saskatoon was in 20th place.

Genereux Has Chance

But Saskatoon had a chance to bring Canada the first gold medal since 1932. This chance was left to the capable shooting eye of 17-year-old George Genereux. The youngster concluded yesterday's first half of the clay-pigeon trap-shooting competition with 95 points, in a three-way tie behind Hans Aasnaes of Norway and Hans Liljedahl of Sweden.

Canada's last gold medallist was Duncan McNaughton, high jump winner in 1932.

Huelet Benner, a United States army master sergeant, won the pistol-shooting championship yesterday. Canada had no entry in that event.

A Russian, Ivan Udodov, won the in the weightlifting tournament. Little Rosaire Smith of Drummondville, Que., placed ninth.

In soccer Yugoslavia yesterday defeated Denmark 5-3 and qualified for semi-finals along with Germany Sweden and Hungary.

In fencing, France's epee team, world and Olympic champions, failed to qualify for a semi-final round and the Italian team remained a strong favorite. Canada is not entered in team competition.

'Is Ludship Lord Athol Layton Beats Bo-Bo With Lou's Heel

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

The way Bo-Bo Brazil tosses that conk of his around is enough to give anybody brain fever. They says he practises on cement posts back in his beloved Africa or is it Tennessee, and thus far the posts have been taking a beating.

But Bo-Bo who uses his head more than any wrestler we know, put it to good advantage last night but failed within an inch or two of conking the main bout from the hated Lord Athol Layton.

As a matter of fact the two lads sort of indulged in a Ring Around Rosy system. Both had a yen, after delivering their favorite weapons of offence, to toss the foeman outside the ropes into the first rows of the box-seat holders, none of whom showed any liking for nursing 280 pounds of sweaty pachyderm in their laps.

Brazil Nut—Gollop Poll

It was clip against bonk with both weapons being very effective but somehow or other both rallied in the first round after weathering the storm. Referee Sam Gollop took the worst beating in the first fall, it seems after recovering from an accidental pair of chops in the chops he stopped Bo-Bo's bean when the dusky gent was nodding, perhaps from drowsiness. In any event when the Brazil nut hit the Gollop poll the kinky head disappeared for a moment and several of the faithful swear it appeared for a fraction of a second at the rear of the official noggin.

You can take that for what it's worth but in any event Sammy was walking backwards for a few minutes without his rear lights being illuminated. For the first time in his life he saw the heels of his shoes in action.

But 'Is Ludship was put out no end, literally and figuratively at one time during the tiffin party. As a matter of fact his regal dignity was so ruffled that after consulting with Man Friday Petochia, the pair decided to vacate the premises without benefit of a month's notice.

Right put out, he was lads and strike me bloomin' pink if the blokes didn't leave the ring in protest of the filthy decision handed out or not handed out by Slammin' Sam, he of the Gollop clan. In fact the Surrey toff argued so long and loud that Sammy golloped two or three times before he could get his optics north of the regal umbilicus. It was that bad, it was.

But Bo-Bo got a little peeved at the goings on and he nudgel first Athol in the noggin and then when Lou Petrocia horned in Bo-Bo curtseyed in his direction and the zany that's known as Lou slowly sagged to the floor while the birdies cheeped "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep".

He Tossed Him, He Did

That was that and Bo-Bo turned his attention to 'is nibs, tossing him willy-nilly and hari-kari until the Surreyite with the large fringe on his top, hurtled out of the ring.

Now Slingin Sam is a scholar of no mean ability. He counted to five and remembered that a pair of quintets amount to ten. So he merely doubled in brass and counted me'lud out while he was out.

Ah he was mad, no end. Iven the zany that's known as Lou recovered sufficiently to attempt to soothe the regal feelings but 'twas no bloody use.

Then in the second fall Layton heaved more chops, he did, at Bo-Bo's sunburned gullet than seventy-four butchers at a lamb barbecue. He was right nasty, he was, and the first thing Bo-Bo knew, he, too, was making a mental summary of how many steel girders hold up the roof of the arena.

Then again in the third, Bo-Bo was counted out after being chopped severely. But Sam, you made the count too long. What you didn't see was Petrocia's tootsy curled around the shinbone of the Bo-Bo and he was firmly anchored. For shame. Sambo. you should get glasses yet.

Roberto Rico, senors, was judged the winnah after roughing up genial Warren Bockwinkle while Loosy (careful with that one operator) Petrocia, the willun, was disqualified after spoiling Pat Flanagan's bald eagle hair-do.

Point Anne Loses Series On Toss of Coin

Point Anne Cementmen and Frankford Merchants wound up in a dead heat in the third game of their best-in-three series to determine third and fourth place in the Belleville and District Softball League as they battled to a 7-7 stalemate in 10 innings at Point Anne last evening.

However the league executive at their meeting last evening, flipped a coin to decide the winners of the series and Point Anne lost the toss. They will meet the Glen Roy Juniors in Point Anne, Monday evening.

The Point Anne ball club expressed dissatisfaction over this method of deciding such an important series claiming that the decision should be made in a replay of last night's game. The Pointers also charged that Frankford, in a serious hole in the 9th inning last evening deliberately delayed the game by arguments for almost half an hour in order to give their pitcher a rest and stated that the umpire should have prevented the delay by pulling a watch on the Frankford team.

The game was riddled with argument and dispute as both squads fought bitterly to take the all-important third game.

Point Anne scored two runs in the first inning on infield singles by Genereaux, Strachan, and Wood, and a fielder's choice play that put Mallory aboard.

Frankford scored their first tally in the second frame when the centrefielder dropped Curtis' hoist for a three base error. Gilmour scored Curtis from third with a sacrifice bunt.

Frankford took the lead in the sixth frame scoring two runs on three singles, a walk, and an error at short.

Point Anne, for some peculiar reason, batting in the top of the inning, took the lead in the top of the seventh with a walk, a single, and a three base error in right field being good for two runs.

Frankford used two singles, a walk, and two passed balls to score two tallies in the bottom of the seventh to take a 5-4 lead. The Pointers hammered over 3 more runs in the eighth on four hits, a wild pitch, and a sacrifice.

In the bottom of the eighth, the Merchants tied the score, tallying two runs on two hits, a wild pitch and two errors. In the 8th Frankford coach Bill Rankin, was ejected from the game by umpire-in-chief Tim Williams, for protesting too long and too loudly about a close decision.

Rhubarb in 10th

Both teams battled through the ninth and tenth without scoring, but Appleby, batting in the bottom of the tenth, provoked a real rhubarb by being called out after he had singled because he failed to report to the umpire that he was a pinch hitter.

Farr did all the flinging for Frankford walking one, striking out six and giving up 10 hits for seven runs. Pat Maracle did the pitching for the Cementmen, walking three, striking out two, and being tagged for 10 hits and seven runs.

Lineups:—

Point Anne: Genereaux cf; Elliott lf; Strahan 1b; Mallory ss; Wood 2b; Bradshaw rf; Horwood 3b; Maracle p; Brannigan c.

Crawfords Bow To Motor Cars By 17-5 Score

By JACK BRETT

Belleville Motor Car pounded Crawfords Metals last night at the Alemite field to the tune of 17-5 to take the first game in the best-of-three semi-final series to decide an OASA representative.

Jack Reid hurled for the motormen and gave up 11 hits for five runs. He struck out four and walked two. McBride started for the losers to give up three hits for seven runs, strike out one and give two walks. Thompson relieved him in the fifth to give 14 hits for 10 runs. He walked three and struck out six.

Reid drew first blood of the game for BMC as he drove in Miller and Powers aboard second and third on a walk and an error with a home run to right field in the first frame. Callaghan tripled in the second and came home on an error for the 4-0 score. In the fifth, Semark singled, Callaghan walked to put him on third and Powers' triple brought both men across the plate. Powers came in on an error. Miller singled, Tapp walked and Reid doubled to knock them home. He crossed the plate himself on an error. Cousins' double and Walsh's single were good as Semark hit them home with a double. He stole home for the ninth run of the frame to make it 14-0.

For Crawford's, Taylor's home run brought in Upper and Duesberry on base with singles for three runs in the fifth. Galbraith and Watson's singles were good as the fielders erred in the sixth.

Walsh went to first on a walk for the Motors in the sixth escaped to second on a passed ball and came home on a hit. In the eighth Walsh's single and Cousins' home run made the score 16-5. Miller singled in the ninth, gained third on an error and came home on a hit for the 17-5 score.

Canada Drops Hairline Decision To Brazil in Olympic Basketball

HELSINKI (CP)—Canada dropped a hairbreadth 57-55 decision to Brazil and the United States and Russia gained easy victories in the opening round of the Olympic basketball tournament yesterday.

The South Americans broke a last-seconds tie to enter the winners' circle after holding off a second-half comeback by the Canadians. Canada has another chance at supremacy in its group by taking on Argentina today.

Although the highly-favored U.S. and Russia won their first-round matches, the Russians were more impressive

Poor U.S. Show

The Americans gave the impression of being stale in punching out a listless 66-48 triumph over the outclassed team from Hungary while the Soviet five was all sparkle and ginger in racing by its Cominform partner, Bulgaria, 74-46.

The 16 teams went into action on the first of three day's play to cut the field down to eight by Sunday night. The survivors will play three days of semi-finals beginning Monday followed by three days of final matches to determine the championship.

In other results, Uruguay edged past Czechoslovakia in an overtime game 53-51; Mexico topped Finland 66-48; Argentina stopped the Philippines 85-59; Chile nipped Cuba 53-52; and France ran up the highest point total of the day in walloping Egypt 92-64.

Brazil led Canada 37-33 at half-time after sharp-shooting by Bob Pickel of Edmonton and Harry Wade of Tillsonburg, Ont., had kept the Canadians in the game.

After Brazil had gained a 42-33 advantage, the Canadians surged and deadlocked it 53-53 with three minutes left to play.

Brazil Goes Ahead

Then Thermes da Fonseca sank a driving lay-up to send the South Americans ahead. The Brazilians tried to freeze the ball but Bill Coulthard again knotted the count.

The victory was won in the last five seconds when Angelo Bonfietta sank his arching set shot.

In the heated scramble of the last half, Brazil lost two of its best men. Rodriguas da Motta went out with four personal fouls midway through the half after scoring 10 points. Almir de Almeida went out a few seconds later. The loss of these clever floor men hampered the Brazilians' game.

Canada's late surge was sparked by George Wearing of Toronto who scored all his 10 points in the final half.

After the game, Brazilian officials and supporters stormed jubilantly on to the floor, glaadhanding the players.

Eddie Bowering of Vancouver, the Canadians' manager, and coach Paul Thomas of Tillsonburg, took the result calmly.

Canadian Plans Miniature 'Dupe' Of 15th Olympiad for British Games

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—If Stanley Smith of Vancouver has his way, the 1954 British Empire Games will be a duplicate in miniature of the well-organized 15th Olympiad.

Here to learn how tiny- money-short Finland can handle nearly 6,000 athletes from 69 countries—and satisfy them all—the general chairman of the organizing committee for the Empire Games will get a blueprint of the whole setup before leaving Aug. 3.

He is looking into every phase of the gigantic Olympic apparatus—catering, housing, transportation training facilities, press and radio, and minute details of the organization of various sports.

To Cost $2,750,000

Estimates of the cost of the Empire Games range between $2,500,000 and $2,750,000. The expected 500 to 600 athletes will see something never attempted in Canada since the Games were staged in Hamilton in 1930.

Smith has learned plenty from the Finns who are sticklers for organization without being ostentatious about it.

"I've been snooping around and making notes daily," he said in an interview. "The $2,000 it cost to send me here is worth $1,000,000."

He is determined on one point—athletes of the Empire Games won't be allowed to clutter up the infield during the program as in most track meets in Canada.

When one set of officials is finished with any event here, they march back to the stands and sit down. Officials at the finish lines are on a ladder out of the way of paying customers, and athletes return to their dressing rooms as soon as their event is concluded.

There is no confusion here. Officials and athletes are briefed and then led on to the field a few minutes before the events.

Plans Big Stadium

He said the present University of British Columbia stadium will be increased from its present 4,000 seating capacity to 45,000. His organization will build an open-air swimming pool in Queen Elizabeth Park with seats for 10,000 to 12,000. Boxing and wrestling will be held at the Forum and Winter Garden. Weightlifting and fencing will be in the larger gymnasiums or armories.

A 2,000-metre rowing course is being planned at Burnaby Lake, about five miles from the centre of Vancouver. The dredging of the course alone will cost around $200,000.

Joe Wright Jr. Named President Canadian Amateur Oarsmen Body

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP) — Joe Wright Jr., of Toronto Argos yesterday was elected president of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen for 1952, succeeding Jack House of St. Catharines.

Wright, a former Diamond Sculls winner, will take over following this year's regatta. He is a starter for races and House will continue in the president's duties at the finish line.

House was appointed honorary president of the C.A.A.O. while Jack Guest Sr., of Toronto Dons, is the first vice-president and Claude Saunders of Hamilton Leanders is second vice-president.

Jack L. Murray of Kingston continues as secretary for his 24th term.

Tommy Alison, a former Toronto Argonaut Rowing Club president, was made a life member of the C.A.A.O. There only two other living life members, Con Riley of Winnipeg and Dick Schram of Toronto.

One change in the program for the 1953 Henley was agreed upon. The senior pair-oared shells was washed out in favor of a junior 135-pound singles event.

The executive felt there was not enough interest in the pair-oared events — there is only one entry in this year's race — while the 135-pound single would give lightweight scullers a chance to compete.

A letter was read from Peter Heck of the Southwestern branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada at London, seeking admittance to the C.A.A.O. for a new London rowing group to be known as the London Athletic Club.

The group plans on rowing in backwater formed by the new Fanshawe dam, slated for completion near London this fall.

The C.A.A.O. promised complete co-operation to the London club and Lachine Rowing Club offered to supply the new group with enough shells and work boats to begin training in 1953.

Conservation

By JOHN ADLEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

The word "conservation" has, in recent years, taken on new meaning. Webster defines it as "A conserving, preserving, guarding, or protecting; a keeping in a safe or entire state; preservation." Currently, however, "conservation," unless otherwise specified, means the preservation and care of our natural resources of which fish and wildlife are a major part.

Strangely enough, most folks, including the sportsmen and sportswomen of the nation, are not interested in conservation in the broad sense of the word. Rather, they are concerned only with the small portions of it which affect them immediately. In short, they are interested only in conservation segments rather than conservation as a whole.

The main attractions of conservation for the average individual are fish, game, birds, wild flowers and general or scenic outdoor features. Deviate from these in your talks with those who consider themselves to be ardent conservationists and you will find that their interest wanes.

A Pennsylvania fisherman, for example, literally doesn't give two whoops about the flooding of a valley by an unnecessary dam in, say, Montana. But let something happen to his favorite trout stream and he will scream like a wounded eagle.

Pollution Control

Recently an $800,000.00 item was deleted from the Labor-Federal Security appropriations bill by the House and passed along to the Senate Appropriations Committee. This amount formerly was available for distribution among the States as grants for pollution control under the Taft-Barkley Water Pollution Control Act of 1948, our only federal anti-pollution law.

The Senate could restore this item by an amendment on the floor but there seems to be scant likilhood of its doing so. This information is not in any way secret and can be found in our newspapers but Mr. Average American accepts the news calmly, in case he happens to hear of it, and forthwith forgets about it.

Then one fine day he finds dead fish floating on the waters of his favorite stream. All at once he goes into a tremendous uproar. It's outrageous, he screams, a public disgrace; why doesn't somebody do something? It had not occurred to him to write a letter to his senator about the loss of that $800,000.00 which formerly was appropriated to deal with just such problems.

Some years ago, when I was younger and could stand a moderate amount of heavy labor, I used to go along with the hatchery trucks and help carry fish down to the streams. On my first of these trips, I was impressed by the long line of automobiles which followed the truck. No doubt about it, I said to myself, these folks surely show a gratifying interest in the welfare of our streams.

Selfish Attitude

Then I noticed that car after car was dropping out of line as we made our way upstream and I spoke to the warden about it.

"Certainly they drop out of line," he said. "Those folks own camps and cottages along this creek. They don't care how many fish we stock. All they want to do is to make sure that the waters near their camps are taken care of; then they drop out of line and let us do the work."

Most fishermen, driving up through a valley on the way to their favorite pools, don't take the trouble to look about them. If they see a hillside farm, the owner of which had disregarded the advice of his county agent and had refused to bother with strip farming or contour plowing, they are not even interested.

Such farming practices inevitably result in loss of fertile top-soil. Each rain takes its toll and the lost soil finds its way into our streams. Not until repeated layers of silt have damaged the favorite pools of these fishermen will they raise their voices in protest.

Last fall one of the local woodcock hunters hereabouts was complaining about the scarcity of birds. Dry weather had dried out the covers so that the birds were unable to feed and they had moved on to more favorable territory.

Just to see what would happen, I remarked that there was strong liklihood of the Echo Park Dam in Utah being built. I said that in my opinion this huge sum of money would be more wisely spent if made available to Fish and Wildlife to be used in the furtherance of proper watershed management.

Six to One

My friend was not interested. Evidently he failed to realize that proper watershed management automatically means having moist woodcock covers. To him watershed management was for those whom it might concern. After all, he was worried enough over the scarcity of woodcock.

Life would be far less complicated for the conservation departments if more folks were inclined to take the overall view of conservation instead of considering only the immediate and personal aspects. Moreover, a study of long-range values is interesting. Often it is surprising to find that segments which at first glance seem to be remote from one another actually are quite closely related.

It is unreasonable, I suppose, to expect sportsmen to work together for the common good, forgetting selfish interests. The man who hunts deer exclusively certainly is not vitally concerned with upland bird shooting regulations. By the same token, the salt-water fisherman is not excited about an alteration of the laws controlling trout fishing.

That is the way people are and there is little that can be done about it. To expect otherwise is to seek Utopia. Just the same, it is nice to think about; to envision the great amount of benefit that would accrue to each one of us if the millions of sportsmen of the country would work as a unit instead, mostly, as individuals.

Canuck Swimmer Places Second

HELSINKI (CP) — Lucie Beaumont of Quebec City today placed second in his trial heat of the men's 100-metre free-style event which opened the Olympic swimming competition.

John Wardrop of Britain was an easy first in the same heat — one of the many groupings preliminary to the main competition.

Beaumont's time was 1:00.4 and Wardrop's :58.9.

Peter Salmon of Vancouver was fourth in the ninth heat in 1:10.0.

MILK SHORT IN BAY PORTS

MIDLAND — (CP)— The combination of a heavier tourist trade and increased grain shipments to this Georgian Bay port and nearby Port McNicoll has caused a shortage of milk in district dairies. Some dairies have cut off supplies to the ships which arrive daily with grain.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The United tates government this week was ing to force studios to release heir pictures to television. But the ajor companies still presented a trong front against the new me- ium.

Still holding firm was conser- ative M-G-M, which has made no ttempt to release its stars or pic- ures to TV. This week M-G-M oss Dore Schary told the Holly- ood Advertising Club why the tudio will not allow its contract layers to appear on the home creens.

tars Fade

"First of all, there are legal roblems involved," the executive aid. "We do not know what the ttitude of the talent guilds will e. Secondly, we want control of star's performance. We have uilt up the reputation, prestige nd power of our star list because e have protected our stars.

"The lighting, cutting and cam- ra angles on TV are not up to ovie standards. We cannot af- ord to have a star make a poor ppearance on TV.

"Also, we think stars would wear ut their welcome if they ap- peared too often on TV. We have proven in the movie business that tars like Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy cannot remain popular if hey appear in five or six pictures very year."

Sign of the Times

The M-G-M production chart lists 39 feature pictures being made. But six are shooting in London, nd one apiece in the Fiji Islands, Paris, New York, Rome, Mexico, Kanab, Utah, and Fort Lee, Va. Thus one- third of the films are on location, mostly out of the country. Is it any wonder film workers are groaning?

Castator put together a 35 and 34 to lead a record field of 159.

Close behind was Northern Ontario champion Billy Morland of North Bay with a 71, made up of rounds of 36 and 35. Favored Nick Weslock of Windsor and Stew Watson of the Sudbury Idylwylde Club both shot 72.

In the 73 bracket were Lou Georgas, Owen Sound, defending champion Moe Norman, Kitchener, Ontario junior champion Jerry Knetchel, Kitchener, Gord Ball, Kitchener, and Ted Flanagan, Idydwylde.

Georgas, a former Canadian skiing champion, was forced to leave for home after his qualifying round owing to the death of an employee of a hotel which he owns.

Panthers Rip Guelph 10-0 To Extend Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener Panthers last night took a firmer grip on first place in the senior Intercounty Baseball League.. They defeated the second-place Guelph Maple Leafs 10-0 to stretch their lead to 2½ games.

A second threat arose for Guelph as Brantford Red Sox moved within striking distance of second-place slot by defeating cellar-dwelling St. Thomas Elgins 2-1. Waterloo Tigers, standing sixth in the seven-club loop, snapped a five-game losing streak with an 8-6 victory over the fourth-place London Majors.

10 For Fedoris

Chuck Fedoris became the first Intercounty pitcher to win 10 games this season, holding the Leafs to five hits in Guelph. He allowed five walks and fanned four.

Shortstop Marv Rich collected three of Guelph's hits while third baseman Don Gallinger, leftfielder Pete Karpuk and rightfielder Dick Welker paced Kitchener with two hits each.

Bob Malone was replaced for Guelph in the seventh by Carl Pilarski who was tagged with the loss.

A home run by centrefielder Gerry Wilson in the fourth gave Brantford its first run at St. Thomas. Rightfielder John Lockington came home with the winner in the eighth and the Elgins posted their single run in the bottom half of the same inning. Southpaw Don Summers of St. Thomas and right-hander Buck Tanner of Brantford lined up in a pitcher's duel with Summers allowing four hits to Tanner's six. Lockington and St. Thomas catcher Ed Cudemo each collected two hits.

Use Pitchers Freely

Waterloo and London each used three pitchers at Waterloo. Southpaw Cy Bricker was credited with the win and Cam Church was the loser. The two clubs exchanged the lead several times until Waterloo tied it in the seventh and clinched it with two runs in the eighth. Catcher Fred Dixon and leftfielder Russ Evon of London paced the batters, each with three for four.

Brantford plays at Waterloo tonight; Kitchener at Galt and Guelph at London.

INDUSTRIAL WORKERS

At March 1 Canada had 3,635,000 workers engaged in non-agricultural industries, compared with 3,360,000 one year previously.

AT THE McCARTHY

William Powell celebrated his thirtieth year as a motion picture star during the filming of Universal - International's Technicolor "The Treasure of Lost Canyon," closing tonight at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

The new film also stars Julia Adams, Charles Drake and Henry Hull and was adapted for the screen from Robert Louis Stevenson's famous short story, "Treasure of Franchard."

Powell started his Hollywood acting career in "heavy" portrayals and reached the peak of his film succes with his sauve, sophisticated characterizations.

Long considered one of the screen's best-dressed male stars, Powell performs a comlpete turnabout in "The Treasuer of Lost Canyon" wearing the tattered homespun rags of a rustic philosopher.

Although the inevitable transition from leading man parts into character roles is an unhappy experience for a goodly portion of top Hollywood stars, Powell is an exception to the rule. During filming on the picture, the actor readily admitted he had reached the transitory stage of the game and declared that he was looking forward to it with considerable peace of mind.

Now in his fifties, Powell has completed thirty years behind the cameras as a top-ranking star with a sizeable income and an iron-bound determination to grow old gracefully.

The actor says he adopted the "be your age" policy over a decade ago when he watched contemporaries with whom he had grown up in the industry fading away like General MacArthur's highly exploited old soldiers.

"They were too determined to hold onto that leading man title," says Powell. "They became indignant holdouts instead of taking the more appropriate parts offered them. They made the fatal decision which forced them into obscurity."

DRIVE-IN THEATRE

"Gun Crazy"

Since childhood John Dall, a mountain-country lad, has been fascinated by firearms. An excellent marksman, he vows never again to kill, after shooting a chicken simply because it was a running target. Returning from the war, uncertain about the future, he falls in love with and marries Peggy Cummins, sharp-shooting queen of a carnival, who quits her job and persuades Dall to set out with her on a series of holdups because she wants luxurious living. During a robbery Peggy commits murder; wanted by the law, they take refuge in Dall's mountain country. A posse headed by two of his best friends traps them in a swamp; as Peggy is about to fire at his buddies, Dall kills her, then dies in a barrage of gunshot. Adult entertainment.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, JULY 27, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Mercury most favorably aspected planet today, promising for keen mental alertness. Do attend church first, you will enjoy your day better.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Unnecessary work, activities incompatible with Sunday are not in order, of course. But day highly sponsors reading, healthy recreation, brain work, entertainment.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Splendid inclinations with your Mercury well aspected. If as capable and helpful as you usually are, you can do a lot of good at home and in your community.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—A mild day say your stars, but if your program calls for verve, certainly you can supply that and be in the swim of things.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Can be ideal day for Sunday interests, recreation, home, family, church, charity affairs. You in armed services, keep faith in God and our great cause.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Fine indications here. It should be happy day for you. Go to church, do chores as you should, then enjoy free hours.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Neither exciting nor too slow tendencies. Ideal in many ways for a weekend. Lend your very entertaining qualities to aid children, oldsters.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—May be the time to slow down, view cheerfully, calmly. Take due rest and recreation when you can. Urgent duties favored.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—You will find encouragement, help in things that are right to do. Give thought to your spiritual needs, to improving a healthful hobby or talent.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Day can be to your liking but do remember it is Sunday and prayers, church attendance are due God in thanksgiving for all His blessings.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—No need for rushing or extremes. Keep an even disposition, and do think deeply of your soul's welfare. Today can be a happy one for you and loved ones.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—On whole a cheerful, interesting period with matters requiring brightness of mind, entertaining qualities, reading, writing among top favored.

YOU BORN TODAY are sensitive, courteous, sympathetic, and talented. May have to curb tendency to look too much to the past and perhaps to doubt others' sincerity occasionally. You have bright years ahead and, with faith prayer, should accomplish a great deal. Prayer your great aid always. Birthdate: Alexandre Dumas the Younger, Fr. novelist, dramatist.

Volunteer Decoy Draws Rifle Fire For Own Sniper

WITH U.S 1ST MARINE DIVISION, Korea (AP)—A sharp-shooting United States sergeant using a fellow marine as a decoy claims a perfect but highly unofficial record—nine Chinese snipers killed with nine bullets.

But the company commander put a stop to the bizarre tactics.

The Marinbs today released the story:

Sgt. John E. Boitnoot, a medal-winning marksman and Pte. Henry A. Friday, devised this deadly game:

Friday, acting as a decoy, would expose himself until a Chinese sniper opened fire. Boitnoot, armed with a rifle mounted with a sniperscope, would fire just once and exclaim "scratch one" enemy.

Boitnoot said "the whole idea started one day when Friday made the mistake of standing up in the trench. A sniper fired at him and I fired back. I killed him."

Friday volunteered for decoy duty. In two days they set a record" of nine Chinese snipers slain with nine bullets. The men said they checked their kills with a powerful telescope.

Korean War Becomes Static But No Less Demanding For Canadian Troops There

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS in Korea (CP)—Wear on the nerves has replaced wear on the body in Korea.

While the truce talks go on at Panmunjom, the Korean war has become static, largely removing it from the world's headlines.

Canadian troops newly in the theatre feel they have come after the glory has been harvested.

I chatted with a group of 15 soldiers on their way to a swim parade in a stream near the front.

"The thing is, we feel the people at home just don't care," said one of them, whose home is in Toronto and who has been in Korea three months with the 1st battalion Royal Canadian Regiment.

Just As Demanding

Leaders and staff officers at 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade headquarters say the kind of war now being fought is at least as demanding as the one under way a year ago, and probably more so.

But the tension of waiting has replaced the satisfaction of advancing. Incessant patrolling has replaced the leap-frogging that brought companies the perils of assault. Troops sit and take it from the Communists' vastly-increased artillery and mortar bombardments.

The soldier, reading letters from home and glancing through newspapers reaching the front says he feels that only his relatives know Canadians still are here. He says Canada seems to think the fighting is over.

That thought, says staff officers, is confirmed by concert parties and other entertainers who arrive and say they want to perform "at the front."

Having no idea that it is a very warlike front, with daily and nightly visitations by enemy artillery, mortar and patrols, they suggest, when the point is made, that the companies be brought to a central area behind the front. That the Communists would like just that to happen, and would act upon it, seemingly hasn't occurred to them.

During the last year, soldiering as trying as ever has been out of the news. The need for replacements is as great as ever. Casualties from injury, exhaustion and disease continue at rates sometimes higher than an all-out war.

But a static line has replaced one of movement. There are no changes of position to report.

Most Uneventful

Patrols and raids keep both sides alert and maintain the flow of intelligence about the enemy's doings. However, most are uneventful.

The "settled down" atmosphere has transformed battalion areas into bunkered barracks. It's life by the book again. Red tape has returned.

The free-and-easy life of active campaigning has given way to a roughened version of soldiering at home, except that it's 8,000 miles away and takes its daily toll in sickness, injury and death.

Officers' formal mess dinners—previously great occasions when a battalion was in reserve—now are weekly institutions. Officers of two regiments turn out in serge "blues."

Such a war doesn't produce much news and the soldier knows it.

He asks, then, that when the day's communique reports "routine patrolling" or "enemy artillery activity" across the front, the people back home realize that someone out here is doing it and taking it.

"Back home we used to think this war was over-glamorized," said the man from Toronto.

"Now we know it is. But perhaps it's the only way to keep them remembering that Canadians are here."

Unidentified Girl Killed on Highway

SHERIDAN (CP)—An unidentified girl, believed to be about 17, was killed today on the Queen Elizabeth Way near this community about 13 miles west of Toronto.

Truck driver Matthew Krebs of Leamington, said he found the girl beneath a large tree when he stopped his truck after feeling a "slight bump."

Krebs said the sun was in his eyes and "I didn't see a thing."

Police said the girl was a slim brunette who wore a blue-striped jersey and pink figured skirt.

Earlier another motorist told a service station attendant he almost struck a girl who appeared "dazed" as she walked along the highway.

British Engineer Three Decker Aerial Freighter

LONDON (CP)—The Society of British Aircraft Constructors has fast-developing fields of passenger and freight aircraft.

Most outstanding is a design for a three-decker freight craft, the Blackburn Mark 2, four-engined, 55-ton "universal freighter." This ship is Europe's largest cargo aircraft with three decks connected by elevators.

Plans call for a capacity of 2 passengers, six or eight cars, crew, baggage and freight. It is thought the Mark 2s will be used between London and Paris, supplementing the cross-channel steamship service.

Cars will enter through two large doors at the back of the freighter and will be pulled up the loading ramp by a winch. They are then moved up to the second deck by elevator, locked to running-rails, and fastened into position.

This version of the freighter is designed for both military and commercial use. Despite its huge load, it can used a much shorter landing field than many smaller aircraft and can land and take-off from a grass field.

Cruising speed will be about 180 miles per hour, the motor powered by four Centaurus piston engines.

Two Elevators Burn

BUFORD, Atla. — (CP(— Two grain elevators filled with thousands of bushels of grain were destroyed early today in a $500,000 fire at this central Alberta town, 25 miles southwest of Edmonton.

The blaze, of undetermined origin, was fanned by high winds and quickly spread from the Alberta Pacific Grain Co. elevator to the Pioneer Grain Co. building nearby.

Volunteer firemen prevented the flames from jumping to a 3rd elevator. The fire burned itself out after five hours.

Says Professional Exodus to U.S. 15 Per Cent of Migration Total

TORONTO — (CP) The annual emigration of Canadian professional workers to the United States is usually painted "blacker than it really is," said G. M. Morrison, chief of the executive and professional division of the National Employment Service.

In an article in the current issue of Saturday Night, Toronto weekly, Mr. Morrison says "that only about 2,700 of the 10,000 Canadians who annually emigrate to the U. S. can be said to come from the professional group.

After studying the official border crossing figures for the six years following July, 1945, he concluded that 23,136 Canadians are admitted to the United States on a permanent visa each year. More than 50 per cent of these are dependents and when the number of Canadians who return to Canada is considered, the Dominion loses only 9,409 of its trained citizens in an average year.

Of this figure, only 2,747 have occupations in the professional class. Authors, artists, college professors, musicians, teachers, librarians and social workers constitute 32 per cent of the emigrants; nurses, 23 per cent; engineers, eight per cent; religious workers, dancers, chorus girls, showmen and professional athletes, 15 per cent; doctors, dentists, lawyers, and clergy men, 15 per cent.

Cattle Prices Little Below Levels Of Pre-Foot-Mouth-Disease Days

OTTAWA, (CP)—The Canadian farmer isn't getting as much now for his cattle as in the pre-foot-and-mouth disease days—but he's not getting much less either.

A review of prices through the months since the Saskatchewan outbreak was confirmed Feb. 25 shows the livestock seller hasn't done badly. In fact prices now are a little better than the average for 1951, considered a fairly normal year in the livestock business.

Good steers now are averaging between $25 and $26 a hundredweight at Toronto and about $2 less at Winnipeg. This is giving the farmer a return of between $1 and $2 a hundredweight lower than he was getting just before the foot-and-mouth outbreak in February. The market at that time was in decline.

Present prices are better than the $24.74 Toronto average for good steers throughout 1950. In 1947 the average on the same basis was $14.20.

The average for good steers at Toronto last year was $32.60, but agricultural officials here said this was considered "abnormal".

I Can't Cry Now

By Addie McElfresh

Katy picked up tre telephone. Surely by now Ted would be up. She looked at the clock on the radio. He went to work at 7, and it was after 6....She gave the operator the number of Mrs. Porter's boarding house.

"Aloo?" came Mrs. Porter's nasal complaint at being taken from her breakfast.

"May I speak to Ted Jordan, please?"

"Who's it?" suspiciously.

Katy, imagining the flabby chops being licked at such a gossipy morsel so early in the morning, told her.

"He ain't in yet. Had to work the night shift."

"But he didn't tell me—"

"Girlie, he said he had tuh work," Mrs. Porter whined suggestively.

"I see. Thank you, Mrs. Porter."

Last night Ted had not mentioned changing shifts, but of course they had talked murder, murder, murder until Katy had thought she would scream, even after Dave had appeared.

She hung up. With Ted off at 7, she could pick him up. She closed her mind to Dave Argus's warning to stay here. Ted would want to know. He had the right to know. After all, he was Chris's friend, too.

Somehow, she thought, I always go back to Chris.

Thinking about it later, when she was in the car, driving across town to the factory where Ted worked, Katy tried telling herself that perhaps she was wrong, there might be no connection between the two deaths even though Agnes Jerome had said she knew something about Chris, but it didn't help. It even hurt. She wanted so badly to prove Chris had not murdered poor old Link Murphy and Agnes Jerome, as of Saturday night, had been the one connecting link in the broken chain of circumstances.

By the dash clock, it was 20 minutes until the change of the shift when Katy parked her car near the factory's main gate. There was little other traffic; the street looked barren, foreboding in the early light, and the factory crouched like a waiting monster, the only signs of activity the black smoke belching from its stacks.

Katy yawned. Sitting still made her drowsy, she had slept so little these last two weeks. It would be easy to drift off. She shook off the weariness.

She said, "Come, Major!" and got out of the car, the dog at her heels. A walk to the corner would rouse her.

The October air was bracing, with more than a hint of winter's approach, especially when one wore a borrowed coat and jacket, neither of which fit, and no stockings. And bedroom slippers. She glanced down at the scuffed leather slippers, several sizes smaller than the neat Oxfords Emma Ward had offered.

She knew Dave would be angry. Thinking that, she stopped at the corner. Somewhere a switch engine was chuffing in lonely monotone, there were a few cars, factory-bound, but the town didn't seem quite alive yet. In a few minutes, at 7, it would be. She looked around.

A tired neon halfway down the block caught her eye. Marty's.

Marty's on Mason Avenue, where Agnes Jerome worked. With a grim, tense feeling clutching at her chest, she walked toward it.

Agnes Jerome had called her from that drab little restaurant-bar with its jukebox and its pay phone booth, and someone had heard her and known he had to kill again. Katy swallowed her fear. She pushed open the door.

"Hey, lady, no dogs—oh." The "oh" was flat, curiously unwelcome. "Hello, Miss Elmo."

"Hello Johnny."

"I didn't reckanize you."

"No," Katy said. "No, I imagine not." Two weeks ago—no, two weeks and two days ago—she would have corrected his pronunciation, . he would have been a former pupil who had forgotten the things she had tried to teach him. Now she just glanced down to Emma Ward's too-big dress belted to make it fit and shoved her hands deeper into the pockets of Dave Argus's jacket and said, "Johnny, I want to talk to you."

Johnny Jerome picked up a cloth and began polishing the counter. Diligently. More diligently, Katy had an idea, than it had been polished for a long time.

"You shouldn't be working. You should be in school."

"I got to work. I go nuts—thinkin'!"

There's the phone booth, from where Johnny's sister called. "Johnny, were you working Saturday night?"

His dark, lowered head almost didn't move, the nod was so slight.

"When your sister called me?"

"I—I guess so. But I worked the restaurant Saturday night. Aggie waited tables in the bar, back yonder." He nodded toward a remote, rear room

Katy's heart sank. "Then you didn't see too much of her?"

"On Saturday nights you don't see too much of nobody, 'round here. You're too busy to notice, I mean."

"Yes, I know, but surely—"

"Maybe that was Aggie's trouble, Miss Elmo. She wasn't ever too busy to keep from seein' things."

Abruptly, Johnny Jerome turned his back on her. He thrust a cup under the coffee tap and drew it full. "Drink up, Miss Elmo," he said, shoving the coffee at her.

"I haven't any money with me, Johnny." She couldn't tell him she ran away from her house because she was afraid.

Johnny Jerome said through a thin sarcastic grin, "Imagine, teacher without no nickel." He pulled a platter of sliced ham from the icebox and began laying the slices into a huge skillet. Breakfast for the men from the factory, Katy knew. Many of them, perhaps even Ted, would stop here. She looked at her watch; still nearly 10 minutes.

"Johnny"—she blew idly at the steam—curling up from the coffee—"do you remember the night my brother and Mr. Murphy were killed?"

"No!"

Too quick, too hoarse—with fear? He's lying, Katy thought. "Were both you and Agnes working that night?"

"No! No, I wasn't—but...What difference can it make now?" Johnny Jerome turned a bitter, defensive face toward her. "What difference does it make—they're dead, Aggie's dead! Please, Miss Elmo, quit hounding me!"

"I'm not hounding you, Johnny." Katy spoke quietly, only the tightening of her hands on the thick coffee mug hinting at the desperation that sent her heart pounding. "You've got to help me, Johnny." Of their own accord, Katy's fingers fell away from the reassuring warmth of the mug of coffee and curled into her palms, as if to escape. "I'm afraid, Johnny. They think I killed your sister, but I didn't. You do believe me, don't you, Johnny?"

"Sure, Miss Elmo. Sure, I believe you."

But he didn't look at her. He spoke too quickly and he didn't look at her.

He doesn't believe me. As the boy turned back to his skillet of ham, beginning to sizzle and sputter and smell good, Katy knew for sure that he didn't believe her.

Johnny must think Chris killed Link Murphy and it followed by twisted reasoning, Katy killed Agnes.

She slipped off the stool, conscious of Major coming to his feet beside her. It was no use. Johnny Jerome was like everybody else.

The factory whistle blew the end of the shift as she turned the corner. Katy ran but, in the resultant scramble of men leaving the plant and others going in for the day side, she missed Ted. With a mental sigh, she started the car. She couldn't go back to Marty's. All those men would stare at her and whisper—or maybe not even bother to lower their voices.

She went back to Mrs. Ward's house.

Dave Argus had come and gone. Emma Ward dutifully reported when Katy returned to the house. At Katy's question, Mrs. Ward added that "No, Dave wasn't mad, exactly. More wound up, like—"

"Like what?" Katy pressed when the woman hesitated:

Emma Ward looked embarrassed. "Like he was—the night your brother was killed, Katy."

Was killed! Thank you, Emma, oh thank you! "Did he say anything? Did he find anything?"

"Dave's not much for talking about clues until he knows what he's talking about. You know that, Katy."

Katy nodded. I know. But I thought perhaps—never mind." She frowned, more at her own disappointment than at Emma's reproval. I went to meet Ted at the factory, but I missed him."

"I told Dave I'd bet that's where you'd gone."

Katy warmed up under the knowing glance. "How did you know?"

"Easy. Ted's your beau and he goes to work at 7, when my Arthur gets off." Emma Ward smiled. "Easy as pie, Katy."

"Ted got off at 7 this morning, too," Katy said. "He had to work the night trick, Mrs. Porter said." Katy thought of how Mrs. Porter called her "girlie" and giggled. "I'll call again, Ted can't be in bed yet."

"Cal Dave first," Mrs. Ward suggested. "He wanted you to call as soon as you got back."

Nodding, Katy went into the living room, to the telephone. She gave the sheriff's office number to the operator—would she never forget it, since yesterday morning?—and waited for Dave Argus's deep, somehow reassuring, "Sheriff's office!"

"Dave? You wanted me?"

"Hey! That's not a fair question with 10 blocks of telephone wire between us, Katy." Katy could just see the gray eyes crinkling with fun, the lean craggy face wrinkled with laughter.

"Dave, please! Emma said you—"

"Sis is wise in the ways of the heart. Ask Arthur." Then, with sudden seriousness, "Katy, you were right, your telephone wire was snipped. Very neatly. Very neatly, indeed, with my alert superior and Deputy Scott practically looking on." The muffled roar would be Sheriff Ledbetter. "Katy? Are you still with me?"

Katy wet her lips, suddenly as dry as her mouth and throat felt. "I—I wish I were," she said weakly.

The wires had been cut with Sheriff Ledbetter and Deputy Scott on guard. She asked, "Were they there all night, Dave?" If two men guarded her last night—if they were guarding and not watching—"Dave"—even to her own ears her voice sounded flat, hopeless—"Dave, they didn't see anyone?"

"They didn't see anyone," Dave Argus told her. He added, "Deputy Donnell is out at your place now, Katy, so it's safe for you to go home if you want to." ter. The wire to her telephone slide back into its cradle. She didn't know whether Dave was still talking or not. It didn't matter. The wire to her telhpone had been cut and only she could have cut it without Ledbetter and Scott, watching from the barn. Was that what Dave, with all his forced good humor, was trying to tell her?

But, if that were true, why did they delay springing the trap? Why didn't they accuse her? Katy drew a deep, steadying breath. How could she have come so far from happiness in two short weeks?

Sport in Brief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Frank Selke, general manager of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, says the Canadiens have decided to stop financing St. Jerome Eagles and Montreal Nationales of the Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey Association and to switch Granby Royals back to Montreal.

He said in Montreal yesterday that unless Eagles and Nationales can finance themselves, last season's six-team loop will be cut to four. The remaining Q.J.A.H.A. teams are Quebec Citadelles, Three Rivers Reds and Montreal Canadiens.

As a result, Selke said coach Sammy Pollock of Montreal Junior Canadiens has proposed an interlocking schedule with the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" Council, calling for each Quebec team to play each of the nine Ontario teams in a two-game home-and-home series, in addition to a regular 24-game schedule for the Q.J.A.H.A.

Ken Reardon, scout for the N.H.L. Canadiens, who helped Pollock, said he and Pollock made a telephone poll of Ontario and Quebec teams earlier this week and all approved the plan.

A Q.J.A.H.A. meeting will be held Monday to study it. A meeting between the Q.J.A.H.A. and O.H.A Junior A Council will be held later.

States Attorney, six-year-old bay horse owned by Andrew Reese, Jr., of Hamburg, N.Y., dazzled his rivals at Toronto's Thorncliffe Raceway yesterday as he set two season's records in winning both heats of the Grattan Bars Stake. In the first, States Attorney, guided by Marcel Dostie, paced a mile in 2:06 2-5, fastest of the year at Toronto. In the second, he travelled 1 1-16 miles in 2:15, also the fastest time for that distance this year.

Reg Dixon of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club of Toronto sailed his Circle back into contention for the George Cup by taking the second event yesterday in the three-race series. Dixon, present holder of the cup, was disqualified in the first six-metre race Thursday which was won by Jerry Cassel of Rochester with the Stork. The Circle finished more than three minutes ahead of the Stork yesterday. The Rochester crew needs only a second in today's final race to take the trophy.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four football union yesterday rejected quarterback Al Dekdebrun of Buffalo as a candidate for 1952 and the former Toronto Argo player may join the Balmy Beach team in the Ontario Rugby Football Union. Dekdebrun, property of the Toronto club, was a key figure in its 1950 Grey Cup victory and was let out last season in favor of Al Wirkowski.

Al Balding of Toronto won the Quebec Open golf championship in 36 holes of medal play with a 69-74—143 score at Montreal yesterday. Balding's win sent the title to Ontario for the second straight year.

The $157,350 Arlington Handicap, richest event of its kind this year, will climax Arlington Park's 36-day meeting today with a probable field of 13 starters. Blue Man, leading contender for the three-year-old championship, and Sparton Valor, the handicap champion—are among the starters.

Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., and Vic Seixas of Philadelphia shot the United States into a 2-0 lead over Japan in the opening singles matches of the Davis Cup tennis elimination at Cincinnati yesterday. Larsen disposed of Jiro Kumamaru, 6-4, 6-4, 1-6, 6-4, and Seixas made short work of Atushi Migayi 6-3, 6-1, 6-0.

Queen's Receives $6,000 Grant To Study Alcoholism

TORONTO (CP)—A grant of $6,000 has been made to Queen's University at Kingston to finance a study of alcoholism in Ontario, the Ontario Department of Health announced today.

It will be the first survey of its kind in Canada.

Under the direction of Professor J.M. Blackburn, head of the department of psychology at Queen's, workers will contact the persons, agencies and institutions with the most experience in handling alcohol addicts and problem drinkers.

Medical practitioners, clergymen, social agencies, employers and army, court and police officials will be questioned not only on the number of cases encountered yearly but what treatment is commonly applied.

When the research is completed, survey workers hope to have an estimate of the number of alcohol addicts in the adult population of the province which may be compared to other countries.

Egyptian Govt. Promises Drive Against Corruption

Ousted King Farouk Sails For Italy With Family

By L.S. CHAKALES

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt's new government re-established itself in Cairo today, promising a relentless country-wide cleanup of "bribery and corruption" in the wake of King Farouk's abdication.

The country's new military power Maj.-Gen. Mohammed Naguib Bey, promised he and Premier Aly Maher Pasha would "meet with armed force if necessary any attempt at demonstrations or disorders." Naguib warned, too, the army would tolerate no foreign interference.

As the cabinet quit the summer capital at Alexandria for Cairo, the ousted monarch sailed toward Italy in the royal yacht Mahroussa. With Farouk were his six-month-old son now Egypt's King Faud II, Farouk's teen-age second wife Narriman and his three daughters by a previous marriage.

Cabinet Holds Power

One newspaper said the baby king would be returned to Egypt when he is seven. The age at which Moslem mothers traditionally lose control of their sons. The cabinet, meanwhile, temporarily held the royal powers pending creation of a regency council.

The Nile kingdom generally rejoiced at the departure Saturday night of fat, playboy Farouk, whose downfall started when 51-year-old Gen. Naguib and a coterie of younger officers took over the army last Wednesday and forced the King to install Maher Pasha and a new anti-corruption government.

The cleanup was expected to probe into every section of the government, extending all the way to former cabinet ministers and palace officials. High on the action docket are charges against several high officials, including Farouk's cousin, Prince Abbas Halim, of supplying faulty arms to Egypt's army during the Palestine war.

Britain Issues Warning

Abroad Britain, remembering Cairo's disastrous anti-foreign fire riots in January, warned that she would take action if the Egyptian upheavals endangered British lives. Her 100,000-man garrison in the Suez Canal—which Egypt wants evacuated—was on the alert and troop-laden British ships sailed into the eastern Mediterranean to be close by.

The Canadian aircraft carrier Magnificent and the British aircraft carrier Glory sailed unexpectedly yesterday from Istanbul, Turkey. British admiralty officials would not say whether they were heading for the Suez Canal zone. Other British ships sailed from Malta.

Farouk was expected to head first for Italy and later go to France.

Fire Destroys Two Top Floors Of Residence

MONTREAL. (CP)—Fire of unknown origin today destroyed the two top floors of the four-storey residence of the provincial headquarters of the Roman Catholic order of Les Clercs St. Viateur in neighboring Outremont.

Brother Leo Bonneville, trapped by smoke and flames on the top floor, was rescued by firemen. Four Montreal firemen were partly overcome by smoke.

The fire broke out around 7:30 a.m. E.D.T., in the rear of the second floor and spread up an elevator shaft to the third and fourth floors. Outremont firemen got help from Montreal after a second alarm.

Torrential Rains Halt Ground, Air Fighting

SEOUL, Korea (AP)— Torrential rains beat down on already soaked and muddy Korean battle lines today and virtually halted ground and air fighting for the third straight day.

Each side sent out only small patrols across the 155-mile battle front. Clashes were few and brief.

The steady downpour appeared to be the long overdue start of the Korean rainy season.

Details Scanty On Collision In St. Lawrence

QUEBEC (CP)—Transport Department tugs today sped to the scene of a ship collision in the St. Lawrence River 120 miles east of Quebec.

Details were scanty on the mishap but a spokesman said no reports of injuries have been received from the scene, off Ile Verte and close to the St. Lawrence south shore town of Riviere Du Loup.

The vessels involved are the John A. France, a 3,300-ton Great Lakes barge, and the Woodford, a freight vessel which was heading for Europe with grain and mixed cargo.

The collision occurred last night in foggy weather and two tugs, one from Gaspe and another from Quebec City, were despatched to the scene.

Both Vessels Anchored

The Woodford and the John A. France were apparently anchored awaiting assistance and, unofficial reports said, one of them — the Lake Barge—suffered damage to its hull.

Spokesmen for Colonial Steamships Limited of Port Colborne, Ont., and of Cunard Steamship Company, respectively operators of the John A. France and the Woodford, said they had little information about the collision.

Direction and destination of the John A. France was not known immediately.

REDS KILLED IN MINE BLAST

HONG KONG — (AP) — The pro - nationalist Kung Sheung Daily News says 140 Chinese Communist Party workers and miners were killed July 18 in an explosion in a wolfram magnesium ore mine near Yeungshan in Kwangtung province of Red China.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Cooler air from the prairies has thrust southeastward to Lake Superior and will rush across all Ontario by Tuesday morning. The numerous showers and thunderstorms preceding this cool air has spread over a large part of southern Ontario this morning. Tuesday will be mainly sunny over Ontario with the temperatures averaging five to 10 degrees lower than they were over the weekend.

Strange Object Seen in Sky

CORNWALL (CP) — Robert Armour reported he saw a bright blue-and-white object streaking across the sky over Cornwall last night. It travelled from north to south then veered sharply to the east.

"It was quite round and left no smoke trail," said Mr. Armour, a member of the office staff of a rayon plant. "At first I thought it was a plane, but it was travelling so fast and turned so fast it could not have been."

RUST THREATENS BUMPER GRAIN CROP IN WEST

Sunny Weather Would Greatly Reduce Menace

WINNIPEG (CP)—A virulent new wheat rust race is threatening a bumper grain crop in the Canadian west.

In two weeks farmers in Saskatchewan and western Manitoba will know the extent of damage. An estimated 4,000,000-5,000,000 acres of wheat and barley may be affected.

It all depends on the weather. Authorities say a two-week period of hot, sunny weather with warm winds would greatly reduce the menace.

Under attack is a lush Saskatchewan crop that has never been short of moisture during the growing season. If the rust does not hit, it could be a bumper crop.

The Manitoba crop was planted much earlier, and officials say early cut crops should escape with little or no damage.

Alberta is rarely attacked. Prevalent winds from the north and northwest act as a barrier to the entry of rust spores.

The menace is Race 15B, a stem rust first noticed in Pennsylvania in 1938 and first found in Manitoba at Killarney in 1946. It is scattered through the Red River valley in a belt roughly northwest from Winnipeg to Saskatoon and beyond.

Most heavily hit is Durham wheat in the Carlyle area of southeastern Saskatchewan. Infection there is reported hitting 100 per cent.

Race 15B has been found on Thatcher, Renown, Regent and Redman wheat varieties—strains developed through years of research, resistant to other types of rust. But 15Battacks all.

Only one method of control is available after rust arrives. Sulphur or chemical fungicide will kill it. But the treatment has never been tried on a commercial scale because of prohibitive costs.

Hit by Train Loses Both Feet

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Max Landiak, 21, of Fort William, suffered the loss of both feet and paralysis of the lower part of his body when struck by a train Sunday. His condition is critical.

A Canadian National Railways employee, he was checking cars when struck from behind by a switching engine.

Balloons Mistaken For Flying Saucers

BROCKVILLE CP—Brockville's flying saucers turned out to be balloons.

The United States Air Force jet planes Friday flew high above the St. Lawrence River to investigate several round objects that had citizens craning their necks.

Later Capt. Lawrence Browne of the Rome, N.Y., air base said the objects were found to be cosmic ray experimental balloons released by a Montreal labratory.

ONLY PILOT SURVIVES CRASH

ARTHUR, Neb., (AP)—A B-25 bomber, carrying U.S. air force, army and navy personnel, crashed in flames yesterday, killing seven persons. The lone survivor, Col. John G. Eriksen, the pilot, parachuted to safety. He was treated for minor burns.

Radar Picks Up Second Flock Of Flying Saucers Within Week

WASHINGTON (AP)—Radar—which normally doesn't show something that isn't there—has picked "flying suacers" near here for the second time within a week.

Jet fighter pilots searched the skies Saturday night and early yesterday without directly contacting anything during the six hours that four to 12 unidentified objects intermittently appeared on radar screens at Washington National Airport and nearby Andrews air force base.

One pilot said he saw four lights approximately 10 miles away and slightly above him but they disappeared before he could overtake them. Later, the same pilot said, he saw "a steady white light" five miles away that vanished in about a minute.

So far as could be determined, this was the first time jets have been sent on the trail of such sky ghosts.

Officials carefully avoided mentioning "flying saucers," just as they did when radar picked up seven or eight unidentified objects near Washington last Monday. But the U.S. Air Force was expected to add the report to its long list of saucer sightings, which officials say are coming in faster than at any time since the initial flurry in 1947.

An air force spokesman said all necessary steps are being taken to evaluate the newest phenomenon.

Radar normally does not register anything without substance — such as light. But it can pick up such things as a bird in flight or a cloud formation. And one expert said radar is not infallible.

Canadian Ambassador Stresses Need of Military, Economic Strength for Indefinite Time

HAMILTON, N.Y. (CP)—Hume Wrong, Canadian ambassador in Washington, said Saturday the "western world must aim not only at creating situations of strength, but at maintaining them indefinitely."

"To do so," he said, "its economic power must be made secure. It must be supported by the development of new sources of the materials needed to keep up its productivity, to maintain its social structure, and to equip its armed forces."

Chink In Armor

Speaking at an opening session of the Colgate University conference on foreign policy, Mr. Wrong said the resources of the western world are great, "but not so great that any unnecessary drain on them can be afforded, such as that which arises from abnormal import restrictions and currency arrangements."

Somehow or other means must be found to mend this "chink in the armor of the free nations."

Mr. Wrong stressed the need for both military and economic strength.

He said:

"We can only begin to feel sure that war will be avoided when the like-minded nations have become so strong that their power would only be challenged by madmen.

May Raise Iron Curtain

"Then perhaps the 'peaceful co-existence' to which Stalin often refers may become a reality; issues now insoluble may become negotiable; the Iron Curtain may be slowly raised; and the United Nations may begin fully to serve the purposes for which it was designed."

Aid from Canada and the United States, in some cases, has encouraged European countries to maintain import restrictions and other protectionist tendencies. The European countries maintain that it is only aid from North America that enables them to keep their heads above water.

"Yet," he said, "one of the central purposes of the economic aid granted to other countries since the end of the war has been to promote multilateral trade and to remove from its channels blockages of the sort which still persist."

No Perfect Record

No country could claim a perfect record for efforts to foster restoration of miltilateral trade.

Mr. Wrong pointed to the action of the United States Congress when it inserted into a defence act a provision barring imports of cheese and dairy products. This was "admittedly" a contravention of trade agreements.

"Inside the United States these protectionist breezes may not seem important," said Mr. Wrong. "In other countries, however, and not least in Canada, they are felt as a chill wind."

Daring Officer Crash-Lands Plane, Saves Wounded Pilot Is Awarded Military Cross

OTTAWA (CP)—A daring Quebec officer who proved his courage both in the air and on the ground has been awarded the Military Cross for valor in Korea.

The award to Capt. Joseph Patrick Rene Tremblay of Chicoutimi and Quebec City—a soldier who landed a plane and saved the wounded pilot from flames—was one of 13 announced today for men of the 25th brigade.

The O. B. E. went to Lt.-Col. Bernard Louis Persillier Brosseau, M. C., of Montreal and Beloeil, Que., the brigade's chief medical officer. The M. B. E. was given to five officers. The M. C. went to two officers and the Military Medal to five soldiers.

Tremblay Citation Tops

None of the citations quite matched that of Capt. Tremblay, an officer of the 2nd battalion of the Royal 22nd Regiment, now back in Canada.

A year ago he was attending an air observer's course and the pilot of a plane he was in was wounded and fell unconscious. Capt. Tremblay, a paratrooper but not a pilot, grabbed the controls, navigated the plane back to its base and crash-landed. Although dazed, he clambered out, seized the pilot while the plane burned and carried him to safety.

He was credited with "moral courage of the highest order" and with saving the pilot's life.

Then last September, now a company commander with his unit, it was his "sheer determination and skilful handling of his weapons" that carried through an assault against vicious enemy fire. On numerous other occasions, says the citation, Capt. Tremblay has earned the admiration of his unit for his courage.

Praise Care of Illness

Lt.-Col. Brosseau's citation spoke in the highest terms of his handling of casualties and his care of illness within the brigade.

The M. B. E. was awarded to:

Maj. Harold R. Ferris of Saint John, N. B., of the ordnance corps.

Maj. Donald George, M. C., Winnipeg and Saskatoon, of the signals corps.

Maj. Charles Hamilton, Brandon, Man., supply staff officer at brigade headquarters.

Maj. Robert Laughton, Hull, Que. of the service corps.

Maj. John Orton, M. C., Innisfail, Alta., and Duncan, B. C., artillery.

The second M. C. went to another Royal 22nd officer, Lieut. Jean Paul A. Therrien of Bedford, Que., and Montreal who led his platoon "on some of the most daring raids into enemy territory."

A high degree of bravery under fire brought the M. M. to Sgt. Arthur Beaudin, Clarke City and Montreal; Bdr. Thomas Dearden, East Angus, Que., Pte. Douglas Carley, Belleville, Ont., Pte. Jack D. Johnson, Windsor and Montreal, Cpl. Arthur A. Scott, Aberdeen, Scotland and Harcourt, N. B.

Kills His Wife, Four Children, Starts for Church

BRIDGEPORT, Wash., (AP)—A 27-year-old father who said his minister told him "God is a square shooter," killed his wife and four small children yesterday as the family was preparing to leave for church.

Police said Matthias Swearson was arrested a short time later, bleeding from a self - inflicted bullet wound and knife slashings and naked from the waist up. He was driving his station wagon and on his way to church.

Mrs. Swearson was a Sunday school teacher at the methodist church here. Swearson attended the church for the first time last Sunday—for the Baptism of two of his children.

He told police:

The Lord told me to take their lives and that I would join them later. I am not afraid any more."

Britain to Cut Buying Tobacco From Canada

LONDON (AP)—Britain will drastically cut tobacco purchases from Canada and the United States this year to less than half the normal amount, tobacco sources said today.

These sources connected with the tobacco import trade said the industry here has been warned that the government will release dollars to purchase only 9,000,000 pounds of the 1952 Canadian crop compared with 35,000,000 normally.

Imports from the U.S. will be reduced to 45,000,000 pounds from 100,000,000.

There was no official confirmation of the cuts. They may be announced in the House of Commons Tuesday.

Britain Develops Guided Missiles

ABERPORTH, Wales (Reuters)—Britain has developed guided missiles which can travel at more than 2,000 miles an hour and reach heights far greater than any bomber is likely to achieve for many years to come, Supply Minister Duncan Sandys said Saturday.

Sandys said these rockets were "four or five times" more manoeuvrable than a fighter plane and "we are coming within measurable distance of putting these fantastic new weapons into production."

MOSSADEGH NOW WILLING TO TALK OIL SETTLEMENT

Reported Ready To Discuss Compensation

Tehran, Iran — (AP) — Premier Mohammed Mossadegh promised "exploitation of Iran's oil resources," indicating confident hopes of a settlement with Britain that would end the crippling blockade of this near bankrupt nation's chief money maker.

As the premier spoke to parliament at the height of new popularity, the newspaper Bakhtar Emrooz, which often reflects his views, hinted to the Shah that he should never stand in the way of the nationalists if he wants to avoid being dusted like Egypt's Farouk.

Mossadegh's plan for exploiting Iran's oil riches is part of a program for drastic reform to lift the country from its present economic plight. His program called also for higher taxes, land reforms, and work projects for the unemployed — measures which are bound to be opposed by many wealthy supporters of the government.

Debate on the premier's program is scheduled to begin tomorrow.

Mossadegh was reported to have notified Britain during the weekend that Iran is willing to begin talks on compensation for the oil properties seized last year from the British. Although they were successful in ousting the British, the Iranians have failed to get around a British ban on foreign ships handling the oil.

Y., in Lake Erie near Port Colborne Eugene Hrynyshyn, 14, London, in the Thames River Roger Musselman, 2, Toronto, in Wood Lake near Bracebridge Donald Ackland, 28, and his son Harold 8, in the Welland River near Welland; Jack Budd, 34, in the Vermillion River at Sudbury.

CHUTE FAILS; MOTHER DIES

BUDD LAKE, N. J. — (AP) — A 24-year-old mother, clawing desperately at an unopened parachute, fell 2,500 feet to her death yesterday trying to become a member of a parechuting for fun club organized by her ex-paratrooper husband. "I killed her. I killed her," shrieked Joseph Berard. His wife, Dorothy, mother of a four-month-old daughter, plummeted to the ground before 700 near-hysterical spectators.

Aircraft Carrier Magnificent Sails For Malta, Not to Egypt as Reported

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's 18,000-ton aircraft carrier Magnificent is sailing to Malta today, in compliance with standing orders to keep out of trouble in foreign waters.

Reports from Malta Sunday that she was heading from Istanbul for an "undisclosed destination" with British warships prompted unfounded speculation that she was being dispatched to the Mediterranean's latest hot spot, Egypt.

But authoritative quarters said today Canadian warships sent abroad are under orders not to get into foreign political skirmishing without first consulting Ottawa and that the Maggie is going to Malta. She is due to leave the Mediterranean in late August after exercising with the British fleet.

A somewhat similar situation broke last year when the Maggie was in the Mediterranean at the time of the troubles in Iran.

Defence officials, explaining why Canada has twice sent her largest warships into that troubled area, said the simple reason is that the Mediterranean is an excellent place to train the men of an aircraft carrier.

Naval sources said the reason she sailed with British units from Istanbul was probably a matter of courtesy. They were ordered out to an "undisclosed destination" and she went with them—part way.

8 Reported Dead, Scores Injured At Eva Peron's Bier

Troops Assist Police To Help Control Crowds

By STANFORD BRADSHAW

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Eight persons were reported dead and scores injured in the crush today as thousands crowded up to pay last homage to Eva Peron.

Doctors manning improvised first aid stations near the ministry of labor, where the body of Argentina's first lady was lying in state, said some deaths resulted from trampling, others from heart failure. They said thousands were given first aid, but most of these had only fainted. Many, however, suffered fractured legs or arms.

Troops hurried in during the morning to help police control the crowds as they lined up four abreast in mile-long queues for a 20-second walk past the bier of President Juan D. Peron's wife and political partner, who died Saturday night after a long illness. Many waited eight hours for a glimpse of the body.

Just before noon, police issued a casualty bulletin counting four dead and 21500 injured but public health ministry doctors said the numbers were higher than that.

Mrs. Peron's death in her early 30s was generally attributed to cancer although there had been no official announcement of the nature of her illness.

The blonde wife of President Juan D. Peron lay in state in the hall of the labor ministry, in a glass-topped casket of mahogany draped in white orchids awaiting a full military funeral tomorrow. Tons of lilies, roses and carnations packed the hall and overflowed into the streets outside.

Crowds of mourners were first admitted to the improvised chapel yesterday and continued in an endless procession throughout the night and this morning.

Peron spent much of Sunday beside the casket. After a private funeral mass, attended only by government ministers and intimate friends, he ordered the restless crowd admitted. They had shouted to see the body, and once broke a police cordon to get closer to the entrance.

A government spokesman said Peron had decided to keep the chapel open as long as needed for everyone to pay their respects and tomorrow's scheduled funeral may be postponed if necessary.

Peron's decision still was awaited on his wife's permanent burial place. Two suggested sites are the new headquarters of the multi-million dollar social foundation which she headed, or in a great national monument built for her.

Temporary internment, at her own request, will be in the hall of the 6,000,000-member General Labor Confederation. She was unofficial head of the confederation, and her following among its members made her the nation's most potent political force after Peron himself.

The nation's military chiefs decreed her a funeral hitherto reserved for presidents who died in office. At the hour of burial, all Argentines will observe five minutes of silence. Church bells throughout the country will toll for 15 minutes.

Two days of national grief and 30 days of official mourning were declared. Radio broadcasting is limited almost entirely to sacred music and bulletins of the Ministry of Information. Humorous programs are banned for 30 days.

Unprecedented mourning by Argentina's masses—who called her Evita (Little Eva) and looked upon her as a Cinderella who had risen from their own ranks to heights of glory—began the instant her death was announced.

HELSINKI—(CP) —The Duke of Edinburgh has four Canadian Olympic pins — one for himself, one for the Queen and one each for Princess Anne and Prince Charles.

He got them Sunday when he visited Canadian headquarters in the Olympic village dubbed "Canada House."

The Duke was greeted by Jim Worrall of Toronto, a Canadian Olympic association official during his brief visit with the Canadians.

At one point during his visit he told a group of Canadian girls: "I had a wonderful time in your country last year. I shall never forget it."

Elderly Woman Accosts 'Red' Dean in Cathedral

CANTERBURY, England (Reuters) — Mrs. Marie Cox, an elderly housewife, Sunday accosted the "Red" Dean of Canterbury, Dr. Hewlett Johnson, for the second consecutive Sunday in Canterbury Cathedral.

She barred his way as he left morning service but was quickly led away. Because she raised her arm, some people thought she had struck the 77-year-old churchman but she indignantly denied this.

STRETCH OF ROAD TO BAPTISTE LAKE GREATLY IMPROVED

A nine-mile stretch of road between Bird's Creek and Baptiste Lake, which has been annoyance to motorists for some time has been greatly improved within the past week according to Elmer Sandercock member for Hastings West.

The road has a great deal of travel and as it runs between two townships neither township felt like keeping it in good condition and in consequence the road became washboardy and full of holes. However, last week, the grader was sent over it, dust layer was applied and now the road is in excellent condition and the touring motorists, who have to drive that stretch practically every day, are quite happy. The Ontario Department of Highways grader assisted in the work.

Quinte Golfers Play in Watertown

Upwards of thirty golfers of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club journeyed to Watertown N.Y., on Sunday where they were the guests of the Watertown Golf Club in a friendly links tournament.

The Quinte golfers will entertain the Watertown linksmen at the annual Field Day scheduled in August.

The tourney was keenly contested but due to the social atmosphere no scores were kept for the official archives.

The inter-club tournament is an annual function between the two golf clubs.

POLICE BLOTTER

All was comparatively quiet in police circles during the weekend with no serious accidents reported either by provincial police or the city police department.

In the city police were called several times to quell disturbances, while a number of drunks were picked up.

As the result of one disturbance William Brummell, R.R. 8, received a cut over the eye and had to be taken to the hospital for repairs. In another disturbance two men were reported as seen beating up a third on a local service station lot. John Melcher, Egansville, later reported to police that he had been assaulted, and police are looking for the assailants.

Colorful Garb, Floats, of Shrine Feature Parade

Belleville Shriners headed by president D. L. Storey will join the Rameses Temple Shrine of Toronto in the grand parade that opens Picton's weekend Mardi Gras on Wednesday.

The color and pageantry, typical of Shrine appearances, will be one of the features of a mammoth parade claimed to be the largest ever held in the Prince Edward county town.

The feature of the Shrine pageantry will be a float with crippled children, symbolic of the great community service being done by Shriners all over the world.

Following the float will come the color party of the Shrine resplendent in beige suits and jewelled fezzes.

Then will come the officers of Rameses Temple Divan headed by Imperial Potentate Reg. Shaw. Included will be the Potentate's Personal Aide, Noble J. Bartlett; Chief Rabban, Noble W. Cormar; High Priest and Prophet, Noble A. Taylor and Oriental Guide, Noble D. L. Storey.

Garbed in red, green, and gold uniforms will come the Rameses Temple Band followed by the Rameses Arab Patrol in uniforms of the same colors.

Then the smart drum and bugle band of the Temple will appear followed by the Temple Chanters in flowing robes of resplendent colors.

In order will appear the Oriental Band in flowing capes, turbans and Turkish shoes then the members of the Belleville Shrine club in their colorful blue blazers and fezzes. They will be led by Noble Harry Abbott and the color party. The "wrecking crew" will be garbed in fiery red skirts and fezzes.

Two acrobatic "ford cars" dubbed "Leaping Lenas" will carry their quota of clowns.

Laboratory Staff Enjoys Picnic At Moira Lake

The staff of the Dominion Parasite Laboratory with their families and friends enjoyed their annual picnic on Thursday, July 24, at Crystal Beach, Moira Lake. With ideal weather, there was plenty of fun for all, swimming, relay boat races, baseball between the Permanent and Summer staffs and the inevitable male and female beauty contests. The children competed in running and novelty races with prizes for winners and all competitors.

After a supper, topped with ice cream and "pop" a vote of thanks was given by Dr. Wilkes to Mr. C.A.S. Smith and the members of his picnic committee. The unencumbered remained for the evening to enjoy a wiener and marshmallow roast before a blazing fire.

Nine-Pound Pickerel Hooked Off Peche Point

Fourteen - year - old Michael O'Brien, South John Street, does not believe the old axiom about far off fields looking greener. He has proven that the fields close by can be just as green.

Sunday Michael with two of his pals was fishing off Peche Point when he hooked onto a 9-pound pickerel which he landed after a brief tussle. He had a frog for bait and the boat was "drifting" when the strike occurred.

Michael's father is green with envy over the 9-lb. catch made by his son. The elder O'Brien has all sorts of expensive fishing tackle but he has yet to land a fish to match his son's.

Smithfield Farmhand Drowns In Murray Canal, Three Nearly Lose Lives Trying for Rescue

TRENTON (Special) — Two Trenton people and a youth from Smithfield nearly lost their lives yesterday trying to save farmhand John McClintock, 19, of Smithfield from drowning in the Murray canal six miles west of here.

McClintock, a friend said, could not swim a stroke. He was watching swimmers stunt off the pier an eye witness related, when he suddenly jumped into the water.

Swimmer Douglas Greenley, 16, of Smithfield saw McClintock was in trouble and dived in. The struggling man seized his rescuer by the wrists and pulled him under as Clifford Riga of Trenton leaped into the canal to help. The drowning man grabbeg Riga by the legs and took him to the bottom. Riga remembered that McClintock stood on his shoulders and held him underwater. He had to use all his strength to break free from the panic-stricken farmhand.

Margaret Riga watched her husband struggling to bring McClintock to safety. She plunged into the canal with her clothes on when she saw the both of them disappear. She thought her husband threw his arms around her. She became frantic when the arms became limp and slid away toward the bottom.

Found Lying on Bank

Mrs. Riga found her husband lying exhausted on the canal bank. She lost her eye glasses and a wallet containing $23 in money and personal belongings. She calculated afterwards that she watched the struggle five minutes before taking action.

McClintock talked with young Greenley just before taking the fatal plunge. He looked up at a flag flying over the canal bridge and gestured a salute with his right hand. "It may be the last time I see you" the drowning victim said, as he ran toward the water.

His body was recovered in about 20 feet of water on the bottom of the canal. Police and firemen gave artificial respiration for an hour without success.

The farmhand was employed by Don Goodsell of Smithfield. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James McClintock of Brighton, the third eldest in a family of 11 children.

Tribute Paid Trumpet Band Of Hasty Pees

Twelve members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment's trumpet band, which accompanied the local regiment on its annual trip to camp Petawawa last week, came in for its share of praise and commendation from the brigade commander.

The band, formed last March under the command of Lieut. Armand Duffy, was the only reserve army band in camp. It paraded through the lines each morning for Reveille and a member of the band played Taps each evening. While at camp the members of the band prepared for trades' tests as army musicians.

The band, and the regiment as a whole, received a great deal of praise from army authorities on their smart performance.

EIGHT AUTOS WRECKED

SUDBURY (CP)—A string of nine runaway railway boxcars Saturday night wrecked eight automobiles and overturned a truck before they were halted by two railway employees. L. Kirkbride and Eric Young, off duty when the freight cars rumbled down 400 yards of track, jumped aboard the first car and braked it to a stop. The damaged autos were parked beside the railway line and were smashed as the box cars brushed past.

Two Injured In Collision Near Bancroft

BANCROFT — Two persons were taken to Bancroft Hospital Saturday night as a result of a two-car collision on Highway 62, 13 miles south of Bancroft.

The injured were Mr. Stanley Marois and Miss Joan Spence, passengers in a car driven by Mr. Levi Marois. Driver of the other car was Mr. Thomas Tripp. All persons were from Bancroft.

Mr. Marois is suffering from facial lacerations while Miss Spence sustained head and shoulder injuries. The two were treated by Dr. O. W. Anderson.

The accident occurred at approximately 6.30 p.m. Saturday evening when the Marois car was passing the Tripp car on the way towards Bancroft. Tripp was charged with driving without a licence.

Provincial Policeman John Hawkins and John Hutchinson investigated the accident.

Hastings, Prince Edward Regiment Joins Brigade Units In All-Night Tactical Scheme

An all night training scheme that was a near-approach to actual warfare featured the seven-day summer training of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment at Petawawa Military Camp last week.

The regiment, some 110 strong, all ranks, arrived home on Sunday tanned and benefiting from a training period said by veterans of summer training to be the best since the end of hostilities.

The highlight of the training apart from the tactical scheme was the fact that each unit of the three infantry regiments forming the 6th Infantry Brigade trained within its own sphere. Regimental training was given in all phases with the exception of cooking meals, within each unit, by its own instructors.

The 6th Infantry Brigade, which is commanded by Col. A. Carr, Port Hope, is composed of the Hastings and Prince Edward, the Midlands, Port Hope, and the Prince of Wales Rangers of Kingston.

All-Night Scheme

The tactical scheme, a brigade withdrawal, started on Thursday afternoon, continued all night and ended at 12 o'clock Friday noon.

Thunderflashes simulated artillery fire while rifles firing blank ammunition joined with machine guns in a staccato chorus as the defending infantrymen joined battle with the enemy. Prisoners were taken, among them being Col. Carr, commanding the brigade.

The infantry regiments took up positions which had been "recce'd" in daylight. The withdrawal was made in pitch darkness, without benefits of flares or lights. It was one of the most difficult schemes "laid down' but official post-action comment was to the effect it had been very successful.

Each unit made its withdrawal on time, made its way to the back areas and was taken to new position where it "dug in" for further defensive action. The withdrawal was "tough," rough shell-pitted roads making the movement of troops similar to that of the "real thing."

The signals work was good. Wireless, line communications and runners were used to good effect. In the fire-power demonstration, six-pounder anti tank guns, three inch mortars, bren guns and rifles were used.

Prior to the scheme, training time was devoted to work preparing for the withdrawal. The Hasty Pees practised fieldcraft, section defence and withdrawal tactics from section to regiment.

High ranking officers watched the brigade in action. These included Brigadier H. D. V. Knight, commanding Eastern Area, Kingston, Major General Howard Graham, DSO., commanding Central command and others. camp commadant and others. Lieut. Col. Max Porritt, M.C. commanding officer of the Hasty Pees was with his unit. Lieut. Col. Widdifield, who assumes command of the regiment this autumn was a guest.

The scheme proper was under the supervision of Major B. Bradley, a former Hasty Pee, now brigade major of the 6th Infantry Brigade.

Well Executed

Brigadier Knight, commenting on the manoeuvre, said "it was exceptionally well executed with each unit doing its part extremely well. The enthusiasm of the troops was marked."

Lieut. Angus Duffy, regimental training officer of the Hasty Pees expressed his entire satisfaction with the week's training.

"The tactical scheme," he said, "was extremely good in that it was the first time since the war a regiment trained within itself. Regimental instructors emphasized training in administration, transport, and other phases within their units."

Lieut. Duffy paid special tribute to the efforts of Captain Lloyd MacKay, M.C., regimental quartermaster for an excellent job in looking after the troops, preparing lunches, also Major Bill Graydon, second-in-command for his untiring efforts in taking care of the welfare of all ranks.

The Hasty Pees were taken on a conducted tour of the Des Joachims power project on Tuesday evening, while at the Wednesday afternoon sports program they witnessed a forty-man parachute drop into the Ottawa River by parachutists of the Royal Canadian Regiment.

The newly-formed Hasty Pees drum and bugle band came in for special tributes. The only band in camp, it performed at a number of functions outside of its regimental duties. It was featured at the regimental dinner held on Friday night when the Hasty Pees observed strict regimental etiquette.

The regimental party which followed was a pronounced success. Drummer boys mingled with brigadiers and major generals in the general fun while a number of ex-Hasty Pees of the other regiments who were present indulged in a sort of miniature reunion with seasoned veterans wearing the old familiar badges.

The Mascot Was 'Pinched'

"Chief Petawawa-Much" famous Indian mascot of the Hasty Pees was present at camp and following true regimental tradition, was "pinched" during his tenure there.

It happened the first Sunday of camp and loyal if irate members of the regiment organized search parties which scoured the nearby woods for their wooden pet.

Major Bill Graydon located "Petawawa" in the mess of a sister regiment. He with another undertook to carry the Indian home, but was nearly mobbed by a party of enthusiastic younger Hasty Pees who did not know the party in possession at the moment.

The regiment arrived home on Sunday with the advance party travelling by mechanical transport and the main body arriving by bus. There were no casualties and all officers of the regiment highly praised the fine esprit-de-corp and enthusiasm that marked the behavior of the troops during the entire training period.

Wet, Slippery Track Adds To Race Thrills

TRENTON. (Special.)—The Ontario Stock Car Auto Racers show at Bayside Speedway on Saturday night attracted about 800 enthusiasts. A wet slippery track added to the thrills.

In the feature race Cliff Stillman made a comeback after spinning around on the third turn coming into the stretch. He was leading but fell back to fifth place. Some tricky driving, which pleased the onlookers, brought him back into the front money and he went on to finish third.

Jerry Johnson of Belleville, suffered bad face burns from liquid boiling out of the radiator of his car. He was taken to the hospital by Weaver's ambulance. Dr. J. V. Byrne treated the injury.

Results: Feature race, Earl Hanley, Picton; Bob Colliver, Picton; Cliff Stillman, third; Harold Wickens, Trenton; Morley Shepherd, Trenton; First qualifying, Bob Colliver, Picton; Bruce Kempt, Belleville; Second qualifying, Cliff Stillman, Trenton; Earl Hanley, Picton.

In the match race Bob Colliver of Picton, won over Bruce Kempt of Belleville, by a half length. Consolation race, Clarence Johnson, of Belleville, with Jerry Johnson finishing second.

Powder puff derby for women only featuring five cars saw Lola Therrien of Alberta, cross the finish line first followed closely by Mrs. Earl Hanley of Picton.

Grass Fire Controlled

The Trenton Fire department went out of town yesterday to a grass fire the other side of Dead Creek on Highway 33.

A trailer resident on the east side of the road started a rubbish fire near his dwelling. A spark caught in the dry grass and fanned by a strong wind spread rapidly. The situation looked serious when the alarm was turned in. Campers on the north shore thought there was trouble again on Twelve O'Clock Point. Two months ago a fire of a similar nature spread and destroyed a number of cottages at the summer resort.

Lightning Strikes House in City, Barn at Actinolite Destroyed

Striking suddenly from out of the northwest a sharp electric and rainstorm spilled slightly more than a quarter of an inch of rain over the Bay of Quinte district, Saturday afternoon and caused lightning damage further north in the county.

At the height of the brief storm a bolt of lightning struck the roof of a house on College Street, setting fire to the shingles with firemen having to be called to put out the blaze. The house was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bey.

The bolt which struck the Bey house first split open a large tree in front of the Barriage house next door, jumped to the Bey chimney and knocked off a number of bricks, then set fire to the shingles.

Mrs. Barriage said she was talking on the telephone when the lightning struck. "It dazed me and I dropped the receiver in hurry," she said.

Members of the Bey househol were also badly frightened whe the lightning struck their house Mrs. Barriage said their nerve were still "jumpy" today.

Further north, in the county, the lightning damage was more severe with a barn on the farm of Clarence Hale in the Actinolite district being burned together with the season's crop of hay. No livestock or machinery were in the barn, it was stated.

At another farm in Madoc township the lightning knocked a fuse box off a farmer's barn but failed to set fire to the building.

At least two cattle were killed by lightning, one heifer on the farm of John Meraw in the Tweed district, and another on a farm in Madoc township. Insurance representatives said reports of additional cattle losses were expected.

THE OPEN SEASON ON VOTERS

American experts in the art of bally-hoo have already begun to pull out the stops for their favorite candidates for the United States presidency and by the time the voters cast their ballot, these publicity experts will see to it that their boy is represented as a folksy type of American with his feet in the soil who possesses the likes and dislikes of the average American who may live next door.

Witness the Eisenhower campaign todate. Returning to his home town in Kansas as an acknowledged world leader, General Eisenhower was documented in pictures, not as an army leader but as one of the local lads who made good. He visited the place of his birth, swapped stories with the town barber and generally created the impression that he was still one of them, despite his greatness as a soldier. That is what the voters like.

Now, with his nomination, the real pressure to "sell" Eisenhower is beginning to be applied. Early pictures coming from his holiday retreat in Denver show the presidential aspirant garbed in fishing togs and holding a small fish, a fish so small that perhaps another fisherman would return it to the water. Perhaps that is what Eisenhower did, but not until after his picture was taken for the electors to see. Later he was pictured preparing pancakes for his guests. Another pictured the general at his easel putting the finishing touches on one of his paintings, the sixth to be completed since the start of his vacation.

Such material makes excellent election campaign ammunition.

But unlike the United States where publicity "naturals" such as the Roosevelts (Teddy and F.D.R.), Wendel Wilkie, Al. Smith and many others have been produced, Canada has produced few, if any, leading public figures who lend themselves to publicity of the personal type.

The late Prime Minister Mackenzie King is one example. Reserved and formal but always friendly, the prime minister's friendliness could not be documented on film. He always appeared to be aloof and alone. At the time Mr. Mackenzie King observed his twenty five years leadership of the Liberal party in Canada, photographers and reporters were assigned to do a story on the man. It was to be an attempt to humanize Canada's outstanding leader and bachelor.

The appointment was arranged at his Ottawa residence and Prime Minister Mackenzie King arrived to keep his date with the camera . . . knowing that the pictures were to be informal and agreeing before hand to pose for such pictures.

But what happened? Mr. King appeared and he looked every inch a prime minister. He wore his black homburg, carried his gold headed cane, wore his spectacles on a ribbon and was garbed in a good-quality conservative suit. But he also brought his dog, a rusty Irish terrier which was to be a "prop" for some of the "humanizing" pictures.

Attempts by the photographer to have the prime minister "loosen up" failed. With a newspaper folded and spread across the steps, Mr. King agreed to sit down and pat his dog for the benefit of the cameraman. Despite its stiffness, the picture remains the most "human" of any pictures taken of the late prime minister. He ordered many copies for himself and at the time of his death, many Canadian newspapers repeated the picture of the prime minister with his homburg, cane, glasses and dog on the steps of Laurier House.

Although a better performer from a publicity point of view than his predecessor, Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent always remains the prime minister regardless of his pose. But at that, Mr. St. Laurent is doing as good a job as any successful corporation lawyer who finally finds himself in the public spotlight.

Regardless of how hard he tries, Leader of the Opposition, George Drew, always looks what he is.. . . a parliamentarian.

The No. 2 man in the Canadian cabinet, Mr. C. D. Howe, is no publicity man's dream, either. He always remains Mister C. D. Howe except for one instance at Marathon, in northwestern Ontario, when the defence minister posed with a cook in a lumber camp. An election campaign was on and Mr. Howe had taken to the backwoods of his constituency to round up votes. A luncheon meeting had been arranged and the atmosphere remained on a formal level. During the dessert, someone whispered into Mr. Howe's ear that he should congratulate the cook for her excellent pies. Without hesitating, Mr. Howe marched to the kitchen and returned with the cook, thanking her for the excellence of the meal. That evidence of human quality did more to promote the re-election of Mr. Howe than a dozen political speeches.

And so it is, the United States presidential candidates will tour the country, kissing babies and splitting rails like Lincoln before them, but Canadian public figures will continue to win their elections playing the election game their own way.

POST-MORTEM BRIDGE

If bridge is a game, as a game
you'll play,
And you need a fourth I will say, "Okay."
But if while playing you want to teach,
"Good night!" For my hat and coat I'll reach.

If you want to paw through the played-out hands,
As a post-mortem surgeon a dead man's glands
And discuss every trick that
I lost or took,
I'd rather be quiet and read a book.

If whenever you've lost a hand or a game,
You can prove that your partner's the one to blame
And you start to tell him how dumb is he,
Then somebody else must your fourth man be.

REFORMING THE WORLD

We all feel that if we had a chance to reform the world we could make a pretty good job of it. Like all other dictators, we undoubtedly would, if put in charge of the world's affairs, begin a rigorous liquidation of a lot of people who oppose what we support. So for the good of our souls, and for the welfare of society, it is fortunate that we all remain in our constricted little areas and go about our humble daily business.

But there is a way we can start the reformation of the world if we will. The program consists of two definite lines of procedure. First, we can pray for the reformation of the world,. We can, by our simple petitions, unleash greater sources of world power than if we sat on a high throne with a heavy gold crown on our heads.

In the second place, we can give a mighty impetus to the reformation of the world by beginning to reform ourselves. When we start that, we shall discover ourselves to be obstinate, unreasonable critters. We shall know what a job the Lord has on His hands in reforming the world by observing how hard it is for reformation to begin in us.

World reformation is not hopeless, but it is difficult. And don't forget where it starts. Someone has expressed it in these words: "Lord, reform the world, beginning with me."

Two Millworkers Drown in B.C.

OCEAN FALLS, B.C., (CP)—Two millworkers were drowned Saturday when they were swept from the side of their overturned boat into the choppy waters of Fisher Channel, five miles south of this coastal paper town. The victims were Kasti Ayani and Francis Smith.

A woman and two girls who were with the men clung to the capsized craft for 2½ hours before they were picked up by a passing fishboat.

There were only three life preservers in the boat. The men gave them to Mrs. Stenislava Dayni, her 11-year-old daughter, Olga, and Michellena Boillat, Olga's young friend. Ayani and Smith became tired and slipped off before help arrived.

Canadian Reinforcements Get Best Possible Training Says Brigadier M.P. Bogert

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KURE, Japan (CP)—After a three-day inspection of the final training Canadian reinforcements get in Japan before they go on to Korea, Brig. M. P. Bogert said: "Your training is as good as we can make it."

No sooner had the 25th Canadian infantry brigade commander's troops in Korea been placed on the "temporarily unemployed" list than Bogert left to check on training in Japan, where the final polishing and hardening takes place.

It was Bogert's first visit as commander. His responsibility in Japan is for training while administration is supposed to be under the Canadian military mission in Tokyo, commanded by Brig. A. B. Connelly.

Lack Clear Directive

In fact, the division of responsibility is largely inoperative. There is no clear-cut directive changing former policy under which the brigade commander had over-all command except in Tokyo.

Officers in Kure are getting orders from Ottawa, Tokyo and Korea. They expect arrival of Col. W. J. Moogk of Ottawa, newly-appointed colonel in charge of administration for the brigade, to square the situation away.

Bogert's inspection included base units such as the Commonwealth ordnance workshop which has some Canadian personnel, the Commonwealth general hospital where he spoke with every Canadian patient, and training establishments.

The chronic "beef" at the hospital has been the food. One result of the recent trip will be a recommendation that a Canadian dietitian be provided.

New Battle School

Bogert spent most time reviewing the effects of closing the Canadian infantry school at Nipponbara and establishment in its place of a Canadian wing at the Commonwealth division battle school in nearby Haramura.

Haramura, it is maintained, is superior to the exclusively Canadian centre in that training is carried on with the full range of ground-support weapons, including artillery and tanks.-

Envy, Nostalgic Envy

By Wallace Havelock Robb of Abbey Dawn

Lines to Skye Robb, a nephew summering on the Kente Water with the pride of his heart, a boat. And what kind of boat? What does it matter? I remember "my boat" (she belonged to Clifford Burrows—a punt) he'll remember his. The song is the thing. Live it to the full, boy! Live it to the full!

If I were a boy and had a boat,
She'd lie the loveliest thing afloat:
A gull she'd be on a summer wind,
Or billowy azure's leaping hind,
Or maybe a tranquil cloud she'd seem,
Like a cruising albatross of dream,
Or a swan whose lovely form had found
A speed of perfection without a sound.

All this, if I were a boy, she'd be—
We'd reek of oakum, and put to sea;
I'd let her out like never-come-back,
Then hold her into the long, hard tack,
And she'd leap and shudder, shake off spray,
A winnowing bird, then stoop away
With a confident, aeolian hum,
Her canvas as taut as a Mohawk drum.

A name she'd have like a summer cloud—
An Indian name and wampum proud;
There'd be Joe 'n' Jim 'n' Bill 'n' me,
We'd sail strip naked—or almost be:
Encalmed, we'd swim by the lapping stern,
Each at the tiller for squalls, by turn;
We'd tow by the carefree, lazy hour—
And we'd thumb our noses at stinking power.

Girls Are 'Fickle as Feathers' Says Director of Jap Burlesque

By FRED SAITO

TOKYO (AP)—"They're so fickle as feathers in a high wind," the strip show director sighed.

He wasn't talking about his lovely ladies, but about the unpredictable Japanese who made the strip tease a national fad after the United States occupation deserted it for a thing called "swordswoman dramas" and now are swinging back to a modified strip show.

Ken Murai, 28-year-old director of the "France Za" (Za is Japanese for theatre), says the old form of the strip tease hit its peak in 1948. It was something new in kimono-clad Japan.

Japanese flocked to the huge burlesque houses throughout Japan to watch in deadpan fascination as the gals "took them off." But, Murai said, the show lost its popularity after reaching a logical conclusion and losing its power to shock.

Then came the rise of the swordswoman drama. This was a Japanese development that flattered Japanese marital spirit.

A beautiful feudal maiden, beset by thugs and bullies would bear incredible misfortunes with the patience of Gautama Buddha. Finally, when pushed too far, she would snatch a razor-sharp Samurai sword and cut down her tormentors like a field of ripe rye.

In the later years of the occupation, this probably flattered Jananese pride, Murai said. When Japan became independent April 28, audiences lost interest.

Four months ago five theatres in Tokyo were showing swordswomen. Now they've all gone back to the strip show—the new form, that is.

Instead of acres of sun-tanned Japanese skin, the shows now are more like farces played by girls wearing the least the law allows. The law here, while liberal, does insist the girls wear something.

"Now a strip director has to use every ounce of resource to keep the audience," Murai declared.

He said one of his competitors tried to appeal to what he called "the peeping Tom" instinct. He ripped out clusters of seats here and there in the theatre and installed tiled Japanese bathtubs—each tub complete with a pretty, G-stringed Japanese girl already in hot water.

The customers were urged to volunteer to scrub the lady's back.

The audience soon got tired of this too and in desperation the director had the girls take off the G-strings just before they hopped into the tub.

That brought the customers, all right, but it also brought the police who promptly arrested the bathers and the director.

Despite the seemingly light work, it's a hard life for the strip-tease girl in Japan. Instead of presenting a single star, the management features bare beauty by the dozen.

One theatre advertises a full 100 stars—an impressive sight, but a condition spreading the wages thinner than a teaser's veil. The average stripper gets 15,000 yen a month (about $40).

That isn't enough to keep a single woman in Tokyo. Many single strippers trudge off to work afterwards at extra jobs in cabarets and photo studios. Many others are married.

Backstage in a Japanese strip show theatre weary young ladies are found curled up all over the place in long, shapeless sleeping kimonos, trying to catch a nap between acts.

JUNK IS "CHEAT" FOOD

A mother who asks how she can build up her daughter's resistance against frequent attacks of bronchial congestion (she does not mention the daughter's age) says the doctors she has consulted do not tell her how to lessen the attacks. She has an idea that the trouble is constitutional and that if her daughter could take the proper vitamins to build up her constitution. . . For one thing, she has not regular elimination, and like more children today she eats more junk than food. (Mrs. R. D. H.)

From the casual data the mother gives I am unable to surmise what the child's trouble may be. Is it, perhaps smouldering tuberculosis? The mother might well take the child to the place designated by the local health department or health officer for X-ray film of lungs—everybody's doing it now, just to be on the safe side.

Proceeding on the assumption that daughter is ten, twenty or thirty years old and that her health is not as good as it should be, it is likely that the "junk" I call cheat food. That is anything made principally of (1) white flour and or (2) refined white sugar or syrup. For example, white bread, crackers, cake, candy, ice cream soda, chocolate malted, sundaes, sweetened carbonated beverages. These are all pretty nourishing stuff, full of calaries (the calories coming mainly from the white flour starch and sugar in them), but they tend to make you flabby, dull and dumpy. Refined carbohydrate (pure starch or sugar) supplies virtually nothing but calories but in order to make good use of carbohydrate in the body something else is essential—namely the vitamin B that grows with the starch or sugar.

If the young person is in the habit of eating "junk" instead of real food at lunch time it would be an excellent plan for him or her to try living for one month without "junk". For lunch take at least a glassful (half pint), better a pint, of milk and whole wheat bread, roll, biscuit or crackers—real whole wheat, not ordinary bread with a dab of whole wheat added.

Get a pound or two of plain wheat from farmer, mill, feed store, seed store, farmers' market or health food market. Carry some in pocket or purse and chew a cheeckful when you want to chew. It works into a gum which is good chewing. Fine for the teeth and gums, an excellent source of much needed vitamins and minerals.

If there is a valid reason why a young person cannot take his or her quart of milk a day, then the young person will have to compromise on a lower level of health and vite—flunk out of Class A and fall back into Class B or Class C, where, heaven knows, most of the weaklings and morons spend their short lives anyway.

Any one who can't or will not consume at least a quart of milk a day should be sure to include at least cheese in the daily menu, any and every kind of cheese he or she likes.

Instead of sweet "dessert" the young person should supplement his or her milk or salad or both with some fresh fruit, whatever fruit is in season, available or palatable.

A genuine salad—made of green leaves, raw vegetables and/or fruits with or without bits of ham, chicken, fish, shellfish or cheese added to the dressing—makes an ideal complement for fresh milk in a formal luncheon.

Instead of taking sugar solution in the form of carbonated beverage or nibbling on candy when you feel the need of a lift, keep on hand a supply of peanuts or other nuts and chew some slowly and thoroughly. That will give you not only calories but protein and fat and some of the vitamins and minerals you need but do not get from "junk".

Answer.—Begin two weeks before the ordeal, whether it is stage fright or examination jitters, taking one grain of quinine sulfate three times a day, before or after meals, and continue this right up to the brink of the disaster. Or if only two-grain tablets capsules or pills are available, take two grains with breakfast and two grains at bedtime daily.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ONCE A NEWSBOY

I recently read a column by Earl Wilson discoursing upon his newsboy days, and naming many of the great of this and other nations who were once newsboys. I was once a newsboy! It was when working my way through college in Kansas. But I had no bicycle, as Wilson described. I had only my legs and arms—and I didn't throw my paper into the yard or lodge it somewhere upon the porch. I put it about the door knob where the subscriber could not miss it and where he would find it rain, shine, or snow.

From the earliest days that I can remember I had a scent for printer's ink. I would hound the village weekly newspaper office. There it was that I discovered "printer's lice"! To this day the mere handling of a newspaper gives me a thrill. And I think of Col. Wortham, the great publisher of the Fort Worth Citizen-Star, who once told me that he would rather listen to the hum of a printing press than the grandest of Grand Opera!

For two years I traveled the main street of Ottawa, Kansas, distributing the Kansas City Star and the old Kansas City World. I made a blackboard and a kind druggist allowed me to leave papers at his place and in front, on that blackboard, I would write the startling headlines that my paper showed each day. People in a town are always fine to the boys working their way through school, and I believe they are always partial to newspaper boys. One of my old subscribers of that day died only recently in his nineties, and I had cheery letters from him to the very last.

For nearly half a century newspapers have given me a happy living, and my gratitude to them is beyond words. My faithful associate in business, Bruno Pascale, who came to work with me as a boy in his teens, was also once a newsboy in Chicago, and those were the days when a newsboy had to fight his way wherever he might be stationed upon the street! You can't honor a newsboy too greatly. He may become President some day! Or at least a Governor, like Tom Dewey.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A problem that is engaging the minds of countless thousands of people right now all over Canada is: what is a good fishing day? Some swear by the old rhyme that dates back away beyond Queen Elizabeth the First.

"Wind in the north,
Wise fisher goes not forth.
Wind in the east,
Fit for neither man nor beast.
Wind in the west,
The fishing's best.
But wind in the south
Blows the bait in the fish's mouth."

Nearly everyone agrees that a dull, humid day, with rain either threatening or first falling, is the perfect fishing day. Yet everyone recalls having some of the greatest catches of his life on brilliant, hard days with a spanking wind blowing. In east winds, with a cold rain blowing horizontal, wonderful baskets of trout or bass have been taken, to set at naught all the rules and to make more mysterious than ever the question: what is a good fishing day?

In Scotland, the gillies have a word that defines a good fishing day. If a day has an airt, it is a good day for fishing. What an airt is, no dictionary defines; and no two Scots will agree. When a gillie proceeds to find out if a day has an airt, he takes a pinch of air in finger and thumb. He feels the texture of the atmosphere in his rough and horny hand. There is something psychic about it, in addition. The gillie, while fingering the air, glances about at the landscape, at the sky, and then assumes a trance-like expression. At the same time, he may breathe deeply, run his tongue over his lips, give a couple of good Scottish sniffs and then say:

"Oo, aye, there's an airt the day!"

And when he says so, the fishing is bound to be good. In Canada, we do not have airts. I have seen Scotchmen transplanted here going through all the ritual, fingering the air, assuming the trance, and all. But the airt eludes them. Yet they are on the right track. For there is something mysterious and psychic about a good fishing day that defies definition. A good fishing day is a day when the fishing is good.

Criminal Walks Into Trap, Taken, Kills FBI Agent

NEW YORK (CP)—One of the top criminals in the United States walked into a trap laid Saturday by the Federal Buresu of Investigation but killed an F.B.I. agent before being shot and captured in a blazing gun battle in a quiet Manhattan hotel.

Gerhard Puff, 38, wanted for a western U.S. bank robbery and listed among the 10 top criminals sought by the F.B.I. battled it out with a dozen F.B.I. agents inside and outside the hotel, before he was wounded in the leg and captured.

One of the agents, Joseph Brock, 38, died of bullet wounds 40 minutes after the fight.

Puff was the second of the F.B.I.'s 10 most wanted men to be captured in two days. An alleged confederate, George Arthur Heroux, 22, was seized Friday in Miami, Fla.

With Puff cut down, F.B.I. agents dashed into the hotel and took two women into custody. The women said they are the wives of Puff and Heroux.

Edward Scheidt, chief F.B.I. agent in New York, said Puff had been turned in by a woman. He did not disclose whether the informer was one of the arrested women.

Bus Plunges Into Gorge, 24 Persons Survive

SALMON ARM, B.C. (CP)—An east-bound Greyhound bus carrying 24 persons swerved off the Trans-Canada Highway 12 miles east of here late Saturday night, rolled over 3 1-2 times and plunged 100 feet into a gorge.

No one was killed. All 24 were brought to hospital here, none in critical condition. Five, including the driver, Albert Salter of Vancouver, were treated and discharged within a few hours.

The bus came to rest on its side beside a small creek. Most of the passengers crawled out of the window beside the driver's seat before someone was able to force open the emergency door.

Passengers were unanimous in their praise for the driver and said there was no panic. As the bus was rolling over he cut the ignition and lights to prevent fire.

Four children aboard the bus could be heard calling for their parents in the pitch blackness of the gorge.

The bus was enroute from Vancouver to Calgary when the accident occurred about 11 p.m. Bill Folland of nearby Sicamous, who was driving behind the bus, said it was not going fast when it suddenly swerved to the left-hand side of the road in the middle of a hairpin turn and tumbled over the embankment.

"I was just dozing off when I felt the bus give a lurch and we started to roll over," said Edward Hendry of Toronto. "I counted three times that we rolled over before the bus stopped on its side."

The injured were brought to hospital by passing motorists who clambered down the bank. There were three stretcher cases. The small, 27-bed hospital was soon jammed and extra nurses were called in.

Most seriously hurt was elderly Robert Pendergast, of Sylvan, Alta. He suffered undetermined internal injuries.

Others injured: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bossley, Sicamous; Mrs. Betty McGourlich, Calgary; Maureen and Wayne McHale, two children travelling to Revelstoke, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. Alex Francis, Vancouver; George Grundon, New Westminster, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Torply, Milwaukee, Wis.; Mrs. E. B. Graham, Winnipeg; Edward Hendry, 50-A Lawrence Ave. E., Toronto; John D. Grant, Cornwall, Ont.; Elmer Brown, Victoria; Mr. and Mrs. James Caldwell and two daughters, Heather and Myrna, Fort Gary, Man.

Treated and discharged were George Milne, Westview, B.C.; Gladys Rogers, Buchanan, Sask.; Isolde Mattischek, Vancouver; Bert Kenny, Vancouver and the driver, Albert Salter, Vancouver. Salmon Arm is 350 miles northeast of Vancouver.

HELD AT GUNPOINT 4 HOURS

HAMILTON (CP)—Three armed men kept Stewart Davidson, manager of a large grocery store, and his wife at gunpoint in their home for four hours Saturday night. It was the second time this year that Mr. Davidson had been held up in his home. The three, masked with handkerchiefs, left his house Saturday with his car, the keys to his office, the combination to the office safe and $40 from his wife's purse. When the men left they locked Mr. and Mrs. Davidson in the bathroom.

Police said the men were unsuccessful in attempts to open the office safe.

Vancouver's Teen-Aged Girls Tell Court Sordid Story Of Youthful Drug Addiction

By GEORGE FINLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—The story of a spoon, an eyedropper and a needle is frequently heard today in Vancouver's dingy police court, a few steps from the city's notorious sked road.

It is a story told by pretty, teen-aged girls who sought thrills through the use of narcotics. The details are sordid.

Some of the girls, most from good families and well educated, have told of pawning their clothes and jewelry so they could buy a "fix."

To prepare a "fix"—an injection of a drug—a spoon, an eyedropper and a needle are required.

Curb Use by Teen-Agers

A campaign to curb the use of narcotics by teen-agers opened here June 26 after police discovered two young girls, one 15 years old and the other 16, in a state of collapse in a downtown block.

A score of men and women, mostly young, have been arrested. Some have been charged with selling narcotics while others face charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Eight of the accused had the charges dismissed when a 17-year-old key witness repudiated his story of narcotic orgies in the schools.

Investigators gave the schools a clean bill, but it was found that many teen-agers became addicts after leaving school.

"Hypo" Parties

Some told of "thrill" or "hypo" parties where they went for their first "shots." Others said they had taken drugs "because we wanted to keep our boy friends."

"Is there any difference between getting 'high' on drugs or 'high' on liquor," one girl was asked in court yesterday.

"When you get 'high' on drugs, your eyes get small. You don't feel like getting around. You want to be relaxed."

The witness was a 15-year-old girl, neatly dressed and well spoken.

Source of supply was skidroad cafes and hotels on the fringe of Vancouver's downtown district.

But homes are not immune from the drug menace. The court record for this week shows that two teen-aged girls took narcotics in the bathroom of a Cambie street home, one of Vancouver's exclusive residential districts.

The two girls, one a 15-year-old high school student and the other a 16-year-old English youngster, who has been in Canada for five years, told of the bathroom "fixes."

The narcotics, they told the court, were sneaked into the bathroom by a 19-year-old boy friend.

He is Max Hurlburt, charged with giving the girls a substance Hurlburt was committed for purported to be a drug.

The tiny high school girl, dressed in a grey skirt and a blue blouse, looked strange in the ancient court room.

"I never heard of drugs at school," she told the prosecutor.

She claimed to have met Hurlburt in a downtown cafe. Later he took her to his Cambie Street home.

"We crept upstairs to the bathroom," she told the prosecutor. "Max's parents were sitting in the kitchen."

She was sure it was heroin she had because "it made me high." trial before a judge and jury. The prosecutor demanded bail be fixed at $20,000.

"I think the bail of $7,500 is sufficient," said Magistrate MacKenzie Matheson.

The cases are being conducted by special prosecutor Douglas Brown. He was appointed by the federal minister of justice.

Wholesale Index Advanced in June

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's wholesale price index in June moved upward for the first time in a year.

The Bureau of Statistics said yesterday the general increase was caused mainly by better prices for animal, textile and wood products. Increases in the three groups outweighed decreased in the subindexes for the vegetable, iron, non-ferrous metals, non-metallic minerals and chemical products groups.

The general wholesale index, based on 1935-39 equalling 100, advanced 1.7 points or 0.8 per cent in June to 226.5 from 224.8 in May. At the new standing it remained below the April figure of 226.9 and was 16.5 points or 6.8 per cent lower than the figure of 243.0 for June last year.

High point for the index was 243.7 for July a year ago.

Largest increase was in the wood products group which advanced 3.4 per cent to 295.9 from 286.2 in May. Animal products advanced 1.5 per cent to 245.7 from 242.1 and textiles index went up 0.4 per cent to 252.8 from 251.8.

Steelworkers Return to Work Grumble Over Wage Settlement

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Steelworkers stepped-up the pace of their back-to-work movement today but a few still grumbled over the wage settlement reached with big steel

The undercurrent of dissatisfaction centred in a 5,500-member local of the United Steelworkers of America (C. I. O., at Jones and Laughlin's south side Pittsburgh plant.

James McLaughlin, president of Local 1843, said his group voted during the week-end to return to work but under "protest." He said he will forward the protest to the steelworkers president, Philip Murray.

McLaughlin said the principal complaint stems from the fact that the wage increase is "not across the board'—giving the same increase to all workers regardless of their type of work.

The basic agreement calls for a 12½ cent an hour increase to the lowest paid classification and increases that mount by a half-cent up through 25 classifications, with the highest classification worker getting 25 cents an hour.

Basic terms for settling the 55-day strike were agreed on at the White House Thursday and ratified by the steelworkers wage policy committee the next day.

Details are being worked out in a companion strike of 23,000 iron ore workers. They were granted almost a similar package.

And the steel companies got permission from the government to raise prices an average of $5.65 a ton. The present price for carbon steel, the basic grade, averages about $110 a ton.

Economic Stabilizer Roger L. Putnam still accused the steel industry of having held a loaded gun at the government's head to get an "unjustified wage increase."

Meanwhile, various plants throughout the nation began moving slowly but without any hitches towards production.

It will be at least a week yet before full steel production starts rolling from the 380 steel mills across the U.S.

USES RUSE IN ROBBERY

TORONTO (CP)—A gunman robbed a west Toronto movie theatre of $800 Saturday night when he used a lost-and-found ruse to gain entrance to the cashier's cage. Friday night, the young bandit had asked the manager about a pair of glasses he claimed to have lost. He returned Saturday night just as the manager and the cashier were counting the night's receipts. Rapping on the glass window, he asked about his glasses. The manager opened the door to speak to him and was greeted by a gun.

Traps them, Kills them by Thousands

You never saw anything like it! It kills flies by thousands! It lures flies irresistibly to wholesale destruction with new fly odor that acts like radar! They fly straight into trap to sudden death.

Flies within ¼ mile radius are drawn by mysterious scent that only flies are attracted to. No effect on beneficial insects—not even detectable to humans except at close range. Yet flies cannot resist its "call". House flies, green bottle flies, blue bottle flies, large flesh flies, screw worm flies, midges—they all succumb to the lure. They are drawn away from houses, animals, even from barns, garbage and manure piles, to crawl right into escape-proof glass container and die with their eggs.

Just imagine! As many as 10,000 flies are caught in a single container. Here at last is real relief from the pests. Wherever there are flies, this sensational new outdoor fly trap is proving itself a boon — in backyards, on farms, dairies, livestock and poultry ranches—outside food markets, restaurants, fisheries, factories, hospitals, motels, etc. Use it outdoors to rid your place of flies—safely, surely, quickly.

Weddings

WAY—FOSTER

A quiet wedding ceremony was performed in Belleville, on Monday, July 21, by Rev. Raymond A. Rowley, of Tabernacle United Church, when Florence Emma, daughter of Mrs. L. Foster, 249 Ann Street, and the late Thomas Foster, became the bride of George Earle Way, son of Mr. Grant Way, 87 Cannifton Rd., and the late Mrs. Hannah Way.

The bride looked charming in a gown of mauve taffeta fashioned on princess lines, with matching hat and white accessories. She wore a corsage of Primrose yellow roses and a strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom.

Her only attendant was Mrs. C. S. Robinson, wearing a gown of pink organza, with white accessories and corsage of Sweetheart roses.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Ronald F. Kavaner.

A quiet reception was held later after which the bride and bridegroom left on a short honeymoon to the Eastern States. On their return they will reside in Belleville.

SLADE—GRANT

At 4 p.m., on Saturday, a pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, when Betty Doreen Grant, Reg.N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Grant of Marmora, became the bride of Ronald George Slade, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Slade, of Toronto. The Rev. Kenneth J. Crawford was the officiating minister. The church was tastefully decorated with gladioli.

The Wedding March from Wagner's Lohengrin was played by the organist, Mrs. A. F. Fraser. Jack Grant, uncle of the bride, sang "At Dawning", and "Because".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in a ballerina-length gown of white net over taffeta, with insets of lace, lace jacket and fingertip veil with coronet-styled headdress. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

Miss Lois Grant, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Joyce Campbell, of Toronto, and Miss Carol Stanton, of Belleville. They were dressed in blue ballerina-length gowns of nylon marquisette over taffeta with matching accessories and each carried a bouquet of white Shasta 'mums.

Judith Anne Grant, cousin of the bride, was flower girl, wearing pale yellow taffeta with flower headdress. She carried a nosegay of sweetpeas, yellow roses and gladioli.

The groomsman was John Hopkins, of Toronto, and the ushers were Roland Campbell and Melvin Welsh, of Toronto.

A reception was held in St. Andrew's Hall where Circle 3 of the Women's Association catered to the large number of ninety guests. The bride's mother received in a gown of turquoise nylon sheer with white accessories and wore a corsage of Talisman roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore rose nylon with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

For a trip to Ottawa and Northern Ontario, the bride travelled in a light green suit with forest green accessories.

Out-of-town guests were from Sault Ste. Marie, Detroit, Toronto, Belleville, Ottawa, Plymouth, Mich.; Port Hope, Warkworth, Springbrook and Bonarlaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Slade will reside at 36 Woodland Park Road, Toronto.

Nomination Meetings Strain On Candidates' Wives Too

By RUTH COWAN

CHICAGO (AP)—MRS. Harry S. Truman undoubtedly is the happiest of all women who played leading roles in the tense political drama of the Democratic national convention.

Relaxed and smiling, she accompanied President Truman in a "hail-and-farewell" appearance before last night's session of the convention.

She has known the pride of a wife whose husband has been nominated in such conventions and elected, first to the vice-presidency then to the highest office in the United States.

Heavy Burdens

She didn't want her husband to carry on any longer the heavy burdens of the presidency.

But she understands well the apprehension of womenfolk in the families of men who are aspiring to the top places on a party ticket.

Custom has it that candidates should not be in the convention hall during the voting. But their womenfolk can be there, as spectators.

So tired she could hardly stand, Nancy Kefauver, who had campaigned beside her husband, Senator Estes Kefauver, since February, was in the hall regularly.

"I certainly am as dismayed as anybody," Mrs. Kefauver told a reporter during last night's dramatic balloting which saw her husband concede the nomination to Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois.

Mrs. Averell Harriman could be seen in the Harriman box.

In the Stevenson box during nearly every session was Governor Stevenson's sister, Mrs. Ernest Ives. With her, was the governor's 72-year-old aunt, Miss Letitia Stevenson of St. Louis, daughter of the Adlai Stevenson who was vice-president in the Cleveland administration.

Calmest Of Group

Probably the calmest of all was Mrs. Robert Kerr. The Oklahoma senator's tall, blonde wife is by nature calm, and has a quick sense of humor valuable in hours of frayed tempers.

Senator Richard Russell of Georgia is a bachelor. But cheering him on was "big sister"—she is about five feet tall—Mrs. J.K. Stacy of Washington, D.C.

Also looking proud at the convention hall were Mrs. John Sparkman, wife of the senator from Alabama, and Mrs. William Fulbright, whose husband is senator from Arkansas. Both senators have been mentioned as possible vice-presidential choices—a decision left over to the final session t

Selection of Best Bread Will Be Made Easier by New Regulations

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Homemakers soon will be assured of purchasing the best bread simply by reading the bread wrapper.

Regulations concerning bread manufacture were approved recently by the National Council of the Baking Industry. Effective Jan. 1, 1953, major ingredients of a loaf will be required to be listed on the wrapper.

The Canadian Association of Consumers is pleased. For the last three years the 13,000-member organization has campaigned for improved bread standards.

Now the consumer has "a sporting chance" of knowing what kind of a loaf she is buying the C.A.C., says President Mrs. W. R. Walton Jr., of Oakville, Ont.

"Now it is up to the woman to read this information and to direct her purchasing to the type of loaf which will be best for the health of her family."

Other Counts

Canada approved Vitamin B flour will be allowed, and a standard has been set for whole wheat bread which must contain 60 per cent or more whole wheat. Brown containing less must be classed as "colored" bread.

One of the regulations permits the baking industry to use "enriched" flour. Mrs. Walton said that the public should be aware that by the term "enriched" is meant a white flour from which natural vitamins have been milled and which are being replaced for the most part by synthetic vitamins.

"We in C.A.C. have always maintained that the natural vitamin is best and that it is a pity that consumers in the United States and Canada have encouraged use of a white flour which has had most of the vitamins milled out of it and that now, in the interest of a so-called 'improved' loaf it is necessary to put them back synthetically."

Mrs. Walton said that the original vitamins however might be obtained in the Canada-approved Vitamin B flour and the white and whole wheat bread made from it. She added that the Canada-approved Vitamin B flour had almost gone off the market because of the lack of consumer acceptance and the antipathy by millers and bakers to manufacture it.

"It did not receive the promotion by the industry that the other types of bread did and consequently consumers were not stimulated to buy it, she said.

"And when the public does not buy or ask for a certain product the manufacturer certainly is not going to produce it."

Frosty Glasses

A friend passes on her family recipe for lemon syrup, an excellent cold drink these hot-weather days.

Ingredients: Five pounds sugar; one ounce tartaric acid, two ounces citric acid, juice of six lemons and the grated rind of four of them; 12 cups water.

Add the sugar and the two acids to the water and bring to boil. Add lemon juice and rind and let stand two or three hours. Strain and bottle.

For a refreshing drink: Put one tablespoon (depending on strength desired) of the syrup in a glass of water and cracked ice. It's good.

TORONTO (CP)—Harold Laing, who last week lost a wallet containing his "life savings" of $3,600 in a downtown department store, Saturday offered a reward of $500 for information leading to its recovery. Wife Preservers

B.C. Woman Develops Profitable Business from Small Beginning

SUMMERLAND, B.C. (CP)—Mrs. David Lingstone Milne, 65, who started canning for charity on a little machine fastened to her kitchen table 17 years ago, now is owner of a profitable business in this Okinawa Valley centre.

During the depression she canned peaches and sent them to relatives on the prairies and to Summerland hospital.

Soon she was supplying canned peaches, pears, apricots, prunes carrots, tomatoes and corn and orders came in from many parts of Canada.

To keep pace with the demand, her sons, employed in a packing plant, built her a factory in their spare time. In the first year of its operation, she paid off $1,600 owing on her house and bought a refrigerator, an electric washer and a typewriter.

The next year the boys quit the packing house and went to work for their mother; so did Mr. Milne, a science teacher. The plant was extended and modernized and at the end of the 1951 packing season Mrs. Milne said she felt she could call herself a success.

"It's a sort of miracle," she said. Mr. Milne died two years ago.

'Hatless Parade' Among British Women Headache for Industry

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The number of distinguished women daily joining the "hatless parade" is one more headache for Britain's hat designers.

With the hat trade "a shadow of its pre-war self," manufacturers claim it is bad for trade when such women-in-the-news as Sarah Churchill, the Prime Minister's daughter, arrive in London—hatless.

Add to that such a prominent personality as Queen Mary attending a private showing of "Here's to the Memory"—a film scrapbook of the last 50 years—without one of her well-known toques and film star Ann Todd shopping in London's west end in black suit, pearls and no hat, and it may be admitted manufacturers have something to worry about.

Women who once would not dream of going without a hat, now are constantly seen without one.

Many society women, actresses and mannequins lend conviction to growing belief that a smart hair-do is best seen without a hat.

Tee-agers follow the lead of such fashion setters as film stars Jean Simmons and Elizabeth Taylor, both of whom like short cuts and no hats. This type of hair-style is perhaps the greatest enemy of hat salesmen. With hair-dressing prices rising and short cuts requiring constant attention, there is little money left for hat-buying, on most teen-age budgets.

The smooth line of such precision-cut coiffures as the Economy Cut, one of the latest styles by west end hair-dresser Raymond, almost makes a hat unnecessary. With centre parting, the hair waved gently over the ears to taper at the nape in short-cut swirl curls, this style remains smart in any weather.

Latest figures show that the hat trade has dwindled to half its pre-war strength. The output of summer straws has fallen to 69,000 dozen from 788,000 dozen in 1935.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A woman who is alienated from her son and his wife

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have a friend who has been a very good mother to two sons. She is a very sick woman and may not live too long, and her condition is aggravated by the unfriendliness of the wife of one son who has been married over two years. This girl refuses to bother with her mother-in-law, although before she married the son she was constantly at this woman's house, even eating most of her meals there. Now, neither of them ever stops in to see her, though they live in the same town.

My friend never liked the girl very much, but since she couldn't make her son see what he was letting himself in for, she tried to make the best of the situation and was always friendly to the girl.

My friend is heartbroken about it all, and has tried to win the girl over. She has even said she was sorry about having tried to influence her son against marrying her, but the girl is so bitter against her she won't soften a bit. Please tell me what my friend could do.—Maggie.

Dear Maggie:

It is most unfortunate, of course, that there should be hard feelings between your friend and her daughter-in-law. At the same time, even though one may believe the girl should be willing to forgive and forget, it must be admitted that her bitterness is only human. It is pretty hard for a young girl to feel very friendly toward an older woman who, she knows, tried to influence her son against her.

I think about the only thing this mother-in-law can do now is to accept the fact that she has a large measure of responsibility for the situation, and to make up her mind that she will continue to be as friendly as she can with the girl in the hope that eventually the matter may straighten out. It seems to me, too, that her son should try to co-operate with her in bringing his wife around. Perhaps, since you are apparently a close friend of the family, you might sometime have an opportunity to talk with the son in a diplomatic way about this, and perhaps, also, you could, by showing friendliness to the girl herself, help her feel more kindly toward her husband's mother.

Heart, not etiquette book, is best guide

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a bride of six months, and yet my in-laws have not been to my home to see me, although many of my friends have come.

My husband's people maintain that I should extend an invitation to them before they will come. I feel they should come without such an invitation.

Then I have another question. I always thought newlyweds were invited out to dinners for at least a year but, again according to my in-laws, my husband's people think I should have a dinner for them here at my home.

I want to do the right thing so please set me straight.—P. P.

Dear P. P.:

Personally, my feeling is that it is far more important to maintain peace and harmony in a family than to stick by what the etiquette books say. Therefore, I think "the right thing" for you to do would be to fall in with your in-laws wishes, rather than to hold out for your own ideas of what should be done. If they want you to invite them to your home, either just for a little visit or for dinner, do so graciously and hospitably. After all, these are very minor things, and the wise person gives in on minor points for the greater good.

You have far more to gain by being warm and friendly with your husband's people than you have to lose by not following the book.

Did The Milk Sour

By Mary Moore

The motor on my refrigerator had a wheezing sound. I listened all day with fingers crossed and breath bated. Finally at 4:55 p.m. with the outside thermometer at 92 deg. Fahr. it conked out. Before I could decide that it had conked out and had not switched off normally——the refrigeration service office was closed for the day.

Besides a human one, is there any worse tragedy in a household than to have a refrigerator full of hot air? (If my brother read that he would pipe up and say-"yes,—a basement full of water".) The neighbors came to the rescue. For two days the contents from mine were in four different neighbors' refrigerators. Good neighbors are a special brand of friends aren't they? I love mine.

Anyway in the mix-up I had cream and milk go sour. So you know old Scotch Mary—I didn't throw them out. I monkeyed with that super-duper biscuit recipe so I could use sour milk instead of sweet, and they turned out tender and delicious—softer though than "biscuits supreme" as you know them.

SOUR MILK TEA BISCUITS

Two and one-quarter cups sifted cake flour, 1 tablespoon baking powder, 2 teaspoons sugar, 3-4 teaspoon baking soda, 1-2 teaspoon each salt and cream of tartar, 1-2 cup margarine (room temperature), 1-2 cup sour milk. Sift the cake flour to measure, then sift it with all other dry ingredients. Cut in the margarine with pastry blender or work in with fingertips. Quickly stir in the sour milk. Pat out on floured board, cut out with floured cutter and bake on ungreased sheet or pan at 400 deg. Fahr. for about twelve minutes. If you would like a very tender biscuit and are in a very great hurry, use 2-3 cup sour milk, and do not roll dough out,—drop it from spoon onto unbuttered pan and bake as cut out biscuits.

CHERRY OR BERRY SOUR CREAM OPEN PIE

You will need 2 1-2 cups fruit for this; blackberries, raspberries, elderberries, blueberries with a little lemon rind, cherries are all very good. Wash and drain the berries, wash and seed the cherries if used. Arrange in pastry-lined pie plate of 9-inch diameter. Mix together 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour and stir into them 1 cup sour cream and 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg. Pour this evenly over the fruit in crust. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, then reduce heat to 375 deg. Fahr. and bake for 25 or 30 minutes longer. If you keep some well-wrapped pie pastry in the refrigerator, this pie is very quickly made and is a treat.

YORK SPICE CAKE

(Buttermilk or sour milk)

Three-quarters cup shortening or margarine at room temperature, 1 1-4 cups brown sugar and 1 cup white sugar, 3 eggs, 3 cups sifted cake flour, 1 1-2 teaspoons each baking soda and cinnamon. 3-4 teaspoon each nutmeg and cloves (latter is optional), 1 teaspoon salt, 1 1-2 cups buttermilk or sour milk. If you have an electric beater it makes short work of this cake. Cream the shortening or margarine until airy then beat in the sugars, then the eggs. Sift together all of the dry ingredients, then sift them over the creamed mixture, one-third of them at a time, alternately with the buttermilk or sour milk. Pour into greased and floured 9-inch layer pans or 1 13-9-inch oblong pan. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr.; layers take 35 to 40 min.; square or oblong cakes 50 to 55 minutes. Good frosted with white butter or orange rind icing when cool.

SOUR CREAM SALAD DRESSING

In top of double boiler mix 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-4 teaspoon mustard, 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Beat in 1 egg, then slowly add 1 cup sour cream, stirring over heat. Stir until it thickens and immediately remove from heat. When cool, add 1 teaspoon either vinegar or lemon juice. Delicious with shredded garden lettuce.

GOOD MANNERS

By CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

How you say your vacation "How do you do"

You are on your vacation. You are being introduced. The way you acknowledge an introduction is the very first manners—impression you will make on the person to whom you are being introduced. And that first impression is mighty important. . .mighty important. It's easy to remember . . .that the always-correct acknowledgment of an introduction is "How do you do". So you never have to spend any effort to think up any other reply.

But, if you wish to be considered a charming person, watch most carefully how charming people say these little everyday words . . ."How do you do". Notice the grace with which they say them, something-to-remember, something-to-remember-them-by. Hear the cordial tones of voice, the friendly warmth that makes these pedestrian words walk joyously on tiptoe! And for "extra added attraction" people of charm always listen alertly to "catch" the name in an introduction, then they add the name to their "How do you do." And you know how pleased every one of us is when a person has the grace to remember our name, and to use it with grace.

Meet the challenge of that first-impression bow. . .say your "How do you do" with such a delightful manner that the newcomer-in-your-life will think, "Here's a charming person indeed. . .here's a charming person to know!" Nice going on the pathway to Friendship. . .perhaps, who knows, on the shining pathway to Romance!

When she introduces her fiance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I've recently become engaged, so recently that I'm still a bit jittery as to the correct form for introducing "him". In the introductions, should I explain that he is my fiance. . ."John Lane, my fiance," or just say "John Lane?" —Myra B.

You should say "John Lane, my fiance". . .and I should think you would be delighted and proud to say that romantic phrase "my fiance" as you introduce your John!

When she and he meet who speaks first?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

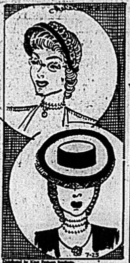
I am a woman, married, 45 years old. I have a neighbor, a man 30 years old. Shouldn't he speak to me first, as we meet, or must I always speak first? —N. N.

It is the woman who is given the prerogative of speaking first. And so, if you and this neighbor of yours don't know each other very well, it is courteous for him to wait for you to bow and/or speak to him first. But if you knew each other well, or even fairly well, and meet quite often, it is natural that you would greet each other simultaneously . . . neither one "standing on ceremony" as to who greets whom first.

BEAUTY

Girls who wear glasses

Opticians are now contributing to the attractive appearance of their lady customers. They are making a successful effort to overcome the idea that glasses make a woman look old or academic, a notion that has persisted for many years and has prevented many a woman from protecting her eyes with glass panes to aid vision. If by chance you have discovered that reading matter blurs, that it is difficult for you to thread a needle, these fashionable glasses will soften the blow.



Don't try to hide your glasses with unbecoming brims.

Specialists claim that certain styles will have a favorable effect upon features that do not precisely qualify. They go even further, saying that certain designs of frames and lenses will emphasize good features. We do know that some older women look better with specs than without them, especially those who have little fleshy hammocks under their eyes.

To avoid the strain caused by strong sunlight, they suggest shell frames with dark lenses that provide the maximum protection from glare. Even though you have normal sight, you should wear dark glasses when loitering on the beach or traveling in your motor car.

Here is what the opticians have to say about offerings that are supposed to make the cash-customer look chic and lovely.

The woman with a long nose and narrow, thin face should wear glasses with a low bridge and fairly deep lenses; they will make her nose look shorter, her face fuller.

The girl with an oval face should never wear large, round lenses. Angular lenses produce a better effect and the low bridge imparts more breadth to the upper portion of the face.

And do you know that the square-faced individual must be particularly fussy, because a low bridge will make the portrait look fuller?

The idea now is to wear glasses jauntily, make them a dress accessory. They can emphasize personality and, as described above, can even scale the features to better balance.

When wearing vision aids, your hair, hat and make-up are important considerations. A sleek hairdo may be better for you than a fluffy, curly one. But style your hair for youthfulness nevertheless.

See that your hat has enough brim to shield your eyes from light reflections, but don't try to hide your specs with unbecoming brims.

Real Centre of Ungava's Iron Deposits Yet To Be Discovered, Geologists Believe

What is in iron ore? What makes good ore and bad? How was it formed in the first place? How do you find it? These are some of the questions Forbes Rhude, Canadian Press Business Editor, answers in this story, one of a series written after a visit to the Labrador-Ungava wilderness country.

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Writer

You don't need to be a geologist to know there's iron ore in Labrador-Ungava. The rain puddles there are red with it.

For that matter, you don't need to be a geologist to know there's iron in your own backyard. Iron is the fourth most common thing in the earth's crust, making up about five per cent of it and ranking oxygen, silica and aluminum.

But where is it in the right blend so people will buy it? To find out that, you need a geologist.

Take the iron ore now being developed in Labrador-Ungava. We can say it is 55-per-cent iron in natural state, and 60-per-cent iron when dried.

But that doesn't mean much, from the point of view of selling it, unless we can also say that it it, unless we can also say that it is per cent—and almost free of other undesirable impurities such as phosphorus and sulphur. The rest of the ore's make-up is oxygen.

Similar To Mesabi

This make-up, it happens, is similar to that of the Mesabi ores which most North American steel plants were built to handle.

If you wish to know how the iron ore got into Labrador-Ungava, you might recall the words on Canada's Parliament Buildings at Ottawa:

"The wholesome sea is at her gates, her gates both east and west."

Well, that sea not only used to be at her gates, but inside her gates, and it left a legacy of wealth millions of years ago before it retired as the land rose.

The sea that once rolled over the western plains supplied the sediments from which came oil. The sea that rolled through Labrador-Ungava — through what is known as the Labrador Trough—supplied the sediments from which came iron ore.

Yes, oil and iron, in different ways, were built up from the deposits of old seas. Oil is from the bodies of tiny once-living organisms. Iron ore, as we know it, is from the iron content, perhaps of old hills rich in iron from when the world was built, which weathered and were carried in bits to the sea-bottom.

Those old bits were pounded and packed and generally kicked around by the convulsions of nature, by rising land and folding land, by crushing ice, until they are what they are today.

What they are today is sometimes darkish gravel, sometimes rock of various hues — but, apparently, gravel or rock, they are the same thing when analyzed.

The old sediments would not qualify for cookstove or crowbar if local water action of some period had not washed out most of their silica.

Some of the sediments which settled nearby didn't have this fortune. They still have too much silica and no one will buy them—not yet.

But Dr. A. E. Moss, native of Strasbourg, Sask., and geologist for Iron Ore Company of Canada, says that, with less special treatment than is given to some United States ores, further great bodies of iron ore in Labrador-Ungava would become salable. He thinks that may come about in 25 years or so.

Geologists are like writers of "whodunits" in reverse. Instead of asking "whodunit?" they ask "what happened?" and they follow clue after clue, and that leads them to ore bodies.

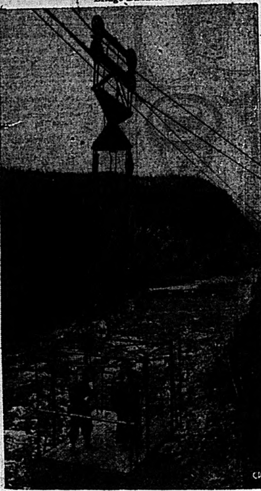
In Labrador-Ungava, long after the ore bodies were formed, the Ice Age moved about 2,000 feet of ice over them, and lopped off the ore tops, so that what is found today are their roots. As the ice retreated it left behind the gravel and boulders it had collected in its advance.

The ore found so far is under a relatively light overburden of this material. Dr. Moss says that other ore bodies may lie deeper and that maybe the real centre of the iron deposits has not yet been found.

The deposits found are in pockets which go down about 450 feet from the surface, with 3,000,000 to 50,000,000 tons of ore in a pocket. These are spaced from a quarter-mile to five or six miles apart and run in a series. It is possible that they are tied together farther down.

Drillers are drilling and geologists are out tracing rocks, for further answers to "what happened?" So far, enough answers have been found to justify the expenditure of $200,000,000.

Bridge Builders



Workers cross the Moisie River in a car of the 800-foot cableway used during construction of a steel railway bridge across the river. The bridge will be one of 24 on the 360-mile rail line that will run from Seven Islands, Que., to Knob Lake in central Labrador-Ungava. — (CP Photo.)

First Anniversary Of Commonwealth Division Honored

SEOUL, Korea — (AP)— The Commonwealth Division observed the first anniversary of its formation today in positions on the Korean battlefront.

Men of the multi-country division, first of its kind and made up of some of the Commonwealth's famed fighting units, have been continuously on the line since the division was organized a year ago.

Gen. James A. Van Fleet, United States Eighth Army commander, lauded the Commonwealth unit as a "great and gallant division' In an anniversary tribute, Van Fleet said the division has demonstrated high courage, unwavering determination and all-encompassing combat excellence in defeating the Communist aggressor."

Countries represented in the division are Britain, Canada, Australia, India, New Zealand and South Africa.

The division was organized July 28 last year from three infantry brigades already fighting in Korea. These were the 28th and 29th British brigades and the 25th Canadian Brigade.

West Germany Holds Little Hope For Repatriation of Prisoners

By EDO KOENIG

BONN, Germany (Reuters(—Six hundred and fifty former German soldiers and civilians have been repatriated after seven years Russian imprisonment but West German sources see little hope for the quick return of the rest of the German prisoners held by the Russians. These are estimated at over 80,000.

The 650 were the first large shipment of Germans to be sent home from Russia since Tass, official Soviet news agency, two years ago announced that the repatriation of German war prisoners had been completed.

At that time, Tass said 13,000 others still were being held either because they had been convicted of war crimes or because they were invalids.

The 650 arrived at Bischofwerda, in the Soviet zone. About 270 of the party, half of whom were ex-soldiers captured by the Russians towards the end of the war, crossed into West Germany.

None could offer any clue as to whether the Russians intend now to resume the repatriation of German war prisoners which they broke off shortly after the much-disputed Tass announcement.

Government officials in Bonn "guessed" that the unexpected return of the prisoners might perhaps be a result of the public hearings of a special United Nations commission earlier this year dealing with the fate of German prisoners of war.

The West German government gave the commission the names of about 80,000 former German soldiers who are known to be still in Soviet camps.

Bishop D. Heckel, chairman of the Evangelical Relief Organization for Internees and Prisoners-of-war, said recently that altogether more than 1,500,000 Germans are missing in the Soviet Union.

These include soldiers and civilians, 200,000 to 250,000 of whom are believed to be still alive. He said 80 Roman Catholic priests, 60 Protestant minister, about 230 physicians and 238 generals are known to be in captivity.

Mail is now reaching the prisoner-of-war camps regularly and the treatment of the prisoners has improved. Almost all are employed on work projects and many receive a little pay with which they can buy additional food or tobacco in state stores.

Some months ago, the Russians allowed the prisoners to receive photographs in their mail. Censors struck the words "no more" out of letters in which prisoners had written, 'please send no more photos,'' Bishop Heckel said.

The ex-prisoners seemed impressed by what they described as "war fever" among the Soviet people. They said that there is much talk of an impending "American aggression" against the Soviet Union and her East European satellites.

Some claimed new anti-aircraft batteries are being set up outside large cities. They noted a "be prepared to defend your country" trend in Soviet domestic propaganda.

The ex-prisoners said that they had talked to many Russian workers with whom they were employed on re-construction projejcjts. The general feeling ... was that there would be war between the East and the West over Germany before long.

Yankees Lose Fifth Straight But Snap String With 6-0 Win; Shantz Tosses 18th Victory

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Preacher Roe, tall, lanky Brooklyn Dodgers southpaw, is the National League's leading pitcher and also the luckiest.

Roe hasn't lost a game all season but his impressive-looking 7-0 doesn't take into consideration the fact that he has finished only six of his 17 starts.

Three times he has failed to last even the first inning. Eleven times he was either knocked out or pulled for a pinch-hitter. But every time he has been yanked while the Dodgers were trailing, his mates have rallied at least to tie the score, thus saving him from defeat.

Last Win June 24

His last victory was June 24. Since then he has started five times without being involved in a final decision.

The story was the same yesterday when he was lifted in the sixth inning with Brooklyn trailing St. Louis Cardinals 3-2. The Dodgers tied the score 3-3 but the Cards scored in the ninth to win their third straight from Brooklyn 4-3. The loser? Reliefer Johnny Rutherford.

Over in the American League, little Bobby Shantz played up the contrast between his pitching feats and those of the Preacher.

Shantz, who has finished 19 of 21 games he has started for the sixth-place Philadelphia Athletics, went all the way to beat Chicago White Sox 3-1 on five hits in the first game of a doubleheader.

18th For Shantz

It was the 18th win against three defeats for Shantz. The Athletics also won the second game 9-3.

Yesterday was quite a day for southpaws. Reliefer Harry (The Cat) Brecheen was awarded the victory over Brooklyn, his first over the Dodgers since July 29, 1948. Harry Perkowski snapped New York's five-game winning streak, pitching Cincinnati Reds to an 11-4 triumph over the Giants. The scheduled second game was postponed by rain, leaving the Giants still 4½ games behind the Dodgers.

Billy Hoeft, 20-year-old Detroit lefthander, handed New York Yankees their fifth straight loss, pitching the Tigers to an 8-3 triumph over Allie Reynolds. The Yankees snapped their losing string, longest under Manager Casey Stengel, when rookie southpaw Bill Miller shut out the Tigers 6-0 in the second game.

Other lefthanders to shine were Alex Kellner, who hurled the Athletics' second game win over the White Sox, and Gene Bearden, who pitched St. Louis Browns to their third straight win over the Boston Red Sox 8-1. The Red Sox, with Manager Lou Boudreau appearing in the lineup for the first time this year, took the second game of the twin-bill 9-3.

Indians Take Second

Cleveland Indians took two from Washington, 3-1 and 3-2, and climbed into second place in the American League. Luke Easter's three-run homer in the eighth off Walter Masterson overcame a 2-0 deficit in the nightcap. Bob Lemon and Steve Gromek were the winners.

Philadelphia Phillies swept a twin bill from Chicago 12-8 and 3-0, to wrest fourth place from the Cubs.

Vern Bickford won his fifth straight as Boston Braves defeated Pittsburgh 5-2 in the first game of a doubleheader. Ralph Kiner slammed his 20th homer for the Pirates. The second game was called after 11 innings because of darkness with the teams tied 3-3.

Jap Swimmers Set Olympic Mark

HELSINKI (CP)—Japanese swimmers set an Olympic record today in winning their trial heat of the 800-metre relay. The record time was 8:42.1—3 9-10 seconds faster than the record set by the United States in 1948.

The Canadian relay team finished fourth among the six teams in the same heat. Time for the Canadian squad of Peter Salmon, Vancouver; Luçien Beaumont, Quebec; Leo Portelance, Ocean Falls, B. C., and Allen Gilchrist, Ocean Falls, was 9:10.9.

The time wasn't fast enough to place Canada among the eight qualifying teams.

France won the first of the three trial heats with Britain second, Australia third and Russia fourth. The United States won the second.

A General Motors Value

Call out the Reserves with a touch of your toe!

Most cars lead a double life.

A good part of the time they're running errands, taking children to school, taking women to stores, taking men to work, taking family and friends to clubs and social functions.

It doesn't call for a very great output of horsepower for duties like these.

But there are times when you want a car that can do vastly more, and these are the times when you'll want what this year's ROADMASTER has to offer.

Beneath its proud hood, there's a Fireball 8 Engine—a valve-in-head that can let loose 170 lively horsepower when needed.

And—alongside this engine—there's also an Airpower carburetor which thriftily feeds fuel and air through two smaller-than-usual barrels for normal driving—which means that you now use less gas at 40 than you'd formerly use at 30.

But there are two barrels in reserve—waiting for you to call them into action—and they let loose a soaring rush of power that sinks your shoulders back into the seat cushion, swoops you past a truck—out of a tight spot—up a hill—sets your speedometer needle to registering added miles more than twice as fast as your watch can tick off the seconds.

This is an experience you certainly should know firsthand.

You should also know how Buick's Power Steering* provides a helping hand in slow-motion manoeuvres—lets you keep the "feel" of the car in straightaway driving.

And—just for good measure—this 1952 ROADMASTER also has the biggest brakes of any postwar Buick—the greatest trunk space since spare tires moved off the front fenders—a warning light that glows when the parking brake is set—and to top it all, the smartest interior fabrics that Buick has ever offered.

When are you coming in to look this distinguished performer over? We urge you to make it soon.

Redmen Come From Behind To Edge Peterborough 4-3 In COBL Thriller

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

FITZ FOR HITZ

They don't come any closer than that one. And if any hero's medals are being passed around they should pin a big one on the bosom of Dick Fitzpatrick. The Redmen second-sacker drove in three of the team's four runs, the third being the result of a game-busting double that sent Pat Gilmour across the plate in a cloud of dust, to win the pastime.

It was a fitting end to a fine game, if you are a Redmen fan. For seven innings Lefty Bill Dadson, gunning for his first triumph over the Redmen in their own happy hunting grounds, seemed well on his way to that achievement. He handcuffed the Carsoneers with five hits and it not only looked like defeat but one of those setbacks usually referred to with the use of the name of a striped kitty.

But Fitz' bat suddenly came to life, or more life is better. He already had driven out one single, when the boys set the stage for the seventh innings drama. With Don Semark and Pat Gilmour pawing dirt impatiently on the sacks. Fitz connected for a fence-touching double that brought the count to 3-2. Then "Push-'Em-Up" Tony Pettitt, not to be outdone, blasted another two-bagger and the faithful was on its feet cheering as the tying run crossed the plate.

Don Padgett obligingly tossed Pat Gilmour's bid for a single badly to Bill Edger on first. The Fitz strode to the plate. He blasted a double to right centre field, and Gilmour Longboated it around the sacks in a streak of white uniform. He raced for the plate and crossed it in time for the winning run.

It was one of the best games played here this season with the issue in doubt until the final innings.

The Redmen play hosts to the Kingston Monarchs here tonight and that should be another for the archives. Stan Scrutton's crew are ever dangerous and there's no reason why they should be different tonight.

The gals had a swell time at the "Ladies Night" show Saturday evening some twenty prizes being handed out by the Red management in ticket draws, thanks to the generosity of city merchants and business men.

ROCKY OR THE KID?

The second base spot in Yankee Stadium tonight should be the scene of plenty of pivot action when the dream fighters, Harry "Kid" Matthews and Rocky Marciano, the Brockton rock-fisted slugger, tangle in a heavyweight clash. The winner, is said by the boys supposed to be in the know, to be the next world's champion, with no apologies to ageless Jersey Joe Walcott, present incumbent.

The bout is claimed to be the most exciting, most natural that could be made among the present crop of heavyweight contenders. Both are well-mannered clean fighters, held in high respect in their circles. Both served overseas and both are undefeated over a long stretch of time. Marciano has never lost a right in four years as a pro. Matthews has not lost a scrap in six and one-half years and is unbeaten in his last seventy battles. He has an over-all record of ninety-six victories, three losses and six draws. Sixty-two of his triumphs came by knockouts. Only five of Marciano's opponents have gone the distance with him.

But the big boys are divided in their opinions as to the outcome. Abe Attell, former featherweight champion, says "Brains with a punch will always beat muscle." He thinks Matthews will stretch the Rock on the canvas for the count. The other side claims Rocky has met and defeated better names than the "Kid". Joe Louis, Rex Layne, Roland LaStarza have felt the weight and shock of his lethal fists.

But all fingers point to one thing that gives Matthews an advantage. And he is Jack Hurley, skinny bespectacled and sharp-tongued manager who had the nerve and audacity to take the Matthews case to Congress when the "Kid" was getting the "brush-off" from the International Boxing Club.

Hurley has great respect for Marciano. "Built like a truck," he said, "but, Rocky is going to be in there with a fighter who will out-think him, Matthews has two ways of winning — by knockout or decision. He'll stab him silly and cut him up and if a spot shows, he'll knock him out with his combination. If not he can still go along and out-box him."

Charlie Goldman, Rocky's trainer, who fronts for manager Marty Weill, who fronts for Al. Weill, his father, has a different idea. Says Goldie: "Matthews is an old cutie, and any old fighter can't stand up under the pressure Rocky puts on an opponent. Matthews stands up straight and tries to pull away from punches. Rocky will double up when he does that and nail him with the second punch. Rocky wont let him have the room he wants. He'll back him into corners and punish him till his legs give out. It's got to be a knockout."

There you have it. "Yer pays yer money and takes wer choice." This department, will go along with the Kid. True, Marciano knocked out Joe Louis, but his exhibition against Rex Layne was terrifically amateurish. He'll have to be a lot better tonight, if he expects to cop the decision.

NOTHING TO IT

Failure of the Kingston Monarch's delegation to show up at the meeting caused a postponement of the Central Ontario Baseball League executive meeting yesterday afternoon. Peterborough and Belleville Redmen were represented but President Jack Devine decided to lay the confab over until all opinions on league playoffs were available. The Kingston management will be contacted tonight on the matter.

The meeting waited 2½ hours for the Monarchs but they failed to put in an appearance although a telephone conversation revealed the delegation had left for the scene.

Trail 3-0 Until 7th Innings; Fitzpatrick Drives in Winner With Double in Final Frame

Dick Fitzpatrick's ringing double to right centre field broke up a three-all stalemate and gave the Belleville Redmen a 4-3 victory over the Peterborough Petes here Saturday night.

Actually Don Padgett's error in the bottom of the ninth paved the way for the Redmen victory in one of the best games played here this season. The Petes shortstop threw badly to Bill Edger on first giving Pat Gilmour a life. Fitzpatrick who had blasted a two-run double in his previous appearance drove the ball to the same place and Gilmour raced home with the winner. One was out when the winning run scored.

Led Till 7th

Over 600 fans saw a close hard fought battle with the Petes leading 3-0 to the seventh. Lefty Bill Dadson, who has yet to defeat the Redmen here appeared well on his way to his first vcitory and had stopped the Red batters cold with five hits to this point.

Then the Reds clustered three clouts, two doubles and a single and the ball game was tied up. Dadson allowed 10 hits over the route giving up one walk and striking out seven. His clutch pitching in two innings got him out of holes.

The Reds used two hurlers in their 15th win of the season. Bob Bunton started and yielded eight hits good for three runs till the seventh when Johnny Mowat took over. Mowat was touched for three hits, one a double, but held the Petes off the scoresheet.

It was a tight pitching duel between Bunton and Dadson for four innings neither giving up a run. The Petes drew first blood in the fifth when they rapped out four consecutive singles off the bats of Edger, Garvey, Menzies and Stewart after two were gone. Two runners scored before Bunton got the third out.

Edger drew a walk and was sacrificed to second by Garvey in the seventh when Mowat took over. Menzies drove a double to left scoring Edger for the Petes third and last run, and Stewart came up with his third hit of the game. Mowat retired the side with no further damage.

Exploded for Three

The Reds exploded for the tying runs in their half of the seventh with Semark starting it with a single after Kelleher grounded out. Mowat drew a life on Garvey's error and went out on Gilmour's grounder. Fitzpatrick blasted out a double scoring the runners and galloped home on Tony Pettitt's two baser which followed immediately.

That was that until the ninth when Fitzpatrick came through with the game-winning double.

The Redmen second baseman paced his team's attack with a double and two singles. Pettitt got a double and single with Al. Kelleher good for a triple. Gilmour, Bush, Mulholland and Semark got the rest.

Joe Stewart led the Petes with the hickory getting a double and two singles. Al Menzies hit a double and single with Edger getting a pair. Lowrey, Garvey, Dugan and Dadson contributed the remainder.

Lowrey, Petes' centrefielder, was tossed out of the game in the eighth by Umpire George Whitman for excess verbiage. He was replaced by Bigford.

Guelph Loses Nine of Ten, Slips to Third

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph Maple Leafs continue to slip steadily lower in senior Intercounty Baseball League standings. Saturday night they lost their ninth game in 10 starts and sank into third spot.

The Guelph loss —7-2 to London Majors—and a 6-4 victory for Brantford Red Sox over Waterloo Tigers gave Brantford sole possession of second place. Kitchener Panthers held their 2½ game margin on league leadership by defeating Galt Terriers 7-5.

Southpaw Arnold Early held Guelph to six hits in London, and kept the Leafs scoreless after the first inning. Early walked six and fanned eight. John Adie started for Guelph and was replaced by Lou Fauth who was relieved by Bud Kimball. Adie was named the loser.

Catchers Bill Dixon started the winners on their way in the third with a two-run homer. Leftfielder Russ Evon paced the Majors with three hits in four trips.

Brantford took a 6-0 lead in the first six innings at Waterloo. The Tigers picked up four in the eighth but were unable to close the gap. George Copeland pitched eight innings for Brantford with Frank Parker and Alf Gavey each hurling one inning. Waterloo also used three pitchers. Tom Lawson was tagged with the loss. Red Sox first baseman Bill Leconte lifted a home run over the right field wall in the second inning. Third baseman Bob Fisher of Waterloo was tops at the plate with three for five.

Kitchener Panthers pulled their game out of the first in Galt with five runs in the eighth inning. They picked up two runs in the second inning on home runs by leftfielder Pete Karpuk and rightfielder Dick Welker. First baseman Ed McGillivray tied up the game in the eighth with a three-run homer. Hal Johnson was the winning pitcher and Frank Howland the loser.

Tonight Brantford is at Guelph; St. Thomas at Galt and Waterloo at London.

Rocky Marciano Solid 2-1 Favorite Over 'Kid' Matthews in Dream Fight

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK —(AP) — Rocky Marciano, the Brockton, Mass., blockbuster, remains a solid 2-1 favorite over stylish Harry Matthews of Seattle for their 10-round heavyweight elimination bout tonight at 10:00 p.m. EDT in Yankee Stadium.

The million-dollar prize is a title shot at heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott in September.

Because of the long hot spell and the headline competition from the conventions and Olympics, the gate probably will fall short of original expectations. Although there will be no radio, television or theatre television, the best guess on the house is 25,000 people and $250,000.

The match figures to be the perfect pairing of the slugger and the boxer with Marciano pitting his crunching power and strength against the superior boxing skill of his older and more experienced opponent.

Perhaps the 29-year-old Matthews will expose Rocky as an awkward bullyboy who can be counterpunched at will. The boxing kno-how of 105 pro bouts plus the keen brain of manager Jack Hurley are Matthews' chief assets.

Picks Rock in 5th

But the pick here is Marciano on a knockout in the fifth round. Marciano will have the edge in weight, about 187 to 181, when they step on the scales. But Matthews' long arms give him a decided seven-inch advantage in reach.

Marciano, bronzed and swarthy with sturdy legs and the arms and fists of a blacksmith, is a crashing slugger.

Matthews, the classic stylist, moves easily and counters quickly with his lightning fast hands. A gruelling body puncher with short straight chops to the ribs, he is a master at rolling with punches and stepping back with quick counters.

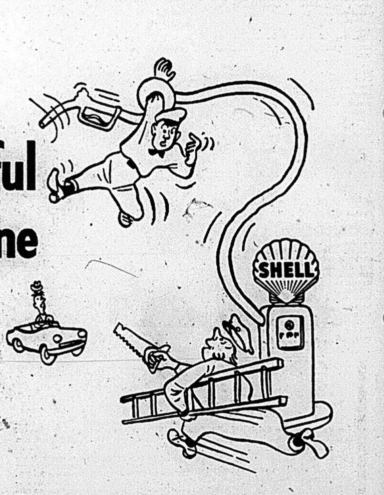
The Most Powerful Gasoline Your Car Can Use!



Get Activated!

Today's more powerful engines require a highly complex gasoline to deliver their full power. There can be as many as 1500 different chemical compounds in a gallon of gasoline.

To select the best of these chemicals, and to arrange them properly to fulfill the needs of your car calls for the last word in refinery equipment and scientific skill.

It is Shell's manufacturing policy to make "The most powerful gasoline your car can use." Shell activates gasoline by splitting and rearranging petroleum molecules.

Canadians Break Olympic 'Egg'; Score 27 Points To Take 17th Position

Russians Lead Pack With 496, Americans Second With 387; Thirty-Six Records Shattered

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—The 1952 Olympic Games came to the half-way mark Sunday in another roaring blaze of track and field records, brought under control only because there was nothing left for the flames to feed on.

In the full schedule of 32 track and field events run off since last Sunday, 27 Olympic and nine world records were broken.

The climax was reached yesterday when Emil Zatopek, Czechoslovakia's sensational long-distance runner, ran his field of 66 ragged and won the Olympic marathon, completing an Olympic triple within a week.

Zatopek Day

Zatopek already had the 5,000-metre and 10,000-metre gold medals when he set out on Sunday's marathon, a race in which he had never competed before. It was Zatopek's race practically all the way and so far as the crowd of 70,000 in Olympic stadium was concerned, it was Zatopek Day.

But while Zatopek was pounding the paved highways outside Helsinki and then trotting fresh-looking into the stadium for the finish in Olympic record time, here's what happened:

Jamaica's quartet of runners won the 1,600-metre relay and set world and Olympic records. Canada's team placed fourth—the only point-scoring place won by Canada in track and field competition.

John Mikaelsson of Sweden won the 10,000-metre walk, setting a record and giving Sweden its first gold medal in these games.

U.S. Wins Relays

The United States men's team won the 400-metre relay and American girls won the women's 400-metre relay. A poor exchange of the baton cost Australia's girls the victory.

Ester Brand of South Africa won the women's high jumping championship.

The Sunday record-breaking was only a continuation of what happened Saturday and, for that matter, what had been going on all week.

The Saturday show in the stadium came up with these performances:

Joseph Barthel won the 1,500-metre run in record time, giving Luxembourg its first Olympic championship in history. Bob McMillen of the United States almost caught Barthel in a sensational finish.

Blonde Galina Zybina of Russia won the women's shot put, setting world and Olympic records with her toss of 50 feet, 2.58 inches.

Bob Mathias of the United States retained his decathlon championship and erased a world record.

Marjorie Jackson of Australia won the women's 200-metre sprint to complete a double. She already had the 100-metre championship.

Canada Scores

Canada came into the point-scoring for the first time during the weekend.

George Genereux of Saskatoon started things with his brilliant victory Saturday in the clay pigeon section of the trapshooting tournament.

Gerry Gratton and Dave Baillie of Montreal placed second and fifth respectively, in weightlifting competitions.

Ken Lane and Doug Hawgood o' Toronto scored a second in th canoeing race for Canadian-typ pairs. Norm Lane of Ottawa was fifth in the singles.

Along with the fourth-place finish for the 1,600-metre relay team, all this added up to 27 points for Canada.

Pointless before the weekend in the unofficial standings, Canada went into 17th place.

Russia In Lead

Despite success at track and field, the United States still trailed Russia with little hope of catching up in the final week of various sports.

Russia, bolstered by heavy scoring in gymnastics and wrestling, led with 496½ points, on the 10-5-4-3-2-1 basis for first six places in any final. The United States had 387 points. Hungary was the next closest with 164.

Except for Canada's fourth in the 1,600-metre relay, Canadians had no point-score placings in the final two days of track and field competition.

Paul Collins of Wolfville, N.S., was 39th in the marathon, in which a field of 66 started and 53 finished.

Alice Whitty of Vancouver placed 10th in the women's high jump and Bob Adams of Saskatoon placed 19th in the gruelling decathlon

Cagers Eliminated

Canada's basketball team was eliminated Saturday after successive defeats at the hands of Brazil and Argentina. Both South American teams showed surprising strength. The Canadians were defeated by the narrowest of margins—57-55 by Brazil and 82-82 by Argentina.

The final game in the bracket Sunday was only a consolation match and Canada lost to the Philippines, 81-65. Both teams were out of the round-robin tournament because of two successive defeats. The bracket leaders, Brazil and Argentina, moved on to semi-final play.

The United States, Uruguay, Russia, France, Chile and Bulgaria remained in the championship tournament, along with Brazil and Argentina.

Swimmers Beaten

The first gold medal in the swimming championships went to Clark Scholes of the United States, winner in the 100-metre free-style race. Canadian entrants were eliminated Saturday.

Italy won the team epee championship Saturday in the fencing competition. In the individual section, Ed Brooke of Montreal was eliminated in the first round.

In the yachting competition, European entries appeared to be certain winners in most classes. In the series of races now near an end, Norway was leading in the six-metre class. Canada was sixth. Italy was leading in the Star class, with Canada 1th, and in the Dragon class Argentina was in front and Canada in ninth place In the Finn dinghy class Canada was far back in 13th place behind the leading Denmark entry.

Buffalo West Sides Club Winners Royal Canadian Henley Championship

By CRAIG SWAYZE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—The powerful Buffalo West Sides climaxed a week-long display of rowing strength here Saturday with four important senior victories, enough to clinch the Maple Leaf Trophy, emblematic of supremacy in the 70th Royal Canadian Henley Regatta.

Buffalo collected nine firsts in four days of rowing while finishing second six times and third three. The string of successes gave the club 392 points, a record for the regatta and 203½ better than St. Catharines in the runner-up spot.

Angyal Wins Singles

The host club racked up 188½ points for second while Toronto Dons were fourth with 77½. Joe Angyal's victory in the championship singles Saturday was enough to boost the New York Athletic Club into fifth place.

Angyal earned his ninth Canadian He was five lengths in front of Rowing club. Bob Platt, who had rowed in the Senior Doubles final earlier in the afternoon, trailed in third for his Toronto Dons.

Buffalo clinched its victory in the senior heavy eights by edging a young St. Catharines crew by two feet. The United States club led all the way from the gun to retain the Ned Hanlan Memorial Trophy for the sixth consecutive year.

The three other West Side victories came in the Senior 155-pound eights, the Senior 135-pound eights and the senior 155-pound fours. The St. Catharines Club gained its lone Saturday victory in the 135-pound fours on a one-foot edge over Brockville in the closest finish of the program.

Retain Schoolboy Title

The St. Catharines Collegiate retained the Canadian schoolboy eights title and the Calder Cleland Memorial Trophy with an easy win over Lachine, Que, High school and Roosevelt High School of Wyandotte, Mich., in that order.

Rudy Jezek of the New York A.C. gave his club its second win of the day in the senior 145-pound singles. He finished a length up on Bill Lang of the Minnesota Boat club while Hamilton's Tom Smith was third.

The Detroit Boat Club won the 135-pound fours and the Senior Heavy fours. Ottawa was favored to win the Senior Heavy Fours, but faded badly after leading for three-quarters of the course and finished a poor third.

Sweep Doubles

The Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia and Dons of Toronto swept the doubles field. Bob Mahan and John Kauffman won the senior 145-pound event for Vespers while Bob Platt and Johnny Charlton of Dons took the senior doubles.

At a meeting held Friday, the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen elected Joe Wright Jr. of the Toronto Argonauts, as its president for 1952. He succeeds J.A. House of St. Catharines.

Canadian Invents Diving Lung

Mrs. Jack Clemas helps her husband into the underwater lung invented by a Sarnia, Ont., watchmaker, William Moon. The lung, utilizing a standard hospital oxygen tank, allows a diver to stay underwater for as long as an hour and sells for $50, half the price of comparable equipment made elsewhere. With the lung $4,000 worth of gear from a sunken yacht in Sarnia's harbor, and inventor Moon is on the track of another ship sunk in 1907. — Central Press Canadian.

Sport in Brief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

E. P. Taylor's Acadian Saturday captured the 99th Quebec Queen's Plate by outlasting R. J. Speer's Lord Strome in the mile and a furlong race at Montreal, winning by a head in a thrilling photo finish.

It was a two-horse race as Ontario Plate winner Epigram never threatened and Doug Mark's Espanola faded after the first half-mile.

Cuban jockey Jose Vina got Acadian on top at the start and kept him there to cover the route in 1.52 4-5.

Taylor received a net of $3,700, plus the Queen's 50 guineas and the breeder's share of $200.

The United States yesterday completed a 5-0 sweep over Japan in the American zone Davis Cup eliminations at Cincinnati but not before a favored Art Larsen had been given the hardest kind of a battle by the youngest member of the Japanese team.

The erratic American southpaw from San Leandro, Calif., finally emerged with a 6-1, 3-6, 6-1, 5-7, 6-3 triumph as 20-year-old Atsuhi Miyagi tired noticeably in the final set.

Prior to that match Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, the United States' No. 1 singles player, turned in the best American performance of the three days of battling as he polished off Fumiteru Nakano in just 5 minutes by scores of 6-2, 6-1, 6-2.

The Americans will meet Cuba at Havana next week-end.

The Stork, sailed by Jerry Castle of Rochester, N.Y., Saturday won the George Cup, most coveted trophy in Lake Ontario sailing competition.

The Circle, skipped by Red Dixon of Toronto, won two of the three races but placed second in the point-system tabulation.

In third place was the Meteor from Youngstown, N.Y.

Jean Dillon, the six-year-old mare owned by J. J. Smith of Orangeville, thrilled a large crowd at Thorncliffe Saturday when she in the fast time of 2.07 2-5.

The Trotting Stake was won by Celia's Counsel, owned by Hon. W. Earl Rowe. The mare went to the front as the field headed into the back stretch for the last time and won in 2:08 1-5.

The West Indian Cricket Club of Montreal yesterday defeated the Ottawa Valley Cricket Council by one wicket in a match at Rideau Hall.

The West Indians scored 129 for nine wickets and the Ottawa Club 128.

Diamond Gauthier, Montreal Municipal, yesterday beat a field which included U.S. Open champion Julius Boros, to take the Lachute Open Golf tournament with a two-under-par 70.

Boros, Mid-Pines, N.C., was second with 71, and Rodolphe Huot, Royal Quebec, third with 72.

AT THE McCARTHY — Evelyn Keyes takes a rest in the hay after a long, but far from uninteresting journey between Mexico City and Acapulco. All this takes place in the gay, new comedy "One Big Affair," in which she co-stars with Dennis O'Keefe. The Benedict Bogeaus production which is being released by United Artists, opens today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Second feature on the some program presents Celia Johnson, Cecil Parker in "I Believe in You."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A borderline bid is on the brink of something. It may be a bid of one that is almost a pass. It may be a bid of one that is almost a bid of two or three or four.

Cast your peepers over the hand you see here:

♠A 10 9 3
♥K
♦A K 10
♣A K J 10 2

Give it a close checkup. You will find it is on the rim of more than one kind of bid. Is it an opening of one or two or three or four clubs? Is it an opening of one or more in something else?

An opening of one club would show five tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks, and a biddable suit. An opening of two clubs would show a hand containing nine tricks with a biddable suit.

An opening of three clubs would show a seven card solid suit of clubs with no outside trick. An opening of four clubs would show eight tricks with a re-rebiddable suit and a sure trick outside.

This hand contains five sures; two combination of ace and king besides an ace. It has six high cards; the three aces and three kings. Six highs and two shorts in hearts are eight tricks.

Thus, it has all the needs for an opening bid of one with more in this, that, and the other department. Are these extras enough for one of the higher openings? Not in all respects.

For an opening of two clubs it is short one trick, although it has all the other necessary equipment. In other words, it is on the borderline of an opening bid of two clubs.

For an opening of three clubs it lacks enough in length of suit. And it is too strong in other suits. For an opening of four clubs it lacks a suit that is strong enough, being only rebiddable.

With a choice between an almost-correct bid and a correct bid, make no compromise. Always start with the correct bid. Your partners will last longer. So will you.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Corrine Calvet and Zsa Zsa Gabor have long been tossing mild insults back and fourth at each other, but they are getting less mild.

Miss Calvet said in an interview she is consulting her lawyer about some of her adversary's recent remarks.

That brought up the question: "How do you get along with other women?"

"Not too well," the French actress remarked. "I like men better, and they seem to like me."

She qualified: "I get along well with European women, because we understand each other. European women are honest with other women; there is no sham about them.

No Thief

"But I do not fare so well with American women. They believe all the legends about French girls, and they think I am going to try to take their men away from them. How ridiculous!

"I think American women are not as open and above-board as Europeans and that is why divorce is such a problem in this country. The women do not let their future husbands know what they are getting. Perhaps a girl finds a man she wants to marry, but she is not his type. So she changes her type to please him. Not until after the marriage does he find out that she isn't really what he expected. No wonder marriages fail!"

"My father gave me some good advice," she added. "He told me that when I found a man I liked, I should let him take me out to dinner, have a few drinks with him and stay out late. Then I should invite him to come to breakfast the next morning at 9.

"On the next morning, my father told me, I should sleep until the doorbell rings. Then I should answer the door myself, with my hair uncombed, no make-up and a slight hangover. My father said: 'If he wants to marry you then, I'll give you my blessing.'"

Although rated a top contender in the midget racing field, Clark Gable also is known as the most ruthless driver on the tracks. Barbara Stanwyck, syndicated columnist, sees his cause another driver to crash and die. She brands him a murderer, in print, and Gable is banned from all midget tracks — for which he berates her personally. Changing to a full-sized car, Gable resumes his career. Barbara finds herself strongly attracted to him, though still revolted by his kill-or-be-killed attitude. During the great Indianapolis speed event, Gable, while leading, crashes his own car to save another driver's life and is badly hurt. Barbara rushes to his bedside and the two exchange a kiss that speaks better than words.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars,

FOR TUESDAY, JULY 29, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Could be gainful period for creative work, new methods of merchandizing, building, experiments for future. Be careful not to over-load self, impair health.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Money matters, investments in good properties can bring profits if you take time, study and are astute. Don't be afraid of new ideas.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Vibrations on generous side for manufacturing, for social and advertising propositions. P.M. highly favors personal affairs, domesticity.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Excellent day for unusual matters. Freshly favored: travel, shipping, all urgent issues. Late news may mislead today; be on guard.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—One of your "be careful" days. Start early and with system. Wisely mix business with social life; don't attempt to rush things.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—A little prodding will be medicine now. Courtship, marriage, family affairs demand diplomacy, serenity.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Being sufficiently consistent in handling problems will add to your gains. Fine aspects between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. for concentrated effort.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Combining energy and friendly rays should make it a happy, productive day. You can accomplish most in a necessary line. The unusual may go over big.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Planetary configurations still on favorable side. Useful, up-to-date propositions should bring good returns. Be aware that others are trying, too.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Aspects sponsor general improvement, future plans; discussing contacts, estimates, paving way for bigger things ahead. Heart interests bright.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Keep keyed up to the best, maybe the unusual. Don't be caught off balance when opportunity knocks. Exercise extra forethoughts in business openings.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces)—You should experience little trouble with routine, daily tasks. The unexpected my tend to disrupt. A fresh outlook will serve best.

You Born Today—Buoyant, magnetic personality. Maybe too sensitive. You like affection, may become moody if those you care for show neglect. Don't let this get hold of you—it does no good, can spoil your better good nature. Rely upon religion always. You have fine mind, use it rightly. Generous aspects these days.

Birthdate: Newton Booth Tarkington, novelist; Wm. Powell, actor.

I Can't Cry Now

By Addie McElfresh

Two weeks ago, she thought, there had been Chris, and teaching, and an occasional date with Ted or Dave, although she saw Ted more often these last months than Dave. But Ted's not my beap, Emma Ward.

Two weeks. She remembered the Little Theatre, with Chris directing his own play and Dave Argus making bashful love to the heroine. Dave was no actor, or was he? The thought was cynical, bitter. She remembered Ted's, "He's baiting you, Katy Elmo, giving you enough rope."

Katy chewed at her lower lip. Why couldn't Dave believe in her as Ted did? She picked up the telephone and called Mrs. Porter's, but Ted had not come in yet.

He's having breakfast first, she thought. She found the telephone book, ran a strangely nervous finger down the column to Marty's.

The answer was a harried "Marty's. Martin speakin'!" Then, in answer to her question, "No! No, Ted Jordan ain't here!"

"Then may I speak to Johnny Jerome, please?" Katy asked.

Marty Martin fairly bellowed, "He ain't here either! Took off like a bat, right in the middle of breakfast rush! Lissen lady, 'scuse me, but I'm busy as all get out!"

Katy hung up, too, but the tiny click as she cradled Dave Argus' telephone was a mere echo to the sound that rocketed into her ear from Marty's on Mason Avenue.

Why would Johnny Jerome run away from his job? Surely not because Katy was there—he did not tell her anything. She probed her memory, doubtfully.

"Maybe that was Aggie's trouble. . . she wasn't busy enough . . ."Katy remembered the boy's tormented face. "I got to! I go nuts—thinkin'!. . .Quit hounding me. . ."

She looked around when Mrs. Emma Ward came into the room "I'm going home to change. I'll bring your clothes in later today."

Mrs. Ward gave her an absent nod. "Did you get Mr. Jordan?"

"He hadn't come in yet. I'll drive back, perhaps meet him for lunch." Katy smiled at her. "Thanks, Emma, for everything. I'll bring your things at noon."

Katy drove swiftly after leaving the city limits, as if the speed that Christ would have deplored could leave her fears behind. Lunch with Ted seemed such a long way off, and she needed to hear him talk away the uneasy dread that Marty Martin's news of Johnny had stirred anew.

Johnny Jerome had run from her yesterday. He had fled Marty's today after talking to her. Katy wondered if she should have called Dave again and told him this.

Katy slowed for the turn into her own driveway, saw that Dave had forgotten to close the gate when he, Sheriff Ledbetter and Deputy Scott left, and drove more slowly along the narrow lane that bisected the oak woods.

As she got out of the car, she looked around for Deputy Donnell. Major couldn't have him treed this time, for Major was at her heels.

The growl began deep in Major's chest and rumbled forth, warningly. He stalked with stiff-legged caution along the curving white rock driveway, ignoring Katy's, "It's all right, Major, it's only Mr.. Donnell."

Katy followed, frowning. Major never ignored her, she had had him since puppyhood. She stopped. The dog was standing stock-still, intent on the barn, the door that was still open.

"Mr. Donnell?"

As if Katy's voice had released a hidden spring that catapulted him forward, Major bee-lined for the barn door. When Katy got there, he was nuzzling a prone figure—Peter Donnell!

Katy dropped to her knees beside him. There was a faint pulse. Faint—but life. With fingers frantically awkward, Katy opened his coat and skirt. The wound was ugly, dangerously near the heart.

The murderer was using a gun again. Even stumbling to her feet, Katy was thinking that. Peter Donnell wasn't a frightened woman, as Agnes Jerome was and he had a gun. Her eyes flew to the holsters, belted low around the paunchy waist. The gun was there, the flap buttoned down. Donnell hadn't had a chance.

Chris didn't have one as Agnes Jerome didn't either. Katy looked down at the deputy sheriff. Only a hint of blood was oozing fresh from the wound.

Katy saw that coagulation was good. She must get help. She turned. She had to get to the highway to send someone for Dave.

She began to run, her feet loud as her fears on the rough bare boards, momentarily unsteady as she plunged outside and the brilliant climbing sun blinded her. She had to reach the car.

"Katy—darling!"

"Oh Ted!" Katy flung herself against him. "Ted, Ted!"

"There, there." Tenderly, he patted her shoulder. After a moment he held her away from him. "Tell me, Katy."

It was an order—almost—the way he said it. Sternly.

Katy Elmo's voice was nearly calm as she told Ted Jordan in a swift rush of words. Ted heard and ran toward the barn. "He's alive." Ted watched the almost imperceptible rise and fall of Peter Donnell's chest. Then Ted looked at her. "You were running away, Katy."

Katy gripped her h hysteria. "I was going for help, Tedq."

"Sure, Katy," he replied, but with the same skepticism that had been in Johnny Jerome's voice that morning. "It just might work at that. You could tell them—"

"Ted Jordan, I did not shoot Mr. Donnell. Nor kill Agnes Jerome. She was coming to tell me who killed Chris. She knew why Chris went out that night."

A thought struck Katy. Why did Chris go out? She grasped the idea before it escaped her. "Someone must have called. Someone he knew. I was asleep. I wouldn't have heard the phone! Maybe the call came from Marty's and Agnes remembered!"

Ted shook his head. "It's a good try, Katy. If you hadn't shot Donnell—"

"Ted," Katy said quietly, "please go for Dave."

"I'll help you, Katy."

"What do you mean?"

"To get away. You had a good start when I came up." Ted's laugh was nasty.

"And leave Mr. Donnell to die?" Katy reeled as a thought struck her. So many things fell into place. "You shot him, Ted!"

"I knew you knew."

She saw the bitter sardonic grin that lighted Ted's face, the deliberate, yet swift, move of his hand and the gun that was in it.

"Your suicide, Katy, will explain so much," he said.

"No!"

"Oh yes, Katy. I was going to kill you last night—"

"When you cut off my phone?" She was fighting for time.

"Sure," he admitted it. "I was coming back—after you said you wouldn't go out with me but I got the idea Argus intended to hang around."

"Why did you kill Mr. Murphy? And Chris?"

Ted Jordan laughed at her. "The old man because he found me with his safe open. There had to be someone to take the rap and Chris would come if I told him Murphy had had a stroke."

Katy's lungs felt as if she would never breathe again. Major her dog, was behind Ted, half-crouched, uncertain. He didn't understand this treachery.

"Major!" she screamed. "Get him!"

Ted whirled, surprised, as the dog sprang at him.

There was a wild shot, and pandemonium broke loose. The barn seemed filled with Sheriff Ledbetter, Dave, Johnny Jerome, and State Troopers.

It was noon and after, when Dave Argus came back from town, where Ted's confession had been recorded.

They sat before the apple wood fire in the living room. "There it is. Jordan had a good job, the men at the factory liked him, but you never know about guys like that, I guess."

"Agnes Jerome knew. How, Dave?" Ted had not boasted of being found out, he had been proud only of his cunning.

"Ted hung around Marty's." Katy knew that and there was nothing wrong in it. Dave went on, "That night Chris and Link Murphy were shot, he was there. Moody. Jumpy. Even before he went out. When he came back, late, just before closing time, he was quiet. Tense, like he was waiting for someone. Agnes kidded him about a girl—Johnny told me this," he hastened to explain. "And later Agnes got to thinking. She knew Chris, bought her groceries from him, and she liked you because you had been nice to Johnny in school. So she got to asking questions around—"

"And Ted found out, of course."

Dave nodded. "He was—under surveillance, as Ledbetter puts it, from the first."

Katy thought. She knew they had questioned Ted, she knew Ted had opportunity to cut the telephone wires, that he hung out at Marty's and therefore undoubtedly knew Agnes Jerome rather well.

"You're too loyal to people you love." Dave dropped a hand to Major's head and began to rub his ears. "Ted didn't trust you. He thought you knew more than you did."

"I don't love Ted. I n-never did, but when Chris was killed I had to trust someone!" The cry was wrenched from her.

"And Ted was johnny-on-the-spot." Dave Argus watched Major move out from under his caressing hand and go to lay his head in Katy's lap.

Katy buried her face in Major's thick scruff. When she looked up, Dave was standing, his hands outstretched toward the fire, his long lean back to her.

"Katy," he said without turning, "When this thing is over, Katy, when you've forgotten—"

When he didn't go on, she slipped out of her chair. She touched his elbow. "When I've—forgotten, Dave?"

"That I'm the guy who talked Ledbetter into using you as bait—I was scared when Johnny came and then Em called and said you were trying to find Ted. Darling, if he had hurt you—" His arms were around her, his face was buried in her hair.

"Do you think," he whispered, moments later, "darling, do you think Major would let me kiss you?"

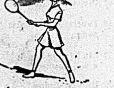
Katy looked down. Major's head rested on paws outstretched toward the fire.

She turned to Dave. "Why don't you take a long chance, dear?"

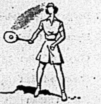
THE END.

"COOL CONTROL"

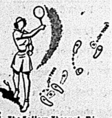
THE FOREHAND DRIVE



1 The Backswing: Keep your eye on the approaching ball; before ball bounces, step out and to the side with right foot pointing at the sideline and draw racket back. This motion should approximately line up arm, shoulders and racket; wrist, elbow and knees slightly and comfortably bent. Body pivots on hips.



2 The Forward Swing: Eyes must be on ball. Body pivots on ball of right foot as racket moves forward, transferring body weight to left foot. Stroke is continuous, with wrist straightening firmly when ball is hit. Racket swings forward at height on which ball is taken from bounce. Experience and judgment give perfect control.



3 The Follow-Through: This motion of racket and body gives your drive control and your game quality. As racket hits ball, body continues its pivot to the left and racket begins slightly upward line. Arm and racket follow direction of ball and then continue on to cross body till racket head is above and to left of left shoulder.

Yes, it's control that counts, in tennis as in every sport — control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

How do you read character?

Down through the centuries, people have tried to gain insight into character by many different methods.

But, whether or not you believe in any system of "character analysis", you can always tell something about the character of a man simply from the fact that he owns life insurance.

This fact alone tells you, for instance, that he is a good provider. For here is proof that he feels genuine concern for the future welfare of his family — a concern that usually reflects a considerate nature.

It's pretty reliable evidence, too, that he is thrifty, foresighted, realistic — and a good credit risk.

To his employer, his ownership of life insurance suggests readiness to assume responsibility — an attitude that will carry him toward success in any job.

And, if he is using his life insurance to build income for his later years, you can be quite sure that he's the self-reliant type. No relatives or public welfare organization will ever have to support him!

All in all, you'll find that most of the solid citizens in any community own life insurance!

Govt. Will Lose Up to $10 Million On Surplus Pork

20,000 Tons Will Be Offered to Public Soon

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian housewife may soon be able to buy canned pork at bargain prices at local grocery stores, but this consumer bonanza may cost taxpayers between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000.

Anxious to rid itself of a climbing surplus, the federal government yesterday began moving into the wholesale market its huge stockpile of 40,000,000 pounds of canned pork, offering to sell it to dealers at about 30 per cent less than it paid for it.

With packers acting as agents, the pork accumulation, caused by the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Canada, went on the market at about 40 cents a pound, delivered to grocery stores in Ontario and Quebec, with fluctuating lower prices at other centres across the country.

Cut Retail Price

Officials said the cut-rate price will allow grocery men to reduce the retail price of canned pork to between 36 and 42 cents from about 50 or 55 cents.

That price reduction may stir up bigger sales, but on every pound sold, the federal treasury will stand to lose between 17 and 23.8 cents. On 40,000,000 pounds the loss may run to almost $10,000,000.

The pork surplus became serious in Canada when the foot-and-mouth outbreak resulted in the United States embargo on Canadian meats and livestock.

In a drive to stabilize meat-market disruptions caused by the disease, the government, through the Agricultural Prices Support Board, originally offered to buy surplus pork for canning at 63.8 cents a pound.

Offering 57 Cents

Some pork was purchased at this price which later was reduced to 61.8 cents and still later to 57 cents. The board still is offering to buy surplus pork for canning at the latter figure.

Normally, Canada is not a great pork-canning country, preferring to sell her pigs in the natural state or in various cuts and cures to home and foreign markets.

The government resorted to canning to get under the American embargo which does not cover canned meats. However, agricultural officials have found they can get no better price for the product in the U.S. than in Canada and have decided to let the Canadian housewife have the cheap product first.

Small Tornado Blocks Traffic Near Port Alma

PORT ALMA (CP)—A small tornado tore maple and pine trees up by the roots as it ripped a path two miles wide and a mile long across Romney township last night.

Traffic on No. 3 highway was blocked about three hours while provincial police got farmers with power saws to cut up trees toppled across the road.

Some trees knocked over telephone and hydro poles, cutting off telephones and power in the area. One section was without gas service as well when a tree hit a natural gas line. A barn was destroyed. No reports of injuries were received.

Port Alma is about 100 miles southwest of Chatham.

Couple Given Life for Slaying Of Their Child

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—John and Alice Cliffe yesterday were sentenced to life imprisonment for the punishment slaying of their four-year-old son, Wayne.

They were convicted Friday by a jury which did not recommend mercy for the pigeon raiser and his crippled wife. The prosecution said the Cliffes beat, starved and finally hanged the boy.

Three Trainmen Injured, Two Engines Sideswipe

BOLTON (CP)—Three trainmen were injured today when a Canadian Pacific Railway freight drawn by two locomotives sideswiped an engine on a passing track at Bolton station, 20 miles north of Toronto. The three engines and nine cars of the freight were derailed.

C.P.R. officials said damage was "considerable."

The three men were taken to hospital at Brampton with minor injuries.

They were W.G. Buchanan, Thomas Kinnear and Joseph Ryan, all of Toronto.

Buchanan and Kinnear were firemen on the freight. Ryan was a trainman.

C.P.R. trains travelling between Parry Sound and Toronto were rerouted via Canadian National Railways tracks while the track at Bolton was being cleared.

Two Men Killed

BARRIE (CP)—Two Hamilton men were killed and two United States tourists were seriously injured yesterday in an accident on highway No. 27 about six miles south of here.

Dead are John Zeliski, 21, and Nicholis Lamosky, 20. Injured were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Snyder of Cleveland, O.

Police said the Hamilton car, driven by Zeliski, skidded on the wet highway and crashed, head-on, into the Snyder car.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: A rapid change in the general weather pattern in the past few days has driven cool air from the Arctic into central North America. During the night temperatures near Lake Erie and Lake Ontario stayed in the 50s, but elsewhere in Ontario dropped to near 40. The coldest spot on the continent was in northern Michigan with 34.

A band of showers over the prairies this morning is expected to move rapidly southeastward across northern Ontario late today and southern Ontario early Wednesday. There will be little change in temperature associated with this weather and the temperature on Wednesday again will be cool.

FRENZIED GUNMAN SHOT SWEETHEART THEN HIMSELF

Afraid Girl Would 'Sing' in Court Case

VANCOUVER (CP)—A frenzied gunman, afraid his former sweetheart might "sing" in court, kidnapped and murdered the pretty 19-year-old girl yesterday, then fired a bullet into his own brain.

Frank Steele, 23, suspected burglar and drug addict, shot Betty Weber through the eye in the locked bathroom of a small apartment and then triggered a bullet into his ear as police closed in, desperately trying to save the girl.

Steele died shortly after in the emergency ward of the Vancouver General hospital. In the next cot, listening to his dying gasps, lay Harry Weber, 52, the girl's father, shot in the leg by Steele an hour before.

Weber, released after treatment, knew Steele was in the cot beside him. But he did not know at that time Steele had killed his daughter.

Drug Bolstered Courage

Police said they found a drug addict's paraphernalia in the apartment. A detective said he believed Steele took a shot of heroin to bolster his courage as a police cordon closed in on him.

Steele, Betty Weber and three other persons had been scheduled to appear in court yesterday to face trial on charges of stealing $2,800 worth of clothes from a sportswear factory. Steele was out on $3,000 bail, the girl on $1,000.

About an hour before court opened, Steele entered the Weber's second-storey apartment by a ladder.

Tried To Stop Abduction

The girl's father, working in the cafe downstairs, came up to the apartment and tried to prevent Steele from abducting his daughter. Steele shot him in the leg, put the gun in the girl's ribs and forced her out the door and into a waiting car.

Police chased Steele's car but lost sight of it. Later, they received a tip on Steele's hideout.

Police had reached a bedroom in the apartment house next door to Steele's apartment when they heard two muffled shots.

Captain Afraid Bottle of Scotch Might be Broken

WESTERN FRONT, Korea—(AP)— Three days of heavy rains on the Korean battlefront loosened the earthen roof of a bunker occupied by soldiers of the 1st Commonwealth Division.

The roof caved in, trapping a Captain. His comrades grabbed shovels and began digging frantically.

"Take, it easy," they heard the captain shout. "I have a bottle of Scotch in here."

Husband Says Wife Reminded Him of Sergeant

DETROIT (AP) —Because Howard Kelch told his wife she reminded him of his army sergeant, she is suing him for divorce.

Mary Margaret Kelch said in her suit, filed yesterday: "Whenever I'd ask him to hang up his pajamas or help me with the dishes, he'd remind me that he'd had enough of being ordered around in the army.

"And whenever I'd try to reason with him and explain his responsibilities around the house, he'd tell me how much I reminded him of his army sergeant."

Both 25, they were married in 1948 and have a child.

Labor Council Demands Probe

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto and Lake Shore Labor Council, alleging irregularities in some charity drives, last night demanded a full investigation of the United Emergency Fund for Britain.

A resolution asked the Ontario government to set up a special commission to hear representations on the question of charity-raising organizations and to enact legislation to protect the public from charity drives of a racketeering nature.

Highly-Developed Band of Indians Lived Near Rice Lake 2,000 Yrs. Ago

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A party of Royal Ontario Museum archaeologists working along the north shore of Rice Lake, 15 miles southeast of here, has found traces of what appears to be earliest highly-developed band of Indians inhabiting Canada.

Russell Harper, the museum's chief cataloguer and an authority on Canada's earliest history, considers the find one of the important pieces of evidence on Canada's early history.

Evidence indicates Indians were paddling the waterways of southern Ontario trading their wares when Caesar sailed the English Channel. Mr. Harper estimates four townsites found along the shoreline to be 2,000 years old.

Although there is evidence of earlier Indians, particularly on Manitoulin Island, none of these had such a high degree of development as the Rice Lake group. The party under Mr. Harper has uncovered a wide variety of implements and ornaments made of copper and elaborate ornaments of shell. Among the discoveries was the earliest painted pottery to be found in Canada.

The copper came from the Lake Superior area and the seashell is of a type found along the Georgia and Florida coasts, indicating a wide system of trade with other tribes existed.

Defence Program Directors Put on Blitz to Make Up Lost Ground on Schedule

By DOUG HOW

OTTAWA (CP)—The men directing putting on a blitz in an effort to make up lost ground on a production schedule which they now concede was over-optimistic.

The American steel strike hasn't helped things.

With the halfway mark coming nearer, there is a marked probability that the scheduled three-year $5,000,000,000 program to prepare the country for any eventuality will extend into a fourth year and cost closer to $8,000,000,000.

Program Highlights

The program was first announced in February 1951. Its highlights were plans to build the R.C.A.F. 3,000 new planes and 41 squadrons, to have a 100-ship navy and 115,000 men in uniform. The 115,000 has since been raised to 120,000.

With 98,000 or 81 per cent of that total in uniform, manpower is so far not a big problem. But production is.

The latest implication of the current situation came in Finance Minister Abbott's recent statement on the government's financial position after the first three months—April, May, June—of the current fiscal year.

Speed Spending

In a nutshell, Abbott said that in the first quarter of the year only 14 per cent of the defence budget was used. To live up to the $2,125,000,000 appropriation, the two departments most concerned—defence and defence production—will have to spend money twice as fast in the next nine months as they have in the first three when the monthly average was $102,000,000.

Abbott's conclusion was expenditures "do not yet reflect the full magnitude of the defence program.

Officials confirm this. With the exception of the F-86 Sabre jet fighter, production of most major items of production—aircraft, electronics, warships, guns—is not up to the schedules originally conceived.

The reason is said frankly to be overoptimism when the program was originally drafted. They underrated the tremendously complex job of producing modern arms.

Last fiscal year the defence program planners budgetted for $200,000,000 more than they actually spent, the difference would have been even greater had it not been for mobilization and despatch of the 27th rigade to Germany after the year started.

Steel Strike Drawback

Officials won't be able to tell until early fall whether they'll "underspend"—the official term—again this year. The U.S. steel strike is one drawback. It has had some effect but officials say the blow has not been a major one.

But there are several major factors pushing in the direction of spending the whole defence budget.

One is the fact that traditionally a large percentage of defence spending is concentrated in the last three months of the fiscal year. Another is the fact that production should begin to hit its stride late this calendar year.

Production Blitz

A third is the drive, the blitz which officials report is being waged to get production programs back nearer the original schedules. A substantial number of new faces are making their appearance in key jobs in Ottawa. Whether they can get the program finished in the scheduled three years is a big question impossible to answer at this time.

One senior official says he's a lot more confident than he was six months ago. But he's still not betting heavily that the target can be met.

Key Figure in Communist Trials and Spy Probe, Supt. Leopold of RCMP, Retires

OTTAWA (CP)—Superintendent John Leopold, a key figure in the famous 1931 Communist trials and in the 1946 spy probe, is retiring from the R.C.M.P. at the age limit of 62.

The stocky native of Bohemia, who has spent most of his life in secret anti-Communist work, is probably the force's most renowned member. He is going on his final leave Aug. 1, R.C.M.P. headquarters said today.

As Sgt. Leopold his name became virtually a household word in 1931 when he capped years of working underground in the Communist movement as an undercover police agent by becoming the star Crown witness in the trials of eight Red leaders, including Tim Buck, still Canada's No. 1 Communist.

Fabulous Career

In that period and in the 1945-46 spy probe, Leopold probably reached the high points of a colorful career. There undoubtedly were others but they are part of the secrecy which cloaks 90 per cent of what he did from the time he joined the force in the First World War.

He ends his career as a superintendent in the Special Branch, the anti-subversive section.

About five-feet-five, stocky and swarthy, Leopold came to Canada from Europe early in life and was homesteading in the Peace River country of Alberta when he joined the Mounties in the hope of going overseas.

His knowledge of the Bohemian, German, Polish and English languages kept him in Canada and launched what has become a fabulous career of sleuthing.

Undercover Man

In 1918, when authorities were anxious to check on the spread in Canada of influences stemming from the Bolshevik revolution in Russia, Leopold became "J.W. Esselwein."

Disguised as an odd-job house painter, he was invited to join the Communist party then being formed in Winnipeg. Later he became a party secretary, but even police had no idea who he was when they arrested him for taking part in a demonstration in Toronto in 1927.

He became a member of the Communist party in 1921 and worked as an agent within its ranks for seven years before they caught up with him and expelled him in 1928. He became an intimate of most of Canada's Red leaders.

Two Given Seven Years in Prison For Threatening

KENORA (CP)—Two men who threatened the life of an Ontario Provincial Police officer were sentenced yesterday to seven-year penitentiary terms.

They were Joseph Vallee, 41, of Three Rivers, Que., and Francis Guy Lavalee, 29, of Alberta, described by police at the time of his capture as a man "who would shoot just as soon as look at you."

Both pleaded guilty to 16 charges of breaking, entering and theft from camps along the Ontario-Manitoba boundary, and a charge of carrying offensive weapons.

Vallee was captured July 13 as he attempted to swing a rifle into action when questioned by Constable Clifford Flewelling. Lavalee was arrested 36 hours later after threatening the same officer with a loaded shotgun.

Allied Troops Cling to Slope Of 'Old Baldy'

SEOUL (AP)—Allied troops clinging to the southeast slope of Old Baldy today hurled back a Chinese Communist attack in torrential rains that drenched the muddy Korean battlefront for the fourth straight day.

A reinforced Communist platoon hit the United Nations line in an apparent effort to win complete control of the strategic western-front hill. The attack was beaten off in a bloody two-hour battle during which 25 Reds were killed and 30 wounded, the United States Eighth Army said.

It was the first clash of any size since rains closed in on the 15-mile battlefront Saturday. Already 6½ inches of rain have fallen on the western front.

In another action Monday night and Tuesday morning a small Chinese unit probed Allied positions near T-Bone Hill, east of Old Baldy. The Chinese were driven off after 4¾ hours of sporadic fighting.

BITTER ATTACKS MADE ON U.S. BY IRANIAN GOVT.

Mossadegh's Program For Reforms Approved

TEHRAN (AP)—Bitter attacks on the United States high-lighted a debate today in which the Iranian parliament overwhelmingly approved Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's program for economic and social reforms to head off national bankruptcy.

The seriousness of the anti-U. S. demonstration was underscored when deputy Shams Ghanat-Abadi demanded the ouster of all Americans from the country. Ghanat-Abadi is the right-hand man of Ayatullah Seyed Kashani, Iran's leading religious figure and a close supporter of Mossadegh.

Fear for Future

Anti-U.S. feeling has been rife lived, however. Debate was rehere since the July 21 riots which ousted ex-premier Ahmed Qavam but this was the first such outburst in parliament.

Contracts for the U.S. military missions expire in October and U.S. officials are worried that they will not be extended if the current anti-American feeling continues.

This feeling is based on the belief—denied by U.S. ambassador Loy Henderson — that Americans supported Qavam against Mossadegh. The belief arose principally from a visit paid Qavam by Henderson July 19, two days after the former had become premier.

Approve Program

Today's demonstration was shortsumed and the program approved 68-0, with one abstention.

The program includes plans to re-open Iran's rich oil production which has dwindled to a trickle following the long and bitter dispute with Britain over nationalization of the $1,000,000,000 Anglo - Iranian Oil Company properties here.

Vapor Trails From Jets Taken For Flying Saucers

TORONTO (CP)—Vapor trails from high-flying jet aircraft have been taken for flying saucers by Ontario citizens during the last two days, the R.C.A.F. said today.

The saucers were reported from Brampton, Newmarket and Roche's Point on Lake Simcoe. The R.C.A.F. said the apparent saucer formations were jets returning to base after participating in the nine-day defence manoeuvres known as Exercise Signpost.

More than 800 Canadian and United States aircraft took part.

Farouk and Family on $4 Million Yacht Arrive at Isle of Capri

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—Egypt's royal yacht, the Mahroussa, brought former King Farouk and his family into Naples harbor today.

The big $4,000,000 craft with the royal exiles aboard arrived off the Isle of Capri, across the bay of Naples, at dawn and vast quantities of baggage were transferred to a smaller yacht.

Egypt's ambassador to Italy, Abdel Aziz Badr Bey, awaited the yacht. He had hurried down from Rome last night. Farouk brought with him Egypt's new ruler, his six-month-old son King Fuad II.

The infant was proclaimed King Saturday by Egypt's cabinet after his father bowed to the military pressure of his country's new army commander, Gen. Mohamed Naguib Bey. That night Farouk, with Queen Narriman, their baby and his three daughters by a former marriage, sailed away from Egypt.

Nothing was known here about Farouk's plans. There was speculation he might idle awhile on Capri where he and Narriman spent their honeymoon a year ago. Other suggestions were that his destination would be the French Riviera, or Rapallo on the Italian Riviera, where he owns a villa.

Issue Warrant For Driver After Truck Is Found

TORONTO (CP)—Police today issued a warrant for the arrest of Joseph Giroux, 28, on a charge of theft after the truck he was driving was found abandoned yesterday. Former Canadian Soldier Sentenced To be Hanged

BIRMINGHAM, England- (Reuters)—Donald Simon, 32-year-old former Canadian soldier now living in England, today was sentenced to be hanged for shooting his wife in a "crime of passion" when he found her with another man.

The prosecution said Simon, formerly of Fredericton, N.B., shot down both his estranged war-bride wife, Eunice, 28, and Victor Brades, outside his wife's home June 15.

Defence lawyers pleaded that Simon had a history of psychopathic personality which would make it more difficult for him to control himself than a normal person.

Dr. Allan McKenzie, medical officer of Shrewsbury prison, said that in his opinion Simon was emotionally unstable but he was unable to find any evidence of mental disease.

He considered Simon responsible for his actions and fit to stand trial.

The jury retired for 65 minutes before announcing that they found Simon guilty.

Auto Financing To be Open Court Rules

CHICAGO (AP) —The United States federal court yesterday ordered General Motors Corp., and its subsidiary, General Motors Acceptance Corp., to end "monopolistic operations" in auto financing.

Federal Judge Walter J. Labuy issued a decree, with the consent of the two firms, barring them from preventing other financing firms from handling loans on General Motors vehicles.

The decree provides that other financing companies will receive equal rights to operate through General Motors' dealers with the co-operation of General Motors Corp. Any service the auto company furnishes its wholly owned subsidiary, G.M.A.C., are to be afforded other financing companies, according to the decree.

The decree brings to an end an anti-trust suit brought against the two corporations by the government in 1939.

Sid Abel Named Black Hawks Player-Coach

CHICAGO (AP)—Chicago Blackhawks of the National Hockey League today announced signing of Sid Abel, Detroit Red Wing star, to a two-year contract as player-coach.

Abel succeeds Ebbie Goodfellow, who resigned recently. Abel's salary terms were not disclosed.

President Bill Tobin said Abel, captain of three Detroit Stanley Cup teams, originally was sought only as a coach, but insisted he could help the Hawks by playing.

Abel, 32, played centre for the Red Wings with whom he was affiliated since 1938, except for a 1943-45 hitch in the R.C.A.F.

A native of Melville, Sask., he now resides in Detroit where he recently purchased a tavern.

It will mark the first time the Black Hawks, consistent tail-enders in recent seasons, have had a playing-manager.

Funeral Services For Eva Peron Are Postponed

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The flooding grief of the people has postponed funeral services for Eva Peron, Argentina's first lady, at least until tomorrow.

President Juan Peron announced last night that his wife's body will continue to lie in state in an improvised chapel in the labor ministry until waiting throngs can pay their last respects.

After the mourning ranks thins, the body will lie in state for a day in the National Congress building. Then it will be moved for burial in the hall of the General Labor confederation, whose 6,000,000 members were Mrs. Peron's most devoted supporters.

A ceaseless line of mourners flowed past the flower-strewn casket. Some waited as long as 18 hours in sporadic rain.

The procession moved quietly, in contrast to the crush Sunday night and Monday morning in which four persons were known to have died and four others were reported killed.

Mrs. Peron, who rose from a humble beginning to become one of

Manly Macdonald Shows Rotarians Art of Painting

Manly Macdonald, one of Canada's foremost painters, a member of the Royal Canadian Academy of Art, graduate of the Ontario College of Art and proudly enough, a local resident, gave Rotarians an example of his method of work at the luncheon in the Hotel Quinte, Monday.

Mr. Macdonald is neither an admirer nor a painter of so-called modern art. He feels so strongly on the subject, he along with several other painters resigned in protest from the Ontario Society of Art after the introduction of this type of painting into the society.

Before some 60 Rotarians, Mr. Macdonald set up his easel and went to work, copying one of his scenes done some time ago. He works quickly, almost jerkily, but in no time at all, the picture took form and shape, all in one half hour. At first, only a few marks of charcoal on canvas, then a few splotches of paint resembling nothing, later the picture took design and color and detail and was a finished product.

Always Works Quickly

In answer to a question, the artist explained, he always works quickly. "Working quickly," he said, "I see things as a whole and paint entirely by tone value. First glance at a scene always gives the true picture," he explained.

The painter brought along with him to the meeting, a number of his works, most of these were of local scenes and nearby surrounding districts. His efforts were applauded by members.

From time to time, as he worked, Mr. Macdonald would comment on different aspects of painting. "The old masters," he said, "could not paint sunshine," sunlight and its shadows are pretty well a thing of modern day painters." Waving a handful of brushes at his audience he remarked, "a canvas will never be a work of art without composition and design."

Throughout the whole demonstration, Mr. Macdonald stressed the importance of light in pictures.

The artist was welcomed by Jamieson Bone and thanked by G. A. Freeman. Formal thanks were tendered by the president.

Guests at the meeting yesterday were, Mel Davidson, Chatham; Doug Bein, Belleville; S. Way, Rochester, N.Y.; Dick Donagohy, Kent, Ohio; Rev. Ralph Middleton, Bcyside; Chas. Allen, Peterborough; Alan Hadley, Stirling; Alex Nathan, Oshawa.

Amateur Contest To Highlight Kinsmen Carnival

A call for all amateurs who have ability in the entertainment field went out last night from the Kinsmen Club dinner meeting held at the Shrine Club. Amateurs are wanted for a contest being held in conjunction with the Kinsmen street carnival being held for four nights starting Wednesday.

Amateur contest chairman Ernie Colebourne stated that approximately 25 amateurs had entered in the contest but more were needed. Winner of the finals to be held Saturday night will get a free trip to New York for an audition on a television show.

The amateur contest will run all four nights of the carnival with each night's winners being eligible for the final and a chance at the free trip to New York.

Final plans for the carnival were discussed by Kinsmen members at last night's meeting and a heap of fun is promised at the show which is being held at Fireman's Park at the lower end of Front Street. The carnival runs Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

Proceeds are for the community swimming pool.

Industry Stops to Honor Eva Peron

Juan Peron and Evita

As thousands of Argentinians crowded into the hall of the labor ministry in Buenos Aires to pay their last respects to Eva Peron, three persons were crushed to death, and wild demonstrations of sorrow kept police on the alert. Wife, adviser and lieutenant to Argentinian dictator Juan Peron, Evita was second only to him in authority in Argentina. Her death, from cancer, was no surprise, and in mourning, almost all industry and business came to a halt. — Central Press Canadian.

Canadians Living in Foreign Countries Celebrate Holiday

Thousands of miles distant from the native land does not prevent Canadians in foreign countries from celebrating their national holidays.

For example, Dominion Day was observed by Canadians in far off Singapore just as it was in Canada.

Writing recently to her mother, Miss Mary Mathieson, daughter of Dr. Lily B. Mathieson of this city, who is stationed in Singapore with the Red Cross, said "Dominion Day was celebrated out here." She describes Collyer Quay in Singapore as being somewhat of a formal community whose nucleus is the trade commissioner.

Very much a world traveller since she went to England early in the war. Miss Mathieson served several years in Africa and following the war spent two years in Hong Kong with UNRA. She then became associated with International Airways and is now on loan to the Red Cross. Her duties are associated with the aerial transport of wounded and sick service personnel.

In her recent letter Miss Mathieson describes life in the Far East.

"Since I last wrote I have been up to Balacca—fascinating old trading town on the coast of Malaya as most places seem to have been—it was taken from the Portuguese, then Dutch, then British, and of course the Chinese have traded there all along."

All flowers in the Far East seem to grow on trees, according to Miss Mathieson "I have a flower on my table which was white this morning and is now turning a deep rose."

She writes that there are few flies at Singapore while apparently houses have their natural insect control. "There are little lizards on the walls which eat insects."

Immigrant from Cyprus Enjoys Living in Canada

With more and more people immigrating to Canada, the question seems to arise as to why they came. Over the past four or five months an uncle from the Island of Cyprus has been making an effort to bring his nephews to Canada.

He has succeeded in bringing five from the British-owned island, mostly populated by Greeks. Cyprus is off the coast of Egypt and at the present time is in a very unsettled state according to the most recent arrival, Angelo Savva.

Angelo came to Canada for work, to make a living. "We just can't make a living in Cyprus," he said today. "There is not enough work to go around and what there is, payment is so small it amounts to almost nothing."

The young man expressed bitterness over the heavy taxation imposed by the British government on Cyprus. They tax us so badly there is nothing left when they are through so we come to this country to live," he said.

Angelo arrived in May of this year and has since been working for his uncle, who operates a restaurant in the city. Perfectly content with this country, he enjoys living here as he is rapidly adjusting himself to Canadian ways of life.

The language barrier is not as formidable to these particular immigrants as to other Europeans. The schools of Cyprus teach the English language to all pupils. "All we need," said Angelo, "is practice."

He spoke with pride of the newspaper operated and owned by the Greek people on Cyprus, the translation of which is "Liberty."

"The Greek people on the island want liberty," he said. "We don't want to be ruled by any one country, we want to rule ourselves and not have anything more."

The uncle, Pete Tousourlas, has been in Canada for many years, he speaks four languages fluently and is widely travelled. He spent some time in Russia, Germany, Italy and a number of other countries of Europe.

Mr. Tousourlas is happy. In his own words, "There is no other country in the world which may compare with Canada. Here, a man may go as high as his abilities warrant without fear. I' have been in many countries throughout the world and my first choice is Canada."

Britain Will Make Further Cuts In Foreign Buying Says Butler

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain will make further cuts in her buying for 1952 in an effort to bring her trade into balance, Richard Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the House of Commons today.

Opening a two-day debate on economic affairs, he said the additional cuts should, with the co-operation of partner countries of the Commonwealth, bring the sterling world into balance with hard currency countries by the end of the year.

On the credit side of the ledger, Butler forecast larger coal exports from Britain and increased imports of steel for industry.

Imports for the second half of this year will be reduced by about 25 per cent compared with the second half of 1951.

Among commodities affected will be dollar tobacco, probably paper and pulp, and manufactured goods other than machinery and defence supplies.

"For 1953," he added, "we have already taken the decision to limit future programs of imports from the non-sterling world to strictly what we can afford."

Possibly Five Lives Lost In Sudden Squall

SALEM, Mass. (AP)—Possibly five lives, approximately $500,000 damage, disrupted telephone and power lines, and losses to crops and dairies were the toll of Sunday's sudden squall along the north shore.

About 3,800 telephone lines were out and scores of dairies and homes were without refrigeration as the result of power failures. One dairyman said he lost 1,000 quarts of milk for lack of refrigeration.

Four bodies were recovered. Little hope was held for Edward Novak of Danvers, believed the fifth victim.

British Govt. Plans to Restore Steel Industry to Private Ownership Board Will Supervise Operations

LONDON (Reuters)—The government today disclosed plans to restore the iron and steel industry to private ownership, but at the same time to retain a measure of state control over its operations.

The industry was transferred to government in 1951. One of the Conservatives election pledges was that it would be denationalized.

A bill to effect this pledge will be introduced in parliament next fall. In an official preview of its proposals, the government said it will set up an iron and steel board to supervise the industry.

One of the board's most important tasks will be to supervise capital development. It could veto any projects which it thought would not benefit the industry as a whole. At the same time, the government could assist schemes for which private capital was lacking.

The bill will dissolve the state iron and steel corporation set up by the socialists and turn over the securities of nationalized companies to a holding and realization agency.

This agency will arrange for the return of state-owned companies to private ownership. The transfer of securities may take some years.

Canada's Development Boom Result of Work in Past Says Frost

COLLINGWOOD (CP)—Premier Frost of Ontario said Monday Canada's development boom is the result of "foundations laid in generations past and infinite work and planning by countless people."

In an address prepared for delivery at the launching of the tanker B-A Peerless, owned by the British American Oil Company, he said the country's growth has been so rapid "we are beginning perhaps to look at great developments as commonplace."

The $4,500,000 ship, built by British American Transportation, Limited in the Collingwood shipyards, has a capacity of 12,000-barrels of crude oil. She will be used to carry oil from Superior, Wis., to the company's refinery at Clarkson, Ont.

Mr. Frost said nearly 40 per cent of oil used in Ontario comes from Alberta.

"Had it not been for the discovery five years ago of new oil fields southwest of Edmonton," he said, "it is improbable that this ship would have been launched today."

No Intimidation Of Witnesses To be Tolerated

WINDSOR (CP)—No intimidation of witnesses testifying before a public inquiry into the affairs of East Windsor Hospital will be tolerated, Commissioner Gordon Fraser, who is conducting the provincial government investigation, said.

He said he will take under advisement the alleged discharge Friday of Mrs. Frances Singleton hospital supervisor who testified earlier at the inquiry, and a commission request that Mr. Fraser recommend the suspension of two hospital officials in connection with the action.

Arthur A. Macdonald, chief counsel of the investigating body, yesterday asked Mr. Fraser to recommend the suspension of hospital superintendent Dr. P.J.G. Morgan and nursing supervisor Mrs. Madeline Campbell because of what he called the "summary dismissal" of Mrs. Singleton.

Mr. Macdonald said the action had been taken because of testimony Mrs. Singleton gave at the inquiry. The suspension of Dr. Morgan and Mrs. Campbell until the end of the investigation was advisable, he said, in order that other hospital staff members give testimony without fear of discharge.

Beatrice Lyons, counsel for Dr. Morgan, said that Mrs. Singleton had been neither suspended nor dismissed from the hospital but had walked out while Dr. Morgan was questioning her.

Seven patients told the commission that they are well satisfied with the care they are receiving at the hospital. They were pleased with the food and with the attention they are receiving, they said.

The inquiry into the 350-bed institution for incurables, now in its 10th week, is continuing.

It was the fifth straight U.S. victory in the tournament and the second in the semi-final round-robin competition. With one more semi-final game to play, the American team is certain to be among the four which advance to the final round.

The United States plays Brazil tomorrow in its third game of the semi-final round.

UN Command Accuses Reds Of Stalling

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—The United Nations command today accused the Communists of stalling in the staff-officer talks on a proposed Korean armistice agreement.

The charge came from the U.N. command spokesman, Lieut.-Col. Joseph Borchert, after U.N. and Communist staff officers met for an hour and 4 minutes at Panmunjom on wording of the truce agreement draft.

The staff officers are talking over the meaning of words and phases in the draft while the full-dress conference—deadlocked over the prisoner-exchange issue—is in recess until Sunday.

Col. Duncan Somerville, U.N. staff officer, said he told the top Red staff officer, Col. Chang Chun San: "We are here today to try to resolve important matters which require good faith by both sides. We are not here to establish simultaneously a technicality in an obscure paragraph for bargaining purposes or to delay and confuse the valid issues."

Red Jets Down Two British Naval Planes

TOKYO (Reuters)—Communist jet fighters have attacked British naval planes, downing two and damaging one, for the first time in the Korean War, a United States Navy statement announced yesterday.

Eight British planes from the carrier Ocean ran into an unknown number of MIG fighters Sunday while on a mission to bomb and strafe Communist storage depots on Korea's west coast.

One British pilot crash-landed after being hit and another bailed out. Both were picked up by Allied troops. The third piloted his crippled plane back to the carrier.

Two Quake Jolts Hit Bakersfield, Start Two Fires

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—Two sharp earthquake jolts hit Bakersfield early today, starting two fires and sending frightened residents into the streets as windows broke and bricks fell from previously-damaged buildings.

The new tremors, at 12:05 a.m. PDT (3:05 EDT) and 1:02 a.m., were felt throughout southern California, including the Los Angeles area, but were strongest in Bakersfield.

A number of patients were evacuated from the county hospital here. One house was badly damaged when a gas line was broken. Sheriff Carl Weber said he believed the shock was as intense but didn't last as long as the July 21 earthquake that left 13 dead.

Short-circuits caused many transformers to blaze up and there were numerous fire calls.

SEEK BETTER RUBBER SUB

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government is launching with the help of universities and industry a $6,500,000 program to develop better types of synthetic rubber. Major goals will be to improve synthetic rubber so it can be used more extensively in large size tires, to improve the quality of cold rubber latex and to search for better synthetics that can be used in national defence.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Prices pushed steadily higher today in slow early afternoon stock market dealings.

Industrials and golds led the market's upswing as key issues drew firm early support that spread to a broad list of issues. Base metals joined the trend by noon aftee a slow start while western oils remained weak.

Volume for the first three hours was 971,000 shares.

Utilities, steels, refining oils, manufacturing companies, retail stores and miscellaneous issues led industrials with a large majority of fractional advances. Papers, agricultures and foods also drew firm support while textiles, banks and liquors remained mixed.

Western oil losses outnumbered gains about two-to-one.

Base metal leaders were strong but lower-priced issues made little headway.

Senior golds were firm. Hollinger and Lake Shore led a cautious advance. Junior producers and pros-

Appointment Fails to Satisfy Labor Members

LONDON (Reuters)—A British deputy to Gen. Mark Clark's Korean command was named yesterday but the appointment failed to satisfy Labor members of parliament, who demand an increased say for Britain in the conduct of the war.

Maj.-Gen. Stephen Shoosmith, 52, was given the deputy chief of staff post, established after Britain complained last month at not being consulted before the Yalu River bombing raids.

Defence Minister Earl Alexander, making the announcement in the House of Lords, said Shoosmith will be "an ordinary member" of Clark's staff "with responsibility only to him."

"The British government accept no more responsibility for the conduct of operations than they bear at present, he added.

Labor members in the House of Commons protested that this left things exactly where they were in the beginning and challenged Nigel Birch, parliamentary secretary to the defence ministry, to prove them wrong.

Birch gave no direct answer but said the appointment would be "of value particularly to Gen. Clark in getting to know British reaction to anything he may wish to do." He admitted Shoosmith, as a member of Clark's staff, would not be able to communicate directly with London.

(In Tokyo, Clark welcomed the appointment. "His services. . .will result, I am sure, in team play benefiting the entire command.")

Tourists Enjoy Canada's Weather

The weather in New York State must be a little on the bad side these days. A bus load of American tourists from New York City, Jersey, Long Island, The Bronx and Connecticut stopped over in this city yesterday for lunch. All of them commented upon Canada's beautifully warm and pleasant weather.

The tour is a nine-day effort by which the holidayers travel from New York to Niagara, across the border to Niagara, Ontario and make a circle around Lake Ontario arriving back in New York nine days later. They touch such cities en route as Hamilton, Toronto, Belleville, Kingston and Montreal. From Montreal they cross back into the States and then home.

J. O. Hearn, one of the passengers aboard the bus said New York weather is a little on the "rough' side these days. New York has apparently had some severe rain storms. He and his wife are very glad to visit a country with such pleasant weather.

TIME FOR A CHANGE

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Aging begins at 45, a federal welfare official said yesterday. Clark Tibbitts, chairman of the Federal Security Agency's committee on aging and geriatrics, told a conference that between 45 and 55 is the time for the individual worker to begin readjusting to lighter work.

Settlement of Threatened Aluminum Strike Places US Economy on Firm Footing

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Settlement of a threatened aluminum strike and speed-up of steel production put the United States economy on firm footing today for the first time in two months.

A walkout of 15,000 C.I.O. steelworkers at nine plants of the giant Aluminum Company of America was averted last night by an 11th-hour settlement.

The strike set for today, would have shut off more than 20 per cent of the country's ingot aluminum production, vitally needed in the manufacture of planes and other defence items.

Replacing W.S.B.

The settlement was announced by the Wage Stabilization Board on the eve of its final appearance. The wage board, stripped of most of its dispute-settling powers by Congress last month, will be replaced by a new board lacking any power to propose settlement terms in deadlocked labor disputes.

The W.S.B. announcement said the new contracts will give workers a 21.4-cents-an-hour pay benefit package. Of that, 15 cents is retroactive to March 10 and four cents effective July 1. The pact also calls for a modified union shop where employees must apply for union membership but may withdraw during the 15th and 30th day of employment.

Approval of a new wage contract between Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. and the United Steelworkers' Union (C.I.O.) affecting 5,000 employees in Kaiser plants also was announced.

Speed Up Production

Meanwhile, steel companies took short cuts but with safety margins to speed up production. By truck and railroad tinplate and other steel products moved to consumers.

One sour note in the general back-to-work story came from the defence production administrator Henry H. Fowler. He warned that it may be two or three months before manufacturers of civilian goods get sufficient flow of new steel. Fowler estimates steel production loss at 20,000,000 tons. Latin America's most powerful terms of the settlement, one of the country's biggest producers, Reynolds Metal Co., asked the government for a ceiling price increase of two cents a pound for primary aluminum. The request is the same as that filed a few days ago by Alcoa. Kaiser wants 2½ cents per pound for primary aluminum with a 12½ per cent boost for all of its aluminum products.

Chartered Plane Crashes Near Malton, Two Killed

TORONTO (CP)—A chartered plane crashed and burned today, bringing death to two airmen after its pilot successfully prevented it from plunging into the airport village of Malton.

The plane crashed 200 yards from the village, 10 miles north of here.

Killed were the Pilot, Cyril Fairhurst, 35, of suburban North York and formerly of Windsor, and copilot Robert George Tomlin, 27, of suburban Willowdale.

One engine cowling was seen to fall off soon after the take-off. The twin-engine Cessna hit hydro wires and plumetted to earth amid a series of explosions.

"There wasn't enough of it left to even tell what kind it was," said a clerk at a nearby drug store.

Half an hour after the crash the plane was still burning.

Jean Williams, an employee at an aircraft firm, said she was watching the aircraft when one engine cut out.

"The plane looked as if it stalled and then spun in," she said.

The plane was owned by Sanderson Aircraft Limited, Malton.

Both men were employed by the aircraft company.

One man jumped out just before the plane crashed and it landed on top of him.

CYLINDERS SABOTAGED

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters) —Works Minister William Gooseman said today big American-made hydraulic cylinders urgently needed for a North Island hydro-electric plant have arrived in New Zealand badly damaged, apparently deliberately. Steel filings, planings and moulding sand had been thrown into them, he said.

Ontario's Heat Wave Over

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's heat wave is over, weather bureau officials said today. "Very cool" air from the Arctic has moved into central North America.

The temperature dropped 21 degrees here in 24 hours—from a high of 79 yesterday to a low of 58 early today. In northern Ontario last night temperatures dipped to a 40-degree low.

Coldest spot recorded in Canada last night was White River, 150 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, with a low of 30 which brought a heavy frost.

PREPARE ATOM TESTS

PERTH, Australia, (AP)—The British naval vessel Tracker, loaded with top-secret atomic equipment, arrived yesterday en route to Britain's south Pacific atom-test ground. Secrecy shrouded the ship. Two other ships are expected with more equipment for the explosion of Britain's first atom bomb, expected to take place in September.

Bowling Notes

Two rinks from the Kingston Bowling Club will represent district 15 in the Governor-General competition at Ottawa some time in August, when they defeated two rinks from Stirling at the local greens last evening by a combined score of 53-36. At the close of the match, Ray Grant, president of the Belleville Club and also president of the district league presented the Bay of Quinte trophy to Morley Galt and Richard Edney, skips of the Kingston rinks.

In making the presentation the president hoped that the Kingston club would have success in their quest for the Governor-General trophy against other district winners in Eartern Ontario and they would bring back the cup, won some years ago by Belleville rinks. Dick Edney in accepting the trophy stated he would like to see more clubs in the district take part in rink play because it afforded excellent competition and splendid comradeship. He assured the gathering the Kingston rinks would pull their weight in the competition ahead. He thanked the Belleville club for the use of the greens.

The contest last night was rather close up to midway in the games of 21 ends but Kingston gradually pulled ahead and at the end were 17 shots to the good. A rink from Stirling skipped by Walter Elliott with A. Brooks lead, A. Livingstone second and Fred Mallory as vice-skip opposed a rink from Kingston skipped by Dick Edney with H. Swaffield as lead, E. Dennison second and W. Duncan as vice was defeated 22-18, while the other Stirling rink skipped by Earl Fox with R. D. Cooke as lead, R. D. Patterson second and H. R. Tompkins as vice was defeated by the Kingston rink skipped by Morley Galt with H. Baker as lead, J. R. B. Gage second, and Art Armstrong vice by a score of 31 to 18.

Jerry Hyde and Gordon Edwards have become a prominent pair in local bowling circles. A short time ago they won three high at the Peterborough tourney and on Saturday last journeyed to Oshawa, where they were successful in winning the two-game high with a score of 50 and were only beaten in their second game by two shots and that on the last end. The boys received beautiful prizes for their efforts. They report a splendid day of bowling.

At the local greens on Wednesday afternoon and evening the club will stage a mixed jitney with a pot luck supper to be served after the first game in the afternoon and then two games will be played in the evening. Every bowler who will be in town is asked to join in the get together arranged by the committee. A good time is promised.

A number of local rinks will journey to Trenton on Wednesday afternoon to take part in the Benedict-Proctor rink competition. This is one of the biggest rink tournaments to be held in this district during the year. The trophy has been won by a Belleville rink and is a credit to any club holding it for a year. Valuable prizes will accompany the cup for the winners. On Saturday a mixed doubles tournament will be held at Brighton and a number of local pairs will take in the hospitality of the Brighton club.

Bobby Soxers Tell Sordid Story in Court

VANCOUVER (CP)—The story of thrill-crazy bobby soxers who experimented with narcotics in cheap hotels continued to unfold in police court yesterday.

Committed for trial on charges of distributing heroin to two girls, one 16 and the other 18, was James Mason, 28-year-old seaman.

Mason is the sixth suspect to be committed on that charge.

So far, 10 teen-aged girls from all walks of life have told how they used narcotics given to them by the alleged distributors.

Yesterday a blonde witness who said she escaped from industrial school several times testified that Mason gave her the first drug she ever used.

"I escaped from the school in October 1951, and came downtown with another girl. We met Mason somewhere downtown.

"The next day we went up to his room in a hotel. . . I had never taken drugs before but I told him I had. I asked him for a fix. There were four other people in the room and he brought out a capsule of heroin, poured the contents into a lipstick tube, mixed it with water and heated it with a match.

"First he fixed another and then asked me if I had ever used it before I said yes but I was lying.

"He put it in my arm and gave me a sink fix. I didn't feel anything so a bit later after he had cooked up another cap for himself and the others, I asked if I could have some of that too.

"He gave it to me. Then I felt very sick and lay down on the bed and coasted. I don't remember anything more—how I left the apartment or whether I used any more drugs later in the day."

'Public Meeting' Request Turned Down by Howe

WINDSOR (CP)—A union request for a "public meeting" in connection with the cancellation of a Ford of Canada contract has been turned down, Tom MacLean, assistant Canadian director of the United Auto Workers (C.I.O.—C.C.L.), said yesterday.

He said that Trade Minister Howe has rejected the U.A.W. request for a public meeting in connection with the cancellation July 17 of a Ford contract to manufacture wings for 576 T-33A Shooting Star jet aircraft.

Officials of Canadair Limited, Montreal, cancelled the order "because of certain difficulties and obstacles which could affect the satisfactory performance of the contract." Union officials asked for a public meeting to discuss the circumstances of the cancellation because, they said, the act constituted a "smear" on the U.A.W.

Mr. MacLean said that Mr. Howe's stand "leaves alive several inferences that are good neither for the Ford Motor Company nor for the union, nor, for that matter, for the City of Windsor."

50 Ringleaders Of Prison Riot Are Transferred

GUELPH (CP)—Fifty ringleaders of the July 5 riot at the Ontario reformatory here were moved during the week-end under heavy guard to North Bay jail, it was learned today.

Shackled and heavily-guarded by 10 provincial police officers and under the supervision of two police inspectors, the prisoners were moved in two bus loads. They arrived early Monday.

Hedley Basher, deputy Minister of Reform Institutions, said the prisoners will finish their sentence in the Northern Ontario jail.

Intruder Shoots Woman in Hip

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A woman was shot in the hip early today by one of two men who attempted to break into a cottage she occupied with a girl friend, police said.

Betty Gibson, 28, of Windsor, is in "good" condition in hospital.

Jacqueline Boucher, 29, told police two men tried to enter a cottage which she was occupying with Miss Gibson on the outskirts of suburban La Salle.

The men pounded on the door, she said, and as the two women ran across a hallway, one man fired three shots. One bullet struck Miss Gibson.

The men then drove away in a late-model automobile.

LET THEM START EVEN

Riots within penal institutions have occupied considerable space in the news during recent weeks. Not much has been made known as to the actual cause of these outbreaks, but it has been costly to taxpayers as these disgruntled prisoners attempt to air their grievances, if any, before the bar of public opinion.

Perhaps these rioters who now show a dislike for prison food and prison treatment should be reminded that if they obeyed society's code of living, they would be free men and not forced to accept life behind bars. If prison food and prison treatment act as a deterrent to further jail terms, it is a good thing.

But it is suggested that when these men have completed their prison term, their debt to society should be written off. Huge sums are spent by the provincial government to "rehabilitate" these individuals who have been sentenced to prison terms. Yet it is the same government which has passed laws denying for all time the right of these men to engage in some specified occupations.

The cruel impact of this legislation aimed at former prisoners is felt by a Belleville resident who was removed from his job because his employer was reminded by the government that the man was convicted in his early youth. The employer had no alternative but to discharge the employee although he was described as a hardworking and satisfactory staff member.

This is truly evidence of a "barb" in the rehabilitation program. In championing its "rehabilitation" endeavor among convicts, the authorities point with pride to the success of leather working classes, broom making and kindred accomplishments taught on the "inside." Purpose of this instruction is to fit the man for a place in society when he has paid his debt.

But as it now stands, this debt is never paid. A convicted man's past remains a stark spectre which may pass in review at any time to remind him that he was once in prison, the effect of which is to cost him his friends and his job and create a hate toward society which could return him to a life of crime.

Yes, in prison let the convicts know who is boss. They are there for punishment and let them get it. But upon their release, let them go with a clean slate in the knowledge that if they are determined to go straight, no government regulations will thwart their efforts.

KING FAROUK LOSES JOB

Hardly given time to pack his bags before leaving the country under orders, King Farouk of Egypt now joins the long procession of kings who have been summarily dispossessed of their earthly kingdoms. There will not be a sorrowing populace to mourn his departure because even the most ardent royalists found it difficult to condone the squandering ways of a corrupt king whose extravagances brought him the title "The Playboy of the Eastern World."

Farouk has learned the hard way that the world is in no mood for "playboys" in high places. Millions in Egypt, long oppressed by graft and palace intrigues, will rejoice at his exile. Among those who will lament his departure are the palace favorites whose positions and pre-exile security stemmed from the fun-loving monarch's disregard for the welfare of his people.

What the future holds for Egypt is not determined. A new deal is in prospect and although the party now in power has aligned itself against the British and the West in the past, the hope persists that these differences will resolve in accord at an early date.

But meanwhile ships of the British navy have been alerted to steam for the canal zone where British troops are guarding against any uprising in Egypt.

Oil-rich Iran was last week's trouble spot in the East. This week it is Egypt. Can accord be reached before it is too late?

POISON ONLY FOR BUGS

A seasonal warning note has been sounded by the nutrition committee of the Health League of Canada urging Canadian consumers of fruit and vegetables not to become victims of poisons intended only for bugs.

With many types of insecticides on the market and most, if not all, containing a poisonous base to protect fruit and vegetables against bugs, it is possible for some of the poison to reach the public. As a safety measure, the Health League urges that all fruit and vegetables be washed to remove traces of the chemical. Canners are aware of the potential dangers lurking in spray residue and take steps to guard the public. Similarly, the public should wash fruit and vegetables before they are consumed. This is a safe way to stay well.

ROADSIDE TABLE

A place to eat beneath the trees,
Conditioned by a summer breeze.
Free music — sweet and merry song —
By birds provided all day long.
A table large enough for all
The grown-ups and the children small;
A gr[illegible] room, carpeted in green;
A ga[illegible] where great art is seen;

The loveliest landscapes on display,
Painted in nature's perfect way.
No restaurant, however fine,
Provides so rich a place to dine,
So restful and so calm a spot
Where care and heartache are forgot,
As this, with neither door nor wall,
Wide open, free for one and all.

UP AND OUT

Everyone is familiar with the expression "down and out" as applied to unfortunate people at the bottom of the social or often the financial scale. It is certainly true that being "down" in terms of money does tend to keep one "out" of a lot of activities, though never, yet us hope, out or religious activities. Yet there is another condition even more serious, though less common—that of being "up and out."

All clergymen are familiar with up-and-outers: people who have all they need of their world's goods and who are prepared to be quite independent of religion. They are, in their own opinion, too intelligent to need moral and religious guidance from others, too self-sufficient to need help and reassurance, too enlightened to bother with such old-fashioned stuff as religion. They feel themselves about that sort of thing—as long as life leaves them untested.

But life does not leave them untested, and when they are in situations where only courage, faith, patient endurance, or resistance to temptation can save them, their real self-sufficiency becomes only too clear.

The ancient Greeks believed it dangerous for a man to become too wealthy, too powerful, too great, too proud: the gods would envy him and destroy him. Our own faith contains an even more valid warning: "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE REACH OF NATURE

Nature puts out her arms, and is forever planting voices in both expected and unexpected places. Flowers, animals, birds, trees, rocks, waters of many forms. These are voices of nature. I look out upon the trees and note that each branch keeps reaching, each leaf of every tree or flower also reaching out—upward to the Sun and outward to all those with seeing eyes.

Everything in nature is a miracle, and perfectly conceived. There is a family relationship between every created thing in nature. Pick up the commonest pebble or stone of a larger denomination, and note the tinest flower, like the ones I plucked today along the shore of my summer island retreat. They were little blue flowers, hugged by a blade or so that resembled grass, yet that small wonder was perfect in every detail. And there was a purpose for its creation, as there is for everything created, though we may be unable to fathom that secret.

Why is it that the desert is so profuse with flowers of an almost unearthly character? Why is it that some, like the orchid, originate in swamps and difficult places.—in jungles where man rarely goes? Nature has always reached out. It is a restless force. Why is it that the needles of each variety of pines are not the same but characteristic of its species? Why such a variety of colorings to birds? Take the warblers, for example—what a study of the almost endless varieties—and what wonderful creatures they are!

That tiny humming bird, one of the most remarkable of all birds, spreads its journey over thousands of miles, and apparently thinks nothing of it. Nothing in this world is so intimate to one with love in his heart as nature. The handiwork of God is in it all. The late Dr. George Washington Carver said that he talked with flowers, and I can well understand that he did, for I do the same thing. I am never alone in nature. She is the origin of all beauty. God distributes his blessings through her, for she is the Mother of us all!

'Red' Dean Centre of Worst Storm of Eventful Career

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

Dean of Canterbury Dr. Hewlett Johnson, believes bus seats should be wider so weary workmen could spread out in comfort.

He also believes Communist charges that United Nations forces fighting in Korea dropped diseased insects in China to spread pestilence in the Orient.

The vigor with which he has spread Communist germ warfare propaganda has centred him in one of the fiercest storms of his eventful career.

The best brains in Britain don't know what to do about the Dean, administrator of Canterbury Cathedral and ranked ecclesiastically "somewhat below a bishop."

Thousands wonder what made him get that way. He says his motive is Christian compassion for his fellowmen. Through most of his adult life he has supported Socialist political aims and Socialist leaders.

He was aked whether Prime Minister Stalin is a Christian.

"I didn't ask him," the Dean replied. "But he was very friendly, and where there is friendship there is Christianity."

He clings determinedly to his church office. Both Prime Minister Churchill and Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Dean's ecclesiastical boss, have told Parliament there is no way of getting him out, even though they found his political views objectionable.

The Dean is a product of England's Manchester region and, some say, also a product of 19th century industrialism. As a youth he worked in his father's mill to familiarize himself with factory operation.

He studied engineering at Manchester University but became convinced religion offered means for bringing about social betterment. He went to Oxford, where he was a good oarsman and won honors in theology.

For about 30 years he was vicar of a wealthy parish of factory owners and employers at Altrincham.

He preached mild Socialism to a parish which was not much impressed. But he did attract the attention of Ramsey MacDonald, Labor prime minister.

On MacDonald's recommendation, the Crown appointed Dr. Johnson Dean of Manchester.

He became Dean of Canterbury in 1931.

The Dean is regarded by his Archbishop as an erudite theologian.

"He holds profoundly and sincerely precisely the same Christian faith."

He is an ardent dress reformer. He dressed choir boys in shorts. Women should not have to wear hats in church, he said, and he would not exclude a girl in beach pajamas.

Lovers, he said, should be permitted to hold hands in church right through the most profound sermon.

He went to Spain to exhort Generalissimo Franco.

Believing Russia had found the answer to things, he went there first at the age of 62. He is a welcome visitor there now, having won the Stalin Peace Prize which the Russians hold is worth $2,000.

Between trips abroad, he managed the cathedral competently, aided by his second wife, Noel Mary, 44, an artist of ability. From his first wife, who died in 1931, the Dean inherited a substantial fortune. An author, his "Socialist Sixth of the World," appeared in 22 editions and 24 languages.

Lately the Dean and his wife have set up a tea room and cafe Canterbury.

Under existing law he cannot be removed from his church office and British authorities shrink from limiting freedom of speech. But Sir Lionel Heald, the attorney-general, is still studying the record to determine whether any criminal action is possible.

Letter to the Editor

TWO-WAY FREIGHT TRAFFIC NEEDED

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

This reader got information (and pleasure) from that story from London, in which a CP writer (E.S. Johnson) deals with the 11th annual report of the Commonwealth Shipping Committee, announcing Hudson Bay Marine insurance rates for the 1952 season, and giving some revealing aspects of this "Via Churchill" traffic.

The following brace of paragraphs were thought-provoking: At least 26 ships and 10,000,000 bushels of grain could have been handled through proper allocation of tonnage on the Hudson Bay route out of Port Churchill during the abbreviated 2 1-2-month navigation season in 1951 This is the opinion of Sir Clement Jones, chairman of the C.S.C., based on the "considered opinion of responsible men on the spot"; also, this factual picture: The report said 21 ships carrying 7,278,000 bushels of grain moved out of Port Churchill during the 1951 season. Both the number of sailings and the cargo volume were records established without mishap.

Unfortunately, while I was hungry for more light on the inbound freight tonnage, there was no reference made to this aspect of the "Via Churchill" traffic. Maybe this will come in a later story? I hope so, because my prairie friends assure me that, when all's been said and done, this two-way traffic is the key to the whole problem.

If I remember correctly, in 1950 three ships brought inbound cargoes aggregating a mere 3,000 tons; while the 1951 total reached 7,115 tons. Even at the latter improved level, one need not be an economist or transportation expert to see that a port cannot hope to develop at what one observer describes as "this Curt Carlsen angle" of 7,115 tons of inbound cargo, and 187,000 tons of outbound grain?

Be that as it may, a careful reading of the above news story gave me the impression that our western farmers are on the right track in suggesting that the storage capacity at the Port Churchill terminal elevator should be increased at the earliest possible date?

Flying Saucer Objects Seen Over Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Police and military observers and hundreds of civilians reported seeing three "flying saucer" objects over south central Indiana between midnight and dawn yesterday.

State police at Indianapolis, Seymour and Connersville posts, and army and air force observers at Camp Atterbury said they watched the objects for several hours.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Dogs are supposed to have a whimsical sense of humor because they always shake themselves, when coming out of the water, in somebody's immediate vicinity. This little habit is not whimsy. It is a dog's deliberate attempt to shake its fleas off onto somebody else.

When a dog goes in the water, its fleas are panic-stricken and make for the head, tail, ears and such parts as are not wet. Those that don't make the grade to dry land are bewildered and cling to the hair in a state of confusion. They are easily shaken free by the dog when it comes ashore.

But ancient instinct tells a dog that it is not enough to shake the fleas off. For they will hop right back on again in an instant. But if the fleas are shaken onto another dog—and it is another dog and not a human being that the dog is looking for when it comes out of the water—they are not so likely to board the wet craft they have just been shaken from.

If you will watch a dog playing in and out of the water, this trait will be perfectly obvious. If there is another dog in the party, the swimmer will almost invariably run over beside it to shake. If no dog is handy, it will head for the nearest human being. You will see it employ considerable cunning in its approach. It will come up behind a person. It will detour around very slyly until it can get within spraying distance. If you back away from it slowly, it will follow you, with a look of frustration in its eyes. For you are denying it something its instinct tells it should be done. Even if you scold it, and force it to shake at a discreet distance from you, it will do so, and then, on being allowed within range, will do a second shake in the hope of carrying out the intention its ancient instinct has in mind.

A state of high comedy is reached when two or more dogs are playing around the water and go through the ceremony of shaking their fleas off onto one another, time after time. Even pampered dogs that have been deflead observe the ritual. The humor of it lies in how like human beings dogs are after all. They suffer from the self same instincts.

MILD ARSENIC POISONING

Everybody gets a little arsenic in one way or another and can excrete or eliminate it without any disturbance of health. It is only when the arsenic intake happens to be a little more than one can handle that symptoms or signs of chronic arsenic poisoning may occur.

I believe I have had three or four bouts of it in the past ten years, from the arsenical spray residues I have eaten on celery, lettuce and other leaves and perhaps some fruits that have been sprayed with lead arsenate or perhaps some fruits that have been sprayed with lead arsenate or perhaps paris green especially in a dry season.

Loss of appetite, nausea, bellyache (and I mean belly) and perhaps sombe diarrhea are the usual manifestations of mild arsenic poisoning, when one gets a little more than one can handle. A sure cure I have found, is simple enough: eschew green salads and fruits or berries for a week or so.

Some poor geeks, unaware that such symptoms warrant the suspicion of arsenic poisoning, keep right on eating arsenic and among the symptoms they develop eventually are recurring eczema; a peculiar waxy pallor; red injected eyelid linings and in some cases swollen or puffy eyelids; onion or garlic odor of the breath, skin or sweat, puzzling tingling or numbness in legs or arms; sometimes actual neuritis.

In some instances chronic arsenic poisoning has been responsible for such peculiar conditions as erythromelalgia — keep your shirt on, we'll interpret it presently—and idopathic peripheral vasoconstriction. I'm sorry about them ten dollar words, folks, but there they are—or perhaps I should say there are the mangled remains of them laid out in the style to which the typographer is accustomed.

Erythro (red) mel (?) algia (ache or pain) was invented before this column, so you can't blame me for it. I merely notice it as we amble along and kick it around just for the fun of it. At that, I'm letting you off easy—the correct word is erythromegalalgia—one up on Webster, although Webster does mention that megalo—a combining form meaning big, large or great. For instance, megalomania is unreasonable conviction of one's own importance or greatness; and acromegalic pertains to extremely large limbs or feet.

The other sesquipedalism — well, it would take too long to go over it again, but a medical term for it is Raynaud's disease which was first described by Maurice Raynaud, a French physician, about 80 years ago, as local syphyxia and symmetrical gangrene. A more familiar term for it, in mild cases, is "dead fingers" or "dead toes."

If you happen to have either big red ache or dead fingers or dead toes, do not infer that the trouble is necessarily a manifestation of chronic arsenic poisoning—in most instances of either condition the cause is unknown and I mention the fact that arsenic seems to be responsible in some instances only to show how abscure and mystifying mild chronic arsenic poisoning may be.

Don't Marry Unfit

Please give me the name of a state or any place where I can get a marriage licence without a health certificate. M. W.)

Answer—Uh-uh.

Evasion

Please explain "nervous heart condition" and "mental heart condition." (C. T. M.)

Answer — Meaningless terms used perhaps to tell you it is none of your business what ails the patient or to conceal from you the fact that the doctor doesn't know what, if anything, is the matter.

Floor Mopping by Student Nurses

It would be interesting to know what school you have in mind when you give the impression that student nurses must do floor mopping. (——— R. N.)

Answer—It is much more interesting to know that pupil nurses are never required to do any such work in the hospital where you are director. I congratulate you upon your record. You and I seem to have different ideas—you refer to the pupils in the first six months of the three year training periods as "student nurses." I call them pupils throughout the period of their training.

Gastric Acidity

Do I understand you to say that hyperacidity of the stomach is always ulcer? (C. L. T.)

Answer—I don't know. I never said so. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask in writing for pamphlet Yankee Stomach.

Bercovitch testified at the Montreal vice inquiry, investigating alleged police toleration of vice in Montreal during a 10-year period.

The recipient of the bribe and the councillor for whom the vote was purchased were not identified.

Winter Winds, Sub Zero Temperatures Grip Ungava Eight Months Each Year

Living in the wilderness country of northern Quebec and Labrador isn't easy. The weather is one of the problems. In this story, Forbes Rhude, Canadian Press Business Editor, interviews a man and wife who have spent five years there, to give you their picture of frontier life.

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Norman Delmage has lived since 1947 in the heart of Labrador-Ungava. Let's listen to him talk about the weather in that frontier area which iron ore is opening.

Now Burnt Creek, Que., near the Labrador boundary, where he lives with his wife and small daughter, has electric lights and running water. By 1954 vast surface mining will have started pouring the natural riches of the area on world markets at a rate of 10,000,000—perhaps later 20,000,000—tons a year.

"There were no conveniences here five years ago," he says.

"During the first winter there were days when we had to take crews off the job to cut firewood and haul it in to keep from freezing.

Snow in September

"There is cold, dirty weather after August, and sometimes as much as a foot of snow in September. By the end of October the lakes begin to freeze. Generally there is not much snow until December, but from mid-December we can expect anything.

"The toughest part is the wind. It can be 40 below zero and blowing 40 miles an hour at the same time.

"It's not that there's so much snow, but what we get blows off the hills and piles up in the valleys. Drifts reach the tops of buildings. The more you plow, the more it piles in. You're only asking for trouble to try to cut through it. So, on the winter roads, we try to stay on top—to travel over it.

"Three winters ago we had our worst seige, 40 and 50 below zero for weeks on end, and an occasional 60 below. That year we installed a central heating plant, and nearly froze to death doing it. The last two winters have been comparatively good.

"There is not much break until April, and the first real thaws are in May. June and the fall bring the best weather. July and August tend toward wet and fog. Some summers it has dried up enough to raise dust.

"Black flies are the real summer problem, along with mosquitoes. Those flies get in your ears, your hair, crawl under anything, take chunks right out of you. The men get used to it, but the women and kids suffer."

A Woman's View

After hearing that, I asked Mrs. Delmage what she thought about it. She went to Burnt Creek as a bride in 1948 from Normetal, Que.

"We had two rooms between the rafters above a machine shop," she said. "But it was kind of cute."

Sometimes she found the winter "depressing" but after a few trips outside she feels that Burnt Creek, where she now lives in a new house with mordern fittings, is "home."

Her daughter, Lynn, is two years old, and was hailed when she was born "as the first production of the Iron Ore Company in Labrador."

Mrs. Delmage says the baby wasn't actually born in Burnt Creek; she went out to Mont Joli

"When we go out, we go on a buying spree—like men going berserk on drink."

Her ordinary winter costume is parka and ski slacks, a kerchief, woollen mitts, fur-lined boots.

She told about last Christmas at Burnt Creek:

"Six of Norm's men came around, and played with Lynn and her puppy spaniel. We had a Christmas tree. We made ice cream—somehow, we get a craving for ice cream up here—and we had a turkey with all the trimmings. We got out the guitar and the five other families here dropped in for a singsong."

Come Out by Air

She said air transportation is provided when one wants to visit Outside.

"But we feel guilty taking it. It means that some supplies won't be delivered. Once when I was catching a plane at the last minute, I saw them take off enough lumber to make up for my weight."

Brides going to Burnt Creek are welcomed by the women in residence, who call with cakes and refreshments. "People are helpful here—they have to be."

Mrs. Delmage, an attractive brunette, is the former Yvette Noel, who was born at Cutler, Ont., when it was a lumber town between Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie. She met her husband when both were working at Normetal.

Delmage is an example of the powerful call of the big jobs which are pushing back Canada's frontiers.

He was born at Ochre River near Dauphin, Man., and worked at northern mining camps in Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec. Then, in 1947, he thought he'd try something different and went to Vancouver. Within six weeks he got a telephone call asking him to go to Labrador. He has been there since, first as master mechanic and now as manager, for Iron Ore Company.-

Search Continues For Nine Believed Drowned in Calif.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Three of 12 men aboard an explosion shattered fishing boat were plucked from the sea yesterday while search continued for the other nine.

The survivors said most of the others drowned in shark-infested waters 14 miles southwest of here.

Rescuedby the Santa Monica lifeguard station were Harold Haley, 44, Buzzy Sachse, 16, and James Knight, 23.

"The boat blew up suddenly and I think all the others went down with it," Haley said. "We couldn't have lasted much longer."

The 35-foot boat, Spare Time, was skippered by Wesley Wiggins, 29. Following the explosion he tried to get survivors bunched together on wreckage, and then attempted to swim ashore. He hasn't been heard from.

8 INJURED IN CRASH

STRATFORD (CP)—Four adults and their four children were injured last night when the car in which they were riding hurdled into a six-foot ditch after collision with a truck on No. 8 highway, east of Mitchell last night. He told police he first realized he had hit something when he felt a bump and saw newspapers tossed into the air.

MARMORA

MARMORA—Rev. Kenneth J. Crawford, B. A., B. D., who has been pastor of Enterprise United Church charge for the past seven years, was installed and inducted into the Marmora United Church charge at St. Andrew's on Friday evening.

The Rev. A. L. Sisco of Tweed conducted the service which opened with the singing of the hymn, "Praise my soul, the King of Heaven." This was followed by Scripture readings from 1 Peter 5 and John 21 by Rev. Sisco.

The new minister was then brought forward by Rev. G. A. Puttenham of Trenton, chairman of the presbytery.

Following the introduction, the offertory was taken and the hymn, "The Church's One Foundation" sung.

The Rev. H. E. Beare of Springbrook gave the charge to the congregation, commenting upon the relationship and importance of Holy Scripture in the life of the church.

He said that "Holy Scripture was esteemed very highly not only in the Church of God but also in organizations embracing the Christian way of life." He finished his discourse by enlarging upon the words of Paul to Timothy, that "all Scripture was given by inspiration of God and was profitable for doctrine and reproof and instruction in righteousness that the man of God might be perfect and thoroughly furnished unto all good works." At the close he offered prayer.

Institution Ceremony

The ceremony of institution and induction followed here. Rev. H. W. Giffin of Foxboro then gave the charge to the minister. Taking as his text the words of God to Jonah, "arise and go to Nineveh," he drew attention to the fact that in those days before the coming of Christ, the mercy of God was extended beyond the Jew to the Gentile and Nineveh because of its repentance, was spared destruction.

He first told the congregation that the minister was in their hands as it were because some one was needed to reprove of sin and to endeavor to keep the flock in the narrow way. He spoke to the inducted minister of the great privilege it is to any minister to be the minister of his flock. Prayer was offered by him at the close of his address followed by prayer of the Rev. A. L. Sisco.

The hymn, "Savior, Again to Thy Dear Name," was sung, after which Rev. K. J. Crawford pronounced the benediction. As the congregation retired they were introduced to the new pastor by H. W. Sabine.

It is understood that the reception is planned for a later date when Mrs. Crawford and family will arrive to take up residence a the manse.

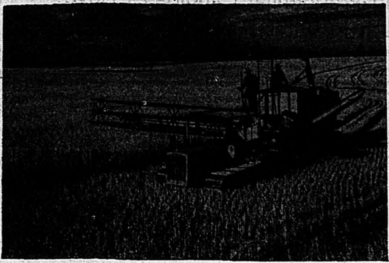
Rev. George Crabbe of Eldorado and Mrs. Crabbe also attended the induction.

Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Hughes, Mr. James Hughes, Miss Mary Hughes and Mr and Mrs. B. W. Hughes attended the Newland-Allore wedding in Belleville on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Warre of Lindsay spent the weekend wit Mr. and Mrs. P. Gordon.

Mr. and Mrs. Mallory Knox o Bethany called on relatives her on Friday.

Prairie Grain Crop Threatened With Deadly Rust



Prairie wheat farmers with prospects of a bumper wheat crop are anxiously awaiting harvest time, hoping that the grain will mature before the spread of stem rust. The rust has been identified in Saskatchewan as race 15B, a deadly disease which could spread through the wheat fields in a matter of weeks, ruining crops which are now nearing harvest. — Central Press Canadian.

Illustrated: ROADMASTER CONVERTIBLE

A General Motors Value

Call out the Reserves with a touch of your toe!

Most cars lead a double life.

A good part of the time they're running errands, taking children to school, taking women to stores, taking men to work, taking family and friends to clubs and social functions.

It doesn't call for a very great output of horsepower for duties like these.

But there are times when you want a car that can do vastly more, and these are the times when you'll want what this year's ROADMASTER has to offer.

Beneath its proud hood, there's a Fireball 8 Engine—a valve-in-head that can let loose 170 lively horsepower when needed.

And—alongside this engine—there's also an Airpower carburetor which thriftily feeds fuel and air through two smaller-than-usual barrels for normal driving—which means that you now use less gas at 40 than you'd formerly use at 30.

But there are two barrels in reserve—waiting for you to call them into action—and they let loose a soaring rush of power that sinks your shoulders back into the seat cushion, swoops you past a truck—out of a tight spot—up a hill—sets your speedometer needle to registering added miles more than twice as fast as your watch can tick off the seconds.

This is an experience you certainly should know firsthand.

You should also know how Buick's Power Steering* provides a helping hand in slow-motion manoeuvres—lets you keep the "feel" of the car in straightaway driving.

And—just for good measure—this 1952 ROADMASTER also has the biggest brakes of any postwar Buick—the greatest trunk space since spare tires moved off the front fenders—a warning light that glows when the parking brake is set—and to top it all, the smartest interior fabrics that Buick has ever offered.

When are you coming in to look this distinguished performer over? We urge you to make it soon.

*Optional at extra cost on ROADMASTER only.

Weddings

MONAGHAN—TERRION

A very pretty wedding took place in Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, on Saturday, July 19, of Aillene, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Terrion, to Joseph John Monaghan, son of Michael Monaghan, and the late Mrs. Monaghan. The Rev. J. A. O'Neill officiated. The church was beautifully decorated with hydrangea, phlox and delphiniums.

The music was rendered by Mrs. Hugh Brady, who sang "On This Day", and "Ave Maria".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of lace and net over white satin. Her veil was of lace and net caught to a headdress of pearls and rhinestones, and she carried a bouquet of roses and maidenhair fern and a white satin Prayer book with colored ribbon. The bridegroom also carried a Prayer book, both were gifts of Sister St. Fergus, of St. Joseph's Hospital.

The wedding attendants were, Mrs. Pete Empey, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, and Miss Patricia Laton, cousin of the bride, as bridesmaid. They were gowned in lime green, and mauve net over taffeta, with matching headdresses of net set with pearls. They carried bouquets of tea roses with maidenhair fern.

Little Linda Empey, niece of the bride, was flower girl, in yellow taffeta. She carried an arm basket of sweetpeas and fern.

Mr. Edward Monaghan, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Leland Terrion, brother of the bride, and Mr. Richard Monaghan, brother of the bridegroom.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received wearing a gown of navy sheer, with white accessories, and corsage of red roses. All flowers were beautifully made up by Mrs. Ben Sandham, of Deloro.

Later the bride and bridegroom left for a trip to Niagara and Buffalo. For travelling the bride wore a powder blue gabardine suit with white accessories and corsage of pink roses. Upon their return they will reside in Peterborough.

Out-of-town guests were from Sudbury, Toronto, Wooler, Eldorado, and Peterborough.

MOORCROFT—ROUSHORN

Ferns, gladioli and sweetpeas formed a lovely setting in Queensboro United Church on Saturday, July 26, at 2:00 p.m., when the Rev. E. D. Snelgrove, of Sydenham, assisted by Mr. E. V. C. Lewis, of Queensboro, united in marriage Laura Mary Kathleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Roushorn, of Queensboro, to Thomas Devolin Moorcroft, Madoc, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Moorcroft.

The wedding music was played by Miss Marilyn Eggleton, of Stirling, who accompanied the bride's uncle, Mr. Alf Evans, of Belleville, who sang during the signing of the register, "I Love You Truly", and "Because", during the recessional.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charmingly attired in a floor-length gown of white slipper satin, featuring rows of Chantilly lace at the neck and long sleeves coming to points over the hands. Her fingertip veil was held by a wreath of matching satin and lily-of-the-valley, and she carried a white Bible crested with a white orchid and stephanotis.

Miss Jean Roushorn, of Queensboro, was maid of honor, gowned in an ankle-length dress of pale green nylon net over taffeta with cap sleeves. She carried a nosegay of Talisman roses and button 'mums with gladioli flowerets.

The Misses Marlene Moorcroft and Margaret Roushorn, were bridesmaids, gowned in ankle-length dresses of similar design in pale yellow nylon net over taffeta. They carried nosegays of yellow Gloria roses, button 'mums and gladioli flowerets.

Miss Linda Roushorn, also of Queensboro, was flower girl, demure in her floor-length frock of mauve organdy over taffeta, and carrying a pink and mauve nosegay of sweetpeas and baby's breath.

Mr. Boyd Moorcroft, of Madoc, attended the bridegroom, and the ushers were, Mr. Monte Moorcroft and Mr. Jack Roushorn.

The reception was held at the bride's home where a buffet luncheon was served to one hundred guests, who were received by the bride's mother, who wore a street-length gown of pink nylon sheer over taffeta with navy accessories and corsage of Pinocchio Talisman roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a street-length dress of mauve shadow sheer with white accessories and a corsage of pink Briarcliffe roses.

For the wedding trip to Ottawa and Montreal and points east, the bride travelled in a rose-tan suit with green and tan accessories and white orchid corsage. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Moorcroft will reside in Oshawa.

Out-of-town guests were present from Tweed, Madoc, Belleville, Kingston, Brockville, Toronto, Watertown and Black River, N.Y.; Oshawa, and Stirling.

Both Presidential Candidates Have Much to Offer American Electorate

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A contest of personalities faces the voters of the United States next Nov. 4 when they will elect a new president.

The two candidates are strong personalities—probably the most appealing to enter a presidential campaign since the 1944 election.

It will be a difficult decision for those who vote the straight ticket regardless of personalities.

That huge, fairly independent section of the electorate will swing the balance.

Control Since 1932

Governor Adlai Ewing Stevenson, 52, studious and quietly able lawyer-son of a great family, has the task of perpetuating the 20-year-old control of the national government held by the Democrats since Franklin D. Roosevelt defeated Herbert Hoover in 1932.

His chief claim to political success is his record-breaking victory over Republicans in 1948 when he became the fourth Democratic governor of Illinois in 100 years.

Opposing him as the Republican hope for return to power is General Dwight D. Eisenhower, who will be 62 next October. He is popular at home and abroad for his victorious wartime leadership of allied forces and for his sparkling personality.

Sincerely Reluctant

Stevenson was not a presidential aspirant. He was sincerely and humbly reluctant in the opinion of most fair-minded observers. He remained that way to the last and probably is one of the few instances of complete and unquestionable drafting of a man for the highest office in the country; also one of the most important responsibilities in the world.

Eisenhower was a reluctant candidate for months. He rejected even the suggestion in 1944 and when the real drive to get him for 1952 began last January it took him months to make up his mind.

But in the five weeks or so prior to the convention he threw himself with typical vigor into the campaign for the nomination.

Thus the idea of the office seeking the man—which many believe should be the proper conduct of political affairs—does not apply in the same degree to Eisenhower as to the Democratic choice.

It is unlikely that either candidate, if faced with the responsibility of office, would greatly alter the basic policies on foreign affairs which have guided the administration in recent years.

Similarly their ideas on domestic problems in the major class would have to be formed in conformity with the pressure of events and be based on the advice of their economic and political advisers. They could not be far apart considering the high intellectual character of both and their reasonable and humble approach to such matters.

That leaves them very little fighting ground and puts the issue largely on the question of personal appeal as to the fitness and desirability as national leaders in a time of great stress and danger.

Must Learn From Past

Both candidates have indicated they believe the past is something to learn from and not cling to without regard for change.

Neither has claimed he or his party holds the key to the country's problems or has a monopoly on decency and honesty in public affairs.

Both have stressed the necessity of unity within party ranks, the desirability of retaining the two-party system and their believe in the equal rights of all citizens regardless of color.

Along about Sept. 1 these two leaders and their team of campaigners will begin their assault upon the voters. They plan to follow the course by which Harry Truman won his amazing victory in 1948—a direct personal appeal to as many voters as it is humanly possible to meet in the flesh.

It remains to be seen which will be most successful in that field. Eisenhower is more accustomed to meeting people of all types face to face and winning them but that experience was gained while he was in the glamorous role of a winning commander of the fighting forces. Stevenson is a shy and retiring man, not so stalwart or commanding a figure, bald like Ike and slightly shorter, but with a certain nobility and obvious sincerity which has brought many comparisons between him and Abe Lincoln.

Eisenhower has a happy family life. He is still married to his childhood sweetheart, the highly photogenic and pleasant-visaged "Mamie."

Stevenson lives alone with two of his 'teen-aged sons in the governor's mansion in Springfield. His wife, beautiful and wealthy Ellen Borden, daughter of a wealthy Chicago family, divorced him in 1949 on grounds of incompatibility, complaining that his political life had come between them. Their oldest son is in the Marines.

Eisenhower has never had to give thought to the domestic issues of government at either the state or national level, apart from those which influenced the country's ability or willingness to provide a strong armed force.

Notable Background

Stevenson is a grandson of a vice-president under Grover Cleveland, member of a long line of lawyers, a key man in the formation and development of the United Nations and a state governor since 1948.

In the campaign for nomination Eisenhower made some whistle stop speeches and reporters with him said he was a bit of a disappointment. He did not seem able to get into the hearts of his listeners. That may come with experience.

Each candidate has a characteristic that should be popular. They believe in short speeches with every word meaning something and in this Stevenson probably has the edge on the general.

Breast-Fed Babies Get Better Start Says Paediatrician

Breast-fed infants are less prone to infections, less likely to develop severe eczema, or digestive upsets, and they get an intangible something extra that bottle-fed babies miss, according to Dr. John Wilson, Toronto paediatrician, writing in the latest issue of Health.

"Be it firmness of flesh, better skin texture or what is difficult to define," sums up Dr. Wilson "but something makes the naturally fed infant stand out in contrast to his less fortunate fellows!"

Dr. Wilson suggests that the swing from nursing to artificial feeding over the past 30 years may be due to a number of factors. Improved dairying methods, coupled with pasteurization, have led to safer cow's milk. As a result of research on infant nutrition, formulae which approximate the baby's requirements are now easier to prepare. And the medical and nursing professions have to accept a large share of the responsibility for the popularity of artificial feeding because it is much easier to order a formula for a newborn baby than to attend to the innumerable details and give moral support to an anxious mother during the trying time when the milk supply is being established.

"Moreover, the iniquitous practice of ordering a complementary formula as soon as the baby is born, with a view to having the infant regain its weight rapidly has undoubtedly been responsible for many nursing failures," Dr. Wilson comments. "What difference does the loss of a few additional ounces make if successful breast feeding is established?"

The Health League of Canada magazine goes on to suggest that the overworked nursing staff of many newborn nurseries, either through lack of time or through ignorance of the important role it plays, have failed, in many cases, to give instruction and assistance to new mothers during the critical period when nursing is being established.

And, from the mother's point of view, nursing may well be less tiresome and more convenient than preparing formula and washing and sterilizing endless numbers of bottles. Instead, Nature has provided exactly the right formula at the right temperature and free from bacteria!

"From the psychological point of view, too," Dr. Wilson adds, "the mother has the deep down satisfaction of knowing that she is fulfilling her duty as Nature intended it—providing sustenance for her baby even after he has left the protection of her body.

"Never will she be as close to her baby as she is now, cuddling him to her breast. A relationship is established which will withstand many of the trials which lie ahead for both infant and mother."

The Health article concludes by terming breast feeding "the inalienable right of every infant," if it is physically possible.

"Its advantages are legion, its contra-indications few. It is up to all general practitioners, obstetricians and paediatricians to acquaint new mothers with these facts. Then, and then only, will breast feeding become the universal practice that Nature intended it to be."

GULLS DIE BY THOUSANDS

ERICKSON, Man. (CP)—Thousands of sea gulls have died from what is believed to be an outbreak of botulism at Round Lake near this town, 40 miles north of Brandon. More than 20,000 ducks died from botulism last year at Whitewater Lake in southern Manitoba. The disease is caushed by high temperatures and lack of oxygen in water. Resulting paralysis brings instant death.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Identical twins quarrel over boy friends

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My sister and I are identical twins, but she has slight inferiority complex, and because of that is very jealous of me at times. There is a boy with whom she has been going steady for almost a year and a half, and lately she has accused me several times of trying to steal him from her. I was the one who introduced them because I have been going with his older brother.

The fact is, my sister's steady and I have been very good friends, and we have confided in each other about some very special problems that we wanted to get off our minds but couldn't tell just anyone, but I know that he is very fond of my sister and, of course, I had my own boy friend.

What I'm beginning to think is, that, actually, she is trying to get my boy friend away from me while trying to make everyone think I'm out to get hers. The reason I think this is because she [illegible] always telling me how lucky I am to have such a nice boy friend and saying she wishes hers was like mine in every way. I've tried to discuss it all with her, but she won't listen. She always starts crying and says that is just part of my scheming, and I'm getting quite disgusted with her.

How can I convince her that I don't want her boy friend?—C. L.

Dear C. L.:

I should think one way to convince your sister that you don't want her boy friend is to stop being so confidential with him. I don't think you can blame her when she knows that you and he feel you must discuss your problems with each other. If you have your own boy friend, what's the matter that you can't talk over your problems with him? Do you consider him "just anyone" and if [illegible] are you quite certain it's not [illegible] younger brother whom you really prefer?

I don't think you'll get very far by trying to argue with your sister, particularly if she isn't going to listen to you. It will be far more effective if, as I said, you'll stop exchanging confidences with her boy friend, and also if you'll help her get over her inferiority complex by building her up with encouragement and praise.

These are my suggestions, and if you give them an honest try I think things should gradually straighten out between the two of you. It's too bad to think of twin sisters trying to cut each other out with boy friends.

She'd love her husband more if he'd do as she says

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 22 years old and married. [illegible] husband is 21. We have a sweet little baby.

The reason I am writing to you is that I want to know how I can break my husband's habit of talking about other girls all the time? He's always saying that he'd like to go with such and such a girl and making me feel that he does not love me any more. Another thing is that he won't listen to me when I tell him to do things, but just goes his own way.

Is there any way I can break him of these things and make him act like a married man? If I could make him see things my way, I could love him a lot better. What would you suggest?—G. M.

Dear G. M.:

Your statement that if you could make your husband see things your way you could love him better is a little alarming. Perhaps it is just your way of put[illegible] things, but if you really mean [illegible] then it makes me feel you might be the bossy type of wife who wants to dominate the family, which may account for a large part of your trouble.

You will never get your husband to stop doing the things that annoy you by taking the attitude that he must do things your way. The only chance one ever has of winning someone over to his or her side is to make oneself so lovable that the other person will just naturally want to co-operate.

I suggest that, if you are nagging your husband on the points you mention, you stop it at once and try this other way. Unless he is a confirmed woman-chaser, he's not going to want to go with any other girl but you if you are so interesting and attractive and such a happy, cheerful companion and good sport that you look bet[illegible] to him than anyone else.

Food for Thought

Canned Fish Saves The Day

By Mary Moore

Dear Mary Moore or Martin or Morgan or Moron (etc. ad infinitum): I answer to anything but when I'm asked a Dorothy Dix question on how to "go steady" with two boys at one time—I relinquish the chair to the experts on the subject of love. I'm a food woman myself. (A certain very near female relative of mine, initial of M., did just that for a year—"go steady" with two boys at one time. I've never fathomed how the little minx wangled it.)

But to answer "Worried" in a motherly manner, I would say just stop calling it "going-steady". Go out with both boys. Play the field in other words. The right boy will hang on.

I want to get back into my comfortable groove. I want to talk about creating glamorous dishes from those cans of fish you keep on your shelves. I mean genuine company dishes that you feel no apology for—just pride.

In the warm weather things that are always on hand in cans will save you many a headache—the headache of a perennially good provider who finds herself besieged with guests and confronted with an unstocked refrigerator.

These are all specials. Surely I need not say more than that a certain handsome movie actor makes a specialty of the Shrimp Creole (below) for midnight snacks for his friends; or that Tuna Casserole (also below) is the favorite luncheon dish of one of the heiresses of an automobile manufacturer's fortune. We are in celebrated company pals.

TUNA PARTY CASSEROLE.

Make 3 cups medium white sauce by melting 6 tablespoons butter or margarine and stirring in 6 tablespoons flour. When blended stir in 3 cups milk and 1 teaspoon salt, until thick. Using 2 cups canned tuna (approximately 2 7-oz. tins) arrange in alternate layers in large buttered casserole, the tuna, 2 cups crushed potato chips or cheese crackers, and the white sauce. Finish with topping of crushed potato chips. If you want to make this extra posh add to that layering process 3-4 cup either sliced ripe olives or sauted mushrooms. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 35 minutes and serve very hot. A big green salad with tomatoes for a border is all you need as an accompaniment.

SALMON MOUSSE

(Without whipped cream.)

This is the kind of a dish you might want to make on Saturday for company on Sunday. If you will have 10 or 12 people to serve—double these quantities. Two tablespoons gelatine, 4 tablespoons water, 1 egg, 1 1-2 tablespoons lemon juice, 3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine or very good quality shortening, 1 teaspoon each mustard and salt, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 3-4 cup milk, 2 cups flaked canned red salmon (or other cooked or canned fish such as lobster, crab ,or fresh salmon.) Soak the gelatine in the cold water for five minutes. In top of double boiler mix all other ingredients except the fish. Stir or beat constantly until it thickens. Immediately remove from heat and stir in soaked gelatine and flaked fish. Pour into moistened mold and chill until firmly set. To serve turn out on platter garnished with dainty lettuce cups filled with tomato wedges and slices of cucumber. Serve with lemon-y mayonnaise. This may be molded in individual molds. Quadrupled it is ideal for a small wedding reception, especially when made with canned or fresh cooked lobster.

SHRIMP CREOLE

(A one-dish hot dinner)

In a frying-pan in 3 tablespoons hot salad oil saute 1 cup thinly sliced peeled onions, 1-2 cup diced celery, and 1 finely chopped clove of garlic until limp and transparent but not browned. Add 1 tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon each salt and sugar and 1 tablespoon chili powder. When blended stir in 1 cup warm water until thick, then simmer over low heat for 10 minutes. Add 2 cups each canned or fresh tomatoes, cooked or canned green peas and canned or cooked shrimp, and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Heat through. Serve in hot boiled rice ring. If you have a ring mold butter it and pack the hot cooked rice in it to shape it smoothly. If you save out some of the shrimps they make an effective garnish with a few sprigs of parsley and wedges of lemon.

WED ABOARD HORSE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., (AP)—The bride and bridegroom, their two attendants and even the minister were mounted on horses Saturday for the wedding of Iona Deacons, 18 and Elmer Pyke, 27. The bride's horse bolted when it got confetti in the face but was brought under control after a short sprint.

GOOD MANNERS

By CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A corsage to "wear away" not a "must" for a bride

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it an absolute "must" that a bride wear a corsage when she and the groom leave on their wedding trip?—R.

No. . . not at all a 'must'! Of course the bride who fancies the "just married" look wouldn't deram of departing on her wedding trip without wearing the bridal corsage. But many a bride prefers not to wear a corsage, as she leaves on the wedding trip, perhaps because she prefers not to dramatize the "newlywed look", or because she is the type who just doesn't enjoy wearing flowers.

Foods and beverages appropriate for wedding anniversary "At Home"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

(1) Our 25th wedding anniversary is to be soon, and we would like to have an open house. The actual date is on a Wednesday. Do I remember correctly that I read in your column that sometimes the celebration is held on the Sunday following the date? (2) What are the best hours? (3) What to serve in this warm weather? Is it customary to serve alcoholic drinks, such as highballs and beer, or punch or such?—S. M.

(1) Yes, it is quite customary, because of the greater convenience for the greater number, to hold the wedding anniversary party on the Sunday following the actual date. (2) The usual hours are 4-to-7 . . .very often a much earlier beginning-hour 2 or 3 o'clock to 6 or 7. These hours are usually chosen because (a) they give a leeway for guests who arrive from a distance, and (b) refreshments for these afternoon hours are suitably simple, adaptable as to preparation, convenient as to service, and (c) refreshments for even a large group may not be too costly. (3) First item: simple sandwiches, carefully made, small and slim; fillings simple, appropriate to warm weather (for ex- rolled cucumber sandwiches), rolled cucumber sandwiches, made of various kinds of bread, white, whole wheat, rye (no crust), pumpernickel, raisin bread, and so forth. (If you wish, serve chicken salad with the sandwiches or heated rolls.) The "sweet" item: really delicious cookies, interesting, imaginative, whether home-made or packaged; or colorful small cakes or petite fours. Items for nibbling: nuts, popcorn, potato chips, and/or any of the seemingly-limitless variety of delectable accessories, mints or other "cool" candies. Beverages: the always-popular iced tea and iced coffee (really well-made, for oh, how they vary in goodness!); and/or a delicious fruit punch, with tea or gingerale base; or offer a choice of soft drinks, gingerale, white or purple grapejuice, orange juice, cola drinks, and so forth. (Whether or not you serve alcoholic drinks depends, naturally, on your own choice. . .your budget too.) Featured item: the wedding anniversary cake, as handsome a one as you can afford, or as you can make; white icing perhaps, with silver decorations, silver dragees (tiny silver candies) outlining the dates, 1927-1952, the dramatic "25" crowning the cake, the cake in several tiers if you wish.

BEAUTY

Girls who wear glasses

Freckles aren't so terrible

There are two kinds of freckles, the transients that pop out on young faces when the first warm days of summer come, and do a fade-away when the leaves begin to fall; and those that take up permanent residence, sticking right by one until along about the thirties, when they consider their mission of annoyance finished.

The girl who has a trail of yellowish polka dots over her impertinent nose should remember that they are disfiguring only if she thinks them so. Many individuals fancy they are piquant, make a girl look lively and pert. The bearer should console herself. If she must have a beauty grief, let freckles be it; there are so many more blemishes that are unsightly—blackheads and pimples, for instance, that suggest uncleanliness.

Skins that freckle easily are usually found on pure blondes or titian blondes. When this type of skin is properly taken care of it is capable of becoming very beautiful—on account of its natural delicacy. The dark pigment in the brunette's complexion protects it somewhat from the sun's penetrating rays.

To combat freckles, the skin should be kept well lubricated. An oiled surface will prevent more freckles from forming, often will help eradicate those that are already established.

Never use soap and water directly before exposure to strong sunlight or directly after coming in, when a soothing cream should be applied to the warm flesh. A cream should be used at night after the face-washing, permitted to remain on to soak into the flesh. Make-up should be removed with a cleansing oil. A cream rouge is better than the compact variety.

To combat freckles, keep the skin well lubricated.

Young women who have golden dots upon their faces should use a foundation cosmetic. It forms a protective barrier against sunlight. The powder should have an oily base.

A simple and harmless bleach is made by combining equal parts of strained lemon juice and peroxide. The peroxide should be from a freshly opened bottle. Pat it on with pledgets of cotton; let it dry.

Don't consider skin-peeling treatments. They remove the freckles by scaling off the outer surface of the skin. But the little torments will appear again upon exposure. And the cost of peeling will make a big dent in the beauty budget.

Kingston Monarchs Defeat Redmen 6-2 For Sixth Win In Seven Starts

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER; Sports Editor

"GOOD FIELD — NO HIT"

The Babe was a shootin' fool last night against our Redmen. Mr. Stinson had our side pecking at his shoots like a gourmet at a hunk of stale beef, and the boys were "hitting them where they is".

Twenty - four putouts were registered by the Kingston Monarch infield as the Reds obligingly popped up, or grounded lazy-like balls that did not give the Monarchs inner grassmen the chance to stretch their legs. Only six of the Stinson shoots were met with any kind of solidity, four of 'em going for safeties and the other two nestling comfortably in the mitts of the yawning outer gardeners.

And it looked for seven innings, the way Mr. Stinson and his infield henchmen were performing, that he was well on his way to a shutout. Then came the eighth and Messrs. Al, Lenard and Lorne Ferguson, probably troubled with cramped arms, obligingly heaved the ball willy-nilly and Fitz and Pat Gilmour crossed the platter with the only two markers the Reds got all night.

Twas a fairly decent ball game at that. There were plenty of hits from a Monarch standpoint, no less than fifteen traipsing out there, one of 'em a triple and two doubles while our side dibbled the ball four times to aid the enemy cause, Art Wright did not appear to have too much on the ball. and the win-hungry Monarchs nicked Billy Strahan for four bangs for a pair of runs.

But Babe Stison was in rare form. He struck out only two but the way the Reds were placing their infield taps, the Babe did not have to worry too much. They just "hit 'em where they is" and that was that.

The teams clash again tonight in Megaffin Stadium in Kingston in another scheduled COBL game. The Monarchs are hot at the moment and will be gunning for their seventh victory in eight starts.

BUNNY AND BO-BO

Man's best friend is his dog, goes a saying but in rassle circles it seems that his best pal, if he is a wrestler is his manager or whatever acts in that capacity.

Bo-Bo Brazil thinks so after that hassle in Memorial Arena last Friday. "That man Lou sho' knows how to heel all right" he drawled after his defeat at the hands of Lawd Athol Layton. It seems Lou Petrocia, who crouches in Layton's corner at each match, is not averse to hooking the foeman's heel and hoisting it over his back like a cod-liver oil advertisement when the opportunity presents itself. In any event the Bo-Bo conked loud and long in Toronto over the result and the dastardly actions of the varlet Petrocia. With the result Mars, Frank Tunney, head of Tooney's Looneys, has rematched the pair but has added "Bunny" Dunlop to sorta supervise matters. Nuff sed. There'll be no monkey shines with the master-showman in official action.

Roberto Pico takes on Pat Flanagan in the semi-final while Sonny Kurgis clashes with Dangerous Dan O'Connor in the opener.

WITH THE BOWLERS

One of the most important fixtures of the lawn bowling schedule takes place at Trenton on Wednesday when bowlers from all parts of the district take part in the Mens Rinks play. It will attract the topflight keglers of the district and is one of the blue ribbon events of the lawn bowling season.

It is topped only by the "piece de resistance" of the season, the Corbin Gold Trophy which comes up for annual competition on the greens of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club on Civic Holiday, August 4th this year.

For a number of years this classic of the greens has attracted the best bowlers in Ontario not to mention some from Quebec and the northern United States. If other years can be judged a criterion, some sixty four rinks numbering 254 bowlers and their ladies and families, will be in the city on the holiday. It is one of the best sports attractions of the season.

VIGNETTE OF CYGNET

They speak of "Wrong-Way Corrigan"
And how he flew the main,
Made Ireland, not Los Angeles
And flew right back again.

But this brawny doughty Irishman,
Red-faced from many a rib,
Does not compare with this sailor pair,
And how they set the jib.

The gallant "Cygnet", bone in teeth,
Flashed 'neath the Quinte span,
"Set jib", roared bosun Wickerson,
"Snap to it, if you can".

His crew of two, Li'l Doug and Stu
Raced forard to the jib,
A white sail flashed, then unabashed.
They resumed their game of crib.

But people on the bridge that day
Stared at the saucy "Cyg",
Her bow "bowed" down with gangling gown
Like a bridal veil agig.

Now the story's hot in every spot,
In hamlet, vale and town,
How that fifteen-two, Li'l Doug and Stu
Set the jibsail upside down.

—Admiral Sir Slowdrizzle Waterspout.

Babe Stinson Hurls 4-Hitter As Mates Garner 15 Clouts; Strengthen Hold on 2nd Place

By Geo. H. Carver
(Sports Editor)

Registering their sixth victory in seven starts the Kingston Monarchs hung a 6-2 defeat on the Redmen here last night to consolidate their hold on second place in the Central Ontario Baseball League.

The Monarchs battered out 15 hits behind the four-clout pitching of Babe Stinson, two of them doubles and one a three-bagger.

Outside of the four hits, two of them doubles by Tony Pettitt and Don Semark, the Reds could do little or nothing with Stinson's shoots. Twenty-five of the 27 putouts were credited to the Kingston infield.

Two Errors Two Runs

The Monarchs erred twice both coming in the eighth and were directly responsible for the Redmens brace of runs. Stinson whiffed but two and issued five walks.

The stocky righthander held the Reds to two hits, both doubles, for seven innings when singles by Pat Gilmour and Dick Fitzpatrick coupled with the two Monarch errors accounted for the Redmen scores.

Art Wright started for the Reds and gave up 11 hits for four runs over a six-inning toil. Billy Strahan relieved him at the start of the seventh and yielded four hits for two runs over the remainder of the route. Wright was tabbed with the loss.

Gilmour Had Four

Five Monarch batters fattened their hitting averages at the expense of the Redmen hurlers. Gilmour, starry first-sacker had a perfect night at the plate driving out a double and three singles and batting in three runs. Lorne Ferguson and Al Lenard smashed out three singles each with Carnegie and Stinson helping themselves to a pair each. Eric Rank was good for a double.

Tony Pettitt and Don Semark with doubles and Pat Gilmour and Dick Fitzpatrick were the only Reds to connect safely with the Stinson shoots.

The Redmen scored both runs in the eighth after two batters were retired. Gilmour and Fitz singled in succession. Tony Pettitt hit a grounder to shortstop and Lorne Ferguson tossed it to centre field. Al Lenard threw the ball wildly over third base and both runners came in. Carson drew a walk but Mouse Bush popped to first and that was that.

Two in Fifth

The Monarchs grabbed a single in the third off two hits and jumped the lead to 3-0 in the fifth off a double by Rank and singles by Gilmour, Ferguson and Stinson. They added another off two hits a walk and a Red error in the sixth and that was the end of Art Wright.

Strahan took over in the seventh and retired the side in order. He was touched for three clouts in the eighth and these coupled with the fourth Redmen bobble sent two runs across the plate.

Both teams came up with a double play, the Reds being more spectacular when two Monarchs were run down in order.

Richard Denies 'Not Play' Rumor

SAINT JOHN, N. B. (CP) — Maurice (The Rocket) Richard, generally regarded as hockey's greatest rightwinger, last night vigorously denied reports he would not play again.

"I will play for Montreal Canadiens next winter . . . absolutely," said Richard. "The Rocket" claimed he was in good health and had recovered fully from his illness of last winter which forced him to miss 20 games of the National Hockey League schedule.

The Hamilton News last week reported from 'a reliable source" that Richard might never play hockey again. The report indicated Richard had an abdominal growth.

Richard was in Saint John to referee a wrestling match.

Guelph Leafs Start to Win, Now in 2nd Spot

(By The Canadian Press)

Guelph Maple Leafs last night moved closer to regaining their first place standing in the senior Intercounty Baseball League. The Leafs fell out of the top berth after six straight losses and were replaced by Kitchener Panthers.

Saturday night they slipped into third place, one game behind Brantford Red Sox. A 7-5 win over the Red Sox last night put them back in the second slot, still three games behind the leaders. It was their second victory in the last 11 starts.

London Majors hung on to fourth place—the final playoff spot—by walloping Waterloo Tigers 6-1.

Homers by centrefielder Ed Boehm and leftfielder George Carruth moved the Leafs into a 4-0 lead in the first inning at Guelph. By the top half of the fifth, the score was tied 5-5. Rightfielder Pat Seerey drove in the winning run in the same inning and the Leafs clinched it with a single in the sixth.

Marty Philp started on the mound for Guelph and was replaced in the fifth by John Adie. Adie was credited with the win and Billy Gibbs was the loser.

Bob Brake went the distance for the Majors in London. He allowed four hits, one walk and fanned seven for his ninth win against one loss. Waterloo stayed with Gord Ariss who gave up 11 hits. London rightfielder Russ Evon was top hitter with three for four.

St. Thomas Elgins were rained out last night in Galt.

Tonight Brantford goes to Kitchener and Guelph meets the cellar-dwelling St. Thomas club.

'Ole Rajah' Back in Baseball Gear Replaces Sewell as Cincy Manager

CINCINNATI —(AP) — The Cincinnati Reds last night named Rogers Hornsby as new manager to replace Luke Sewell who resigned earlier yesterday.

Gabe Paul, general manager of the Cincinnati Baseball Club, announced from New York that Hornsby will be manager through the balance of the season and through 1953.

Paul said Hornsby will take over the club when the Reds return to Crosley Field Aug. 5 for a series with the Chicago Cubs. Paul said Hornsby will continue scouting for the Reds in the meantime until taking over the club. Luke Sewell will continue as manager of the Reds through the Philadelphia series that closes Wednesday night.

Win or Get Out

Sewell quit as boss of the Reds "because when you don't win in baseball, the only thing to do is get out."

Hornsby will draw two pay cheques while working with the National League club.

Bill Veeck, St. Louis Browns' owner, last night confirmed a settlement he was reported to have made with the "Rajah" to continue his pay under a three-year contract with the Browns despite the firing as St. Louis manager.

Hornsby will get full salaries this year and next and half pay in 1954 under the agreement, Veeck said. The contract called for a reported $36,000 yearly.

Hornsby, 56, led the St. Louis Cardinals to their first pennant and world championship in 1926. He also managed the Boston Braves and the Chicago Cubs.

He piloted the St. Louis Browns earlier this year until ousted by manager Bill Veeck.

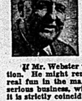
THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN



by Elmer Ferguson

The late esteemed Daniel Webster, who, won very considerable fame as a gentleman who knew what words really meant, defined sport as a noun meaning . . . that which diverts and makes mirth; pastime, amusement.

If Mr. Webster was around today, he might alter the definition. He might remove the word "mirth". For there is little real fun in the major realms of sport. It has become a very serious business, with few laughs. If there is any mirth, then it is strictly coincidental, and unintentional.

In fact, the athletes of today aren't even characters as we knew such in other days when there was less money, more laughs. They're cold, calculating and skillful, workmen.

It wasn't like this in the not so old days when sport had its sports. The guys (and gals, too) had personality.

There are no more roistering characters such as, for instance, the late Harry Greb, Pittsburgh's bouncing boxer who buffetted his way to the world middleweight title. Greb's deviations from what were known as routine training methods won him fame of a sort. Certainly notoriety. Once in New York he rolled out of bed late in the afternoon, went to his hotel barber-shop, requested a shave and a face massage with hot towels. It had been a rough night.

The barber asked courteously: "Who do you think will win the fight tonight Mr. Greb?"

Replied Harry, indifferently: "Who's fighting?"

"Why, you are, Mr. Greb," said the amazed barber. He was right too.

Out west they recall lurid tales of big, rugged Amby Moran, who played major hockey both east and west. Amby was careless about training, too. He played so poorly for Regina one season, that the late Wes Champ advised him he would have to report in shape the next fall or do without a contract. So Moran bought a pair of pants three sizes too big for himself, donned them, reported to Champ. When the managed queried him about weight, Amby ran his hand around the top to show how much larger they were for him "as a result of his program of getting in shape."

"It cost me $9 for those pants, but I got a contract," recalled Amby.

Sprague Cleghorn, one of hockey's great all-time defence players, was a paradox, a practical joker off the ice, a hard man on it. One night while he was managing Montreal Maroons, the Governor General of Canada was present in the Montreal Forum as patron and guest of honor at a big Christmas-basket charity boxing event. He was invited to the Maroon dressing room to meet the players, who were hurriedly summoned. Just as the Governor General and his staff were making a dignified entrance, a horrified Forum official noticed Cleghorn had a "buzzer" attached to his hand. He was instructed, in hasty whispers, to get rid of it. "Surely," said the official, "you were not going to shake hands with the Governor General wearing that thing?"

"Certainly I was," said Cleghorn. "The boxing show is poor, the Governor looks bored, and deserves some sort of a thrill."

There is no such humor around the major sports wheel today. Big money has chased out the laughs, made it serious business.

Rocky Eyes Million-Dollar Gate After 2nd-Round KO Of Harry Matthews

May Meet Jersey Joe Walcott For Heavy Title on Sept. 23; Spectacular End to 'Kid' Story

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Rocky Marciano today eyes a million-dollar Sept. 23 title shot at heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott after his sensational two-round knockout of Harry Matthews last night.

"Marciano and Walcott will draw all you can put in," said Jim Norris, International Boxing Club president. "A million is a conservative guess, not counting television or theatre TV."

"I'm ready for Walcott," said the unbeaten Brockton, Mass., slugger. "I can lick anybody I step in the ring with."

Walcott Willing

Walcott, who watched Marciano's crunching left hooks to the jaw sprawl Matthews on his back in 2:04 of the second round, said he was "looking forward to meeting Marciano."

"I hope we can get together," said the 38-year-old champ.

Back under the stands in Matthews dressing room, manager Jack Hurley said "Harry was a glorified amateur for 10 years and tonight he reverted to type." Matthews had little to say, grinning sheepishly.

A Marciano-Walcott bout Sept. 23 at Yankee Stadium is Norris' goal. He will talk with Marty Weill, Marciano's manager, and his step-father, Al Weill, the I.B.C. matchmaker today. Felix Bocochicchio, Walcott's manager, also may be in for tea.

Payoff Disappointing

The pay-off on Marciano-Matthews was disappointing in contrast to early estimates. But a last-minute gate sale saved it from being a flop. A crowd of 31,188 paid $215,707 to see the show that barely beat the rain. There was no radio or television.

Matthews won round No. 1 on the cards of referee Ray Miller, judges Harold Barnes and Joe Agnello and the AP but that was all, brother. Two crunching hooks to the jaw, some 30 seconds after a long looping right started Matthews on his way, brought victory to swarthy Rocky, an 11-to-5 favorite. Marciano had an 8½-pound advantage at 187½ to Matthews' 179.

When the 29-year-old Matthews went down on his back, clawed at the ropes in an attempt to get up and then collapsed over the bottom strand, he lost his first fight since 1943.

Marciano, 27, is hailed in some quarters as the greatest puncher since Jack Dempsey.

Marciano put a spectacular end to the fabulous Matthews story by scoring his 37th knockout in 42 all-winning fights.

Leafs, Cubs Split, Wings Edge Birds As Royals Idle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The seventh place Springfield Cubs plummeting toward the International League cellar, earned a reprieve last night by splitting a double header with Toronto Maple Leafs. Shut out by a 5-0 the Leafs in the opener, they needed a two-run rally in the last inning of the nightcap to win 6-5.

Rochester Red Wings edged Baltimore 3-2 to strengthen their hold on second place. Jack Cullum won his own game with a ninth-inning home run.

The Syracuse-Montreal game was called bacause of rain after one inning. Buffalo and Ottawa were not scheduled.

LIGHTNING STRIKES GOLFER

CHATHAM (CP)—Stanley Parker 43, Hamilton, suffered shock, burns to the neck, chest and right arm when he was struck by lightning on the Chatham golf course last night. Hospital authorities said his condition was not critical.

Sport in Brief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Johnny Bratton, Chicago welterweight last night scored a third-round technical knockout over Laurent Dauthuille, middleweight of France, in their 10-round main bout at Montreal.

Dauthuille weighed in at 157½ pounds and Bratton at 151½.

The end came suddenly at 2:15 of the third round after Bratton caught the Frenchman with a wicked right to the ribs. Medical examination following the fight showed Dauthuille had a fractured rib.

Referee Tony Mancini stopped the bout when Dauthuille clutched his left side, obviously in pain, and made no effort to defend himself.

In the semi-final eight-rounder Bryan Kelly 139¾, Niagara Falls, Ont., knocked out Martin Hickman, 134½ of Philadelphia after 151 minutes of the first round.

The Kawartha golf tournament at Peterborough Aug. 2-4 has been swamped with entries, officials said yesterday. With more than 400 entries to date, the draw can handle only 250.

More than 100 first-flight players are entered, including Jerry Kesselring, Ontario Open champion, and Nick Weslock, both of Kitchener. Weslock was last year's winner.

The Chicago White sox yesterday acquired outfielder Jim Rivera and catcher Darrell Johnson on waivers from the St. Louis Browns and sold outfielder Ray Coleman to the Browns. The transaction also involved sale to the Browns of catcher J. W. Porter by Memphis, a White Sox farm club, and optioning of catcher Bud Sheely to Memphis by the Sox.

Sammy Shefsky, president of Toronto Balmy Beach Football Club, said last night the club has turned down a chance to obtain former Toronto Argonaut quarterback Al Dekdebrun. Shefsky said it had been decided to pass up Dekdebrun because his salary demands were too high.

Balmy Beach started their workouts for the senior Ontario Rugby Football season last night with 75 candidates for the team on hand.

Joe Coleman, righthanded pitcher who was optioned to Savannah, Ga., by the Ottawa Athletics earlier in the season, has returned to the International League A's, the club announced yesterday. Formerly a star with the Philadelphia Athletics, Ottawa's parent club, Coleman was optioned to Savannah of the Sally League, when he had control difficulty.

Appointment of Ken Doraty as coach for the 1952-53 season was announced yesterday by officials of the Moose Jaw Canucks of the Western Canada Junior Hockey League.

Doraty, a former member of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, succeeds Vic Myles, a former New York Ranger defenceman.

Doraty returns to the same team he led to the Memorial Cup finals against Toronto St. Michael's in 1947. He resigned two years ago to become coach of the Regina Caps of the now defunct Western Canada Hockey League.

Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four Rugby Union last night announced signing Jim Ostendarp, backfielder for the last two years with New York Giants of the National Football League.

Morey Hamilton, Fort William sharpshooter with Moncton Hawks of the Maritime Major Hockey League last season has been engaged as playing coach of the Hawks, team manager Frank Coyle announced last night in Moncton.

Hamilton came to Hawks from Quebec Aces last season. He succeeds Johnny Horeck.

Mexico-Canada Davis Cuppers Start Practice

By MAX McMAHON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian and Mexican Davis Cup tennis teams went into high gear practice sessions today for first-round North American zone matches next Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Neither playing captain Pedro Vega of Mexico, nor non-playing captain Dr. Georges Leclerc of Canada, would predict who could be meeting the United States in second-round zone finals next week, but both said their men were working out well.

Vets Top Players

Top players for Canada are expected to be Brendan Macken and Lorne Main, both Davis Cup veterans.

Macken recently won both the Quebec and Ontario provincial championships and in those tournaments played better tennis than ever before. His forehand, once his weakness, now is his strength, and he gives it plenty of depth and authority.

Main was below form for a while this year, but has improved measurably in the last few weeks, and trounced Sidney Schwartz, ranked 23 in the U. S. on a recent jjaunt south of the border.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Though the Yankees are somewhat short on pitching since Tom Morgan received his service call and Eddie Lopat developed the aches, they are reliably understood to have passed up a chance to acquire Johnny Lindell, the former Yank outfielder who has developed into a hot hurler for the Hollywood Club of the Pacific Coast League.

Johnny is approximately the size of a sun-ranch house these days, but he also is a terror to the batters since he wore out his welcome in the big show and returned to his original love—pitching. Only trouble is that the big guy's chief, if not only, stock in trade is a nuckleball which flutters and dips and generally runs a catcher nuts.

Has Enough Troubles

When asked if he wanted Lindell, Manager Casey Stengel of the Bombers was said to have replied with some reluctance, "No, I couldn't do that to Yogi. He's got enough troubles already."

Casey referred, of course, to his great catcher, Yogi Berra. He plainly felt that a couple of broken fingers or a nervous breakdown for Yogi would far outweigh any possible dividends from Lindell's pitching. So the Yanks, instead, brought up a brace of green rookies from their farm system and are hoping for the best.

More and more the modern manager is debating with himself whether it is worth the wear and tear on his nervous system to carry a knuckler on his staff. The unnatural pitch, though wonderfully effective in the hands of such masters as Fred Fitzsimmons, the former Giants' ace, and the ageless Emil Dutch Leonard of the Chicago Cubs, can prove a terrible boomerang in a tight ball game.

Bluege Always Blue

Except in rare cases, the pitcher himself hasn't the foggiest idea which way the floating sphere is going to break. His catcher is, of course, equally in the dark, and there are too many times when a passed ball is as damaging as an enemy base hit. One of the most tormented managers we can recall talking with was Ossie Bluege at a time when he had four knucklers on his Washington staff.

Hoyt Wilhelm, the rookie relief specialist who has done much to keep the Giants from falling right out of the current National League race, depends upon an extremely live knuckler. It differs, however, from the usual knuckler which appears to float up to the plate. Wilhelm throws it almost with the speed of a good fast ball, and it breaks sharply. For short stretches it has been virtually unhittable.

Yankees Trying Desperately To Overcome Russian Lead As Olympic Games Tone Down

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—The scramble for points—no matter if they are frowned upon officially—is sharpening up the fast-waning 1952 Olympic Games.

The feature attraction, of course, is the United States' desperate efforts to overhaul the leading Russians who have amassed 502½ points in the unofficial standing to 425 for the United States.

Other countries are far behind but still trying for all the points they can get, as well as the medals and honors—all Olympic officials recognize as the result of athletic achievement.

Canada At 27 Mark

Canada has only 27 points so far, compared with 35 at the 1948 games in London. Canada still has chances in the boxing and swimming competitions. again, someone may bob up in a lesser known event and win a gold medal, as young George Genereux of Saskatoon did last Saturday in winning the clay-pigeon championship in the trapshooting tournament.

Two boxers came through the initial round yesterday with victories. Another lost. Paddlers placed eighth and ninth in finals—not good enough for point-scoring. A seventh was the closest, made after the completion of yachting competition.

The United States is counting heavily on its aquatic stars for points. They were off to a good start yesterday in taking the first three places in the men's springboard diving event. American yachtsmen scored two firsts.

Neither American nor Canadian boxers faced Russians in the first day of the boxing tournament.

Won Four Bouts

American coaches adopted a wait-and-see attitude regarding the Russians, who won four bouts and lost one.

All the Russian leather-pushers seemed to be poured from the same mold. They all waited out the first minute or so of each round and then lashed out with short left hooks and rapid-fire combinations. They appeared to be excellent counter-punchers, and judges at these games score heavily for this art.

The long boxing program yesterday afternoon and evening ushered out more than 50 boxers. In this tournament there's no second chance. A loss means out.

Canuck Boxers Win

Len Walters of Vancouver and Clayton Kenny of Ottawa won their opening bouts handily. Roy Keenan of Montreal, in the light-welterweight class, lost a split decision to Pieter van Klaveren of Holland.

Coach Tommy Sullivan said it was a weird decision; that Keenan chased his opponent all over the ring, winning the first two rounds by a wide margin and getting at least an even break in the third. Keenan himself was downhearted at the decision.

Kenny, in the lightweight division, pounded his Danish opponent—Niels Berthelsen—and won by a technical knockout in the third round.

Walters scored a unanimous decision over an Egyptian—Salah el Din Ahmed Fathi—and won easily although he said his timing was off.

Lose Swim Relay

Canada's team in the 800-metre swimming relay was eliminated in the opening heat. But Allen Gilchrist of Ocean Falls, B.C., and Gerry McNamee of Vancouver qualified in preliminaries of the 400-metre race. Qualification was on a time basis and their marks were none too good compared with many others posted.

The paddling competitions ended yesterday. Finland took three gold medals in all and Sweden, Denmark and Czechoslovakia one each. Arthur Johnston and Tom Hodgson of Toronto were eighth in the Canadian-type pairs and Bert Oldershaw of Toronto was ninth in the Kayak singles. George Cordner and Bob Ward of Montreal were eliminated in the Kayak pairs and George Bossy of Montreal in the Canadian singles.

Yanks Whip Russ

The basketball tournament brought the long looked-for clash between the United States and Russia and the Americans won 86-58.

It was a hard-fought game and the officials tooted loud and often, waving six Americans and four Russians to the sidelines on personal fouls. But neither side let out a peep and there was a show of friendship at the end.

This was in contrast to the game in which France edged Uruguay 68-66.

The Uruguayans mobbed referee Vincent Farrell of the United States. The crowd joined in and Farrell was kicked in the groin by a spectator, then clipped on the jaw.

Farrell had called a charging penalty on a Uruguayan player, giving France possession of the ball. France scored a last-second goal to win.

Farrell's refereeing partner was a Russian. He managed to escape the wrath of the players and stood at a safe distance when the melee broke loose.

Two Uruguayan players were stripped of all Olympic privileges by the Uruguayan basketball federation. The pair, identified as Wildfredo Palaez and Carlos Rossello, probably will be barred for life from amateur basketball, Bill Griem of Denver, president of the International Basketball Federation said.

Bill Greim of Denver, Colo., president of the International Basketball Federation, said his group will turn the matter over to the Uruguayan federation.

May Suspend Team

"If they don't take disciplinary action, we will," he said. "It could mean suspension of the players involved and even suspension of the Uruguayan team from competition."

Only three Uruguayan players were on the floor when the game ended. Greim said he understood another, who had already dressed, kicked the referee

Final results of the yachting competition weren't tabulated until late last night.

Skipper Bill Godderham and his Toronto crew took seventh place in the six-metre class with their yacht Trickson IV. The winner was the United States yacht Llanoria.

In the Finn class, one-man yacht, Paul McLaughlin of Toronto sailed his boat to an eighth-place final Denmark had the winner with Great Britain second.

The Hamilton yacht Jet placed 10th in the Dragon class and Andy Hugessen and Doug Woodward of Montreal were 10th in the Star class.

Tigers Win

HAMILTON (CP) —Hamilton Tigers last night strengthened their hold on fourth place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association's senior loop by defeating Mimico Mountaineers 10-6.

The two clubs were tied 5-5 as they finished the third quarter but the Tigers outscored the Mounties 5-1 in the final.

Blaine McDonald and Jack Dorney paced the winners with three goals each while Fred Sandford fired four for Mimico.

Strip Olympic Privileges From Basketball Duo

HELSINKI. (AP)—The Uruguayan Basketball Federation today stripped all Olympic privileges from the two players involved in yesterday's attack on referee Vincent Farrell of Newark., N.J.

The federation identified the two players as Wilfredo Pelaez and Carlos Rossello.

Bill Griem of Denver, president of the International Basketball Federation, said the two players probably would be "barred for life" from amateur basketball. Griem said Uruguay had considered taking its team out of the Olympic basketball tournament but had decided this morning to carry on without the players who were disqualified.

Farrell was attacked at the end of one of the wildest basketball games ever played in international competition. Farrell called a charging penalty on a Uruquayan player, giving France possession of the ball and permitting France to win on a late goal, 68-66.

The entire Uruguayan bench boiled onto the floor and surrounded Farrell. Farrell was punched in the face and knocked down. Then he was kicked.

Jose Chaves, president of the Uruguayan Basketball Federation. last night extended apologies to Farrell.

There's Gloom in Old Gotham As Yanks, Dodgers Margins Start to Dwindle Dangerously

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Managers Charlie Dressen of Brooklyn Dodgers and Casey Stengel of New York Yankees were beseeching their bosses for more pitching help today after watching their leads shrink like a $10 suit in the rain.

Just six days ago the Dodgers and Yankees, were laughing their way to a pennant. Now worried frowns have replaced the happy smiles.

Yesterday's 12-2 Yankee loss to Detroit and the 3-2 Dodger defeat by St Louis Cardinals climaxed a sorry six days that saw this happen:

Lead Sliced

1. The Yankees' American League lead of five games over Boston and 7½ over Cleveland has dwindled to three over, the now-second-place Indians and 3½ over the Red Sox.

2. The Dodgers' 7½-game bulge over New York Giants has been sliced to four.

No wonder Dressen and Stengel are moaning for mound help. The harried skippers want more pitchers, especially with Brooklyn's Ralph Branca and Clem Labine and New York's Eddie Lopat on the shelf with ailing arms.

Dropped 4 in Row

The Dodgers heaved a sigh of relief as Eddie Stanky's merciless Redbirds headed for Boston, but not before they had taken four straight at Ebbets Field. Gerry Staley applied the final crusher to the Dodgers last night, hurling a four-hitter and losing a shutout in the ninth when two St. Louis errors gave the Dodgers a pair of unearned runs.

With the Cards Ahead 3-0

George Shuba led off the Dodgers' ninth with a double. With one out, Duke Snider walked and Dick Sisler fumbled a grounder by Gil Hodges to load the bases. Injured Jackie Robinson came off the bench to hit for Rube Walker. The game seemed over when Robinson hit a double-play grounder to Billy Johnson at third. Red Schoendienst, however, threw wildly to first and two Dodgers scored with Robinson taking second.

Strategy Works

Tommy Holmes came to bat for Rocky Bridges and manager Eddie Stanky ordered Holmes walked. The strategy worked when Billy Cox hit into a game-ending force-out.

There was little doubt about the Yankee outcome after the first inning when the Tigers broke through rookie Schaeffer for three quick runs. Tigers accumulated 15 hits while Hal Newhouser coasted to a neat seven-hitter. Walt Dropo led the Tiger attack with a pair of homers. Steve Souchock also got a round-tripper.

In the only other scheduled game, St. Louis Browns upset Washington Senators 6-3 as Satchel Paige celebrated a "night" in his honor by pitching his seventh triumph.

RESOURCEFUL THIEF

MARKHAM (CP)—Walter McCarthy wasn't taking any chances. He hid the week-end receipts in three different places in his general store. Yesterday a thief found all three hiding places and removed a total of $500.

"COOL CONTROL"

POINTS ON THE SERVICE

1 Make sure ball is thrown up in a straight line. This is essential for control and stroke power. Ball should be thrown high enough to allow fully extended swing. Body stands sideways to net, shoulders turned in direction of serve.

2 To reach maximum height for downsweep, raise body on left toe. Extra height allows you to hit down on ball instead of hitting out flatly. Body-weight leans forward as ball is hit and follow-through begins, letting arm and racket come down across body.

3 Practise the throw. Throwing too high or too low may rob your shot of proper impact. Shots thrown too high are often hit on the wood or top of strings; shots thrown too low are usually hit on top of ball and go into net. Practise regularly for control.

Yes, it's control that counts, in tennis as in every sport — control which brings the extra-ordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

Wooler Upsets Frankford 12-6 In Series Opener

Wooler put the crusher on Frankford Merchants last evening by upsetting the Merchants 12-6 in the first game of their best-in-three quarter final series for the championship of the Belleville and District Softball League in a game played under lights at Frankford.

The Wooler squad, showing surprising power, built up an 11-0 lead in the first six innings and then wavered slightly in the late frames as Frankford came on to score six runs, four of them in the ninth.

Big Barney McColl did a stellar job of pitching for the underrated Wooler squad holding the Merchants hitless in four innings.

Wooler scored three runs in the first frame on a single by Levitt, a walk to McColl, a single by Istead, and a Frankford error. They added three more in the fifth on singles by Flynn, McColl and Stacey and a triple by Istead.

Three home runs in the sixth innings powered a five run rally by Wooler. May singled and Austen homered. Levitt singled, and McColl and Stacey homered.

Istead counted the Wooler squad's final tally in the ninth by completing a perfect night at the plate with a home run.

Frankford scored a single run in the seventh on a single by Dafoe, a walk to Rankin and a Wooler error. Cooke walked and Wickson tripled for another Merchant tally in the eighth.

Frankford scored four runs in the final frame on a homer by Curtis walks to Gilmour and Farr, a double by Cooke, a walk to Wickson and an error.

Farr did all the pitching for Frankford and was touched for 14 hits. McColl gave up seven hits to the Merchants in going the distance for Wooler.

The second game of the series is slated for Wooler Wednesday night under the lights.

Belleville Pauls Meet Aurora In Peewee Semi

LINDSAY (Special.) — Rain washed out the second annual East-Central zone Pee-Wee baseball tournament here Saturday but the heavy downpour failed to dampen the spirits of over 100 13-year-old diamond enthusiasts.

Recreation director Red Mitchell announced that the tourney, cut short by the rain would be completed this week with Bowmanville meeting Lindsay and Belleville and Aurora Cubs clashing in the semi-finals. Lindsay gained first round win by coming from behind to edge Peterborough Braves 5-3. Bowmanville walloped Haliburton 11-4 and Belleville Pauls were leading Oshawa Tigers 3-2 in the sixth when the rains came. The seventh team in the tournament, Aurora, didn't see action but gained a bye into the semi-finals.

Lanky righthander Al Wade of Peterborough, came up with the best mound effort of the day, striking out 12 and giving but three hits. It was all in losing cause as one of the safeties was a two-run single by Ron Jewell that brought Lindsay from behind a 3-2 deficit in the fifth. Lawson Mitchell hurled a two-hitter for the winners and whiffed eight. Norm Tetlock's double and a bad throw gave the youthful Petes all their runs.

Johnny Mason swung the big bat in the tournament with a long inside the park home run and triple as he hurled Bowmanville Recreation team to a decisive win over the inexperienced Haliburton kids. Battery mate George Kennett also hit for the circuit while Bob Warjerrison smashed a single and double in the 11-hit onslaught. Blonde Neil Burke who was the victim of the free-swinging Bowmanvillers, collected two of the six hits for the northern side.

Keenest contest of the day was the Oshawa-Belleville clash. Diminutive Lucky Wills sparked Oshawa to a 2-0 lead, with a double and blanked the Quinte lads until the fifth when Glen Bennett led off a winning three-run rally with a triple. A strong righthander, Bob Hull batted in the winning run with one of two singles for the Pauls' Motel Club, besides turning in a 10-strikeout, two hit effort.

Oshawa—Hanse, 1b; Andrews, ss; Minicks, 2b; Ryan, 3b; Lyons, lf; Spragger, cf; Taylor, rf; Westfall, c; Wills, p.

Belleville — McLarnin, 2b; Meagher, lf; St. Louis, cf; Foster, c; Hull, p; Wright, ss; Ryan, 1b; Dickey, 3b; Bennett, rf; Young, lf.

Water Follies Will Be Seen in Kingston

Water follies of 1952 will be featured at the Kingston Community Memorial Centre. With opening night on Thursday comes the largest extravaganza ever to play Kingston. The only travelling water show in the world, featuring the largest portable tank in the world, features as its star the incomparable Eddie Rose who has brought laughs to old and young alike through his amazing, baffling and down right comical antics in the swimming and diving pools.

This show has been heralded in every Canadian centre in which it has played as the most outstanding production ever to appear in the Dominion.

An added attraction will be a bathing beauty contest with the loveliest of Kingston, Napanee, Belleville, Brockville, Clayton, Alexandria Bay and Watertown. The winner to be selected by competent judges will receive an all-expense tour to New York City, for two.

CLAIM OIL WELL FIRST

BRANDON (CP)—A recently completed oil well near Tilston, sixty miles southwest of here, is said to be the first flowing well drilled in the province. The well-Cal-Standard Tilson 5-32, is located four miles north of Tilston. Company officials said the well began flowing Friday. The first 100-barrel tank was filled yesterday.

Diesels Win Series Opener Beat Flyers 4-2

CNR Diesels, rebounding from two consecutive losses to Glen Roy Juniors, took a one game lead in their best-of-three quarter final series for the league championship by downing the RCAF Flyers 4-2 in a Belleville and District League game at the CNR Field, last night.

The second game in the series will be played at the air station Wednesday evening.

The game, 25 minutes late in starting, was a listless contest, with neither side showing too much enthusiasm.

The Diesels opened the scoring in the bottom of the first frame with Fitzpatrick leading off with a home run into the long grass back of the third base line that shrivelled into a ground rule double. He took third as Ronsky went out pitcher-to-first. Doug Sword dribbled a weak grounder between the mound and first and outran the defenders for a base hit with Fitzpatrick scoring from third.

Leo Goyer singled Sword to second and both runners advanced on a passed ball. Glen Young struck out and Don Adams drilled a single through short to plate Sword. Adams was out on a fielder's choice.

The Flyers recovered one run in the second frame. Ault led off with a single and then Berner and Common popped to the infield. Adams then proceeded to walk Eckley, Steeves and Wood with Wood forcing in Ault. Gingras hit into a forced play to end the inning.

The Flyers tied the score in the sixth on an error, a sacrifice, a fielder's choice and singles by Steeves and Wood.

Adams Scores Winner

Don Adams scored the winning run for the Diesels in the bottom of the sixth. He led off with a walk, took second on a fielder's choice, advanced to third on a wild pitch, and scored as brother Al singled to left centrefield.

Don Adams added the Diesel's insurance run in the eighth with a bases-empty home run to centrefield.

Al Adams toiled the route on the hill for the winners walking three, striking out four, and giving up 11 hits for two runs.

Vic Burtt did all the firing for the Flyers and over the route walked three, struck out two and gave up 10 hits for four runs.

Don Adams led the winners at the plate with a single and home run in three official trips. He scored two runs himself and batted in another.

REDS KILLED IN MINE BLAST

HONG KONG — (AP) — The pro-nationalist Kung Sheung Daily News says 140 Chinese Communist Party workers and miners were killed July 18 in an explosion in a wolfram magnesium ore mine near Yeungshan in Kwangtung province of Red China.

AT THE CAPITOL — Stewart Granger, Pier Angeli, sensational discovery of "Teresa", and George Sanders form the stellar threesome of MGM's "The Light Touch," now at the Capitol Theatre, today and Wednesday. Filmed on location against the exotic locales of Sicily and North Africa, the new picture unfolds an action-filled drama of romance, adventure and intrigue. On the same program "The Unknown Man," starring Walter Pidgeon and Ann Harding. Both hits are first city showings.

AT THE McCARTHY — It's love, but Evelyn Keyes, as a touring schoolteacher and Dennis O'Keefe, as a lawyer, don't discover that until the end of a riotous Mexican journey, when, despite all their troubles, they decide to marry. Scene is from "One Big Affair," new comedy released by United Artists now at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

Stock Car Racers Ready to Go At Speedway

While several spills and roll-overs occurred at Speedland Parkway near Shannonville, last Wednesday night, none of the drivers was injured although some of the "heaps" took a mechanical beating.

It's all in the game and provides the thrills that are making auto stock car racing one of the most popular summer events to pop up in a long while.

Tomorrow night the fifteen or twenty drivers some of whom were dumped unceremoniously last Wednesday night when their charging jalopies overturned or skidded into others, will be back with a first class surgery job done on their mechanical steeds. Takes more than a spill or two or a misplaced gadget to stop these throttle hellions from taking part in their favorite sport.

Following last week's success proprietor Dick Burrowes promises an even more exciting show with the cream of the district jehus once more back in driving harness in an effort to cop those valuable points for the Star of Excellence Trophy.

Recent rains have aided to no end the condition of the track and Burrowes anticipates one of the finest-conditioned racing ovals in Eastern Ontario for tomorrow night's meet.

New Swim Marks Set at Helsinki

HELSINKI. (AP)— Two more Olympic records were shattered today when Jean Boiteux of France and Geertje Wielema of The Netherlands set new standards in swimming.

Boiteux shattered the men's 400-metre freestyle record with a sparkling 4:33.1 clocking in the qualifying heats. The old record—set only yesterday by a Swede—was 4:39.6.

Miss Wielema broke the Olympic mark in the women's 100-metre back stroke trial heats, swimming the distance in 1:13.8. This topped the former mark of 1:14.2 set by Karen Harup Tanska of Denmark in 1948.

Gerry McNamee of Vancouver placed third in his heat with a time of 4:46.7 and Allan Gilchrist of Ocean Falls, B.C., was fifth in his heat at 4:52.4. Neither was among the eight qualifiers.

In the women's race, Lenora Fisher of Ocean Falls completed the women's event in 1:21.9, too slow to make the qualifying group.

GLAD THIS ONE GOT AWAY

PANACEA, Fla. (AP)—George Lunsford of Atlanta was reeling in a speckled trout in the gulf here when a five-foot hammerhead shark struck at it—and missed. The shark made another lunge at the trout, and landed right in the skiff with Lunsford and two companions. There was a scramble for safety but the shark flopped out of the boat first.

Summer Dream

By Irene Ernhart

The girl who stepped down from the plane at the Capital City Airport was as smoothly beautiful as if she had stepped out of the pages of a fashion magazine instead of flight six from New York. She wore a dove gray suit of sheer woolen and a tiny yellow hat that echoed the tawny golden highlights in her short brown hair and made her dark eyes look even darker. She had a cheerful expectant look on her face, almost eager, and one wouldn't have dreamed that she was, at the moment, running away.

A man standing by the gate hurried to meet her and when she saw him her soft mouth curled into a smile. "Why cousin Bruno! How nice to see you? Where's Dad?"

"His car's in the garage, Laurie, and he phoned and asked if I'd meet you. What a pleasure it is to see you after all this time! You're looking wonderful, and all grown up too, and—sophisticated."

"Am I really?" She hugged his arm as they went toward the car.

As he tucked her into the smart convertible Bruno said, "I thought I read where you were getting married this month, darling. Did something happen?"

Laurie French's face clouded. "I'll tell you all about it, Bruno." While he busied himself seeing that all her luggage was stacked safely into the back of the convertible, she tried to assemble her thoughts. It was awfully hard to explain a thing like this to people. It was as she told Bruno a few moments later, one of those things you do without quite knowing why.

"Such an awful mess! Mother was furious because she'd already made plans for the wedding. Fletcher was just bewildered. Of course we're still engaged. The wedding's to be in October now. But, Bruno, for some reason or other I just had to come and spend this one last summer with my father. Mark was the only one who tried to understand it."

"Your stepfather always was an understanding sort of a guy," Bruno said thoughtfully as he swung the car out into the state road that led to Ridgeville. "Always liked him. Of course, I always liked Louis too."

"Sounds odd to hear you speak of my father as Louis. Mother always calls him 'your father'!" She tried to imitate her mother's disparaging tone. "I've never had much chance to really get to know him as a person. Only those summers I spent with him when I was small and then one summer four years ago, you remember. Was mother really in love with him when she married him?"

"Madly," Bruno said. He twirled the car around a curve with practiced ease. "The whole family was against her marrying him of course. A small town guy, running a fairly prosperous hardware store, spending his spare time fishing and raising flowers and reading books interminably. And your mother, well, she was a good deal like you Laurie, a social butterfly, always had anything she wanted that money could buy. She had sophisticated tastes, and she tried to make Louis over, well—he wouldn't be made over."

"At least," Laurie mused, "Fletcher and I are the same kind of people. We like the same things, know the same people, and—Fletcher's awfully handsome."

"Sounds like a good deal," Bruno said, intent on his driving. "I trust you are also in love with the guy."

She didn't answer. Bruno turned on the car radio, muttering something about not wanting to miss his regular newscast.

Not that she didn't love Fletcher. She was terribly fond of him. She liked him better than any other man she had ever known. But the fact that she felt this overwhelming need to spend the summer in Ridgeville with her father and away from Fletcher, plus the fact that she had postponed the wedding, bewildered her as much as it did her mother and stepfather and fiance.

Her mother had been one of the Markles from Capitol City. They were always spoken of as the "Chemical Markles" because that particular branch of the family had made its millions in the chemical business. Her father was just Louie French who owned a small hardware store in a crossroads town on a river in Indiana. Her mother had divorced him just after Laurie was born. Her stepfather Mark Carr was the only father she had ever known except for those few summers in Ridgeville.

Bruno snapped off the car radio. "There's the river and the old covered bridge. Things never change down in this part of the country. It's been seven or eight years since I've been down here, but things look exactly the same."

"Yes," Laurie said. "It was four years ago I was down, but things look just the same. I was 16 then. Four years is a long time."

As Bruno whirled the car down the long road through the valley, Laurie began to think of that summer four years ago that she had spent with her father.

She had felt quite grown up and worldly because she had just graduated from the academy and would go to Smith in the fall. She had fallen in love that summer too, with a fellow named Steve Wysong, who lived in a river cabin down below her father's house on the river. It hadn't been love, of course, just a crush. Steve had been 10 years older than she, and just back from the mess in Europe. He'd been a pilot in the war, shot down, a prisoner and then convalescent and finally shipped home. He had started to write a book that summer and he and her father had been great friends. That was all she recalled of Steve except a hazy remembrance of dark eyes and hair and a lean face and broad shoulders. She recalled going fishing with him in his boat. She wondered whether he would still be around.

"There's Steve's house!" she said suddenly, leaning forward as Bruno pulled the car up the rutted clay road that led along the river.

"Steve?"

"A friend of father's. Oh, I think I see him coming too. Some one—I think it's Steve."

A tall, broad-shouldered figure had rounded the bend in the lane. A hunting dog trotted at his side.

Bruno brought the car to a stop as Laurie rolled down the window.

"Why hello, Steve! You—are Steve, aren't you?"

"That's right, and you're Laurie." The faint vestige of a smile brushed his strong mouth, but his eyes were enigmatic. "Your father's expecting you."

Laurie introduced Steve to her cousin Bruno and a few moments later they were driving on up the lane toward her father's house.

"Are you sure it's Louis that brought you back to Ridgeville for the summer?" Bruno said abruptly. He smiled and gave her a curious glance.

"I told you, Bruno, I'm not even sure myself why I had to come. But it couldn't be Steve Wysong, as you're trying to intimate it was, because I—why I don't even know him really. Besides, for all I know he may be married by now. Most eligible men are married by the time they're 30."

"I'm not," Bruno said, "but then I'm too intelligent to ever let myself in for anything as hazardous as marriage!"

They laughed together and Bruno stopped the car in the driveway. He went around to open Laurie's door for her, and just then Louis French came out of the house and strode across the porch and down the steps.

"Laurie, it's so good to see you!"

Laurie ran into his arms. No matter what obscure reason had brought her here she was overwhelmingly glad now that she had come.

Laurie French wakened early that first morning in Ridgeville, despite the fact that she and her father and Bruno had talked until the wee small hours before Bruno started back to Capitol City.

As she opened her eyes the dawn was just beginning to send pink streamers of light into the sky. A soft cool May breeze plucked at the sprigged chintz drapes and bore a flowery fragrance into the room mingled with the dank wet smell of the river. Somewhere a rooster crowed insistently and a dog began to bark. The dog was probably Steve's hunting dog Cass. Wasn't it silly she should remember a dog's name after all this time?

She began to think about Steve Wysong as she lay there. She had felt an odd stir of excitement when she had seen him yesterday, and she felt it again now.

Presently she threw back the covers and got out of the warm bed and padded in her bare feet to the window. The sun would soon be up. She could catch the river smell more strongly now and hear the rush of water over the riffle. Another sound floated up the hill, echoing faintly, the sound of metal striking wood and the clanking of a chain.

That would be Steve getting his boat out to go up the river and run his lines before the mist rose from the river.

On sudden impulse Laurie opened one of her suitcases and rummaged in it, bringing out a pair of pale blue shorts, a white shirt monogrammed in blue and some blue rope sandals. Her hands shook as she began to dress. If she didn't hurry she'd never be able to catch him. A splash of icy water on her face from the bathroom tap, a hasty brush or two at her hair and a couple of expert daubs with a lipstick at her mouth and she was off, down the stairs and out the front door, eagerness making her feet fly.

Steve's boat had already left his dock. She trotted along the path at the edge of the water, following the sound of the creaking oarlocks. The mist was so thick it was hard to keep in the path.

"Steve!" she called out, "Wait for me!"

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was reeding her new lyberry book and shaking her head to herself, saying to pop, Really William, I meen really, this is the dullest, flat-test, most unintristing book I ever had the doubtful pleasure of reeding.

Then why did you reed it for Peet sake? pop said, and ma said, I'm only half way through it, as a matter of fact, and each page gets werse, that's the kind of a book this is.

Then dont reed the rest of it, pop said. If the author bored you in the ferst half, why dont you get back at him in the 2nd half by shutting his own book in his expressionless face? he said, and ma said, I ought to, I meen I really ought. It's all about a namby pamby weman who changes her weak mind in every chapter, after being rite in the ferst place. I declare I cant take the slightest intrist in her any longer. It doesn't matter a particle to me whether she sinks or swims, so I'm not even urged by feminine curiosity to go on with it, she said.

And jimminies, ma, it's only a lyberry book anyways, so it didn't cost you anything, so you dont even need to keep on reeding it for an excuse to get your money's werth, I said, and ma said, Now that's a fact, there is not a solitary reason in the werld why I should throw good time after bad.

Now you're talking, pop said, and ma said, Still after all, I dont beleeve there's even quite had the book left.

Yee gods, do you meen you're actually going to finish the blame thing? pop said, and ma said, Well naturelly.

Proving you can never tell what ladies are going to do by what they say.

RAPS REFINED FOODS

OSHAWA (CP)—Dr. Melvin G. Hardinge yesterday told delegates to the Seventh-Day Adventist conference that the "greatest menace to health today" is the growing trend toward the use of refined foods, from which vital minerals and proteins have been eliminated." Dr. Hardinge, conducting a series of lectures on healthful diet at the conference, recently completed a study of vegetarians and non-vegetarians at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.

Canadian, U.S. Navies Manoeuvre Off West Coast

Two visiting United States navy destroyer escorts, from Seattle, Wash., joined with units of the Royal Canadian navy's Pacific Command to give the thousands who crowded the waterfront off Beacon Hill Park in Victoria, B.C., a close-up of fleet manoeuvres and anti-aircraft armament in action. Above, the fleet, led by the R.C.N. cruiser, H.M.C.S. Ontario, turns into line close inshore. During these manoeuvres Royal Canadian navy frogmen simulated an attack on a mock radar installation on the beach. — Central Press Canadian.

Foreign-Trade Surplus Is Up $109,800,000

Sharp Reversal in Trend Over Same Period Last Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada scored a $109,800,000 foreign-trade surplus in the first five months of the year, a sharp reversal of the trend toward a heavy deficit a year ago, the Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

Even though Canada had a tiny deficit in May, the first in nine months, record-making exports for the five-month period reversed last year's trend when there was a $295,000,000 deficit during January-May.

Exports for the five months climbed to a peak $1,735,900,000 up $300,000,000 from $1,446,700,000 in the comparative period last year while imports slipped to $1,626,100,000 from $1,742,000,000.

Sharp Change

Even the May deficit showed a sharp change from last year. It amounted to a mere $700,000, only a tiny fraction of the $78,100,000 deficit during May, 1951.

Exports during May climbed to a record $385,200,000, up $60,000,000 from last year's $327,000,000. Imports eased to $386,000,000 from $405,100,000.

Sales to the U.S. for the five months totalled $937,600,000, compared with $936,000,000 last year, but exports to the U.K. jumped by more than $100,000,000 to $313,100,000 from $206,600,000.

At the same time Canada's purchases from Britain eased by more than $50,000,000 to $129,900,000 from $184,600,000, but imports from the U.S. dropped by only $7,000,000 to $1,222,500,000 from $1,229,600,000.

Major General Convicted By Court Martial

FORT MEADE, Md. (AP)—An army court martial yesterday convicted Maj.-Gen. Robert W. Grow of improperly jotting down military secrets in his personal diary and failing to safeguard classified data.

The diary was stolen by Soviet agents last year while Grow was in Frankfurt, Germany. Russian propagandists promptly exploited it to bolster their war-mongering charges against the United States.

Published excerpts from the diary quoted Gen. Grow as saying: "War! As soon as possible! Now!"

Another alleged entry, dated March 29, 1951, read:

"The time is ripe for a blow this year."

A court of eight high-ranking generals sentenced Grow to a formal reprimand—a black mark against future promotion—and suspension from command for six months.

Conservative Loses Seat In Recount

VANCOUVER (CP)—A. R. MacDougall, Progressive Conservative candidate originally declared elected in one of three Vancouver-Point Grey seats, lost the seat yesterday on a recount.

With the third count still to be completed, it appeared that Liberal candidate T. R. Burnett would be elected, giving the Liberals seven seats instead of six and the Progressive Conservatives three instead of four.

This would make the standing in the 48-member Legislature: Social Credit 19, C.C.F. 18, Liberal seven, Progressive Conservative three, Labor one.

MOUNTAINEERS MISSING

THE WEATHER

Tonight and Thursday will be mostly clear with temperatures a little below normal.

Scientist Says Russians Tried To Buy Secret

ROME (CP)—An Italian scientist said yesterday that two Russian officials tried to buy their secret information on hydrogen bomb experiments.

Marco Cadamuro Morgante made the statement after the Italian Defence Ministry announced Monday that an explosion designed to transform hydrogen into helium—the reaction which could power a hydrogen bomb—had been touched off in this country.

The announcement had made it clear that the experiment involved a very small amount of hydrogen.

The newspaper said the explosion was the culmination of studies made by a young atomic scientist, Ubaldo Loschi.

Morgante, an associate of Loschi, said the Russians "contacted us last winter but we told them that reports about our laboratory were nonsense."

SUGGESTS JOB FOR FAROUK

Ottawa (CP) — King Farouk has lost his Egyptian kingdom but Mayor Charlotte Whitton has a job for him. Mayor Whitton suggested yesterday at a board of control meeting that the gambling ex-monarch might like a job as fortune teller at the Central Canada Exhibition here. She made the suggestion after reading newspaper reports saying Farouk once predicted that soon the only kings left on their thrones will be the kings of clubs, diamonds, hearts, spades and England.

TWO CANADIAN SOLDIERS FACE MURDER CHARGE

Korean Woman Fatally Shot Through Head

WITH THE CANADIAN BRIGADE, Korea (AP)—Two Canadian soldiers accused of shooting a Korean woman to death went on trial today before a five-man court martial.'

Charged with murder are Pte. Clarence Leo Mowers, Sillery, Que., and Pte. Kenneth Carleton, Saint John, N. B., both members of the first battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. Maximum sentence is death.

Both face additional charges of stealing and of acts prejudicial to good order and discipline.

The charges grew out of an incident at the village of Shin San on the night of last May 18 when a Korean woman was shot fatally through the head.

Canadian authorities said the prosecution will contend that Mowers fired a shot through the door of a Korean home which killed the woman as she sat near a window. Carleton was accused as an accomplice.

Both men allegedly fired several shots in the village before the fatality.

The prosecution, headed by Maj. Clayton Hutchins of Halifax, planned to call 4 witnesses. About five will be called for the defence. Maj. C. H. Johnson of Ottawa is defence counsel.

The court will hear the case of Mowers first. Col. J. S. Ross of Edmonton is president of the court.

Royal Children May Accompany Parents on Tour

AUCKLAND, New Zealand CP — A hint that the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh may bring Prince Charles and Princess Anne on their forthcoming tour of Australia and New Zealand was given today by Sir John Allum, Mayor of Auckland.

Sir John, who just returned from a visit to Britain where he was presented to the Queen, said in a speech that "Her Majesty herself has said she expects to be in Australia early in 1954, and she will visit New Zealand first."

Sir John said he did not want anyone making more out of his words than what he said, but he added, with a knowing smile:

"I hope she brings her children."

33 Members Air Cadet Corps Now in London

LONDON (Reuters)—Thirty-three members of Canada's Air Cadet Corps arrived at Northolt airport yesterday from Montreal in a North Star transport plane of the R.C.A.F.

They arrived seven hours behind schedule because of slight engine trouble.

The youngsters—all are 17 or 18—are here on a three-week exchange visit, during which they will visit R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. stations and sight-see. Eight of them will continue to the continent, two each going to Norway, Denmark, Sweden and The Netherlands for their stay.

Folks Would Like to See End of Feud Outstanding for Poor Marksmanship

BLUEFIELD, W.Va. (AP)—"Call the law, 'cause they're at it again," cried a youngster with buckshot in the seat of his pants.

"They better stop this shootin' so a man can get some sleep," complained L.E. King, another resident of nearby Lamar Hollow.

Each reiterated the sentiments of folks in the hollow who would like to see an end to the four-family shootin' feud which has been outstanding for its poor marksmanship.

The indignant youngster and another neutral in the feud, a man with a peg leg, each were hit by wild shotgun pellets as the Howertons continued their argument with the Blankenships, Pendergrasses and Sigmans.

Their hurts apparently were no more serious than the slight wounds received earlier by one of the Blankenships and one of the Howertons.

King added somewhat testily that his sleep has been broken twice in the last three nights as shots rang out in the argument over land ownership.

State police say they can't act until a list of warrants is issued. One law officer said he heard some charges would be filed this week.

Meanwhile, the three-family combine vows to proceed with the building of an access road on property the Howertons claim as their own. The Pendergrasses say they own the land.

Britain to Sell Arms to U.S., Other Allies to Get Needed Dollars Says Chancellor

LONDON (AP)—Britain will sell more than £44,000,000 worth of arms to the United States and other Allies to earn critically needed dollars, R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, said yesterday.

Butler also hinted in a House of Commons speech that the government may be forced to stretch out or cut back its present £4,000,000,000, four-year domestic rearmament program to help boost the country's lagging drive to export goods.

He called for a great expansion in exports, a hold-the-line on wages and more belt-tightening.

Prime Minister Churchill revealed earlier he had called a Commonwealth economic conference for the last week in November to be attended by Commonwealth prime ministers.

Butler said imports of manufactured goods will have to be reduced in the last half of this year to only 40 per cent of the same period last year and imports of non-rationed goods, such as canned meats, must be trimmed by 25 per cent.

He reported that Britain's austerity soon may pay off by putting the country on a pay-as-it-goes basis for the first time since before the Second World War.

Former prime minister Clement Attlee and four other labor members submitted an amendment to Butler's report which would censure the government on grounds that it has failed to provide an adequate economic policy. A vote was expected tonight.

Overthrow of Democracy By Force in Canada Remains Cornerstone of Red Policy

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian Communist leaders now are preaching that they can come to power in this country by democratic votes alone. But Ottawa authorities are convinced, they said today, that the overthrow of Canada's democratic machinery by force remains the cornerstone of Red policy.

They were commenting on release of a long-secret F.B.I. report in Washington saying Stalin has decided Communists can achieve control of the U.S. only by force.

Officials here say the Reds in Canada now are preaching the old united-front line, arguing that a coalition of "progressive people"—under Communist leadership—can win Canada by votes and then put the civil service, the police, the armed forces under leaders of their own choice.

A high source said this is "pure eyewash." He said the basic Communist aim remains the same as it was when published in the first Canadian Red newspaper in 1921—that only violence can bring power in this country and that the whole apparatus of democratic rule must be overthrown and ripped apart.

Pitiful Story Told in Court By Young Girl

VANCOUVER (CP)—A slender 16-year-old girl told in police court yesterday how she sold herself to Chinese men to get money for her boy friend to keep him supplied with narcotics.

The blonde girl friend of a heroin addict broke into violent sobs at the conclusion of her testimony which resulted in an 18-months hard labor sentence for Everett (Jock) Heron, 21, for contributing to juvenile delinquency.

A second charge against Heron of living off the avails of prostitution was withdrawn.

Mother Barred

The girl's mother was barred from the courtroom as she related in a whisper how, sponsored by Heron, she met as many as "four or five Chinese men" a night in a skidroad hotel room and made as much as $25.

"I gave the money to Jock to buy drugs with," she said.

She testified that she first met Heron in a Vancouver cafe after she arrived here from her Vancouver Island home.

"He said that he liked me very much. He asked me to go to work for him."

"What did he mean by that?" asked prosecutor Gordon Scott.

"Prostitution," she replied.

She said that while living with Heron she took as many as three injections of narcotics a day.

Plush Airplane For Arabian King

WASHINGTON (AP)—The King of Saudi Arabia is getting a four-engine airplane equipped with a king-sized bed and an elevated revolving throne, complete with safety belt.

Transocean Air Lines said the plane, one of five Douglas DC-4 Skymasters sold to Saudi Arabia, is being converted at Oakland, Calif., into the "most plush of all personal transports."

Two Arrested For Questioning About Bogus Bills

TORONTO (CP)—A police officer yesterday stopped a car carrying two men wanted for questioning in connection with counterfeiting by the Ottawa police department.

Frank Watson, 34, no fixed address, and William Knutson, 26, of Sutton, were arrested and charged with being in possession of a large amount of counterfeit money. Watson, at the time of his arrest, was on bail in Toronto on an armed robbery charge in connection with the holdup of the Royal Bank at Woodbridge.

Watson was earlier arrested with Leonard Jackson, who is waiting trial on murder and armed robbery charges, in connection with the holdup at Bradford last year of the Bank of Commerce in which gunmen exchanged shots with police. Jackson is charged with the murder of Detective Sergeant Edmund Tong, shot to death in downtown Toronto March 6 when he attempted to question two men in a car in connection with a bank holdup.

Tired of Directories

LOS ANGELES (AP) —Julius Madkin is tired of telephone directories. He leafed through a pile of 10,000 of them yesterday and finally found what he was looking for.

Last Saturday he turned in his old directory for a new one. Later he remembered that he had stuffed two $50 bills in the old directory. It took him several hours but he finally found his money.

Lying-in-State May Continue For Some Time

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—New throngs from all over Argentina crowded past Eva Peron's body today and a presidential announcement said her lying-in-state will continue for "a month or two if necessary."

Strong troop reinforcements moved in to control the surging queues outside the labor ministry.

Despite repeated radio appeals for provincial workers to stay home trains arrived yesterday packed with people who joined the growing lines of mourners.

Trucks from the Eva Peron foundation distributed free sandwiches and fruit to thousands who had been standing for more than 12 hours.

An announcement from the office of President Juan Peron said the body of his wife, who died Saturday after a long illness, will lie in state until everybody has had the opportunity to pay a visit.

DIES OF INJURIES

WOODBRIDGE, Ont., (CP) — Price Evans, 61, died last night of injuries suffered a few hours earlier when his tractor rolled down a hillside, pinning him beneath it. Woodbridge is near Toronto.

FIRE MARSHAL TO INVESTIGATE LONDON FIRES

Blazes Start Same Time In Brothers' Properties

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Two fires—a city block apart—were discovered almost simultaneously early today in properties owned by two London brothers.

The one blaze destroyed the London bag manufacturing plant, owned by Rueben Ginsberg, with an estimated loss of $45,000. The other caused damage to a second-floor bedroom of the Victoria Hotel owned by Hymen Ginsberg.

Fire Chief R.C. McRonald said inspectors from the fire marshal's department will be called in to investigate. The plant fire was the second similar for the big firm in less than three months. On May 10, fire destroyed its plant with damage of $75,000. Activities were transferred to the second structure while rebuilding was in progress at the first.

The fire chief said the fire marshal's investigation of the first fire raised suspicions it had been set by someone. One man was questioned, he said, but no charge was laid.

Sister Squatters Stop Trains

TOLEDO, O., (AP)—Two sisters, carrying $8,132 in cash and a $4,262 cash certificate, were arrested on disturbance charges yesterday after they refused to stop sitting on a train track at Toledo's central union terminal. Police said Miss Palestine Jarrell, 62, and Miss Ollie Jarrell, 55, refused to get off the track because the Lord is the only one who could order them around. Sgt. Margaret Slater said the sisters told her they were moving to Toronto, to buy a farm.

Gen. Van Fleet Thinks Armistice Chances Lessen

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Gen. James A. Van Fleet said today there is less chance for an armistice in Korea than ever before.

The United States eighth army commander told a press conference that the prospect for an armistice is in direct proportion to the amount of military pressure put on by the Communists and that the Communists believe the United Nations forces will not attack to force a truce.

He said the Reds "still have the capability of striking at any point with considerable surprise." But he added they have been "thinning out their front-line strength quite a bit over a period of many weeks" to the point where it is "thinner than ever before."

FAMILY LEFT HOMELESS

WOODSTOCK (CP)— A $10,000 fire destroyed a frame house today, leaving a family of seven homeless. One person suffered severe burns.

Mrs. Clint Kennedy who was burned in the blaze, said her oilstove exploded when she tried to light it.

Fire Department Pump and Group Of Hard-Working Men Save Freighter

By RENE LAGACE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

QUEBEC (CP)—A fire department pump that can handle 1,000 gallons a minute and a group of fast-working men today prevented sinking of the crippled freight vessel Woodford in Quebec harbor.

Damaged in a collision last Sunday with the John A. France, a Great Lakes freighter, the Woodford made Quebec last night with the help of three salvage tugs and began listing after tying up.

Cunard Steamship Company, agent for the Watts and Watts line vessel bound for Europe with grain at the time of the collision, placed an emergency call to the Quebec city fire department which sent a pump to the dockside. A hole had to be bored with torches in the ship's deck to get the hose lengths into the engine room where the water was pouring in.

After a six-hour battle, Capt. D. G. Martin ordered some of his crew to bunk up for the night and was heartfelt in his statement: "Of course she'll stay afloat."

The Woodfard remained with a five-degree list. Crew members removed personal belongings and some of the cargo including a dozen tractors.

Twelve firemen remained on board to supervise the pumping operations and the skipper posted a watch of nearly a score men to help the work.

There was no time to inspect damage before the Woodford started listing. It was believed that a plate was smashed in under the waterline on the port side. A port-hole was pushed in when the France and the Woodford hit almost at a direct angle off Ile Verte, 20 miles across the St. Lawrence river from the mouth of the Saguenay River.

Four passengers and 24 crew members boarded the Birchton, a laker that heard the distress signal, and were taken back to Quebec.

Protesting Home Owners Told Taxes Will Be Up in 1953

Toronto Twp. Must Pay For High Spending--Dunbar

TORONTO (CP) — Home owners in suburban Toronto Township, already up in arms over tax jumps as high as 300 per cent this year, were told today by Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar today that they will have to pay more next year.

Commenting on ratepayers' demands for a provincial investigation into township affairs, Mr. Dunbar said banks had loaned the township approximately $1,600,000 for improvement work done during the 1949-51 period and that these must be paid now.

Instead of looking forward to lower taxes next year, residents will face higher levies, the minister added.

"Many Toronto people moved into the township during the past few years to take advantage of lower taxation, but they wanted city comforts and conveniences and an easy going township council tried to please them.

"Now they have to pay the bill. They have been spending money high, wide and handsome in spite of repeated warnings."

Last night the businessmen's association of Lakeview, a community of 9,000 persons in the township, decided to form a committee of five to investigate the advisability of secession from the township.

Exiled Monarch Plans Colorful Garden Party

By ALEX VALENTINE

CAPRI, Italy (Reuters)—A colorful private party appeared to be in the offing today as publicity-shy former King Farouk of Egypt settled down for a week's stay in a plush hotel on his honeymoon Isle of Capri before going to the United States.

Bodyguards and servants, at the behest of the exiled former monarch, scoured the island for five hours to find 10 Japanese lanterns. At about midday the frantic hotel manager sent out special messengers to find two large beach umbrellas for Farouk.

The Hotel Eden-Paradiso on a cliff edge in the exclusive Aapacapri district has been virtually requisitioned by Farouk, his wife, Narriman, their six-month-old son, King Ahmed Fuad II of Egypt and two young daughters.

They have taken over the top floor complete with the roof garden. Burly Egyptian bodyguards stand watch.

Farouk, who abdicated his throne last week following an army coup, spent all morning today in the hotel after giving strict orders that no new guests be admitted. This applies particularly to newspaper men.

A member of his staff said Farouk may give a press conference either tonight or tomorrow.

Probe Continues In Air Crash Near Malton

TORONTO (CP)—Two inspectors from the Department of Transport today continued investigation of yesterday's plane crash at nearby Malton in which two R.C.A.F. veterans were killed.

The victims, both employed by Sanderson Aircraft Ltd., of Malton were Cyril Fairhurst, 35, and Robert Tomlin, 7, of suburban North York.

Both pilots were well known in flying circles and had flown regularly to Manitoulin Island on northern Ontario charter flights.

Their aircraft, a twin-engined Cessna, lost altitude soon after taking off from Malton airport, struck a high-tension line and plunged in flames to a road.

Inspectors Arthur Empey and Maurice Louch of the air services branch of the transport department have been assigned to investigate.

Salesman Terrified By 'Flying Saucer'

ENID, Okla. AP—A salesman told police he was almost swept from the highway last night by a huge "flying saucer" which swooped low at terrific speed.

Sid Eubanks, 50, told his tale to Sgt. Vern Benell, who said the man was still trembling when he walked into the police station.

Eubanks said the object, appearing as a "yellow-green, then yellow-brown streak about 400 feet long," suddenly swooped low over the highway, then reversed directions and disappeared.

Wage Increase Of 7½ Cents Given Workers

HAMILTON (CP) —A basic wage increase of 7 1-2 cents an hour is reported to be basis of a settlement reached between the Steel Company of Canada and the United Steelworkers of America (CIO). The agreement, reached Monday, is also reported to provide for certain adjustments in job classification.

The agreement, still to be ratified by union membership, is expected to set the pattern for negotiations of wage disputes between the union and Canada's two other basic steel plants: Algoma Steel Corporation at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Dominion Steel and Coal at Sydney.

A general meeting of the union's policy committee has been called for Friday.

Several Streets Will be Given New Surface

The McFarland Construction Company of Picton will commence an extensive street oiling program in the city on Thursday, it was noted today by City Engineer Charles Mott.

Several of the main travelled asphalt paved streets will be resurfaced and later the macadam roadways will be treated. Resurfacing of the asphalt paved roadways prolong the life of pavements about ten years, according to Mr. Mott.

Asphalt pavements to be resurfaced include East Bridge Street from Pinnacle to MacDonald and East Dundas Street for the same distance, Pinnacle Street from Dundas to Foundry, Station Street, and the Market Square. Streets will be surfaced with liquid asphalt covered with pea gravel.

Will Cost $37,272

The contract price for street oiling planned by the city public works department was $37,272. The city engineer asked that residents co-operate during the street oiling period by keeping cars off the streets as much as possible during working hours.

In the meantime the city engineering department is completing plans for the removal of curves on Bridge Street hill and on Highland Avenue. Approval of the Municipal Board for the removal of curves and repaving of the street has been secured and the work will get under way in September following the tourist season.

POLICE BLOTTER

A Frankford youth and a Trenton girl escaped without injury about midnight last night when the motorcycle they were riding skidded out from under them and they rolled onto the pavement on Front Street.

City police were about to check the young couple seated on a parked motorcycle, when the driver gunned his machine and it sped away down the street. The operator lost control of his machine and the two riders were thrown to the street. The driver, Elwood Strome and passenger Betty Benford of Trenton, were allowed to go, but the machine was held by police to check the ownership.

Clothesline thieves were active during the night, according to a North Front Street woman who reported to police that clothes had been stolen off the line in her backyard.

Community Swimming Pool Statistics

In the short time that the Community Swimming Pool has been in operation over 3,000 children have enjoyed free swimming. George Polmanter Earns Draw With Mike Zaduck of Guelph In Hard Five-Round Bout

TRENTON. (Special.)—George Polmanter of Bellville, and Mike Zaduck of Guelph, fought to a five-round draw in the main event in the Zigman Boxing Club's outside boxing show at Bayshore Park here last night. More than 500 attended the pleasing punch program under lights.

In fight circles Zaduck is known as a tough nut to crack. He proved to be just that since he weathered heavy leather bombardments in the first three rounds and stormed through in rounds four and five looking better than Polmanter, who probably needed more conditioning. Polmanter a pound and half heavier than the Guelph boy, traded left for left and right for right. It would be interesting to watch the result of a rematch. Palmanter tipped the scale at 145; Zaduck at 144.

The semi-final bout saw Lee Crooks, of Brockville, and Rocky Lucas of the Zigman Club, fight to a three round draw. Joey Cox of the Zigman Club gave George Hunter an awful pounding in the 124 class. In the third round Hunter with a deep cut opened up over his right eye, could not answer the starting bell. The referee stopped the bout. Hunter went to the Trenton Memorial for repairs including stitches.

The three-round scrap between Roy Polmanter of the Zigman Club, and Reg Taylor, of Brockville, provided action galore as Polmanter decisioned the visiting fighter. Taylor was down twice in the third for the eight count.

Francis Madis, of Trenton, suffered a sudden lapse into the Land of Nod when he ran into one of Ron Jones' loopers in the first round of the 115 pound bout. Forced sleep commenced exactly at 1.40 in the round.

Carol and Lucas, the curtain raisers in the 60 pound class, fought to a draw.

Results: 146 lbs. George Palmanter, Zigman Club, vs Mike Zaduck, Guelph, draw.

126 lbs. Rocky Lucas, Zigman Club vs Lee Crooks, Brockville draw.

124 lbs., Joey Cox, Zigman Club T.K.O.'d George Hunter, Brockville, three rounds.

115 lbs. Ron Jones, Zigman Club K.O.'d Francis Madis, Trenton, 1.40 mins. first round.

115 lbs. Roy Polmanter, Zigman Club, decisioned Reg. Taylor, Brockville, three round.

Officials: referee, Bobbie Hoar (R.C.A.F.); judges, Fred Noakes, Norm Banfield and Fred Payne.

Pass Through Town

Headed by Reg. Shaw Rameses Shrine potentate from Toronto some 200 shriners wearing fezzes passed through here this morning for the Mardi Gras celebration at Picton today. Several shriners from Trenton joined their Brethren at the upper C.N.R. station where the train switched off for the southern leg of the trip.

Scholarships Awarded

Scholarships to be awarded yearly to all leading Batawa students graduating from grammar school, high school and university have been established as a memorial to the late Thomas Bata founder of the Bata Shoe Company. The scholarships were announced on the 20th anniversary of his death. The world renowned shoe manufacturer was killed in an airplane crash in Czechoslovakia.

Following the simple but impressive ceremony at Batawa during the weekend cables telling of the tribute paid to the Bata founder were forwarded to his widow Marie Bata, Bermuda and son Thomas Bata Jr., of London who became head of the organization on the untimely demise of his father.

The scholarships will be in cash.

Dominic Cipera former mayor of Zlin, Czechoslovakia, close friend of the late Mr. Bata was on hand for the announcement. Anthony Cekota and Dr. C. K. Hertz also attended. It was at Zlin that Thomas Bata Sr., built the foundation for his widespread shoe making empire.

Grey County Marks 100th Anniversary

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Several thousand Grey County residents flocked into Owen Sound yesterday for the first of two days set aside to mark the 100th anniversary of the county. The city of Owen Sound, which was 100 years old in 1940, is joining with the county in the event.

Special speakers at the official opening were the county's four representatives in the federal and provincial governments, two of them holding cabinet rank. They were, Federal Immigration Minister W.E. Harris, M.P. for Grey-Bruce; Ontario Health Minister Mackinnon Phillips, M.P.P. for Grey North; Hon. Farquhar Oliver, former Liberal leader in Ontario, M.P.P. for Grey South, and Colin E. Bennett, M.P. for Grey North.

In a morning parade most of the county's 26 municipalities entered floats depicting some scene from the early days. Veterans from Canadian Legion branches throughout the county marched in a special warriors section.

A soft ball tournament, a horse shoe pitching tournament and a tug-of-war featured the afternoon sports program. Leonard McKeown of Priceville and his daughter Helen were winners of the senior and junior classes of the fiddlers contest.

Motorboat races and water skiing in the Owen Sound harbor, a lacrosse game between Peterborough and Owen Sound and a dance made up the evening program.

The centennial concludes tonight.

Refugees Pour Into Hong Kong From Mainland

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Refugees from the Portuguese colony of Macau poured into Hong Kong today from the Chinese mainland, bringing reports of "near panic" following a night of gunfire exchanges with Chinese troops.

For nearly two hours shells crashed, hand grenades exploded and machine-guns rattled, the refugees said. Some reports said the Portuguese gunboat Goncalo Velhi lobbed shells into Chinese territory, but Portuguese authorities today denied she had opened fire.

The outbreak ended a three-day lull along the borders of the little colony 40 miles southwest of Hong Kong. Clashes started Friday night.

Child Dies in Freak Traffic Accident

SUDBURY (CP)—Richard L. Eden, 10, died before his parents yesterday after receiving fatal injuries in a freak traffic accident.

The young boy was crossing the highway in front of his suburban Sudbury home and failed to see a car driven by George Slemen of New Sudbury.

Warned by the shout of a companion, young Eden turned just in time to see the car on top of him. He jumped in an apparent effort to avoid it and was caught in the chest by a pointed radiator ornament.

He ran the short distance to his home, but died about 45 minutes later while doctors worked over him on a blanket in his backyard.

Girls Were Not Discouraged By Jeers from Boys

It must be difficult to be a girl in this day and age. Evidence of this fact was seen in Victoria Park yesterday evening around supper time.

Two young ladies, probably in their early 20s, decided to have a swing on their way home from work at the playground. Swinging with a dress on, and with a group of young boys standing by might discourage any girl. But not these gals. They walked to the swings, got on, fastening their dresses as firmly as possible and began industriously to pump themselves in the air amidst hoots and whistling of the younger set.

Discovering their heckling was getting them nowhere, the boys eventually piled into a jalopy and left. "They're coming in for a landing," was the final jeer as they drove away.

"Well, I don't care," said one of the girls after their tormentors had departed, "we wanted to swing and we did."

Softball Heads To Hold Meeting

The Belleville Motor Car-Crawford Metals semi-final series for the right to represent the Belleville and District Softball League in the OASA Intermediate AA playdowns will have its third game played on the league's conference table tomorrow evening.

The second game, because of a scorer's error, went into extra innings, with Motor Car taking the decision in the 11th frame. However, it was discovered that Crawfords had scored two runs in the fourth inning instead of the single run originally credited to them which would have given them a one run edge in the ninth inning, and a victory which would have tied the series at one game apiece.

The league executive will hold a special meeting to decide the fate of the teams tomorrow evening. All executive members, the team managers, and the score keeper, Jack Brett, have been asked to attend.

The series will not continue until a decision has been rendered. Therefore there will be no game in the AA division tomorrow evening.

Holstein Breeders Of Two Countries Hold Meetings

Holstein breeders club in Hastings and Prince Edward counties held separate twilight meetings within the past week. Hastings breeders and their families, over 200 strong, met at the county home farm west of Belleville, while the Prince Edward breeders held their twilight meeting at the F. J. Webster farm.

Judging competitions were held at both meetings under the direction of G. E. Nelson, Holstein Fieldman who later discussed the animals shown.

At the Hastings meeting George W. Henry of Todmorden, president of the Holstein Friesian Association, emphasized the importance of marketing cheese in such a manner that would be attractive to the housewife. He also stressed the importance of starting the grade breeder into purebreds, while the price was satisfactory for the purchaser.

County warden Lee Grills welcomed the breeders while Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A. for Hastings West, discussed the cheese industry and other phases of agriculture.

At the Prince Edward meeting James Brown, association director, said that as result of the U.S. embargo transfer fees were down 34 percent compared with last year. Registrations, however, were up and membership was holding its own. "Increased fees boosted revenue two percent," he said.

Mr. Brown said that Canadian cattlemen should appreciate the American buyer more and urged that only good animals be sold to these buyers. Poor cows should be sent to the stockyards instead of being unloaded on American buyers.

H. J. Lewis, Monfa Farms, Wellington, was presented with a Master Breeders' Shield won at the county fair last year and representing most awards for cattle bred on the home farm.

EINSTEIN NOT CONCERNED

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Physicist Albert Einstein is serenely unconcerned about flying saucers.

Evangelist Louis A. Gardner wrote Einstein at Princeton to ask his opinion. Einstein replied: "These people have seen something. What it is I do not know and I am not curious to know."

Fire Destroys Old Landmark Near Wooler

Wooler—Fire destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Mallory, Monday forenoon, this being the second time in about four years they have lost their home and all their belongings. All that was saved was the washing on the clothesline. Neighbors responded to the call for help but nothing could be done and the old frame building was reduced to ashes in a very short time.

The house was one of the oldest buildings in the locality. For over half a century it was the senior room of the public school. When the present school was built in 1916 the Agricultural Society bought the old building and moved it to the fair grounds. Shortly after Mr. Mallory's first fire the building was moved to his farm, remodelled and used as a dwelling until it was burned on Monday.

Mr. Mallory a veteran of World War II was away at work at the time of the fire. Mrs. Mallory and three children escaped unharmed. To them the sympathy of the community is extended.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials led a steady advance in prices in slow early afternoon trading on the Toronto stock exchange.

A few key industrial issues sparked a jump in the industrial index and base metals climbed steadily. Early afternoon profit-taking skimmed the advance made in golds and western oils moved uncertainly upward.

Trading picked up slightly from a dull opening. Industrial dealings however, remained within a narrow range of selected leading issues. A broad list of secondary golds and lower-priced metals and oils attracted speculative interest. Volume for the first three hours was 1,070,000 shares.

Steels led the industrials' upswing.

Base metals were firm as American Yellowknife, Fenimore, Golden Manitou, Gulf, Opemiska and Tungsten traded higher.

In western oils, lower-priced issues posted a majority of moderate losses. Britalta, Husky and Pacific Petroleum climbed while Del Rio, Peace River and Triad slipped.

Senior golds drifted in dull trading. Selected secondary issues edged upward.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP)—Cattle prices held about steady on better grades of steers and heifers but were weak on cows and bulls today at the Ontario stockyards. Receipts: cattle 250; calves 140; hogs 270; sheep and lambs 130. The leftover from Tuesday was 250 cattle.

Choice steers sold at $27-28 while medium to good steers brought $25-26.50 and common steers sold downward to $18. Medium to good heifers were at $24-25.75 while a few good cows sold at $17-18. Good heavy bulls were selling at $17-17.50 with choice bulls downward to $13. Medium to good fed yearlings sold mostly $24-27.

Calves sold steady at $24-26 for good to choice vealers with common to medium from $15-22.

Hogs were $26 for grade A with sows $16 dressed.

Good ewe and wether lambs sold at $32 with bucks at $31. A few good sheep brought $17-18 while common sold downward to $6.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO CP — Churning cream and butter print prices here today were unchanged.

The egg market opened quiet with demand poor. Prices quoted are for eggs packed in fibre cases.

Tight Steel Market for Six Months Predicted

NEW YORK (AP)—With the steel strike settled, industry is engaged in "one of the wildest scrambles for steel in history," the Iron Age, national metalworking weekly, said today.

Consumers striving to keep plants going or get them started again are "exerting almost unbelievable pressure on all possible sources," the Iron Age said, and the outlook is for a "tight steel market for the next six months."

"Conversion, foreign and grey-market steel sources are being canvassed for all they are worth," the weekly said. "Chances of getting much help from these sources are remote. And the cost is terrific."

Iron Age said current shortage jitters are well founded because consumers probably will have a rough time placing new orders for the rest of the year. Military needs will increase the pressure.

The tight market "might last until the second quarter of next year."

RICE FOR RUBBER

COLOMBO, Ceylon —(AP) — Prime Minister Dudley Senanayake told the House of Representatives today that Ceylon is sending a mission to Communist China to buy rice.

Communist Chinese agent in the last few months have offered rice in exchange for Ceylon's rubber.

'Blacksheep' Irish Peer Dies In Obscurity

LONDON (CP)—Lord Langford, bankrupt, blacksheep Irish Peer who once hired out as a tenor in a Winnipeg movie house, has died in obscurity.

His death was kept secret until yesterday, when the Times carried an advertisement announcing his title had been claimed by the next in line. It mentioned in passing that Lord Langford had died July 15. It did not give his age.

The baron at one time or another appeared before a criminal court, a bankrupt court and a divorce court, and there was talk of convening a court of peers to try him for bigamy.

The criminal court sentenced him to a year at hard labor for obtaining money through a faked letter allegedly from the King which stated that he would soon get £500. The divorce court took no action. The bankruptcy court refused to discharge him.

Nobility Note

Langford once offered the Times, which chronicles the doings of the nobility, this item for its court column:

Clotworthy Wellington Thomas Edward Rowley, seventh Baron Langford of Summerhill, dined last evening at a soup kitchen and slept on a bench on the Thames Embankment."

Born in New Zealand, he worked as a gentleman farmer until manhood and then worked his passage to Ireland.

His inheritance from his uncle came in 1931 but brought him only "Summerhill," the charred ruins of a house on a small plot in Ireland.

A Good Voice

In 1923 he went to Winnipeg and worked as a farm hand until a bout with "bad whiskey" laid him low. While convalescing he discovered he had a good Irish tenor and was hired by a Winnipeg movie to dress in an Irish costume and sing. It led to a tour of major cities and $60 a week, he claimed.

He came home first class, ran out of money and shoved off for a similar life in Australia. There he learned the peerage was his.

He worked his passage home, took his peerage and found that while his title brought him no money, it also prevented him from earning any. He begged for food in restaurants, slept on benches, and took what odd jobs he could get.

With his death, the title passes again into respectability. The incumbent, a distant cousin, who claims it as grandson of the second Baron, is Sir Arthur Sholto Langford Rowley, 82, who retired as British consul-general in France in 1932.

Thief Leaves Calling Card

NEW YORK AP — Police had a snap solving a tailor shop robbery last night. The robber left a paper giving his name, address and description. The "calling card" was a completed application form for city employment, which apparently had popped unnoticed from Moses Haynes' pocket when he drew his gun. Police found Haynes at his address and charged him with robbery.

'COPTERS TURN BACK

PRESTWICK, Scotland (Reuters)—Two United States army helicopters attempting the first copter crossing of the Atlantic were turned back to Iceland today by bad weather. They had taken off from there early this morning bound for this Scottish airfield. This leg—870 miles—is the longest on the trip from the United States to Germany.

Swarm of Bees Takes Up Home Under Car Fender

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—The S. W. Murphy family of Memphis Tenn., started home today with a few thousand more passengers than they had when they arrived a week ago.

A swarm of bees has taken up residence under the left front fender of the Murphy car.

"They stayed with us wherever we drove," said Mrs. Murphy. "They even went along to Tijuana Mex. and back."

The Murphys say they like the bees and don't plan to disturb them.

Red Charges of Korean Atrocities Will be Answered by Red Cross

TORONTO (CP) — A voluminous report is to be presented to the 18th International Red Cross conference today by the International Committee answering Communist charges against the committee regarding alleged atrocities in Korea.

Paul Ruegger, president of the International Committee, announced the release of the report Tuesday during sessions in which Russian, Communist Chinese and Czechoslovakian delegations denounced the I.C.R.C. as a tool of the West and withdrew financial support from it.

Despite Communist attacks, the General Commission—one of four conducting conference business—voted 61 to 14 to continue the mandate of the finance commission, set up four years ago to accept contributions from Geneva convention countries.

'Ignored Atrocities'

The International Committee is designated as the enforcer of the Geneva Convention, which set down rules for the treatment and exchange of war prisoners.

Soviet bloc delegates charged the I.C.R.C. has repeatedly ignored atrocities committed against civilians and prisoners of war.

Lt.-Gen. Nikolai Slavin, head of the Russian delegation, said the committee had hidden atrocities during the Ethiopian, First and Second World and Korean Wars.

Mrs. Li Teh Chuan, head of the Communist Chinese delegation, condemned the United Nations for permitting alleged Koje Island prison camp massacres. She charged villages had been bombed and Chinese civilians killed without the International Committee "denouncing this as inhuman."

Too Late

A Russian proposed amendment, backed by Poland, Romania and Czechoslovakia, seeking to reduce the committee's power to recognize new societies and enforce the Geneva Convention, was turned down by Andre Francois-Poncet, chairman of the General Commission, because it had been presented after June 30. Conference rules say the amendment must be submitted six months in advance of the convention.

Principal defender of the I.C.R.C. was the Viscountess of Limerick, British delegate, who said her delegation was concerned about "unjustified attacks."

"Actions which tend to weaken one part of the International Red Cross may well jeopardize the whole," she said. "This is particularly true of the International Committee—the pivotal point of the Red Cross in time of war."

Red China Gives Reasons For Absence

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Communist China charged yesterday that the United States sent no delegation to the International Red Cross Conference in Toronto because it feared the conference would condemn "germ warfare and other atrocities. . . in Korea."

A Peiping radio broadcast, heard by the Associated Press here, asserted America "is trying to evade condemnation of world public opinion and at the same time make Britain its accessory in conducting behind-the-scenes disruptive activities."

Neither the U. S. nor Britain sent official delegations to the Red Cross Conference. Both sent groups of observers.

CANADIAN UNDERSTANDING NEXT

A sincere expression of good will on an international level will be in evidence in Buffalo, N.Y., early in August when that city observes "Canada Day" in tribute to its northern neighbor. Representative groups from Canadian communities lying adjacent to the international border at Niagara Falls have been invited to attend and Buffalo merchants are planning displays of Canadian (or have we got one?) flags to commemorate the peaceful invasion of citizens from another country.

This invitation points up an odd paradox — a paradox which few nations in the world would understand. While Canadians and Americans are meeting in Buffalo, they will meet in an atmosphere of complete understanding, possessed of the same language and similar cultural tastes and with parallel ideals of freedom and common weapons to defend those freedoms.

But here in Canada, many Canadians from Ontario and Quebec will be meeting each other for the first time. The summer exchange of Canadian students between Ontario and Quebec has been in progress for the past few years, French-speaking Canadians from Quebec being guests in Ontario homes while English-speaking Canadians from Ontario enjoy the hospitality of English families in Quebec. This exchange is designed to promote a better understanding between the citizens of the two Canadian provinces.

Students meeting under arrangement of the Visites Interprovinciales organization have a barrier of language to overcome before true understanding may be reached. Their cultural backgrounds will be different and their ways-of-life will be in contrast.

When Canadians from all provinces can meet with the semblance of basic understanding that will prevail at Buffalo it will augur well for Canada. Separated by language, cultural and, perhaps, religious differences, it will be difficult for Canadians to meet on common ground. Differences are daily being resolved and the time is not far off when Canadians will be able to meet fellow-Canadians with the same degree of understanding that will accompany the get-together of Canadians and Americans at Buffalo.

CANADIAN RECRUITING LAGS

A recent armed services report released by the Defence Department at Ottawa indicates that the air force is not alone in its disappointing efforts to obtain recruits. According to the report, the army's strength gained only 500 recruits in June, a month described as the "lowest" of the year.

In the case of the Royal Canadian Air Force, the view was expressed that young men of air crew calibre were reluctant to fly at the speed of sound. The "romance" of flying, some observed, has been removed and men who man the machines are themselves trained as machines.

Disappointing as it may be to the defence department, it is suggested that a shortage of manpower for the fighting forces will continue to exist so long as no real war exists. True, there is a war in Korea and Canadians are being killed and wounded, but to the average man-on-the-street — from whose ranks come the recruits — the Korean conflict is still a long way off.

The average Canadian youth has no special love for military life. Without a real war in which to engage, it is possible that many potential recruits shun the army because, through the years, the Canadian permanent force has, rightly or wrongly, impressed onlookers as being pretty much of a spit-and-polish affair. Canadians do not like spit-and-polish.

And perhaps here is the real reason why the armed services are not recruiting their quotas: Civilian pay is now the highest on record.

When and if a real war should ever start, Canadians will do as they have always done and swarm the recruiting offices across the nation. Show them the enemy and they will be there to do their job whether it be slogging in the mud as a foot soldier, undersea in a submarine or streaking through the clouds at speeds almost as fast as bullets.

YOU, TOO, FAROUK

With the firing of King Farouk in Egypt, the deposed monarch will share the feelings of many baseball club managers in the major and international leagues who have received the "axe" treatment during recent months.

Canadian TV fans whose viewing was limited to what was going on in the Chicago Stockyards while the Republicans and the Democrats held their conventions, are now almost expressing thanks for the soap operas which have been returned to their place on the television screens. If it is political conventions or soap operas, many would prefer soap.

LOST-LESSONS

I sit, too late, and envy him,
Because I never learned to swim.
I watch my grandson boldly take
A headlong dive into the lake—
A feat he proudly does—which I
Admit I wouldn't dare to try.

I could have joined a swimming class;
I had the chance, but let it pass.
Of many reasons, first must be:
Swimming seemed difficult to me.
I could have learned but lacked the will
And patience to acquire the skill.

I know it must seem strange to him
That I have never learned to swim.
But I could make a lengthy list
Of other pleasures I have missed
Because to share them seemed to be
A bit too difficult for me.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THOREAU AND "WESKAWENAAK"

More than to any other author or writer my thoughts, during the summer months at my Nova Scotia island retreat, turn to Henry D. Thoreau. I am quite sure Thoreau would have loved this simple, yet gloriously beautiful spot of unspoiled forest land. It is as isolated as Walden Pond — more so, because it is one of a group of three small islands, but a short distance from the mainland.

Trees that are over a hundred years in age look down upon me. Maples and white birches, graceful and beautiful, contrast with many a variety of pine and hemlock. Here are my quaint Lodge, my log cabin dining place, carpenter shop, and boat house. Thoreau would probably have had but one simple hut, his desires were so simple and small. But there is nothing elaborate about Weskawenaak (Micmac Indian name for Happy Land), though comfortable and quiet, and a wonderful place in which to write, read, commune with nature and with oneself, and in which to give appreciative voice to the Father of us all for his manifold blessings.

But back to Thoreau. Here it is that I study and read of him. Without doubt Thoreau takes his place among the great thinkers of all time. Theodore Dreiser called him a world genius, and in commenting upon his greatness placed his name with those of Shakespeare, Plato, and Whitman, and he dissociates him with those of his time. In speaking of him, Dreiser said: "His time! I cannot but smile at that. It knew nothing of him. Nothing."

About the only sound at Weskawenaak, outside those natural to nature on an isolated island in a big lake, is that of the train that passes on the mainland, about a mile away. Thoreau tells of his pleasure in the train that passed Walden Pond and how familiar he became with those who ran that train. Nature's greatest gifts are silence and peace and the fragrant, health-giving air so clean and invigorating. You sleep here, and your worries are all checked in the past!

Police Raid Offices

CAPETOWN (Reuters) — Police today raided offices throughout south Africa of the African national congress and the Indian congress, the country's leading African and East Indian organizations.

The two groups recently launched a defiance campaign against South Africa's anti-colored laws, encouraging colored persons to ignore "European only" signs.

Hundreds have been arrested since the campaign began June 26.

CONVICTED OF WOUNDING

TORONTO (CP)— Harry J. Swan, 26, was convicted yesterday of wounding with intent to do grievous bodily harm. Police said he told them he did not know why he had slashed the throat of James Bell, 55, with an eight-inch hunting knife. He said he had been drinking with Bell and that during an argument he took him to a deserted school playground and cut his throat. Twenty stitches were needed to close the wound. Swan will be sentenced next Tuesday.

Letters to the Editor

Wants Govt. Action On Price of Cheese

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

In as much as the Bay of Quinte is a good cheese producing district your paper is likely interested in this business.

As you know there is not a living in producing cheese at the present price.

I understand the Ontario government will pay an extra six cents per pound providing the Dominion government will not allow cheese to be dumped on our market as long as we can supply the demand.

The Dominion Government soon stopped imports that would hurt the manufacturer of some articles. I only think they could and should protect us to some extent. If not the cheese business in this country will be forced out of existence and I believe there will yet come a day when our cheese will be needed badly, it being a concentrated form of good food.

It entails considerable expense to set up in the dairy business and if we are forced to change to some other branch it will mean higher costs. I know we are a small group considering the whole of the Dominion and perhaps that is why we get no more consideration from Ottawa than we do.

Is it not true that the cheese from New Zealand was allowed in here to make it possible that the Massey Harris Company could swing a big machinery deal with New Zealand?

Our population is increasing faster than our milk supply and I believe it is only for a short time that we will need any help to maintain our herds and the demand for fluid milk, milk powder and condensed milk, etc. will create a good market for our milk.

I have milked cows for 30 years but I don't keep them for a hobby.

Cheese Producer,
Theodore Cooney,
Stirling, Ont., R. R. No. 1.

P.S.: I would like to hear what other dairy men think of the situation.

Ontario Intelligencer Pleases Reader

Missoula, Montana,
July 25, 1952.

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I wish to congratulate you on your excellent daily paper. A few copies of it fell into my hands under rather unusual circumstances.

We were on a motor trip from the east—Toronto and Windsor. Coming down from Banff on our way to Yellowstone we made what we thought was to be an over-night stop in Missoula, Mont. However one of our party became very ill necessitating a 10-day stay in the Missoula hospital.

A Canadian nurse here came in to greet us fellow Canadians. You can imagine our surprise when she told us that she had trained in the Belleville hospital and her surprise when we told her that we—my sister who is ill and myself—were born and raised in Belleville.

We had a pleasant visit recalling mutual friends and acquaintances.

The next day she brought us some Belleville papers and I can't tell you how much we enjoyed them. We had felt the inadequacy of hte Missoula newspapers and your paper was so superior in its news coverage and interesting items that I could not resist telling you so.

Missoula is a city of thirty thousand but Belleville certainly has the better newspaper.

Bill to Punish Unfaithful Wives Is Withdrawn

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—A bill to punish unfaithful wives by jail sentences was withdrawn from the Indian parliament today after members argued that women already have it tough enough.

Mrs. Jayashri Raiji, a Congress Party member of parliament, led the attack with the assertion that the Indian woman today was just "a big helpless piece of human flesh."

The bill had been introduced by Fulsihji B. Dabhi. At present men can be sent to prison for up to five years for adultery, but women are outside the law. After being heckled for an hour, Dabhi withdrew the bill.

Mrs. Raiji said the Indian woman is looked upon as the private property of men, has no individuality, and has to depend on men for everything. In such circumstances, she said, she couldn't be expected to remain faithful.

Even Dabhi admitted it was difficult to punish the inconstant wife "while the law admits the privilege of a husband filling his zenana (the female quarter of the house) with women."

Polygamy among Hindus is prohibited in Bombay state but in most other states it is still allowed.

Polyandry (the practice of a woman having simultaneously more than one husband) is found in a few mountainous areas.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

ANNO DOMINI

Some days ago I was browsing through an anthology of brief statements which the great and near-great have made about Jesus of Nazareth. Most of these of course were made by religious men whose belief in the divine character of Jesus' life was unwavering.

But there was one alleged scholar who, in a very lofty fashion discarded as unhistorical most of the New Testament writings. He spoke patronizingly of St. Paul. In one sentence he disposed of questions of criticism upon which hundreds and perhaps thousands of volumes have been written. In a few words he came to the conclusion that Jesus might have been a historical character but there was no real proof for it. We do, claimed this writer, know a little about Jesus but scarcely enough to enable us to put any trust in his basic teachings.

As I read these statements I glanced at the calendar and read these words: "anno domini." Could it be that the alleged scholar was summarily dealing in a few sentences with the career of the Man from whose birth time has been dated? Yes, there are some people that stupid—and that impudent. The New Testament is the most accurate set of documents which have come down to us from antiquity. Men who in lofty words scoff at Christian doctrine show themselves to be neither well informed nor sound in their reasoning.

NATURAL SKIN OIL THE IDEAL COSMETIC

A manicurist asks whether the general health affects the condition of the nerves. She has believed for years that nails with ridges, nails that peel and flake like powder when filed reflect systemic disorders. But in her work it is all blamed on her, or rather on the coats of nail polish she applies. So if I have any literature that would help her to convince her customers that the split nails are not her fault she'll be grateful.

Recently a reader complained that her reaction to nail polish is red, swollen, itchy eyelids. For this reason she has not worn nail polish for three years. It is getting her down, gives her an inferiority feeling when she has to show her hands in the company of women who are all painted up. Isn't there some kind of non-allergic nail polish?

My unsympathetic answer to that brought an indignant rejoinder from another reader who says it is evident that I do not come in contact much with women in these parlous times, and she presumes I do not allow my wife and daughters—if I am so fortunate—to use cosmetics and nail polish, but I probably take a second look at the woman who does, and admire her. She asks whether I go out in public without shaving or grooming my nails. Finally she offers to tell my reader who is allergic to ordinary nail polish the name of the much-coveted nail polish she uses, as she had to give up ordinary nail polish for the same reason.

In rebuttal I never use the stuff. I hate the sight of it. Nail polish, hair frizz or any other artifice that screams to high heaven that it is fake. I admire the woman who uses cosmetics in an attractive, feminine way—and that means that you have to take at least a second look to discover that she uses any artifice at all.

White marks on all my nails—Ben Told something lacking in my diet.

I began supplementing my diet with Ca, P, I and D and B complex as you advise in the pamphlet (Young Folks and Old Folks) last spring...nails began to grow beautifully and became strong and smooth again...

What causes my nails to become bumpy and get pinholes—does nail polish or cuticle oil affect the nails like this?

What a dreadful fate it would be if you creatures were deprived of your nail paint and had to wear the nails God gave you!

Nail "polish" or polish remover as well as "cuticle oil"—baa, baa—is injurious to the nails, of course. Any strong solvent injures nail, skin or hair. But these abuses alone do not account for the ridges, the flaky peeling, cracking, splitting and other changes the readers complain of. The main cause of such poor condition of the nails is nutritional deficiency—especially lack of sufficient vitamin B complex, vitamin D and calcium in the everyday diet.

The allergic sensitivity one reader attributes to nail polish is another question. A good many women are allergic to one or another ingredient in cosmetics. There are now available special cosmetics, including nail polish, lip stick, rouge, powder, cream, eyebrow pencil, in fact the works, which contain none of the ingredients that have been responsible for most of the trouble.

To the young girl who is just beginning to dabble with complexion dope or make-up — and in my opinion this should be absolutely prohibited until the girl has graduated from or ceased attending high school—I say this: the natural sebum or skin oil is the ideal cosmetic in every sense of the word, so take care of it while you may—after all it is what makes the young skin lovely and the older women envious.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

If you rent a summer cottage, your relatives and friends hardly expect you to share it with them. But if you own a cottage, your relatives and friends take a very dim view of you if you do not portion off the summer into one week and two week stands for all of them, nicely spaced across the season, and in decent consideration of when they get their holidays.

The consequence of this tradition of summer cottage owning is that a great many housewives work a good deal harder during the summer than they do at home in the city. Whatever entertaining they do in the city is so spaced across the weeks of the city year as not to be a burden. But summer cottage entertaining often works out at six to eight weeks of it solid. For with very rare exceptions, the relatives and friends who come to a summer cottage for a week or two regard themselves as guests. They bring a double-size box of chocolates, a ham, a basket of peaches or sundry other time-honored contributions to the gaiety of summer. They make their beds, tidy their rooms, and invariably insist, in those delectable moments when full of a good summer cottage meal, they move out to the verandah, that they will dry the dishes. But drying the dishes is not washing the dishes, nor is it getting up early to sweep the verandah, tidy the cottage, rid up the kitchen of last night's bedtime snacks, plan breakfast, plan lunch, plan supper. Nor is it getting in the wood and pumping the water; nor sorting the laundry nor checking the cupboards and ice box for supplies. It is not ordering supplies from town and bearing the responsibility of keeping an open house open.

The building industry tell me that there has been a marked decline in private summer cottages that is exactly commensurate with the increase in tourist camps, hotels and resorts. The number of women who are prepared to spend their summer working harder than they do in autumn, winter and spring had probably declined sharply in recent years. In another ten or twenty years, we will likely all want to be guests.

Weddings

FORESTELL—JORDAN

St. Charles Borromeo Church, Read, was the scene of a pretty double ring wedding ceremony, when Mary Irene Jordan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Jordan, became the bride of John William Forestell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Forestell, Marysville. Rev. J. W. Callahan, uncle of the bridegroom, officiated, and celebrated the Nuptial Mass. The Rev. I. F. Donoghue and Rev. T. E. Briceland were present in the sanctuary.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was assisted by her sister, Miss Teresa Jordan, who acted as bridesmaid.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, James Forestell. Clair Jordan, brother of the bride, and Edward Forestell, brother of the bridegroom, were ushers.

Mrs. Frank O'Connell was organist, and Miss Mary MacDonald, of Kingston, soloist, for the occasion.

A wedding breakfast was served at the Quinte Hotel, Belleville, followed by a reception at the bride's home, where guests were received by Mrs. Jordan, assisted by Mrs. Forestell.

After a wedding trip to the Muskoka Lakes, the bride and groom will reside in Sarnia.

COLLINS—SHORTTS

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized in Bridge Street United Church on Saturday, July 19, at 1:30 p.m., when the Rev. Duncan McTavish, pastor of the church, united in marriage Norma Elva Shortts, of Arden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shortts, of Arden, to John Maxwell Collins, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Collins.

The bride was attractively attired in a white gown fashioned in ballerina-length with white accessories, and wore a corsage of red roses.

She was attended by Mrs. Ernest Tuck, of Belleville, who wore a ballerina-length gown of blue with white accessories and corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Ernest Tuck, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom.

Following the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother, wearing a gown of navy blue, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore pale blue crepe, the young couple left for Niagara Falls, the bride wearing a grey suit with white accessories and corsage of red roses. Mr. and Mrs. Collins are residing in Belleville.

FRENCH—WHITE

Before a background of summer flowers and ferns a lovely wedding was solemnized in Bridge Street United Church, on Saturday, July 5, at 3:00 p.m., when Marilyn Pearl Lorraine White, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Esmond D. White, of Belleville, became the bride of Buddy Barton French, of Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman French. The Rev. R. A. Rowley, officiated.

Mrs. W. Steinburg, sister of the bridegroom, provided the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was charming in a bridal gown of white embossed organza fashioned with fitted bodice having a V-shaped neckline, and long sleeves ending in lily-points over the wrists. The full overskirt which parted at the centre front fell away at the sides ending in a cathedral train. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was caught to a coronet encrusted with seed pearls, and she carried a shower bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Barbara Ridley, of Belleville, was matron of honor; Miss Marjorie White, of Sarnia, Ont., and Miss Rose Hampson, of Montreal, cousin of the bride, were bridesmaids. All wore similar gowns in shades of pastel blue, pink and green, respectively, with matching floral headdresses and carried nosegays of summer flowers.

Mr. Bruce Ferguson, of Consecon, attended the bridegroom and the ushers were, Mr. Ron White, of Belleville, brother of the bride, and Mr. Jack Morland, of Consecon.

At the reception, which was held at Club Cedars, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a mauve crepe gown with natural color accessories, and corsage of yellow roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in black and white taffeta, with white accessories and corsage of red roses.

For travelling to Lake Placid, Ausable Chasm, and Montreal, the bride chose a navy blue suit with pink accessories and corsage of pink roses. Mr. and Mrs. French will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Montreal, Sarnia, Buffalo and Trenton.

LOGAN—TANDY

The wedding took place at the Sacred Heart rectory, Marmora, on Saturday morning of Elsie Tandy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Tandy, of Marmora, and Michael Logan, son of Mrs. George Logan, of Marmora, and the late Mr. Logan. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. A. O'Neill.

The bride wore a street-length dress of light blue nylon with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Miss Ella Tandy was her sister's bridesmaid, wearing a street-length dress of mauve nylon, white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

The best man was Arthur Logan, brother of the groom.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Redmond Logan.

Mr. and Mrs. Logan left on a trip to Prescott and points in the United States.

They will reside in Marmora.

Pawn in Loveless Marriage To English Duke Tells Of Events Leading to Match

NEW YORK (AP)—Consuelo Vanderbilt Balsan, pawn of a loveless 1890 marriage of United States wealth to a British title, says she was ordered to have a child to prevent Winston Churchill from becoming the 10th Duke of Marlborough.

In her memoirs, appearing in the current issue of the Ladies' Home Journal, Mrs. Balsan recalls her first meeting with the dowager Duchess of Marlborough, grandmother of the duke she had recently married.

"Your first duty is to have a child and it must be a son," the old duchess told the 18-year-old U.S. duchess, "because it would be intolerable to have that little upstart Winston become duke."

(After the 1945 general elections, Churchill was offered the Order of the Garter which he turned down because; he said, he wished to remain a commoner,)

In Line For Title

Churchill was a cousin of the ninth Duke of Marlborough and at that time next in line for the title. Mrs. Balsan divorced Marlborough in 1920 and later married Jacques Balsan, a Frenchman.

One of her two sons by Marlborough became the 10th Duke of Marlborough on his father's death.

In a previously-published instalment of her memoirs, Mrs. Balsan told how her socially-ambitious mother, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, opened negotiations leading to the alliance—when Consuelo was 16.

The following year the impoverished Duke was introduced to her in England and later was invited to visit the Vanderbilts in Neeport. Meanwhile the young heiress had fallen in love with a young American.

Her determination to marry the man she loved led eventually to a scene during which her mother said "she would not hesitate to shoot a man who she considered would ruin my life."

The girl capitulated after a family friend informed her the scene had resulted in Mrs. Vanderbilt's having a heart attack.

Marlborough, she relates, brought an English lawyer with him to negotiate a marriage settlement with the Vanderbilts. She does not reveal the amount of the final settlement, but subsequent legal proceedings involving the Vanderbilt estate indicated the dowry she took to the Duke amounted to $2,500,000.

Percy Moore acted as chairman, and welcomed the members and visitors. Prizes were given as follows: for the oldest member present, Mr. Darwin Moore, of Havelock; to the youngest, present Barbara Ann Moore, of Frankford; to the one coming the farthest, Mrs. Carl Christensen, Capreol; to the latest bride, Mrs. Terry Moore, of Frankford.

Officers Elected

New officers— president, S. Moore, of Wallbridge; 1st vice, Goldie Fitzgibbons, of Trenton: directors, Percy Moore, Anson Moore and Herb. Moore; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. R. Grant, of Belleville.

THREE CASES POLIO

MONTREAL CP—Three cases of polio, two from suburban Verdun and one from Kingston, Ont., were admitted to hospital here yesterday. Three cases have been reported in Montreal itself to date this year.

Rollins Families Hold Reunion Picnic

The annual picnic of the Rollins' families was held at Crystal Beach, Madoc, on Wednesday, with over 100 signing the register. After all had enjoyed a banquet dinner the gathering was called to order by the president, Mr. John Thompson, of Queensboro, who spoke words of welcome to all.

During the business period, it was moved by Hark Rollins and seconded by Roy Rollins, that the standing date for this all important gathering, be the 4th Wednesday in July in the coming years, subject to place selected, and the majority vote from this large gathering favored Tweed Memorial Park, as their favorite place for the 1953 picnic.

This was followed by the treasurer's report, (Mrs. Will French) who reported after all bills were paid a good balance in the treasury. Mr. Thompson then asked Mrs. S. B. Rollins, Tweed, Mrs. Jim Lucas, Peterborough; Mr. Harper Rollins, Stirling; Mr. Clarke Rollins, Coe Hill; Mr. Orville Rollins and Mr. Bob Rollins, Plainfield; Mr. John Weese, Shannonville, and Mr. J. R. Emmerson, Melrose, to address the gathering.

All expressed how happy they were to be present and each stressed the importance of such gatherings—it strengthens the bonds of relationship, friendship and love, in this wide family circle.

Mrs. W. J. Tufts assisted by Mrs. Percy Rollins, conducted a short but impressive memorial service for the four loved ones, who in the last year had passed on—Mrs. Charles Rollins, Mrs. Gussie Robinson, Mr. Will Cole, and Mr. Matthew Emmerson—after which Mrs. Carrie Gregg, of Kingston, sang "It's No Secret What God Can Do", and Mr. Albert McMillian led the gathering in a memorial hymn.

Mr. Thompson assisted by Mrs. Jessie French, then presented Mrs. S. B. Rollins, Tweed; Mr. Albert McMillian, Crookston; Mr. and Mrs. John Rollins, Plainfield; and Mr. and Mrs. Hark Rollins, Cooper, with gifts, also Miss Pat Howard from North Bay and little Bruce Wilson, who was the youngest on the grounds.

Program

The program of sports supervised by Don Reynolds and Carl Rollins was as follows—girls, 3 years and under, Doreen Hubble and Brenda Gregg; boys, 3 years and under, Alfred Gregg ;boys, 4 to 6 years, Dennis Wilson, Brian Wilson; girls, 4 to 6 years, Kathy Hubble, Marybeth Follwell, Gail Gregg; girls, 7 to 9 years, Myrna Dickens; girls, 10 to 12 years, Marie Hollinger, Joyce Hollinger; boys, 10 to 12 years, Ronnie Wilson, Allyn Rollins; boys, 11 to 12 years, Glenn Rollins, Robert Rollins; young women's race, Miss Patricia Howard; young men's race, Mr. Don Reynolds; shoe kicking, Mrs. Carrie Gregg; throw the rolling pin, Mrs. Carrie Gregg; peanut race, Mrs. May Hollinger, Mr. Roy Rollins.

The younger folks went to the ball field to enjoy the ball game, and the older folks spent a social time visiting, while many enjoyed a swim in Lake Moira.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

en servicemen marry in too great haste

lthough everyone naturally great sympathy for young le who feel they can't wait il the boy gets out of service be married, one must, at the me time, remember that there two different kinds of such rriages, one perfectly accept- le, and the other quite unwise. There is the type in which a y and a girl have known each er a long time, are engaged d have been making definite ans to marry. In such a case, marriage date is simply put ead, in anticipation of the boy's minent departure. The other nd of serviceman's marriage is at of young people who make a ty decision that they are in e, often having seen each er no more than a few times, d impulsively marry without lly knowing any of the im- tant things about each other. n marriages of the latter type. is hardly surprising that so ny of them break up, either be- the husband gets out of serv- r shortly afterward.

nd so I would advise the girl o writes me the following let- r not to be in too much of a rry to take on the man who nts to brush off his first wife, r one cannot help wondering if ung people who were rash ough to marry too quickly once, ght not do it again. Some, of urse, may have gained suffic- nt maturity from their unfor- nate experience to recognize e value of caution and judg- nt. But there are others whose notional coming-of-age has not t taken place, and so they are danger of jumping out of one ckless marriage into another.

Here is the letter to which I fer:

"I recently met a young man ho is not long out of service. ter seeing each other several ne we suddenly realized that ere in love. He then told me he was married, and at first felt guilty, because I thought if continued to see this man I ould be breaking up his mar- age.

rried In Haste

"He quickly told me, however, at he had married his wife as was about to go into service, d that he had been away from r for two years since then. He ld me that as soon as he had t home he knew he was not in ve with her and never could ; that he had tried to make a of it until he met me and then knew I was the girl he really nted and it was useless to go with his marriage. He has told wife about me, and because is a really fine girl, she ught the whole thing over hon- ly and has consented to give divorce. This is all well ood for my friend and I, but ould like to know if you think are being selfish, and whether not it would be the right ing for us to give each other and let his first marriage and."

It is heartening to find a ung woman like the writer of is letter who has the integrity consider her situation from the andpoint of the man's wife as ell as for her own. And I think is not only right but very wise her own account, that she does , for it may be that the young an in question is one of those entioned above who has not atured enough to be wholly out danger of making a second mis- ke.

If this husband has given his rst ill-advised marriage an hon- t and sincere try, and if his wife as certain as he does that cannot work things out suc- ully between them, then per- ps it is fair enough that the arriage should be dissolved. Of urse I have no way of knowing w much real effort they have ready made to adjust themselv- . Perhaps they have not yet giv- themselves time enough to nd out whether or not their arriage could be salvaged and ade happy. For no marriage, en though it starts under the st of circumstances, ever gets on a firm basis until a man and a woman have been together long enough to know each other thoroughly and to adjust to each other's personality, temperament and habits. This is something that cannot be done in a few weeks or even months, so I think it important that this fundamental truth should receive due consideration before these two break up.

Hence, it seems to me there are two things for the girl of the letter to do. One is to be as sure as possible that this man has given his earlier marriage a fair trial, and the other is to allow sufficient time to elapse to find out just how dependable is his feeling toward her. Having mistaken his feelings once, he may be fooling himself about their stability again.

"Your daughter would be better off dead"

This was the verdict for little Karen Killilea, afflicted from birth with dread cerebral palsy. They said that she'd never walk —that permanent helplessness was her almost certain doom. Here is the inspiring story of the unflagging courage of Karen's parents to fight appalling odds in the slim hope that therapy might win. Read She Lived a Miracle in the August issue of the Ladies' Home Journal. It's an unforgettable success story on cerebral palsy!

Food for Thought

Special-Purpose Menu

By Mary Moore

The cooks' little helper has an idea that everybody is going to call her blessed for. How does a meal with one hot special—Spanish Omelette—appeal to you? Bolster this with a beautiful salad full of little surprises; win your loved ones to you with a deep fresh apple pie and tangy cheese for dessert.

Want to work along with me on this? So far it is cool in my kitchen today.

EMEM'S SPANISH OMELETTE

To serve four people use 6 eggs. Separate whites and yolks and beat whites until stiff but not dry. Now without washing the beater transfer it to the bowl of yolks and beat them until they are double in bulk and lemon-colored. To the yolks add 3-4 teaspoon salt, shake of pepper and 1-2 cup milk. Heat a large frying or omelette pan with 1 tablespoon butter in it. Have sides and bottom of pan well-buttered and quite hot. Cut and fold the whites into the yolk mixture. Pour into hot pan, then reduce heat. Cook slowly until omelette is set. Then place in moderate oven to dry off top.

SPANISH SAUCE

One cup sliced onions, 4 tablespoons salad or olive oil, 1 bay leaf, 2 1-2 cups tomatoes, fresh or canned, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 chopped green pepper, if desired 1 cup mushrooms, dash of pepper, 2 whole cloves, 1 teaspoon sugar, 4 tablespoons flour, 6 tablespoons water. Saute the onions, peppers and mushrooms if used, in the salad oil until tender and transparent but not brown. Add all remaining ingredients except flour and water and cover and simmer about 30 minutes. Mix the flour and water to a smooth paste and stir into sauce until thick. Remove the bay leaf and cloves.

The sauce goes between the fold of the omelette. Three hands would be better to manage this, but since most of us have only two you have to perform sleight of hand. Serve very hot on hot platter garnished with sliced tomatoes and cress.

SURPRISE GREEN SALAD

Rub wooden salad bowl with cut clove of garlic; break apart crisp dry lettuce and place in bowl—about 3-4 of a medium head. Add bite-sized pieces of tomato wedges, wafer thin slices of cucumber, sliced radishes and celery, about 1-2 cup of strips of anchovy or imported sardines, 1-4 cup crumbled Roquefort or Dutch blue cheese, and 1 sliced hard-cooked egg. Dress with sparing amount of

PIQUANT FRENCH DRESSING

Two tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon each dry mustard, paprika and salt, 1-2 teaspoon each celery seeds and grated onion, 1-3 teaspoon pepper, 1-4 cup lemon juice, 3-4 cup salad or olive oil, one very thin slice garlic. Shake all well in covered bottle. You will have some left over for your next salad. Leave the garlic in and keep covered in refrigerator.

DEEP FRESH APPLE PIE

I have Duchess apples in mind for this. You need about 10 cups of them when pared and cut in wedge-shaped slices. Mix with them 1 1-4 to 1 1-2 cups sugar and 1 teaspoon nutmeg. You may want to add 2 tablespoons flour if apples are extra juicy. Arrange these in a 9-inch 2-inch deep baking dish, sides of which are lined with pastry. Sprinkle with 1 or 2 tablespoons water. Cover with top crust rolled a little thicker than for a two-crust pie. If you like you can dot the apples with 1 or 2 tablespoons butter before putting on top. Brush crust with mixture of 1 tablespoon each sugar and milk to glaze it. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for about 45 minutes. Serve warm with old cheddar cheese. In Missouri and plenty of other places they omit the cheese and pour thick cream over. If I had some Devonshire cream I'd use that.

BEAUTY

Girls who wear glasses Qualifying for good-looks laurels

Let Plain Jane realize that absolute perfection in appearance isn't to be found, even in these days of lovely women. It is doubtful if there ever lived a woman who possessed every quality of beauty. Beauty, in its widest sense, is not just physical charm, but includes grace, intelligence, and a pleasing disposition. Human nature being what it is makes perfection a pretty big order.

Counting the physical attributes, one of the most important is a beautiful complexion. A flawless skin of fine texture and delicate coloring is a grand asset. It requires no attention other than regard for the laws of health, scrupulous cleanliness, daily lubrication and a calm spirit. The calm spirit is necessary to keep wrinkles from forming.

Hair should be shining, should be renovated once a week or so, should be arranged becomingly and in a modish manner. Scrambled locks may be overlooked in youth, but, during the adult years, it suggests lack of fastidiousness.

Eyes are the most interesting feature. The girl who has warm, pretty ones that sparkle with animation, has an endearing quality of loveliness and is bound to be admired. She shouldn't worry if the shape of her nose doesn't please her. Nobody will notice it. The allure of beautiful eyes casts a shadow over minor good-looks liabilities. To make the optic picture perfect, she should see that here eyebrows are becomingly contoured, not teased and tweezed into unnatural lines. Long, dark lashes form intriging valances on the eyelids.

Pretty hands that move gracefully! There you have something that you don't always appreciate. Hands of white, velvety smoothness have a strong appeal. Any woman can have them, though she tramp the domestic treadmill day after day. Just a matter of protection, lotioning, creaming.

To make the grade, a gril should walk with pride, carry herself with splendor—chest high, hips tucked in, tummy flat, head balanced. That gives one style. It makes the bargain frock look like a precious number straight from Paris.

Teeth should be flawless. The woman who saves for a mink coat and defers the semi-yearly visit to the dentist is penny-wise and pound-foolish.

Make a self-analysis my friend. Consider your qualities. Highlight the good ones; improve those that are not so good.

Surveys Show Provincial Governments Would Oppose National Health Insurance

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Most provinces would oppose inauguration of a national health insurance program at this time. That is made clear in surveys made to assess the medical, hospital and health needs of the people in all the provinces.

The surveys, launched two years ago, were financed by the Federal government.

Each province established a special commission to conduct the surveys and to make recommendations. Seven provinces have made public the recommendations of their commissions—British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Ontario, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Still pending are reports from Quebec, Manitoba and Newfoundland.

More Doctors, Nurses

Only two provinces—Alberta and Saskatchewan—recommended immediate adoption of a national health insurance program. Both now have provincial health insurance plans in operation. British Columbia, also, with a hospital insurance plan of its own, recommended consideration be given to a comprehensive plan to cover children in all parts of Canada.

Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island said more doctors, hospitals, nurses and trained staffs are needed before an over-all insurance program can be put into effect.

Ontario's report made no reference to national health insurance, but it stressed the need for additional facilities and health personnel.

Since health matters are primarily within the jurisdiction of the provinces, the Federal government could not inaugurate a national health insurance program without the consent of the provinces.

At a federal-provincial conference in 1945, the Federal government offered to finance out of taxation the major cost of a health insurance program. The conference, called primarily to arrange for new taxation agreements with the provinces, ended in disagreement.

Early Action

The Saskatchewan report recommended the Federal proposals of 1945 be implemented at the "earliest possible date." It added:

"The Federal government should establish basic standard to be met by the provinces as conditions for receiving the grants in order to provide at least minimum uniform benefits throughout all Canada, with reciprocity benefits for insured persons moving from one province to another. . .

"This health insurance program should be integrated with and built upon existing health programs which should be extended, modified, and co-ordinated as required, to the end that adequate health care of high quality shall be available to all resident of the province on the basis of need and without regard to individual ability to pay."

Shared Cost

The Alberta report recommended that a "complete program of health insurance be adopted" in the province, financed by contributions by/or on behalf of each individual and by grants from the municipal, provincial and federal governments.

The report proposed that a charge be made against a person for the first services received "to reduce possible abuse of the scheme."

British Columbia recommended "comprehensive health insurance be not introduced at present, but receive further study."

The report also recommended consideration be given to plans covering some medical services and certain groups of the population; that in any proposed plan of health insurance, federal assistance be available through a definite financial formula; and that consideration be given to the introduction of a comprehensive health insurance plan to cover children.

Cost of the program would be split among parents and governments.

Straight Talks

The bluntest recommendation against health insurance now was contained in the Nova Scotia report.

"The conclusion is that the requirements for group health services and facilities have not been nearly met in this province, nor indeed in any Canadian province.

"The first duty of all governments, Federal, provincial and municipal, is to build up these services and not embark in wider responsibilities for the care of individuals until they fulfill more effectively the duties they have already accepted.

"Federal grants far in excess of the present $30,000,000, a provincial health department budget far above the present level, and greater expenditures by municipal governments and local, provincial and national voluntary agencies would all be required for at least 10 years before the community health services would be remotely close to a desirable level or to the minimum required for the introduction of a national health insurance plan.

"Neither the federal nor provincial goverments need look for new worlds to conquer. Each still has a great deal to accomplish on the present public health front."

Senior Deficiencies

The New Brunswick report said it recognized "deficiencies in medical, nursing and allied personnel, laboratory facilities and hospital beds must be dealt with before any attempt the establish an equitable, province-wide and tax-supported plan can be made."

The report added:

"Until such deficiencies can be corrected, the voluntary health insurance plans should be encouraged for that part of the population that can afford them, and the government introduce a medical care plan for the welfare group which, under any scheme, must be paid for by some governmental authority."

Prince Edward Island also recommended continuation of voluntary plans providing for prepaid hospital care. The island's report suggested the provincial government pay the premiums in the voluntary plans for needy per- -'suos

Natural Gas Being Wasted as Fuel Valuable Ingredient of Fertilizer

By BASIL C. RAFFETY

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Although it may surprise you, the natural gas that heats your home is actually worth more to you as food.

That doesn't mean you can eat it but when the magic wand of chemistry is waved, natural gas becomes a nitrogen fertilizer—which is easily translated into increased food production.

For instance, it takes about 300,000 cubic feet of natural gas to heat one installation for a year at a cost of some $200. But turn that amount of gas into fertilizer, say chemical experts, and it will produce food valued at $13,200.

This might be a key to "vertical" expansion of food production—which the United States department of agricultural says must equal the output of 100,000,000 more acres of crop land if the population anticipated by 1957 is to be adequately fed.

The job must be done by increased production from present crop lands because good crop lands aren't available any more.

What's happening in Nebraska right now is an example of what may be the pattern for the future.

Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation is planning to erect a $25,000,000 plant at the juncture of the Platte and Missouri Rivers south of Omaha to begin the first commercial production of urea—a nitrogen fertilizer.

This plant will use about 12,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day—enough to heat 14,600 homes—to make about 61.700 net tons of nitrogen or 110,000 tons of urea annually.

This much nitrogen would be equivalent say the experts, to 44 million bushels of corn in increased production.

Translated into meat production, that would make about 246,800 tons of meat or enough to provide 150 pounds of meat to 3,290,000 persons.

It would be equivalent to cultivating 1,542,000 acres of land.

In fact, Allied spokesman say that the production of this plant if translated into increased yields of farm lands will have the effect of putting almost 4,000,000 acres of farm land into production.

The new plant would produce primarily pelleted or crystal urea, because of its versatility. It can be spread effectively by airplane; it can be dissolved in water and applied as a foliage spray or put into irrigation water

In slightly different form urea can be used as protein supplement feed for livestock.

Allied is locating the plant in the midwest because of its proximity to market. It's cheaper, Allied says, to bring the gas to Nebraska and make the fertilizer here, than to make the fertilizer at the source of the gas and ship the finished product to the midwest.

THE Ranger PROTECTS THE FORESTS FOR THE BENEFIT OF EVERYONE

Holiday week-ends mean
Danger for the Fire Ranger

The danger of forest fires is multiplied by thousands as people head for cottages and camps on holiday week-ends. It's a danger period, and it's no holiday for the Fire Rangers who must be at full strength with all look-outs manned, patrols covered, equipment and transportation ready for emergencies. You can help by preventing forest fires. See that camp fires are properly built and thoroughly doused before you leave. When motoring never throw cigarette butts or matches from the car . . . and be equally careful when walking or working in the woods. Forest fires are expensive and dangerous. Keep it in mind—keep fire out of our forests.

Canada Plans to Use Part Of Five Billion Dollar Defence Program to Help U.K.

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada plans to use part of her $5,000,000,000 defence program to help the United Kingdom overcome an economic crisis threatening the sterling area.

Informants said today that wherever possible Canada is directing arms orders to U.K. factories with two objectives in mind: To bolster Canada's defences and to provide Britain with more dollars to pay for imports essential for U.K. defence and economic stability.

In this way, some $75,000,000 already has been allocated to pay for a light aircraft carrier, a big batch of Centurion tanks and for electronics equipment.

More Arms Ordered

Secret negotiations are currently going on, they added, for more arms orders from the U.K. If these are successful, more Canadian dollars will find their way into the British treasury.

This was disclosed as Prime Minister Churchill announced that a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference will be held in London during the last week of next November "to review together the pressing issues of financial, commercial and economic policy with which our several governments are faced."

Officials in Ottawa said that Prime Minister St. Laurent will attend "all or part" of the sessions which will open about the time the next session of the Canadian Parliament begins. Parliament is scheduled to start Nov. 20.

Little Reaction

There was little reaction among trade officials at the announcement by Richard Butler, chancellor of the U.K. exchequer, that Britain will make further cuts in 1952 buying program in an effort to bring her trade into balance.

They said that Britain already has pared buying in Canada to the essentials and outside of a sharp cut in tobacco purchases—which already has been made known—there seemed to be little extra trimming Britain could do without harming her export drive and rearmament effort.

TORONTO (CP)—Fire Marshal Scott reported yesterday that 24 deaths and 70 injuries were caused by fire in Ontario during the second quarter of the year. During the three months a total of 4,162 fires caused more than $7,500,000 insurance loss.

The Royal Muskoka and the Lasalle hotels in Ottawa alone took losses of $515,000. Town halls at Calvert and Blind River and collegiates at Owen Sound and Picton were burned totalling more than $1,000,000 in losses.

Nine convictions of arson and other fire crimes were obtained while 13 persons were acquitted and trials of another seven are still pending.

Unidentified Objects Picked Up by Radar Screens Appear To be Mere Layers of Cold Air

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radar screens showed flying unidentified objects over Washington for five hours early today, but air force experts said they appeared to be mere layers of cold air.

Maj.-Gen. John A. Samford, director of air force intelligence, discounted any theory that the Washington area is being menaced by unknown aerial vehicles from abroad or from other worlds.

Experienced radar operators at the Civil Aeronautics Administration traffic control centre repoted scores of unidentified objects flitted about the capital sky fom 2:30 to 6 a.m.

3rd Radar Report

It was the third time in 10 days that radar—an electronic device which tracks only physical objects, not imagination—picked up signs of something unknown moving through pre-dawn black skies.

On the two earlier occasions, sightings were confirmed by more than one radar set, and veteran pilots, asked to investigate, said they saw mysterious lights zooming hither and yon. All that led to one of the biggest flying saucer mysteries yet.

But today's sightings—little spots on a fluorescent radar screen—were unconfirmed by other radar sets in the area or by visual sky watchers.

And the air force threw lots of cold water on any chilling speculation about men or missiles from Mars—or enemy countries.

Claim Natural Cause

Samford and fellow air force officers told a press conference, called especially to answer questions about the recent goings-on, that they are personally satisfied there wasa natural cause.

Their explanation:

In hot, humid weather—such as Washington and other eastern areas have been having—layers of cold air are likely to get sandwiched between layers of warm air, in what is called a temperature inversion.

These layers produce strong reactions on radar screens, the officers said.

They didn't add any specific explanation of the reported moving lights, but presumably the cold air layers could reflect searchlights or other lights from the earth below.

The air force chiefs conceded that of about 2,000 reports on flying saucers, about 400 have not yet been explained satisfactorily. The air force is giving these reports an "adequate but not frantic" check, they said.

Four Protest Use of High Mass In Anglican Church

ASHBURTON, England (Reuters)—High mass being celebrated in an Anglican church today started a scuffle in which two men and two women were evicted after prayer books were thrown, chairs overturned and a clergyman's surplice torn.

The Bishop of Exeter, Dr. R.C. Mortimer, was preaching a sermon at St. Peter's Church at nearby Sheldon, when four persons stood up and protested vocally at the use of the high mass.

They refused to leave and a score of clergymen attending the service helped remove them by force.

The four were members of the Protestant Union, which objects to what it calls Roman Catholic forms of service in Protestant churches.

All Egyptians Leaving Country Must Have Pass

CAIRO (Reuters)—A black list of "friends of Farouk" forbidden to enter or leave Egypt has been circulated to all ports and airports, a government spokesman said today.

The list includes both Egyptians and foreigners. The names were not disclosed.

The move backs up general orders issued last night requiring all Egyptians wishing to leave the country to apply for special passes.

Announcement of this travel restriction was made against a background of political manoeuvering, with Wafdist party leaders believed making a frantic bid for power with the support of Gen. Mohammed Naguib's armed forces, which ousted the previous government and King Farouk last week.

Geologists Search Labrador-Ungava For More Fabulous Mineral Treasures

(Editor's note: Forbes Rhude, Canadian Press Business Editor, has just returned from a trip to the iron-ore development in Labrador-Ungava. In this story, one of a series, he writes of the exploratory work being done by geological crews in the frontier country.)

By FORBES RHUDE

Canadian Press Business Editor

If you want to get out on the frontier, perhaps you had better try to join a party of geologists.

Perhaps you had better be up at Knob Lake in central Labrador-Ungava and hear Dr. A. E. Moss, chief geologist of Iron Ore Company of Canada, exclaim: "On Monday we must have some planes!"

You look around, and there's Knob Lake itself, two miles long, a mile wide, a picturesque patch of water with a knob-like hill at one end which supplies the name.

There's even a relatively lush growth of black spruce in an adjoining valley—lush for Labrador where a tree may take 125 years to grow to six inches in diameter.

Colorful Terminus

Nearby is the airport, and Knob will be the northern terminus of the 360-mile railway which is being built to the coast, and the site for a future town.

At present, however, there's not much around Knob except the things required to get people out to the bush. Other activity is three miles away at Burnt Creek, Que.

But Knob has color, real and imaginitive. On the lake there are 30 canoes waiting to be flown out to camps—orange-colored so they can be easily spotted from the air.

In a storehouse, Dr. John Ussher, professor of Geology at Queen's University, is checking over supplies before taking a party out.

Wilderness Groceteria

The storehouse is packed with groceries—just about everything you'd find in a city super-market; but you'll search hard before you find beans, the staple of the old days in the bush.

At another dock is Dr. James Harrison, of the Geological, Geodetic and Topographical Survey of Canada, a native of Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask., who has been in for the last four summers.

His youthful party, some of them students, are putting up a tent in which they'll sleep tonight. But in a few days they'll be out in the wilderness, making examinations which may mean new mines a few years hence.

Seven-Man Squads

Dr. Moss, for his part, needs his planes because he has a lot of geological parties to send out, trying to extend the boundaries of the 400,000,000 tons of iron ore which he already knows about.

Some of the parties will be seven-man, some will have six men, four, two.

A seven-man party will consist of three canoes, a party chief, two senior assistants, three juniors and, perhaps most important, a cook.

Once on the job, they travel in at least pairs.

"It is poor policy to let one man travel alone in the bush," said Dr. Moss. Recently one of a pair stopped to tie a shoelace. When he looked up he was alone and was lost for three days.

Well Supplied

The party is in the field at 7 a.m. They take lunch and, if they are following something interesting, may be out to all hours of the long summer day. Otherwise, they return to camp as judgment dictates.

They live in tents and get provisions once a week by plane, including fresh vegetables, and meat, and mail which is very important.

"There weren't fresh vegetables and meat in the early days," mused Dr. Moss, native of Strasbourg, Sask., who has been tramping the country since 1942.

The visiting plane picks up samples, and has on board a supervising geologist, who may stop over with the party to follow up some clue.

If you don't want to see the frontier with the geologists, perhaps you may find a place on a helicopter when it goes out to pick up an injured man—see him placed in a basket stretcher and secured to a pontoon for transport out. You're not likely to find a place on that mercy trip, however, unless you are a doctor or first-aid man.

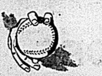
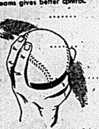
"COOL CONTROL"

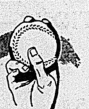
PITCHING: THE BASIC GRIP



1 Ball should be gripped along or across the seams. A short-fingered hand should grip ball across the seams at the narrowest point; long-fingered hand holds ball across seams at widest point. Grip across the seams gives better control.



2 Grip always should be firm, but never tight. Tips of index and second finger and joint of thumb should be your pressure points. Wrist action and way of releasing ball on pitch will give control to standard throws.



3 Gripping ball along the seams usually makes it harder to control. The raised stitches, when held across, help give 'spin' to the ball as the seams rotate towards the batter for more air resistance and rise. Sidearm and underarm pitchers use grip along the seam for fast 'sinkers.'

Yes, it's control that counts, in baseball as in every sport — control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

Redmen Drop 10-4 Decision To Hot Kingston Monarchs; Lead Narrowed to Half-Game

Kingston, Ont., July 30—Edwards Monarchs edged to within one-half game of the league leading Belleville Redmen in the COBL at Megaffin Memorial Stadium last night when they handed the Redmen a 10-4 trouncing before a fair-sized crowd.

Bill Richards went the route for the Levandoski men and although he was nicked for ten hits he was able to keep them well scattered while a pair of twin killings were major factors in his winning cause.

Johnny Mowat started for the visitors and was charged with the defeat although he wasn't around at the finish being forced to give way to Al Kelleher in the third after he was felled by a scorching line drive off the bat of Joe Levandoski.

It was the second time he had been struck by a line drive and after making a very game effort to continue he was forced to ask to be taken out.

Kelleher who relieved him gave up but three hits over the remainder of the game and wildness on his own part plus poor ball handling by his mates were his undoing.

The game was crammed with just about everything a fan could ask for with good and bad baserunning, a homerun by Clark Carnegie and three double plays, two by the Monarchs. After completing the second two-ply execution shortstop Lorne Ferguson was taken to the hospital with a badly gashed hand his valuable services will be lost to the locals for considerable time.

The visitors started off auspiciously with a run in the first frame when Sam Mulholland got the first of his four hits. He pilfered second and romped home on Dick Fitzpatrick's base knock.

Monarchs Score Four

But the Monarchs went to work early on Johnny Mowat and garnered four runs in their half of the opening stanza. Eric Rank led off with a walk and he scored on Don Gilmour's double to left-centre. Jack White "fanned" and Lorne Ferguson singled. Stan Scrutton grounded out pitcher to first but Levandoski singled and Al Lenard walked to fill the bases. Gilmour then scored on an error to short on a throw and Clark Carnegie singled Ferguson home. Levandoski followed him when Pat Gilmour fumbled the ball momentarily. Billy Richards ended the uprising forcing Carnegie at second.

They added another pair in the third when Scrutton singled and Joe Levandoski slashed one at Mowat forcing him out of the game and Al Kelleher was hurried into the fray.

Lenard whiffed and Carnegie grounded out only to have Bill Richard single through the box to score Scrutton and Levandoski.

The locals added another in the fourth on a walk, a sacrifice and three miscues and they took an 8-1 lead in the fifth on Clark Carnegie's mammoth home run over the left field wall.

Belleville got one in the seventh when Huck Reeves walked went to 2nd on Kelleher's hit, advanced to third on Mulholland's base hit and scored when Rank juggled the ball.

The visitors completed their scoring in the eighth with a pair of tallies. Fitzpatrick singled, Red Carson walked, Bush and Semark went out in order with Fitzpatrick taking third on Semark's long fly. Richard's then balked sending Fitzpatrick to the payoff station and advancing Carson to second from where he scored on Reeves single.

The final tally was scored by the Monarchs in the eighth when Joe Levandoski walked, stole second, was wild pitched to third and scored on Al Lenard's long fly to right.

Sam Mulholland paced the hitters with a four-for-five record while Dick Fitzpatrick had a pair of hits. Joe Levandoski and Clark Carnegie had two

Crawfords Metals Even Series Beat Motors 11-10

By JACK BRETT

Crawford Metals nosed their way through to a 11-10 victory over the Belleville Motor Car last night at the Alemite field as they tied up their best-of-three series one game each. The next game will decide the team to meet Northern Electric in the O. A. S. A. playdowns.

In the last half of the ninth with the score standing at 11-9, Belleville Motor Car threatened to tie it up as Callaghan's double was good on Semark's triple. With two out and the tying run on third Walsh was caught at first.

It was a fairly even game all the way through. Crawfords were blanked in the first frame. The Motormen went into an early two-run lead as a walk and a fielder's choice were good as the third baseman erred.

Crawfords tied it in the second as Donovan went to second on an error. The next two batters walked forcing Donovan to third. Lewis doubled to score two runs but the third runner was tagged at the plate. In the third, three runs were scored as two batsmen got singles and walked their way around the bases. Donovan, aboard on a walk scored on a passed ball to make it 5-2.

The Motormen evened it up in their half of the third with two walks and a single counting on passed balls.

In the fourth, Crawford's went ahead again as Watson was at first on an error and went to second on a passed ball to be driven in by Galbraith's double. Galbraith gained third on an error and came home on a fielder's choice for a 7-5 score.

In the fourth James' walk was good as he went to second on a hit and to third on another hit by Garvin. Both men scored on Tapp's double to tie it up again.

Walsh singled in the fifth, advanced to second as James walked and both men scored on a fielder's error which placed the runner on third.

With the Motors in the load 9-7, Crawford's tied it up in the sixth. Galbraith came all the way around on the fielder's error which scored Dowsett, aboard on a triple. In the seventh Donovan tripled and scored on Lewis' single to put Crawford's in the lead 10-9.

Dowsett hurled for Crawford's, striking out three, walking nine and giving 12 hits for ten runs. For the losers, Reid struck out six, walked seven and gave nine hits for 11 runs.

Sport in Brief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jim Norris, International Boxing Club president, yesterday opened negotiations with the managers of heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott and Rocky Marciano for a Sept. 16 or Sept. 23 million-dollar title bout.

"This bout will draw all you can put in the park," said Norris at a conference in New York with Felix Bocchicchio, Walcott's manager, and Marty Weill, manager of unbeaten Marciano.

"It will do a million dollars at the gate," said Norris, "not counting home television or theatre television, whatever we decided to do. It's the biggest match the I.B.C. ever had."

Norris' preference is for Sept. 23, a Tuesday, at Yankee Stadium. That also meets with Marciano's approval. Bocchicchio would like an earlier date and is not sold on the site.

"I can't manage my fighter in the state of New York," said Felix. "And I can't have him fight when I can't manage him."

He was referring to the fact that he has no manager's licence in New York. His application in 1949 for a manager's licence was refused.

The 1952 inter-provincial cricket meet will open at Ottawa Saturday with Ontario playing British Columbia. On Sunday Ontario will meet Alberta at Ottawa while Quebec and British Columbia play at Toronto.

Ontario and Quebec meet at Toronto Monday, followed by Ontario and Manitoba at St. Catharines Tuesday.

Succeeding games will depend on first round results.

Canada will meet the United States at Toronto Aug. 10. Toronto Cricket Club will play the United States team at Toronto Aug. 11.

The "Powder-Puff Derby" first race of the season to be staged exclusively for lady-drivers, will be contested at Thorncliffe Raceway Thursday.

Seven lady-drivers, five from Ontario, have signified their intention of racing. The list is headed by Mary Lou O'Connor of Warwick Downs, R.I., who, because she has been driving in open competition against the men, probably will be favored to win with Volo Harvester.

Other drivers are: Miss Jacqueline Sharpe, Beechy, Sas.; Mrs. M. Dell, Niagara Falls.; Mrs. Victor Lutman, Toronto; Mrs. Mabel Holden, Wallacetown; Mrs. Ann Pickel, Thorndale; and Mrs. Wilbur Apthorpe, of Chatham.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four football league, yesterday announced the signing of Don Durno and Vince Colliza to 1952 contracts. Durno was traded to Hamilton by Toronto Argonauts along with Buckets Hirsch a few weeks ago while Colliza was here briefly last year from McGill before going to the University of Toronto.

Calgary publisher Max Bell's Royal Serenade won the King George Stakes at Goodwood Park, Sussex, England, yesterday in a photo finish that involved four of the six entries.

Britain's champion jockey, Gordon Richards, rode the Canadian entry at 137 pounds, winning by a neck from King Charles who finished slightly ahead of third-place Set Fair in the five-furlong race.

Charlie Slaughter, 126, Westfield, N.J., outpointed Leo LeBrun, 124, Montreal, in an eight-round bout here at Newark, N.S., last night.

Slaughter used a combination of left jabs and right crosses to earn an easy victory.

Sid Abel, 12-season star for Detroit Red Wings, yesterday was named playing coach of Chicago Black Hawks, who have finished last in five of their last six National Hockey League seasons.

Abel replaces Ebbie Goodfellow, who resigned several weeks ago with another season still remaining in his three-year contract.

Abel received a two-year contract to direct the hapless Hawks for whom he will as he sees fit. Hawks President Bill Tobin said Abel was sought as a bench coach but suggested he could help the club by playing.

Stanky Quiet But Figures His Cardinals Can Repeat Giants' Miracle

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

STOP DREAMING!

The Redmen are slipping. They lost a 10-4 decision to the surging Kingston Monarchs in Roddenville last night that brought the Scrutton crew to within a half-game of the red-shirted leaders. According to our private eye, down Kingston way, our side was as sloppy as a Commy stew afield committing no less than eight errors. Johnny Mowat stopped two line drives with his shins and was forced to retire then. "First Ball" Al. Kelleher went in and believe it or not, the rangy southpaw flung three-hit ball for a period of seven innings.

Lorne Ferguson was seriously injured and hospitalized when he stopped a screaming line drive that split his hand. The game guy he is, Ferguson completed a double play before bowing to the pain. Clark Cargle cleared the left field fence with a home run.

The loop is tightening. We believe the Redmen club is the best in the loop but from here in they have got to play baseball. It's time they sent a full representation to out-of-town games, if they want to get in on the playoff shekels. Somebody had better wake up.

Boyd Upper uses the column today to reply to a complaint from a member club of the Belleville District Softball League with reference to one of its games played recently. Writes Boyd:

"A Frankford correspondent in a long letter to this department, takes issue with the account of the Frankford-Point Anne softball game of last Friday, carried in Saturday's issue. The game, a 7-7 10 inning stalemate was the third game of a best-in-three series to decide third and fourth place in the Belleville and District Softball League. Following the game the league executive flipped a coin to decide the winner of the series, and Point Anne lost the toss. The only two paragraphs in the story that were not an account of the play are as follows:

'The Point Anne ball club expressed dissatisfaction over this method of deciding such an important series claiming that the decision should be made in a replay of last night's game. The Pointers also charged that Frankford, in a serious hole in the 8th inning last evening deliberately delayed the game by arguments for almost half an hour in order to give the pitcher a rest and stated that the umpire should have prevented a delay by pulling a watch on the Frankford team.

The game was riddled with argument and dispute as both squads fought bitterly to take the all-important third game.'

The correspondent feels that this is a prejudiced, one-sided acount and that the Frankford softball team suffered an injustice as a result of it.

We fail to see the injustice of it. The account clearly states that Point Annne was dissatisfied with the toss of a coin to decide the series. Our Frankford correspondent says that the Frankford team was dissatisfied as well and would have been willing to play a fourth game, not a replay of the third game, at Frankford. The account also states that the Point Anne team felt that the umpire should have prevented the long delay in the game. It says nothing about Frankford's sportsmanship in causing such a delay and does not blame the Frankford team for trying to argue.

Our Frankford correspondent has detailed a play in which Harry Farr was blocked off the plate with the winning run and that the umpire failed to rule interference.

He enlarges on this lapse by noting that "Point Anne would have argued the play, or for that matter, any team that was on its toes would have also."

So apparently no one disagrees on the right of a team to protest a decision, and both sides, experienced softball squads of several years standing, are agreed that a team has a right to protest and that a certain amount of dispute is inevitable. But we feel sure no one, including our Frankford correspondent, condones a thirty minute delay in a game.

We fail to see where the account of what took place at a public sports event was prejudiced, and we can hardly find in the paragraphs alluded to an injustice to the Frankford team. They did delay the game. Point Anne was justifiably annoyed, but they didn't blame Frankford. They put the blame for the delay on the umpire and our story said so.

As for the suggestion that Frankford would be willing to play a fourth game in Frankford, we might point out Rule 22, Section 7 of the 1952 OASA rule book which reads: "All tie games having a bearing on the league standings shall be replayed." It says "replayed," not that a fourth game shall be played, because tie games are automatically washed out.

Another point. Point Anne won the toss for the site of the third game, and the third game was staged in Point Anne. But Frankford batted in the bottom of the inning. We were puzzled by that one and still are. There was no need to flip a coin to decide whose home game it was—that was decided with the choice of the home grounds.

On the whole we think that Frankford came out of the whole thing better off than they might otherwise have been. The account of the game published in this paper was not intended to malign Frankford and we do not think it did. If the Frankford fans feel the team suffered an injusticce we can only hope that this simplification of the offending paragraphs puts everything in order."

Timbermen Top Sounders 13-11

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Peterborough Petes last night moved into second place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior standing when they defeated Owen Sound Crescents 13-11 in a rugged battle. The Petes were never headed after the first five minutes.

The win left Peterborough two points back of the leading Mimico Mounties.

Don Campbell of Owen Sound was the outstanding player on the floor, scoring six goals, all unassisted. Arn Smith fired two and Grant Gillespie, Johnny Lumley and Norm Shortridge one each.

Russ Slater and Don O'Hearn each scored three goals for Peterborough, Bob Thrope and Ross Powless two each, and Don Ashbee, Dootch Vitarelli and Jack Mason one apiece.

Win 4 Straight from 'Bums' And Keep Going on Braves; Mantle Homers Yanks to Win

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Can lightning strike twice for Eddie Stanky? Stanky is keeping discreetly quiet as his sizzling St. Louis Cardinals continue to apply pressure on Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants in the National League race.

Who will forget the '51 pennant race in which the Giants, sparked by Stanky, rose from a 13½ game deficit on Aug. 11 to nose out the Dodgers for the pennant in a playoff? With that in mind, it would be hazardous to discount the third place Cardinals because they trail the pace-setting Dodgers by 8½ games.

Cards Rolling

The Cards have won 39 and lost 20 since May 30, have captured their last five in succession including four straight from Brooklyn and have sliced off five full games from the Dodgers' once awesome lead in as many days.

The Cardinals struggled through 13 innings last night before they finally downed the Braves in Boston 6-5 to pick up a full game on the Dodgers and the second place Giants.

Murry Dickson gained the honor of becoming the first Pittsburgh pitcher to defeat Brooklyn this season, ending a 13-game Dodger winning streak over the Pirates with an eight-hit 7-1 decision.

Phils In Race

Rookie Warren Hacker, with the help of veteran Dutch Leonard, gained his ninth triumph as Chicago Cubs defeated the Giants 4-2. Philadelphia's Phillies continued their blistering pace, sweeping a twi-night twin bill from Cincinnati, 6-1 and 4-3.

Mickey Mantle's grand slam home run with two out in the ninth inning gave New York Yankees an uphill 10-7 triumph over Chicago White Sox and enabled them to retain their three-game first-place margin over Cleveland. The Indians whipped Boston 4-2 to drop the Red Sox 4½ games off the pace.

St. Louis Browns won their sixth game in seven starts as Ned Garver and Earl Harrist pitched a 7-3 decision over Spec Shea and the Washington Senators. Philadelphia and Detroit split a doubleheader, the Tigers rallying to win the second game 10-8 after Harry Byrd had hurled the Athletics to a 5-0 victory in the opener.

Brazle Delivers

Three-hit pitching by reliefer Al Brazle over the last nine innings helped the Cards to victory.

Home runs by Tommy Brown and Bill Serena, each with a man aboard, furnished all the Cubs runs off loser Max Lanier of the Giants.

A seven-run ninth-inning rally featured the Yankees' victory over the White Sox. Trailing 7-0, New York tallied three times in the seventh before the winning outburst.

Early Wynn fanned a dozen Boston batters as he registered his 12th Cleveland success. Luke Easter's 14th home run and Dale Mitchell's two-run single spelled defeat for Sid Hudson.

Red Wings Split Move Closer To Top Royals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rochester Red Wings blasted 16 base hits off two Baltimore pitchers in the International League's only single game last night to trounce the Orioles 10-3. The victory put the second-place Wings within four games of Montreal Royals, who split a double-header with Syracuse.

Buffalo Bisons swept a twin bill from the staggering Ottawa Athletics by identical scores of 6-5.

Toronto's Maple Leafs rallied in the late innings of both games to beat Springfield, 7-2 and 9-8. The Leafs rushed five runs across in the sixth inning of the opener to break a 2-2 tie. They waited until the last frame of the nightcap, when, behind by one run, they pushed over two tallies to win a real thriller.

Montreal's Tommy Lasorda shut out the Chiefs 3-0 on three hits, in the opener. His record now is 10 and 5. Bill Woop was tagged with the loss. Syracuse came roaring back in the nightcap with a two-run, 10th-inning rally to win 7-5 and give Bob Keegan his 15th victory against eight defeats.

Feels Suspension Fine, Too Light

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ernie Goman, boss-man of the Waterloo Tigers baseball club feels that the three-game suspension handed Bob "Four Wheel" Brake, the London Major's ace hurler recently and a $250 fine levied against the London club was much too light. In fact Goman is so incensed over the way the Brake case was handled by the senior Intercounty Baseball League that he is in the process of issuing a writ of mandamus against the offiicers of the league.

Several weeks ago, Goman charged that Brake, a Detroiter was a "commuter" and as such, he was playing for the Majors illegally. At a meeting in Galt, July 15, Brake was suspended for three games and the Majors were fined $250.

Claims Never Approved

However, Goman claims that the Intercounty loop violated its constitution when five representatives of the senior clubs in the league, ruled on the penalty to Brake.

"The penalty was never approved by the executive in accordance with the constitution," Goman said.

Goman revealed that his "solicitors have filed a letter with the league executive stating that if they don't intend to enforce the constitution, we will issue a writ of mandamus against the league."

"My solicitors feel that there is sufficient grounds for this," Goman explained.

He said the writ would be issued in the Supreme Court of Ontario at Toronto as soon as his solicitors deem it feasible to do so.

Americans Cut Russia's Imposing Olympic Lead To Seventy-Four Points

Yankees Add 15 Yesterday, Canada Grabbed 3 for Thirty; But Prospects for More, Poor

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—The pickings were comparatively poor for the hungry point-scorers at the Olympic Games today. There were only three finals on the program.

But the United States hoped to cut into that 74½-point lead held by Russia.

The three finals scheduled were the men's 400-metre free-style swimming race, the women's springboard diving and the final in sabre competition for teams.

Canada Adds Three Points

No points were in sight for Canada, which added three yesterday on Gilmour Boa's fourth place in one of the shooting championships. Canada's swimmers were eliminated yesterday from the 400-metre event. There were no Canadian entries in either the diving or team-sabre events.

The United States yesterday scored 15 points, the biggest chunk of 10 points coming on a victory in the 800-metre swim relay. Russia scored 12 points, all but one in two shooting events.

Going into today's competition, Russia had 514½ points to 440 for the United States. Canada had 30 points and was in 20th place in the team standing.

The United States had three men in the 440-metre swim final but they faced tremendous opposition, although among the five other finalists there were no Russians.

First, Third For U.S.

The first half of the women's springboard competition was held yesterday and the United States placed divers first and third—Mrs. Pat McCormick and Mrs. Zoe Ann Jensen. Mady Moreau of France placed third. Two Russian girls qualified—fifth and eighth among the eight who advanced to today's second phase.

The sabre-team championship appeared to belong to Hungary, which has won this event since 1928.

Two Hungarian girls placed one-two in the women's 100-metre backstroke final of the swimming competition yesterday.

Eva Szekely was the winner, in Olympic-record time, and Eva Novak was second. Helen Gordon of Great Britain took third place.

Lenora Fisher of Ocean Falls, B.C., was eliminated in preliminaries of this event. And in the men's 400-metre preliminaries, Gerry McNamee of Vancouver and Allen Gilchrist of Ocean Falls failed to qualify.

In all, eight championships were decided yesterday. Besides the two swimming championships, they were:

Boa Fourth

Prone-firing section of the small-bore competition; won by Yosef Sarbu of Romania, with Boris Andreev of Russia second, A.C. Jackson of the United States third and Boa, the Toronto marksman, placed fourth.

The aggregate championship in small-bore competition: won by Erling Kongshaug of Norway.

Running-deer shot: Won by John Larsen of Norway.

Grand prix dressage of the equestrian competition: Individual championship won by Henri St. Cyr of Sweden; team title won by Sweden.

The cycling 4,000-metre team pursuit race: Won by Italy, with South Africa second. Great Britain was third.

In basketball yesterday the United States and Argentina remained unbeaten in semi-final play which continued today. They were favored to advance to the finals along with Russia and France. The schedule today: United States vs. Brazil; Russia vs. Chile; Argentina vs. Uruguay; France vs. Bulgaria.

Canadian Triumphs

In the boxing tournament three Canadians were left after yesterday's long program. Charlie Chase, Montreal light-welterweight, won a decision over Andre Oueille of France. Clayton Kenny, Ottawa lightweight, and Len Walters, Vancouver featherweight, had byes yesterday.

Jack Butula, welterweight from Kimberley, B.C., was a technical-knockout victim of Ron Norris of India. Norris opened up in the third round, staggering Butula with a right to the jaw and following up with seven smashing rights before the bout was stopped.

Bobby Malouf, Montreal middleweight, lost on a first-round technical knockout to Leonardus Jansen of Holland, an easy target after taking a stiff left to the jaw.

Loses Decision

In the heavyweight division Jim Saunders lost a decision to Giacomo di Segni of Italy, apparently losing the third round after being warned for holding.

The United States still had nine of its 10 boxers in the running and the Russians had eight of ten. The lone U.S. loser was Ellsworth Webb, middleweight, who was kayoed by the 1948 Olympic middleweight champion, Lazlo Papp of Hungary.

One of Russia's best prospects was heavyweight Aljirdas Schocikas, who scored a technical knockout over Antoni Goscianski of Poland in the second round.

In the soccer tournament, Yugoslavia moved into the finals by defeating Germany 3-1 last night. The Yugoslavs will meet Hungary in the final Saturday night. Hungary yesterday crushed Sweden 6-0.

Panthers Lead Intercounty Loop By Four Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener Panthers, fresh from their eighth straight kill, today lead the senior Intercounty Baseball League by a margin of four full games.

The Panthers last night raked the third-place Brantford Red Sox 7-5. Guelph Maple Leafs, for many weeks league leaders and now in second place, received their most humiliating drubbing 20-5 from St. Thomas Elgins, cellar-dwellers for most of the season.

Guelph used four pitchers in an effort to stem the flood of 16 St. Thomas hits. Bob Griffith went the distance for the Elgins allowing nine hits. Carl Pilarski took the loss.

Second-baseman Bruno Casanova rapped out three hits for the winners, including a three-run homer. St. Thomas' Don Butler collected four hits in six trips.

Righthander Mel Duncan started for Kitchener but was dropped in less than two innings after giving up four runs on seven hits. He was replaced by southpaw Hal Johnston who held Brantford to one run and three hits, walking four and fanning as many.

Alf Gavey travelled the route for the Red Sox, allowing eight hits, three walks and fanning five. Catcher Ed Napier was Brantford's strongest man at the plate with three for five while rightfielder Dick Welker and pitcher Johnston each collected two for the winners.

Tonight St. Thomas is at Waterloo; London at Guelph and Galt at Brantford.

Brendon Macken Top Net Star

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian and Mexican Davis Cup tennis teams start final serious practices today for first-round games this week-end at Mount Royal Tennis Club.

Canadian non-playing Captain Dr. George Leclerc, said his team would work out Thursday, the day before the first singles matches.

Mexican Captain Pedro Vega says frankly that his team will just loosen up.

Henri Rochon showed well yesterday in practice, beating Lorne Main in two sets. Dr. Leclerc says the wiry French-speaking team member is playing better tennis than he has been so far this year.

Rochon seems to be optimistic. "We should take them." And back of his opinion is six years in Davis Cup play in which he won two matches and lost seven.

Brendan Macken still seems to be Canada's best bet. Fourth member of the Canadian squad is Jack Spencer, named to his first Davis Cup team this year.

A pair of the biggest, fastest and hardest-hitting heavyweights of the ring will collide in the main wrestling bout at the Memorial Arena on Friday night, when Lord Athol Layton will oppose Bo-Bo Brazil in a return bout.

Layton's towering 256 pounds makes him one of the biggest of the wrestlers but he only has a shade in that department on the tall, 247-pound Brazil. Athol is remarkably fast for such a mat mastadon but speed is Bo-Bo's forte too. Bunny Dunlop will referee.

Among the posers presented by this match is whether Layton will again be able to chop Brazil after being ko-ko bonked or if Brazil will be able to bonk Layton after being judo-chopped. Or who will do which and with what and to whom first?

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—The arrival here of Australia's powerful tennis forces, headed by Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor, supplies an opportunity to wonder if this country's net leaders have yet given any serious thought to winning back the Davis Cup.

Presumably they have, for the average tennis official has long since made his pile and has nothing except tennis to think about. But there is absolutely no evidence the members of the cup selection committee have yet realized the United States now is a second-class tennis power, compared with Australia, and that there is an urgent need to start rebuilding from the bottom.

Lucky To Win Match

The U.S. team which blanked Japan at Cincinnati last week-end would be lucky to win a match from Sedgman and McGregor in Davis Cup play. It would have its hands full beating a substitute Aussie team made up of Mervyn Rose, Ian Ayre and the two 17-year-olds, Lewis Hoad and Ken Rosewall. That is how great the disparity has become.

The Cincinnati team was composed of Vic Seixas, Art Larsen, Gardnar Mulloy and Billy Talbert, the acting captain. Seixas, currently the country's top player, was the only one of the quartet who played in the challenge round at Sydney last winter.

Need oYung Players

Talbert, an excellent teacher who discovered Tony Trabert two years ago and made him into a crack doubles player, had nothing to do except sit on the sideline and hand towels to his veteran charges as they mowed down the Japanese—that and pair with Mulloy in the doubles.

"It would have been much better if we had had some youngsters of 17 or 18 on the squad," he com- "Maybe I couldn't have played them, but they at least would have had the experience of practising against our best men and absorbing some Davis Cup atmosphere. We're never going to win the cup back until we take a lesson from the Australians and start bringing some kids along."

Just Being Pigs

SPRING GROVE, Minn. (AP) —A world weight record for a single litter of pigs 180 days old was claimed yesterday by Edwin Luehr. H. G. Zavoral, professor of animal husbandry at the University of Minnesota, and Wayne Hanson, Houston County agricultural agent, were the official observers as the 18-pig litter was weighed at 4,992 pounds. The old record of 4,419 pounds was set in 1951 by a litter of Iowa pigs.

City Softball Fields To Have New Fences, Financial Policies

Belleville's two first-class softball fields will be sporting new fences and new financial policies by the end of the week if present plans materialize on schedule.

The Alemite Field is currently being enclosed and the CNR Recreation Field will be fenced in, in the near future. In addition to the fences, the Alemite Field will sport new three-tiered bleachers extending more than 50 feet down both foul lines.

With the erection of the fences there will be the erection of minor financial barriers to the fans as well. The league is going to charge 15 cents for adults and 10 cents for children at all games, beginning tonight, with the league finals being priced slightly higher.

This charge is very moderate when it is considered that softball has presented excellent entertainment in this city for the past five years without an admission fee.

The team sponsors have paid for the bats, balls, uniforms, grounds keepers, umpires and scorers, and to ease the load somewhat it has been decided that a regular fee will be assessed.

Those fans accustomed to paying 25 cents per game will not have their dimes turned down, but the penny pinchers are going to have to blow the dust off their change purses and come up with a bit of cash to view their favorite sport.

Teams from Point Anne, Frankford and Wooler have a toll at the gates in their home parks and 'tis rumored that the village of Frankford tossed more than 100 dollars into their team's coffers at the Wooler game the other evening.

That kind of money for just a couple of games, would get most of the local sponsors off the financial gaff this season.

Junior Golfers Whip Americans

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's junior golfers yesterday avenged a defeat handed them by the District of Columbia juniors in 1951 by whipping the United States team 7-5 in an international tournament at the Mississauga Golf Club.

The victory brought the Ontario boys the Robert Simpson Trophy, donated by the Robert Simpson Company of Toronto, sponsors of the good-will competition.

Captained by Jerry Knechtel of Kitchener, Ontario junior champion for the last two years, the Canadians won three of the four morning matches and broke even on the eight singles in the afternoon.

The win came only after rousing finished by both Knechtel and Bob Ptashnik of Toronto Summerlea. Ptashnik was down four to Gene Howerdd of Washington in the singles, but won his match on the 18th when Howerrd went past the pin while the Toronto boy parred the hole.

Knechtel had a tough time with Perky Cullinane, a quarter-finalist in the 1952 United States junior golf championship. One down after 13, he tied the match on the 14th, went ahead on the 15th and finished it out with a birdie on the par-four 17th.

BLAST INJURES FOUR

SARNIA (CP)—Four French-Canadian seamen, injured yesterday when a boiler exploded aboard an oil-carrying freighter at the Polymer Corporation Limited Dock, were reported last night to be in good condition at the Sarnia General Hospital. All are crewmen of the S.S. Coastal Cascade and range in age from 22 to 29.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Values in bridge are relative. In some situations you will hold strong hands that are too weak to bid. In others you will have weak hands that are good enough to bid at high levels.

When partner opens with a bid of one, he assumes two tricks in your hand. With no more than two, pass. With more than two, make a bid of some kind. This is the basis for a responder.

The one opener shows five tricks. But he may have six or seven or even eight without a higher opening. If you show more than two by a bid he may have enough for a game in something.

The fact that responder has no more than three tricks should not deter him from bidding (if two high cards are among them). Because, mere three tricks in his hand may be enough for game with partner.

Your north partner opens with a club when you have the south hand shown here:

♠K J 8 5
♥Q 2
♦7 5 4
♣8 7 6 3

Your two high cards (king and queen) with a short heart count a total of three tricks. These are enough for a responding bid of some kind. With a biddable spade suit, takeout to spades.

Bid one spade even if opponent intervenes with a diamond or a heart. If the intervener was one no-trump, you have enough for a bid of two spades. Your three and partner's known five are eight tricks.

You see, your opening partner assumes you have two tricks before he hears from you. With more than two tricks you may increase the partnership number one step higher for each trick over two.

Your south hand came up when your north partner opened with a bid of two clubs. Your east opponent barged in with a bid of three hearts. To bid your spades then you would have to say three spades.

This would mean an increase of two over your last partnership contract. Have you enough? No. You lack one trick for it.

Until you discover more, be eloquent. Loquaciously say pass.

West German Chancellor Wins Court Victory

KARLSRUHE, Germany (AP)—The West German chancellor, Konrad Adenauer, won a court victory today in his fight for ratification of his country's alliance with the west. But the way was left open for more legal battles that could delay German rearmament.

The constitutional court ruled that it could not consider Socialist challenges of the peace contract with the allies and the European army agreement until the pacts had been enacted into law by the West German parliament.

The two treaties, ending most occupation controls and obligating troops for the proposed European army, come up for final vote after the lower house of parliament, the Bundestag, reconvenes in September.

The court decision was a big boost toward ratification, since the tribunal refused to rule on Socialist contentions that the pacts could be approved only after national elections choose a new parliament and after a constitutional amendment authorizes rearmament.

HOLD TWO AFTER CHASE

PARIS, Ont., (CP)—Two men were arrested following a wild chase through Paris streets last night in which police fired three warning shots in an attempt to halt the fugitives. Held here for questioning by Aylmer police were Jerry Simon, 23, Muncey reserve, and Gabriel Bukta, 18, Windsor. Police said the car in which they were driving was reported stolen from Aylmer.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Meet the new Fred MacMurray—swashbuckler

"I might as well get into this kind of picture," remarked MacMurray, who was decked out on theset of "Fair Wind to Java," in the dashing costume usually sported by Errol Flynn and Alan Ladd.

"No reason why those guys should keep adventure pictures to themselves. Nobody seems to be making comedies any more. So adventure is the thing for me now.

No Laughs

Asked why there was a dearth of laugh-provoking movies, MacMurray said:

"I guess the producers think that they have to compete with television. That means giving the public color and scope, which they can't get on TV. Big westerns, musicals, spectacles and adventures are the ticket."

In the absence of good comedy scripts, MacMurray has switched to the adventure field.

"People ask me if it's tough work," he commented. "It couldn't be tougher than comedies. Why, I've slipped in the mud, done pratfalls, a lien in water and done anything for laughs. After that training adventure pictures are a cinch."

He thinks comedies will eventually return to public favor.

"Pictures run in cycles," he remarked. "I remember when we made 'Double Indemnity.' It was the first of the realistic kind of crime picture and a whole raft of them followed. The picture did well, but it probably would have done better if it hadn't been the trailblazer."

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The turning point in Arlene Dahl's career may well be when she posed in next-to-nothing for a magazine layout. The pictures appeared in print only a fortnight or so ago but already her film career had undergone a change.

The red-haired beauty explained how it all happened. She had been posing for a "high fashion" layout in one of the sheer nightgowns she has designed and marketed.

"I didn't think anyone could see through the nightgown," she reported, "and the magazine wouldn't let me approve the proofs. At the end of the sitting, the photographer took a few shots with my air awry. I thought they were only going to be for my amusement but they turned out to be the shots in the magazine."

Arlene Shocked

The photos left little to the imagination. Arlene said she was shocked, and so was her father.

"And several of the ministers in my family background must have been spinning in their graves," Arlene sighed.

But the poses apparently had film producers spinning, too. The actress reported that they viewed her in an entirely different light.

"They used to think of me to play cool, 'unattainable heroines,'" she remarked. "But now i'm getting scripts that would have me as fiery, sexy woman. Until now, I have generally drifted over movie sets in an ethereal manner. But now I have the chance to play vibrant characters."

Busy Little Bee

Miss Dahl is a busy little bee these days, what with writing a beauty column, incorporating right and left to sell her own fashions and trying to make a go of her marriage to Lex (Tarzan) Barker. Everything seems to be hunky-dory in the latter department, at least it was as this went to press.

Tarzan and his Dahl have split and reconciled in their brief months of marriage.

Reds Suggest Change of Words In Document

MUNSAN, Korea (AP) — The Communists today suggested a possibly significant change in the wording of the proposed Korean armistice document now under study by staff officers of both sides.

It deal twit ha paragraph relating to war prisoners. The issue of prisoner exchange has blocked a truce for months.

The Reds proposed changing the term "captured personnel" to "prisoner of war" I nparagraph 52, which would then read:

"Each side agrees to insure that it shall not employ in acts of war in the Korean conflict any prisoners of war released from custody incident to the armistice."

Col. Duncan S. Somerville, U.N. command staff officer, said he had asked the Reds for clarification.

During recent secret truce talks Maj.-Gen. William K. Harrison, senior U.N. armistice delegate, told the Reds the term captured personnel meant all persons in custody, even those opposing repatriation. War prisoners, he added, were all those persons who were to be repatriated.

Arbitration Offer Withdrawn By Prem. Mossadegh

LONDON AP—The British foreign office said today Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh of Iran offered to submit the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute to arbitration, but withdrew his offer "without explanation" within 72 hours.

A spokesman told reporters at a daily news conference the Iranian leader called George H. Middleton, British charge d'affaires, to his home Friday and outlined his arbitration proposal to end the 18-months-old dispute.

At a second meeting with Middleton Monday Mossadegh suddenly backed down without giving any reasons.

VISIT WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON AP—Twenty-six Canadians were among air cadets from 15 countries welcomed at the White House yesterday as the first big event on their visit to the United States. Defence mobilizer John R. Steelman greeted them on behalf of President Truman, who is in Kansas City. The cadets are participants in the annual international cadet exchange program sponsored by the civil air patrol.

US Girls' Team Breaks Swim Mark

HELSINKI (CP)—The United States today won the second and final heat in the women's 400-metre swimming eliminations relay in the record time of 4:28.1.

Canada's team—composed of Gladys Priestly of Verdun, Que., Irene Strong of Vancouver, Kay McNamee of Victoria and Lenora Fisher of Ocean Falls, B. C., was fifth in the heat in 4:54.8.

The U. S. team's time broke the Olympic record of 4:29.2 set by the U.S. in London in 1948. Behind the U.S. came The Netherlands in 4:30.6 and Sweden in 4:38.1.

In the first heat, Hungary won in 4:32.5 with Britain second and Denmark third.

The U.S., The Netherlands, Hungary, Britain, Denmark, Sweden, France and Germany qualified for the finals Aug. 1.

'Come, Hank All's Fair...'

CLEVELAND (AP)—Hank Greenberg angrily accused Bill Veeck yesterday of trying to knock his Cleveland Indians out of the pennant race by dealing "good" players to Chicago White Sox.

Greenberg said Veeck's sending outfielder Jim Rivera and catcher Darrell Johnson of St. Louis Browns to White Sox will immeasurably strengthen Chicago. Indians, he pointed out, have to play White Sox 11 more games.

Veeck, who owned the Indians in 1948 when they won their second pennant, now owns the Browns. He said in St. Louis that "Henry is seeing ogres" and is acting like a "little boy whose candy has been taken away."

The deal that peeved Greenberg completed yesterday, also moved outfielder Ray Coleman and catcher J. W. Porter from Chicago to St. Louis.

The players were claimed and swapped by waivers. Cleveland wanted both Rivera and Johnson, said Greeberg, but couldn't claim them because Chicago, being lower in the standings, could choose first.

Don't Look Now But Watch Phils

DETROIT (AP)—Jimmy Dykes has been around long enough to get used to almost anything in baseball—even his Philadelphia Athletics.

But the 55-year-old manager is a bit amazed today. His sixth-place Athletics. And this may come as news to you—are only six games behind the league-leading New York Yankees in the all-important loss column. And only three games behind the second-place Cleveland Indians in the loss column.

Until now everybody was talking about the American League race as a five-team affair. But if the A's have a hot streak in making up their postponed games, it could be a six-team fight.

They took five straight series before moving into Briggs Stadium here and splitting a twi-night doubleheader with the Tigers yesterday.

Behind the pitching of ace Bobby Shantz (18-3), Alex Kellner, Carl Scheib, and rookie Harry Byrd, the Athletics have picked up 3½ games on the leaders since July 14. They now trail the Yankees by 9½ games.

SIGN AGREEMENT

KINGSTON (CP) — An agreement was signed today between the Aluminum Company of Canada and the International Association of Machinists following last week's settlement between company and United Steelworkers of America C.I.O.-C.C.L. The agreement closes negotiations between the company and unionized employees which have been continuing since May 24.

AT THE CAPITOL — Knives, guns and plain bare knuckles settle the arguments and dissensions in Clark Gable's "most fighting" role in "Lone Star," MGM's big new outdoor drama of Texas in the turbulent era of 1845 and the deadly conflict between those who favor annexation to the United States and the ardent supporters of an independent republic. Gable is cast as a pro-annexation man, wthi Broderick Crawford as his bitterest opponent and Ava Gardner as the girl they both love. Upper left, Gable uses his fists to subdue Gil Perkins in a fierce street brawl. Lower centre, knives flash as Gable pins Crawford to the wall in a climax to their feud. At the right, the fighting adventurer sends a vaquero off to dreamland; while at the far left, even Miss Gardner gets into the fighting spirit, with Mr. Gable forced to wrest a gun from her hand. "Lone Star" opens Thursday at the Capitol Theatre for its first Belleville showing.

AT THE McCARTHY — Dennis O'Keefe and Evelyn Keyes, stars of Benedict Bogeaus' delightful comedy, "One Big Affair," closing tonight at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre, through United Artists release, do a bit of billing and cooing. This romance got its impetus on an adventure-packed journey in Mexico.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, JULY 31, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Hold back a bit. We all fare better when we don't rush things, take foolish chances or speak out of turn. Move in sane, well organized manner.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Be content with moderate gains. Some uncertainties today. A safe attitude rather than any blustering, hit-or-miss method stressed. Don't worry.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Go conscientiously about duties. Pass up the unsure, needlessly hazardous and stick to what you really understand. Be very careful in money, legal issues.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—A day to promote essentials, improve when and where you can, and hold to a good schedule. Don't hop-scotch around, nor be drawn into useless argument.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—You rather daring people of the Leo clan better take wise precautions and remain calm if you've been going a hectic pace.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Sort of day that gives ample opportunity to demonstrate your sound, clean thinking. Be expressive but not overanxious carrying out job.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Rather skimpy in part for other than routine endeavors. Accept your duties in Libra's manly style; be mindful you aren't the only one anxious to achieve.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Stars advise reviewing, strengthening your methods up to sundown. Don't embark on new ventures unless sure you have proper formula. News after 6 p.m. can bring pleasure.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Curb likely unrealistic ideas. Be idealistically motivated both in personal and business matters for safely gainful ends. Romance needs extra care.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Some ideas, propositions may be tempting but conscience forbids. Don't talk first, think afterward. Logic will help avoid mistakes.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Excellent for general endeavors, investments well checked. Freshly favored: Finances with long-term merit. P.M. fine for heart interests, home activity.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Helpful aspects for most trades, civic and children's possibilities. Labor, employers have much in common and can make this day a memorable one. Give-and-take favored.

YOU BORN TODAY are natural leaders and, while conservative, are very active, with fine reserve vitality and power to put over good ideas. Are magnetic, generous and proud. Seldom selfish, nothing underhanded in your makeup. Birthdate: John Ericsson, Swedish-Amer. naval engineer.

Summer Dream

By Irene Ernhart

The creaking of the oarlocks ceased for an instant and then began again as the boat was pulled toward the bank. The dip of the oars sounded rhythmic in the stillness, a dark blur in the mist emerged gradually into first the shape of the boat and then Steve's figure hunched over the oars.

"Laurie?" He peered at her through the mist. "Great" guns, what are you doing up this early?"

"You always used to let me help you run your lines that other summer. Remember?"

The boat bumped the sandy bank and Steve stood up, holding out his hand. She felt the warm strength of his grasp as she stepped down. The boat rocked slightly and she settled herself on the wet seat, squirming a little because it felt damp and cold on her bare thighs.

"Lovely morning, isn't it?" she said. She wrinkled her nose and moved a bait bucket full of crawdads out from under her feet.

"Why Laurie, what's the matter?" Steve said grinning. "An old fisherman like you shouldn't mind the smell of dead crawdads. Besides there couldn't be more than one or two dead ones in that bucket. The rest are nice and lively. Louis and I seined them only yesterday." He tipped up his battered old brown hat with the flies on it, and picked up the oars again and pulled the boat out into the stream.

"They smell like they're all dead," Laurie replied.

Laurie was aware of a quick warm feeling of sheer pleasure. She loved the river, the smell and the feel and the sound of it. It must be something she had inherited from her father, she thought.

"Is that the same hat you wore the last time I was here?" she asked Steve, for want of something to say.

"Nope. Lost that one in the big pool by the rock cliffs where we always fish for channel catfish. Remember the place? Wind blew it off one day and it sank before I could get to it. I'll probably hook into it and think I've got a good fat channel cat on my line sometime." He stpoped rowing and let the boat drift with the current for a second or two while he lit his pipe.

A drift of sweet smelling tobacco smoke floated on the morning air.

Laurie studied the strong lean lines of Steve's face. He was much more handsome than she had remembered. His face was thin, almost angular, but the bone structure was fine. He had a strong mouth with a hint of gentleness about it and there were laughter crinkles at the corners of his eyes.

She was struck all at once by the incongruity of her being here with a man who was practically a stranger, sitting in a damp smelly old row boat on a river in the mist at 5 o'clock in the morning, when only yesterday she had been in New York.

This seemed like a different world! One that her friends in New York, her mother and Mark and Fletcher did not dream existed, and would not have appreciated even if they had known it. Fletcher and Mark went fishing sometimes, but they flew down to Florida and fished from Mark's big cabin cruiser.

Laurie French wondered if living so close to reality had made her father and Steve both seem entirely different from any other men she had ever known.

Steve sidled the boat in toward a clump of willows, caught hold of the trot line and began working it across a deep pool, lifting the line and bringing up the hooks one at a time for rebating. "Mind handing me that bucket?"

Laurie shoved the bucket within his reach. "Ugh!" She wrinkled her nose again.

Steve laughed. "I thought you came along to help bait hooks." He puffed gently at his pipe.

"If you had brought nice clean minnows I wouldn't mind," Laurie said.

"Fish haven't been taking minnows so good last three or four days," Steve said.

The mist was beginning to lift now and the river flowing softly by the boat was silvery in the new morning light. A heron flew by and upstream a fish jumped and left an ever-widening circular ripple.

Laurie trailed her hand in the water, already warming. "Could we go swimming today?"

Steve nodded. "Might. I don't think the fishing's going to be much good today. Half the baits are still on this line. There isn't even much use running the rest of the lines.

He turned the boat and headed back downstream toward his dock. Laurie felt his eyes studying her. She wondered what conclusions his long silent apraisal had brought him.

"Did you ever finish your book Steve?" she asked suddenly.

"Nope. Gave it up. Wrote enough so that I got what was eating me out of my system and then quit. A lot of guys wrote books about the war for that reason. I'm working on a thing about the Civil War now. I teach history, you know."

He bent his attention to sidling the boat in against the dock and then drew the boat chain over a piling. It clanked loudly in the stillness, the sound echoing and re-echoing across the water. Then he jumped out and reached for Laurie. She felt again the warm strength of his calloused brown hand as she stepped from the rocking boat to the dock.

She stood there silent for a moment, watching as Steve got back into the boat and busied himself with the bait buckets, almost as though he had forgotten her presence. "What time do you usually go swimming Steve?" she said presently.

He tipped back his hat and straightened up. "We'd best wait until the sun's had a chance to warm the water—say about 11."

"Okay." She smiled at him and then turned and started off.

"Tell Louis to come along," he called after her, "he's been itchin' for swimming weather."

Laurie felt like running the rest of the way up the path to her father's house. She felt hungry and filled with exhilaration. What a wonderful—purely wonderful summer it was going to be!

Louis French had a book propped on the breakfast table, but when Laurie came in he folded it up and laid it aside. "Well, my dear," he said, "I didn't look for you back in time for breakfast with me. You've been down helping Steve run his lines, haven't you?" His brown eyes twinkled at her.

Laurie blushed a little as she slid into her chair at the table and unfolded her napkin. Mrs. Jenner, her father's housekeeper came and poured her coffee and put out fresh pecan rolls on a plate.

"I hope you'll have as much fun this summer as you did the last time you were here, Laurie. Steve and I often talked about it, how you took to life of a river rat like you were born to it."

"I did have a wonderful time. I don't imagine Steve appreciated me too much though. I tagged after him everywhere he went, and once or twice when he wanted to work on his book I tormented him to go swimming with me instead."

"You fancied yourself in love with him that summer, I believe.

"I'm afraid so," Laurie said laughingly.

Her father sipped at his coffee in silence for a moment. "So you're engaged to be married, Laurie?"

"Yes. In October. It was supposed to be this month but I changed my mind."

"Why?"

Laurie flushed again. "I wanted to spend the summer here with you."

"That's very flattering," her father said. They smiled at each other. "I hope it's worth the sacrifice, if it was a sacrifice. Did not Fletcher object strenuously.

"Rather. But it was mother who was really furious!"

Louis French laughed. "Oh yes, Emmy would hate your wanting to come here."

There was another small pause and then they began to talk about various people whom Laurie remembered from her previous visit.

Her father said at last, "Well did Steve have any luck this morning with his lines?"

"No, and he said to ask you to come swimming with us at 11."

"Good. I'll phone the store I won't be down this morning and I can get some work done on the roses too!"

"Why Dad, you sound like a little boy about to play hooky!"

"Well?" he raised his brows and shrugged in frank admission.

The swiming hole was a deep pool half a mile downstream, where gravel had been taken out at one time. Steve had fixed up a rude diving board, weighed down at one end with sandbags. He'd hung a rope from a tree limb over the water.

The three of them were having a hilarious time. Steve was a powerful swimmer and Laurie's father was as agile as an urchin. Laurie herself put on a pretty good performance at the diving board. She felt Steve's eyes following her with admiration as she dived from the board with practiced ease.

"Whew," he said once, "you should have an audience, being able to dive like that. Where did you learn all that fancy stuff?"

"We have a pool at the place in Connecticutt, and in New York we swim at the club."

"Oh." Steve's face was grim as he turned away from her and plunged into the water.

She was to come to know that look of grimness, or antogonism or whatever it was. She saw it on the faces of some of the customers who came into her father's hardware store when she first began to help out a little there.

"You don't need to come down to the store, even if we are short of help," her father protested. "Your mother would have a fit."

Bombers Flatten Aluminum Plant Near Manchuria

Biggest Overnight Raid Of Korean War Successful

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—United States B-29s levelled a huge Communist aluminum plant near the Manchurian border early today in the biggest overnight raid of the Korean War.

The 63 unescorted bombers braved Red anti-aircraft fire and fighter opposition which American pilots described as "the heaviest in months." All returned safely to their bases in Japan and Korea.

The 12½-acre factory of the Oriental Light Metals Co., 10 miles southeast of Sinuiju, went up in smoke and flame after the B-29s hurled 630 tons of bombs on it and an adjacent troop build-up area.

Biggest Superfort Raid

Five other Superforts hit other North Korean targets. The 63-plane armada which blasted the metals plant was the biggest Superfort raid of the war against a single objective.

Pilots reported flak from the Manchurian as well as the Korean side of the border, about four miles from the metals plant.

Airman Julius W. Meintel of Wheeling, W. Va., was credited unofficially with shooting down a propellor-driven night fighter which rose to defend the sprawling target.

Col. Winton R. Close, Los Angeles, who directed the raid, said almost every other bomber was attacked by Communist fighters. Capt. Ralph R. Searle of Houston, Tex., said "it was like high noon all of a sudden," when "eight searchlights locked on us at the start of the bomb run and kept with us for the longest five minutes I've ever spent."

An air force statement called the raid a calculated effort to force the hand of stalling Communist truce negotiators.

Target Saturated

The target was saturated with 500-pound bombs, some of which will not explode for hours or even days. The plant area had been showered with leaflets for almost two months, warning non-combatants to stay away because it would be bombed.

The bombing followed a medium bomber raid on the North Korean capital of Pyongyang on July 24. The stepped-up air war started on June 3 with a massive Allied strike at the Suiho power complex near the Manchurian border. This raid knocked out much of Manchuria's industrial power, but pilots last night said they saw many lights burning in Manchuria.

On the ground, Allied infantrymen Thursday wrested an outpost from Chinese troops in a two-hour fight in driving rain northwest of Yonchon on the western front. The Reds had taken the position Monday.

On the eastern front, United Nations troops twice hurled back 50 Communists who attacked an outpost east of the Nam River, near Korea's east coast. The Allies reported 11 Reds were killed.

Heavy rain limited other action to scattered patrol clashes.

Scientist Says Russians Tried To Buy Secret

ROME (CP)—An Italian scientist said yesterday that two Russian officials tried to buy their secret information on hydrogen bomb experiments.

Marco Cadamuro Morgante made the statement after the Italian Defence Ministry announced Monday that an explosion designed to transform hydrogen into helium—the reaction which could power a hydrogen bomb—had been touched off in this country.

The announcement had made it clear that the experiment involved a very small amount of hydrogen.

The newspaper said the explosion was the culmination of studies made by a young atomic scientist, Ubaldo Loschi.

Morgante, an associate of Loschi, said the Russians "contacted us last winter but we told them that reports about our laboratory were nonsense."

Conservative Loses Seat In Recount

VANCOUVER (CP)—A. R. MacDougall, Progressive Conservative candidate originally declared elected in one of three Vancouver-Point Grey seats, lost the seat yesterday on a recount.

With the third count still to be completed, it appeared that Liberal candidate T. R. Burnett would be elected, giving the Liberals seven seats instead of six and the Progressive Conservatives three instead of four.

This would make the standing in the 48-member Legislature: Social Credit 19, C.C.F. 18, Liberal seven, Progressive Conservative three, Labor one.

Former Egyptian King Wants To Lead Quiet Life

ISLE OF CAPRI, Italy (Reuters)—Former King Farouk of Egypt today placed himself before the world as a simple family man, stripped of fortune and position, who wishes to lead a quiet life with his children.

The portly former monarch told a press conference he would remain for several months on this vacation island, where he spent a fabulous, free-spending honeymoon last year with Narriman, his teen-aged bride.

Farouk appeared before reporters and photographers who have been clamoring to see him ever since he arrived here from Egypt, where his 16-year rule was ended by a military uprising.

Had Toothache

He looked tired and his face was swollen from a toothache.

Farouk refused to answer questions, but read a long statement in which he appealed for the right to lead a quiet life. He denied that he had great wealth, and said he had no immediate plans for taking up residence in the United States or any other country.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Temperatures dropped below 50 in some localities in southern Ontario this morning, and in the resort areas near Muskoka the low temperature was near 40 degrees. These cool temperatures are a result of a fresh supply of cool air from northwestern Canada that moved down over the province Wednesday accompanied by widely scattered thundershowers.

Under sunny skies today and again Friday the trend will be toward slightly higher temperatures over southern Ontario.

Rust Not Spreading

WINNIPEG (CP)—Wheat rust has not spread across southern Manitoba to the extent originally feared, Dr. T. Johnson of the Dominion laboratory of plant diseases, University of Manitoba, said yesterday.

Recent checks disclosed infestation on wheat stems still was only about five per cent.

Mountaineering Party Reports Seeing Footprints of 'Abominable Snowman'

BOMBAY (Reuters)—A new report of the "abominable snowman," strange beast or being reputed to inhabit the upper reaches of the snow-clad Himalayas, came yesterday from a French mountaineering expedition just returned from the peak known as Deo Dakni.

The seven-man expedition climbed the 20,000 Deo Dakni, and also the 22,000-foot Chankamba, during a four-week expedition in June.

Louise Plovier, a French alpine nurse who was a member of the expedition, said the climbers had observed the foot-prints of the abominable snowman at a height of 17,000 feet on Deo Dakni, and had taken photographs of the prints.

(A British expedition led by mountaineer Eric Shipton brought back photographs of the snowman's footprints from a climb on the lower slopes of Mount Everest last year. They showed triangular-shaped prints, each more than a foot long.)

Himalayan legend says that the snowmen are huge, hairy creatures. Natives explain that no eye-witness has ever described one because the sight of one causes sudden death.

EXPORTS EXCEED JUNE IMPORTS BY $60,000,000

Biggest Monthly Trade Surplus in Half Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's exports, bed-rock of her economic strength, leaped ahead of imports during June, climbing by more than $60,000,000 to spark the biggest monthly trade surplus of the first half-year.

With sales to the United Kingdom sharply higher and with increases noted in almost all foreign markets, Canada's exports climbed to $378,800,000 from $315,800,000 in June last year, the Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

Imports lagged, however, down $36,000,000 to $324,400,000 from $360,400,000, giving Canada a favorable balance of $54,400,000 for the month, compared with a deficit of $44,600,000 for June, 1951.

Sharp Contrast

The surplus was the biggest since the postwar monthly record of $112,000,000 was posted last December, and brought the total surplus for the half-year of 1952 to $164,200,000—a sharp contrast to the $339,800,000 deficit in the corresponding period last year.

The gain in exports was most prominent in trade with the United Kingdom, which, in spite of its lack of dollars, boosted purchases from Canada during June to $83,100,000, an increase of more than $30,000,000 from $51,400,000 last year.

Exports to the United States, Canada's top customer, increased only slightly to $194,400,000 from $190,900,000, indicating a possibility that the saturation point may have been reached in Canada's drive to expand the American market for Canadian goods.

Hit By Livestock Ban

However, during June as in previous months since February, Canada has been barred by the U.S. from shipping livestock and meats to the American market because of foot-and-mouth disease in South Saskatchewan. Once this market is reopened, exports to the U.S. may show sharper gains. In the past, Canada had a market in the U.S. for more than $100,000,000 worth of livestock and meats a year.

Exports to Commonwealth countries other than the U.K. increased to $18,800,000 during June, up from last year's $15,100,000. The combined total shipments to other countries amounted to $82,500,000, sharply higher than $58,400,000 last year.

Dollar value of imports showed a softening during June which virtually affected all of Canada's suppliers. Imports from the U.S. slipped to $235,600,000 from $241,500,000 and from the U.K. to $31,400,000 from $39,900,00.

Aerial Objects Photographed By Coast Guard

DAYTONA, O., (AP)—The air force has a copy of a Coast Guard picture—taken in daylight—which shows four unidentified aerial objects, Capt. E.J. Ruppelt disclosed yesterday.

He would make no estimate of the picture's value until he gets the negative. He did say the picture was of the type which easily could have been faked. He did not say it was.

The picture was taken through a screened window July 16 at Salem, Mass.

Ruppelt described the objects as irregularly egg-shaped and white, three of them in stair-step position with the fourth object below the centre one in the trio.

Livestock Outbreak Declared Under Control by Officials; Authority Calls it Anthrax

CHARLOTTETOWN CP — A federal veterinarian said yesterday Prince Edward Island's unidentified livestock disease is under control although he would not confirm an earlier report that the disease was anthrax.

Dr. R. J. McClenaghan of Moncton, N.B., federal veterinarian for the Maritimes, said the outbreak that killed two horses and a cow and nearly caused the death of a farmer was "not serious...and now appears to be under control."

However, Provincial Veterinarian George Fisher announced a strict quarantine was being maintained in the farming community of Roseville, near Alberton in Prince County.

A P.E.I. agriculture official, who asked not to be named, said the deaths may have been caused by anthrax. Farmers reported their animals showed swelling about the stomach and discoloration of the udder, general characteristics of the disease.

Dr. Fisher said the outbreak was "definitely not" foot and mouth disease, which hit south Saskatchewan last winter. The disease only affects cloven foot animals.

In Ottawa, federal veterinary officials expressed surprise that a livestock quarantine had been ordered in the province.

Dr. Orlan Hall, assistant veterinary director-general, said he had received no report and if a quarantine has been ordered by the district veterinarian it was because "some mild disease has broken out."

Edmund Kelly, who performed an autopsy on a cow, became extremely ill and was treated in hospital. His son Ralph said he had "a pretty tough time" during his 10 days in hospital.

Mineral Wealth of Canada Could Decide 'First Atomic War' Says Magazine Article

NEW YORK (CP)—Canada's mineral wealth could decide the "first atomic war," Collier's magazine says today.

The magazine notes in a major article that many of the United States' natural resources are being drained away while Canada has iron ore and uranium in immense amounts.

Defence of the U.S. would be impossible if Canada were overcome by a Russian invasion the article adds.

"In the light of these beliefs, it is dangerous for us, the citizens of the United States, to remain as ignorant of Canada, its people, their hopes and fears, as we are today."

The 17-page article, written by Associate Editor John Lear and illustrated with a score of colored photographs and maps, is dedicated to the dissipation of this "danger."

Americans should recognize that while Canada's destiny is tightly entwined with that of the U.S., "there is such a thing as a Canadian point of view," Lear writes.

"We should consider it seriously in all acts concerning us both. Otherwise we can expect that in any of the delicate twilight states short of war, Canadians will react in resentful self-defence and do what they think right independently. . ."

Lear, who travelled all over the Dominion to report on its economic and political life, writes that Canada is beginning to awaken "from a inferiority complex that has stunted its growth for generations. . ."

He urged that U.S. companies with big investments in Canada should give Canadians a chance to buy equity shares of American holding companies or of Canadian operating subsidiaries.

"If that were done, those Canadians who still look upon us as a bogey might be able to forget how much bigger we are than they. They might dissipate the unconscious resentment they exhibit to Yankee visitors. . ."

But Lear finds one "sad truth"—"that few Canadians are risking really big money on Canada's future as a great power."

Another of Canada's difficulties was lack of people. To keep ambitious Canadians at home, particularly engineers who are tempted to migrate to the U.S., they should be paid "the going price."

The magazine finds Canada has four conflicting personalities — each represented by a top politico"—the governor-general, Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Prime Minister St. Laurent, External Affairs Minister Pearson and Trade Minister Howe.

It describes each of them in this way:

Massey: "Canada's first native-born govenor general—fears American influence on his country's thinking and traditions and urges subsidies to support cultural institutions."

St. Laurent: "Resents any implication of subservience to England. He has eliminated the word 'Dominion' from laws and 'royal' from the mail trucks."

Howe: "Was born in the U.S., became a Canadian. He believes in private enterprise 'enough to give it a kick in the pants when necessary.'"

Pearson: "Believes the only way to defeat Communism in the long run is to make the common man more aware of the advantages of democracy in daily life."

Blast Injures Two Firemen, Disrupts Power

HAMILTON (CP)—Two firemen were injured and much of downtown Hamilton was left without 60-cycle power today after two underground explosions blamed on an electrical circuit-breaker.

Taken to hospital with burns were Lieut. Marcy Gowland, 51, and Lieut. Earl Charters, 49. Charters was released after treatment. Gowland was reported in fair condition.

The first blast tossed a manhole cover high in the air, narrowly missing a passing car.

Gowland was in charge of a pumper sent to investigate. He was climbing down the ladder into the manhole to check when the second occurred. Charters, who was also burned slightly in a test demonstration yesterday, was looking into the manhole.

Hydro officials said the explosion took place in an oil breaker on the 60-cycle line. It was expected that normal 60-cycle supplies would be available in the afternoon. Most of the downtown section uses 25-cycle power.

"I was climbing down the ladder into the manhole with a flashlight in my hand," said Gowland. "I hadn't reached the bottom when there was a tremendous boom. The next thing I knew I was being pulled out of the manhole. They tell me I climbed part of the way myself."

Quake-Jittery City Has Another Gentle Shock

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—This quake-jittery city had another gentle aftershock at 5:09 a. m. today. It lasted for about 15 seconds.

There was no immediate report of any additional damage in Bakerfield. However there was some glass damage in the Kern county town of Arvin, with several windows broken.

The mild tremor was felt at 5:10 a.m. in the Los Angeles area.

After shocks of varying intensity have occurred here since July 21 when California's second greatest earthquake of this century killed 11 persons.

Men Seriously Injured in Crash

OSHAWA (CP)—Two Peterborough men were seriously injured yesterday when their car was struck by a gravel truck seven miles north of here.

Injured were Harry Beatty, 59, who suffered a broken leg, chest and internal injuries and Ross Hopkins with broken ribs and leg cuts. Police said the Beatty car was struck from behind, shoving it into another gravel truck ahead. The car was demolished.

GENERAL NAGUIB SAYS ARMY COUP NOT POLITICAL

Aims at Obtaining Proper Reforms

CAIRO (CP)—Gen. Mohammed Naguib today reiterated that his army coup of a week ago was aimed only at obtaining proper reforms in Egypt and seeing that the constitution was applied "in the best interests of the country."

The strong man general told a press conference he will shortly issue a communique stressing the politics. He insisted that he will favor no particular political party.

Denies Differences

army's intention of refraining from

Naguib also denied that any difference of opinion had arisen between the army and Aly Maher, premier of Egypt's emergency government.

"The government and the army command are collaborating fully with each other," he said.

Aly Maher, formerly Aly Maher Pasha, lost his title along with all other persons under a decree yesterday which did away with the ranks of Pasha and Bey.

Naguib's name was shorter today too. It used to have a Bey tacked onto it.

The royally-conferred titles carried no salaries but meant a lot in prestige and influence.

Maintain Order

Naguib, now commander-in-chief of the Egyptian armed forces, said the armed forces were remaining on the alert only because they were responsible for maintaining public order.

Mohamed Azmi, ousted as public prosecutor by ex-King Farouk two years ago when he began to make headway in an investigation into the supply of defective Egyptian arms during the Palestine war, has been reinstated. The inquiry is to be re-opened.

Tomorrow, the Moslem sabbath, prayers will be said in all mosques throughout Egypt for the well-being and protection of the infant monarch, Ahmed Fuad II, now with his father in Italy.

Plan Special Stamp

The government is to issue a special postage stamp commemorating the army uprising which culminated in Farouk's abdication.

Farouk himself has been deprived of his title "El Sayed," which indicates direct descent from the prophet Mohammed.

The cabinet yesterday invited foreign investment with a decree permitting foreigners to own 51 per cent of new Egyptian corporations instead of the 49 per cent maximum allowed them under a 1949 law.

In another action last night, the cabinet affirmed that Egypt would remain a constitutional monarchy. Naguib said he had assured British ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson there would be no change in Egypt's system of government.

Bodies of Missing Men Found

BAGOTVILLE, (CP) —Ground rescue units have found the bodies of two missing crew members of a Lancaster bomber which collided with a Vampire jet fighter July 22 over Laurentide National Park some 30 miles south of this big R.C.A.F. station.

Air Force officials announced yesterday the rescue parties discovered the bodies Tuesday. The men were F.O. Edward C. Hutt, of Bangor, Me., and F.O. James F. Macara, of Toronto.

Two Swedish Communists Given Life Sentences for Espionage

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Swedish Communist Fritiof Enbom, accused master-mind of a Soviet espionage ring, today was found guilty of spying for Russia and sentenced to hard labor for life. The 33-year-old agitator and editor was convicted of espionage and preparations for treason against Sweden in the event of war.

Enbom's chief accomplice, Jugo Gjersvold, 32, also was convicted of espionage and given a life sentence.

The ringleader's younger brother, Martin Enbom, drew a seven-year sentence.

The government charged a seven-member ring gave the Russians details of Sweden's northern defences against any Russian attack across neighboring Finland.

Others convicted and sentenced were:

Arthur Karlsson, 42, a Communist member of the town council of Halmsted in South Sweden. Karlsson, who arranged the elder Enbom's contact with Soviet embassy officials, received 20 months imprisonment.

Fingal Larsson, 40, a railway worker, accused of sending regular reports to Enbom on railway security measures, drew five years at hard labor.

Lilian Ceder, 31, Fritiof Enbom's girl friend, who operated a short-wave transmitter Enbom received from the Russians, was given eight months but the court ruled the three months she has spent in custody since her arrest would count in this period.

Acquitted for lack of proof was Tage Wickstrom, 37, a clerk in the army fortification construction bureau.

Two Girls Killed, 3 Persons Injured In Train-Car Crash

Slow-Moving Freight Hits Car Near Parry Sound

PARRY SOUND (CP)—Two girls were killed last night and three persons injured when a Canadian Pacific Railway freight struck an auto seven miles from Parry Sound.

Dead are: Marlene Moyer, 17, of Parry Sound and Evelyn McCarthy, 13, of Hornings Mills near Shelburne.

The injured are: Rev. Stephen Mathers of Toronto, former principal of Alma College at St. Thomas; Mrs. Mathers; and Shirley Taylor of Tottenham.

A sixth passenger, Ruth Mathers, 16, was unhurt.

Travelling To Town

The injured were brought to hospital here. Mr. Mathers, 56, operates a camp near here and the group was travelling from the camp to town.

Evelyn's father is the secretary of the Dufferin County federation of agriculture. She was to have attended a Shelburne wedding Saturday and her father had planned to bring her home today.

Miss Tough was working at the camp for the summer. Her parents left Monday for a Northern Ontario trip and police were unable to locate them to notify them of the tragedy.

Heard No Whistle

Police quoted Mr. Mathers as saying he heard no whistle and was on the tracks before he knew it. He feared if he applied the brakes he would stop directly in the path of the train so he speeded up. But the train hit the car, carrying it for 25 feet.

The slow-moving C.P.R. extra freight was en route from MacTier to Cartier. Engineer S. Lockheart of MacTier said he approached the level crossing in the normal way and blew his whistle and rang the bell. He said the weather was clear and visibility good.

Newspaper Ad Helps to Recover Change Purse

Mrs. Jeanette Bryant of Montreal, sister-in-law of R. J. Hopwood-Jones of this city, believes in the value of advertising in a newspaper, especially if the paper is the Ontario Intelligencer.

Mrs. Bryant, here on a visit, was downtown shopping on Monday and lost her change purse containing $40. There were no identification marks on the little purse, and no name cards or other identification in the purse.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Bryant put an ad in the 'lost column' of the Ontario Intelligencer on Tuesday afternoon.

Wednesday morning she received a call from Mrs. John A. Kingston, 7 Albion Street, stating that she had found such a purse. Mrs. Bryant recovered her money.

Not only does Mrs. Kingston read the Ontario Intelligencer completely from back to front, she also has three sons who are carrier boys for the paper.

Mardi Gras Festival Opens at Picton Shrine Club Float Features Big Parade

PICTON (Staff) — Under brilliant July sunshine thousands of county and district residents converged on this town yesterday to view a two-mile parade that officially opened the week-long Mardi Gras festival sponsored by the local branch of the Canadian Legion.

Opening with a brilliant splash of parade color, the festival will feature special events daily for the period and will be climaxed by a beauty contest when "Miss Mardi Gras" will be crowned.

Yesterday's colorful opening featured a parade of thirty-five floats, principal among which was that of the Shrine symbolizing its work for crippled children. The colorful raiment of hundreds of Shriners headed by Imperial Potentate Reg. Shaw of Rameses Temple, Toronto, added to the picturesqueness of the parade. Shriners from northern New York state mingled with their Canadian brothers.

Finest Parade

The entire parade described by oldtimers as the finest ever held in this Prince Edward county town marched from the Exhibition Grounds to the main street and returned the same way.

Besides Shriners and pretty girls, the armed forces were represented. Flying Officer W. DeYoung was officer in charge of the air force group from Trenton, while the army's contingent comprised a majority of members of the Royal Canadian Artillery under the command of Lieutenant J. Lane. Commander G. Naftel, of Kingston, headed the Royal Canadian Navy delegation. Among the floats taking part in the parade was one representing the Salvation Army Corps at Picton.

Town and Canadian Legion officials stood on the reviewing stand where the salute of the armed forces and Shriners was taken by Mr. P. M. Huise, Toronto, president of the provincial command of the Legion.

Presents Cheque

Later His Worship Mayor and Noble H. J. McFarland presented the Shrine with a cheque for $200 on behalf of the residents of the town of Picton. Imperial Potentate Shaw accepted the cheque and expressed the appreciation of himself, his Divan and the Temple for the generous gesture. The money will be devoted to the Shrine Crippled Children work.

Potentate Shaw in a brief address in the evening also expressed the appreciation of the Shrine and visiting members of the hospitality extended them by the Legion, the town and its people.

"We have enjoyed ourselves immensely and the members of my Divan and the Shrine as a whole will take back fine memories of a fine town, fine people and wonderful treatment," he said.

Following the parade, the Shrine gave a demonstration of precision drill at the rear of the Canadian Legion Hall.

Band Concert Given

Yesterday's evening program was staged in front of the Legion building where hundreds sat on the lawn to hear the Royal Canadian Air Force Training Command band from Trenton. This band will be among the grandstand attractions at this year's Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto.

Officials of the Mardi Gras learned last night that the streets of Picton were not large enough to accommodate all the dancers who wished to take part in the street dance. Hundreds attended the dance and a similar number remained outside the roped-off area because of lack of space.

Tonight's program includes an "ice-sitting" contest and amateur night when amateurs will perform on the Canadian Legion stage. The I.O.O.F. band of Picton will provide the music.

Shriners Steal Show

While the Mardi Gras parade was easily the most colorful event ever seen in this Prince Edward county town, the Shriners of Rameses Temple, Toronto, stole the show.

Hundreds of fezzed members of the Temple swung through crown-packed streets to the music of the gaily-caparisoned bands. The stern-visaged "Arabs" drew rounds of acclaim as they marched through the main street for the Fair Grounds, and back.

Beautiful jewelled fezzes adorned the heads of Imperial Potentate Reg. Shaw and his Divan from Toronto. With the Potentate were his personal aide Noble J. Bartlett; Chief Rabban Noble Bill Corman; High Priest and Prophet Noble A. Taylor and Oriental Guide Noble D. L. Storey, president of the Belleville Shrine Club.

Noble H. J. McFarland, mayor of the town, extended not only Shrine greetings but that of officialdom. His Worship left nothing undone for the welfare of the town's distinguished guests. Many laudatory comments were heard from visiting Shriners regarding the outstanding hospitality extended them by their fellow Noble, the mayor and the people of Picton.

Outstanding Float

The color and pageantry of the parade, typical of all Shrine outdoor appearances, won the hearts of the populace. The huge float that symbolized the community welfare work of the Shrine, the crippled kiddies, caused a solemn hush to fall over the crowded streets as it passed in review. Nurses, a doctor and crippled kiddies brought out in startling effectiveness the work being done by Shriners the world over.

Waving happily from his cot in Bush's ambulance a little crippled boy with his mother and attendant nurses and representative of the St. John Ambulance Brigade drew reciprocative responses from children and grown-ups alike.

Behind the float and ambulance and bringing up the rear of the parade, came the color party of the Temple. The red, white and blue of the Stars and Stripes and Union Jack melded in waving color with red, green and gold of the shrine flag. The party was respendent in uniforms of beige with jewelled fezzes.

Then came Imperial Potentate Shaw and his members of the Rameses Temple Divan. Jewel-encrusted fezzes sparkled in the July sunlight reflecting pinpoints of light.

Draw Applause

Garbed in red, green and gold was the Rameses Temple Band followed by the Arab patrol in similar colors. The patrol drew the unstinted applause of the spectators as it swung along behind the band in its quaint attire.

The drum and bugle band of the Temple headed shriners from Belleville, Trenton, Napanee, Toronto, Wellington and other parts of the district. All wearing fezzes "the wrecking" crew strode along garbed in fiery red shirts.

White-robed "Arabians" made up the Oriental Band. Capes flowing in the breeze the nattily-dressed musicians made a pleasing picture as they swung to tour the streets to the applause of the crowd.

Members of the Belleville Shrine Club added their own distinctive touch of color with flannel trousers and blue blazers. The "Chanters" led by Noble C. H. Knively, Toronto, a fierce-looking "Arab" with white beard and moustachios won the plaudits of the crowd not only with their marching but their vocalizing during the evening.

British Visitors Surprised By Many Things Here

Visitors to this country from across the sea are often surprised at what they see. Things they expected aren't necessarily the way they thought they would be and some things they didn't expect were here. Take for instance, the case of two ladies from Britain, over here slightly less than a week.

Mrs. Florence Buddle and her daughter, Mrs. Joyce Peterson from London, expected things to be a little more built up. As the ladies put it, "More town that what it is." The original intention of the visitors when they left England, was to come for a visit. Mrs. Buddle's step-daughter lives at R. R. 8, Belleville.

Since arriving here they have looked things over and find what they have seen doesn't look too badly. At the present moment, they are looking for work and as Mrs. Buddle put it, "If we continue to like it, we shall settle in this country."

Another thing which has surprised the mother and daughter is the vastness of the countryside. "It seems," Mrs. Buddle said, "that you have to walk miles before arriving anyplace."

Food is still rationed in England and the ladies are very happy to be some place where they may forget about ration tickets when they visit the stores.

Thurs. Market

Green peppers appeared on several stands at the local market this morning. Vendors were asking 15 cents for two.

Corn was moving steadily at 35 cents per dozen for the short ear and 50 cents for the long. Cucumbers were five cents each and 75 cents a basket. Tomatoes were selling anywhere from 20 to 25 cents for the pint and $1.25 for the six-quart basket. String beans were slow at 20 cents for the pint.

Potatoes held at 85 cents a basket, $1.30 for the peck and $4.50 for the bushel hamper. Huckleberries were 50 cents a quart and $2.50 a basket. Earlier they had sold for 42 cents for the quart. Cherries were $1.00 for the six-quart basket. Carrots and beets were 10 cents a bunch. Cabbages ranged 10, 15 and 20 cents a head.

Observers Feel Living Index Will be Higher

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal officials reported today that the cost-of-living index for June likely will be made public tomorrow.

Usually the index is published about the fourth day of the month, but because of the civic holiday week-end, officials said they will try to get it out ahead of time.

The index climbed three-fifths of a point during May to 187.3 from 186.7, first increase since the peak of 191.5 was reached last December.

Some observers feel that the prices measuring-rod will move to higher ground, pushed ahead by some food prices.

Generally, economists feel that Canada is in for a mild inflationary wave that may swell prices during the next six months because of the continuing demand for wage increases by Canadian and American labor unions, resulting in higher prices for some commodities.

Economists said they did not believe the inflationary wave would be as severe as the one which followed the outbreak of the Korean war.

Double Decker London Buses, Personnel on Goodwill Tour Of Ontario Welcomed by City

Double decker London Transport buses on the final lap of a 10,000-mile goodwill tour through United States and Canada provided a tinge of nostalgia for many Belleville and district residents from "over home" when they stopped in the city overnight.

The three double decker buses off the streets of Old London arrived in the city last evening and this morning were viewed by several thousand local residents. Many took the advantage of a short ride in one of the buses and a big percentage of the people viewing the buses were former English people who had come to Canada to live.

It was a bit of Old England as the Cockney voices answered questions of dozens of interested persons who crowded into the market square area while the buses were on display. People who had visited England or former residents who had not been back home in years sought out the English drivers and conductors with questions relating to "over home" or about the tour.

Kiddies Get Big Kick

Local kiddies got a big kick out of their upper deck ride about the city and the bus did a roaring business during the several hours, in which free rides were offered.

One of the buses was fitted out as a display vehicle with the top deck fitted out with colored pictures of typical English scenery and other points of interest.

Travelling with the buses is a personnel of 22 including drivers, mechanics and representatives of the British Travel Association, which with London Transport, are joint sponsors of the tour.

The party left England about the middle of March and toured the United States and are returning by way of Canada. They will be away from England about five months.

"Not a holiday, but a real experience," was the way one of the Cockney drivers described the trip.

At a civic reception tendered the touring personnel held at the city hall. Mr. Harry Price, public relations representative for the tour, explained that insofar as Canada was concerned the trip was a goodwill tour. "The American phase of the tour was more of an educational nature," he said.

Welcomed by Mayor

Mayor A. M. Haig expressed the official welcome to the tour personnel and assured that anything concerning England was dear to the hearts of most residents of this city and district.

Attending the reception were most of the city aldermen, heads of civic bodies and presidents of various service clubs and other organizations. Coffee and doughnuts were served by the ladies of the city hall staff.

Following their arrival in the city last night, Mr. Price, Edwin Hills and Edwin T. Bonny, mechanical supervisor, were entertained to dinner by the Industrial Commission.

The high double decker English buses are not built for Canadian highways, it has been found by their drivers, who have to make numerous detours around low bridges and subways.

Had to Make Detour

For instance they could not get under the highway bridge at Trenton and had to go north around by Campbellford to get across the Trent River.

Double decker buses are favored in England because of their high seating capacity—56 passengers—with compact dimensions. It is explained that short highly manoeuvrable vehicles are essential in many of England's old cities and towns with their traffic congested, narrow winding streets and sharp corners.

They are powered with 125-horsepower diesel engines. London Transport has 7,250 double deck buses and another 1,000 single deckers.

Boy, 4, Killed in Fall from Car When Door Opens Accidentally

Thrown out onto the highway when he accidentally opened the rear door of his uncle's car, Garry Roy Brownlee, age 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brownlee, of Cannifton, was instantly killed Wednesday afternoon.

The lad was thrown onto the highway striking his head on the pavement and was struck by an oncoming car driven by a Mr. Wayne of Toronto. The accident occurred on No. 14 highway about one mile south of Springbrook.

The boy had been sitting in the rear seat with his mother when he suddenly took hold of the door handle and accidentally released the catch. The force of the wind pulled the door open and pulled the lad out of the car.

Coroner Dr. R. S. Beatty of Madoc said there would be no inquest. Cpl. Jack Hatch of the Madoc Provincial Police detachment investigated.

The Brownlee family came to Cannifton six months ago from Hamilton where they were members of the Standard Church. The boy is survived by his parents, a sister Sharon and a brother Robert.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Industrials moved upward today in mixed early afternoon stock market trading while base metals declined slightly after yesterday's advance.

Golds showed more strength than was evident yesterday but no definite trend was visible in slow trading. Western oils were firm.

Trading covered a broad list of issues but the volume was not heavy. For the first three hours it totalled 865,000 shares.

Steels drew most industrial support, with Atlas, Canadian Vickers and Canadian Westinghouse making the strongest gains.

Base metals tended lower. Chromium, Dominion Asbestos, Base Metals and United Asbestos slipped.

Selected western oils drew support but most issues slipped. Canadian Williston, Gas Exploration, Marigold, Scurry and Trans Empire were lower.

Junior golds drew speculative support and senior golds were firm. Prospects were mixed and holding companies slipped.

Kinsmen Street Carnival Opens With Eight Amateurs Competing for Special Prizes

The four-day Kinsmen street carnival and amateur contest got away to a good start Wednesday night with good crowds attending the first night performance which will be held nightly at Fireman's Park with the grand finale Saturday.

Eight amateurs contested for the night's three prizes with baritone Robert Burke, Harriett Street, singing a popular number to take first place. Second place honors were taken by a winsome Wooler duo, Misses Donna and Leila McColl and third spot by Charles Doucette of Trenton with a guitar and solo number.

Sixteen amateurs will be heard at tonight's contest, while on Friday another 14 will compete. The first three winners each night will be eligible for the finale on Saturday night, the winner of which will get a free trip to New York for an audition for the Ted Mack television show. Saturday's second place winner will go to Hamilton for Ken Soble's amateur hour. Third and fourth place winners will receive cash prizes.

Some of the best amateur talent in the Bay of Quinte district has been lined up for the amateur contest, according to contest chairman Ernie Colebourne.

A good night's fun and entertainment is assured for carnival-goers. In addition to the mammoth Kinsmen bingo with special prizes there are over a dozen other games to play.

Proceeds of the carnival are all for a good cause — the Kinsmen community swimming pool.

PLANNING THE 11 CENT QUESTION

This is only an 11 center, but much more important than any sixty-four dollar question.

Question: "Should the government take the remaining 11c of our tax dollar (Government taxes now amount to 89c of our available tax dollar) and pay all our municipal bills?"

Municipalities like Belleville cannot carry on with only 11c out of every tax dollar. We may plan, but cannot do things. We must be allowed 20 to 30 cents on the tax dollar to supply ourselves with those necessities common to all growing municipalities or suggest that the Government take us over.

The time is not far distant when this question must be decided.

Total Government collection of all taxes means full government control. Where the money is, the power lies. Undoubtedly, whether you like to admit it or not it is a form of Dictatorship or Communism.

Independent self-governing municipalities allowed to retain sufficient of their own moneys to build up strong municipal bulwarks is the strongest threat to dictatorship or communism that exists.

Should our slogan be 25 cents or None?

When talking this over with prominent Belleville citizens I received the following comments:

"Belleville would not spend the money if it had it."
"If the Government don't take it nobody gets its."
"The Government is paying off the National Debt."

Comparing Government power to an Octopus, this comment was made:

"The Government having more brains and foresight than an octopus does not completely drain off the life blood of its victim. Enough energy is allowed to remain that the victim can continue to live, work and supply 89 per cent of its surplus life blood to sustain in ever-increasing power, its devourer."

Are your reactions to these comments the same as mine?

The only Government reply to criticism of its policy that has been published at least to my knowledge has been in the form of an "Offer to Loan" Belleville money.

Loans tide over emergencies but they weaken rather than build up. Why should municipalities plunge into more debt so that the National Debt can be paid off?

Brighton Rink Wins Trophy At Tournament

TRENTON —(Special) — The Brighton lawn bowling team took the Benedict Proctor gold cup home with them last night. They scored three wins for a total of 50 points against a field of 11 rinks.

Mixed rink from Kingston and Peterborough walked off with second place honors. They had two wins collecting 50 points plus seven points. They were awarded electric clocks.

With 46 points and one win the Campbellford rink took the third prize.

The touranment was played at the Trenton Country Club rink yesterday afternoon.

Rinks at Belleville, Peterborough, Colborne, Campbellford, Brighton, Kingston, Stirling and Trenton were represented.

Fish Expensive

Gold fish according to some fishermen are fish worth their weight in gold.

Mark Tripp and O. G. "Buster" Alyea just returned from a fishing junket to Algonquin Park know what they mean.

They were out the cost of two air trips and considerable other expense for a catch of two speckled trout.

They were in camp several days during which time the weather was everything but good fishing weather. One morning they awoke to find three inches of hail blocking the opening to their tent. Most of the time the wind kept the lake riled up.

British Buses Stop in Town For Short Visit

TRENTON. — Speaking of big ones fishermen Charlie Hilton and Bill O'Malley of Trenton, caught a salmon trout worthwhile bragging about. They were fishing at Buck Lake the other day and hooked a 15-pound beauty. They were surprised at the size of the huskie and the fight it put up. It took them just three minutes to heave the big fellow over the side and into their boat. They were using copper line about 150 feet down.

The three British buses travelling United States and Canada arrived here yesterday afternoon, after making a 60 mile detour at Brighton. They came by the back road from Stirling because the bridge crossing the Trent river is not high enough to allow double decked buses to pass.

E. T. Bonny, Osterley, Isleworth, Middlesex, and a crew driving and maintaining the trams, were greeted here by Mayor Kenneth J. Couch and a delegation from the town. Mr. Bonny said it was interesting to note that in London, Canada, the entourage had received the biggest reception. Some 2,500 persons were taken for rides during the stopover there. The expedition was sponsored by the British Travel Association.

Already the three buses with accompanying maintenance vehicles have travelled 9,500 miles across the United States from New York to Los Angeles and back across the country into Canada. At the "hole in the wall" on No. 2 highway at Newcastle the buses scraped through with a half inch to spare.

In Trenton several hundred were taken on sight seeing tours.

Large Male Bear Shot Near Summer Cottage

MARMORA—Recently George Wilde of Havelock accounted for a large he-bear in Belmont township near the lake on which his cottage fronts. He and a guest from Ohio were returning from Havelock to his summer home when Bruin was seen crossing the road. Wilde went to his residence for his gun and suspecting that the bear in the meantime would have struck another road about half a mile from where seen, he made for the spot. The bear, as conjectured, emerged from a swamp and was felled when only his head and shoulders had appeared. When suspended later from a tree, the bear was found to measure 99 inches from the tip of its nose to the end of its toes.

Frankford, Flyers Even Ball Series

Frankford Merchants evened their best-of-three quarter final series with Wooler for the Belleville and District League championship last night by beating Wooler 5-2 at Wooler.

Rosenplot and Farr dueled it out for the first seven frames with walks finally beating Rosenplot who gave way to McColl in the seventh.

The win tied the series for Frankford and the third and deciding game is scheduled for Frankford Friday night under the lights.

In another round of the quarter final series, the RCAF Flyers handed CNR Diesels a 4-3 setback at the air station to square their series at a game apiece. Pat Guzzo blasted Don Boyle in a dandy hurler's duel.

The third game of the series will be played at the CNR Recreation Field, Friday evening at 6.45.

BRAMPTON (CP)—Frank Houghton of Toronto yesterday was sentenced to six months for theft by conversion of more than $1,400 from Universal Plumbing Supply, Limited. An employee of the Malton field office near Toronto, he pleaded guilty to charges of padding the pay roll and adding the names of two fictitious workmen to the employed list. Brampton is about 15 miles northwest of Toronto.

INGRATITUDE IN POLITICS

There is a line in Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta, "The Pirates of Penzance" that holds the clue to the secret of success in the navy. It goes something like this:

"Stick to your desk and never go to sea,
And you may be a ruler of the Queen's navy."

Times apparently haven't changed, except that nowadays fewer and fewer bright young men are aspiring to be rulers of the Queen's navy, while many men, not quite so young, have been devoting much of their times trying to win the favor of the political parties in the United States.

The new rule for success may run like this:

"Stay close to your desk in the grand arm-ee
And you may be the leader of the G.O.P."

Or, music lovers, would you prefer the Democratic campaign song that could be worded as follows:

"Don't declare yourself in the state prim-ar-ee
And you may be drafted as our nom-in-ee."

The conventions of the two great political parties in the United States have been concluded and to foreign observers the results are no doubt unusual to say the least.

At the Republican gathering, a general of the army, whose political beliefs were unknown six months ago, was nominated on the first ballot as the party's presidential candidate, while a man who devoted 31 years of his career to the maintenance of the Republican party as an effective political body was cast aside, not because of his political efforts, but because his personality might not be as effective in influencing the "independents" as that of the general's.

The Democrats, two weeks later, nominated a man who had steadfastly refused to admit for at least six months, that he was even a candidate. By his own statement he was content to be the governor of Illinois, and harbored no presidential aspirations whatever. The candidates passed over by the party included two southern stalwarts who had been campaigning vigorously in all parts of the country since mid-winter.

These most peculiar political manoeuvres would seem designed to destroy the political systems which make them possible. One would expect that the reward for political service would be the support of the party in a legitimate bid for the nomination to the highest office the party can offer. Apparently such is not the case. The reward for political service would seem to be banishment from the fruits of such service.

The political strategists, apparently eager to nominate a candidate who cannot be associated too closely with the workings of the party, have contributed unwittingly to the public assumption that politics is not a good man's pastime or vocation. The political strategists want good men, but from their choices it would seem that they do not want good men who are also politicians by profession and action.

The political life of any country should appeal to the finest instincts of the best men in the country. Public service deserves the best efforts, talents, and abilities available from the people of the country. In the free countries of the world the opportunity for public service in the highest echelons of government is available only as a result of political affiliation with a party that nominates and supports its candidates and is successful in securing their election. But political parties cannot expect good men to devote themselves to their cause when those who have worked most diligently in the party's interest are discarded as candidates for unknowns whose chief claim to the party's support is, apparently, a reluctance to state their political faith, and an unwillingness to spend themselves in campaigning for the party.

Young men who might contribute greatly to the public life of this country as well as to the United States, might understandably be reluctant to assume the burdens of political life with two such glaring examples of party ingratitude as those exhibited by the Republicans and the Democrats at their conventions this year.

WHICH IS LOWEST TAXED?

Which is the lowest taxed of the ten Canadian provinces?

Prime Minister Leslie Frost of Ontario claims, or did claim a few months ago, that the Ontario government takes less of its citizens' money than any of the other provincial governments. We forget the exact figure quoted by Mr. Frost, but it was somewhere between $70 and $80 per capita per annum.

The Montreal Gazette disputes this. It says that Quebec levies only $62.70 per annum, while Ontario levies $79.90 per capita per annum.

The remaining provinces collect considerably more than either Ontario or Quebec.

THAT DIET SHEET

The doctor looked at me and said:
"Beware of pie and cake and bread;
Be strong of will and push aside
Your favorite meat when it is fried.
Shun every sort of food you like
And go upon a hunger strike.

"I would allow a chicken leg
And now and then a soft-boiled egg,
But spread no butter on your toast
And eat no fat of any roast.
Coffee for you will better seem
Without the sugar and the cream."

He handed me a diet sheet
Which listed what I still may eat.
"Just follow this," he said, "and then
In six weeks' time come back again."
"Six weeks of this?" I heaved a sigh.
"If still alive I will," said I.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ENJOYMENT

Enjoyment is something that we have to define for ourselves, for it is something that has little value unless we manufacture it. It's like the bread which we eat that we have earned. The enjoyment that others afford us is a limited affair, but the enjoyment that we create for ourselves has permanence to it.

It doesn't matter what one's occupation may be, so long as it creates enjoyment, and when it does you may well know that the work done is worth while, and that it has been done efficiently. Thrown in free is the enjoyment that all beauty, all nature, and all the accumulated knowledge of the centuries afford us. All of us actually have been born into a rich inheritance!

There is so much in life to enjoy, and from which to form a happy philosophy—one that can be used each day and exhibited as an example for others. This it is that sets one man or woman part from others—from those who complain about having no enjoyment and who have formulated no set plan of life that they can pursue with pleasure and confidence.

Enjoyment is a form of wealth that even money might not be able to purchase. It's something that you select and put to your own use. And one of the happiest results of enjoyment is that you can share it with others, and at no expense to them. It's something, even, that can be given away, or distributed, lavishly!

Nowhere is there so much enjoyment to be had as in nature. Every direction in which you look there is something of interest, something of wonder to note. Another place of enjoyment for many of us is a carefully selected library, where the thoughts and meditations of the great of this earth are recorded.

It is a lesson for us all to note how happily some people get along with the simplest of enjoyments. They can't be priced. They just come and are accepted. Some, however, leave us for lack of appreciation!

LONG TRIP

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP)—This town of 4,000 residents, starting point for the Alaska highway, has obtained a new fire truck—driven from Eastern Canada by Fire Chief Floyd Wilson.

SOOTHING COLORS

WINNIPEG (CP)—If pale pastels have the calming effect claimed by decorators, then Winnipeg councillors will have some peaceful sessions. The council chambers are being redecorated with pale green ceiling and walls of azure blue.

Exchequer Court Rejects Claim Montreal Man

OTTAWA (CP)—The Exchequer Court of Canada has rejected the claim of Gordon C. Wilson of Montreal and Ottawa for compensation for a practice bomb invented during the Second World War.

In a judgment made public yesterday, Mr. Justice C. A. Cameron said Mr. Wilson had no legal basis for a claim against the Crown. He expressed the hope, however, that the government will compensate Mr. Wilson in some way for the helpful suggestions made in development of the bomb.

Mr. Justice Cameron said that if he had had the power he would have awarded Mr. Wilson $25,000.

In his petition, Mr. Wilson asked for a royalty of 10 cents on each of the thousands of practice bombs used by the defence forces.

Mr. Wilson claimed that he invented a cartridge-type practice bomb for use in aircraft and that it was adopted by the R.C.A.F. The Defence Department said that Wilson had invented nothing that what he had suggested had already been published.

Mr. Justice Cameron said there was no doubt that Wilson's suggestions and co-operation had been of "very great importance." They had solved many of the problems with which the R.C.A.F. was concerned in the development of a more satisfactory practice bomb.

Indian Charged After Jury Returns Verdict

SARNIA (CP)—Herbert Rogers, of the St. Clair Indian reserve, was charged with assault occasioning bodily harm last night in connection with the death, July 15, of Wallace Washington, 49, a fellow reserve member.

Rogers was charged immediately following a coroner's inquest in which a five-man jury returned a verdict as follows:

"That Wallace Washington died from lesions to the brain due to an injury, the cause of which injury is undetermined."

Washington died in Sarnia General hospital after undergoing surgery for cerebral hemmhorage.

He was first taken to hospital June 30 after being beaten by unknown assailants during an auto ride home from Port Huron. He was released from hospital after being detained for 24 hours observation.

He was later admitted to hospital on July 13 after neighbors found him unconscious at his home on the reserve.

Milford Cottrell, 38, also of the St. Clair reserve, said at last night's inquest that Herbert Rogers hit Washington once during a roadside argument en route home from Port Huron June 30.

Former Professor Of Queen's Weds London Woman

EDINBURGH (CP) — Emeritus Professor James Alexander Roy, for 30 years professor of English at Queen's University at Kingston was married today to Margaret (Madge) Gordon Fleming of London.

The ceremony, held in a small chapel in the Paris Church of Tolbooth St. John's, near Edinburgh Castle, was performed by Rev. J.A.C. Murray.

The couple, both over 60, have been friends for many years and they purposely chose the parish church for a quiet wedding. Only five intimate acquaintances attended the ceremony and when it was over the couple walked into the busy crowd in Edinburgh's "Royal mile" and disappeared.

Prof. Roy, a noted educationist, was a lecturer at St. Andrew's University here when, in 1920, he accepted a post as assistant professor at Queen's. He returned to his native Edinburgh in 1950 on retirement.

Father at 95 Refuses Order Of 65-Year-Old Son

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Covington police yesterday received a request to help a son get his father out of a tavern—not a particularly unusual request except that the son was 65 years old.

Capt. Edward Beebe sent two patrolmen to the tavern and there they found the 65-year-old son and his 95-year-old father.

Beebe said the officers quoted the father as saying: "I'll go home with you fellows but no kid is going to tell me what to do."

Letter to the Editor

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I am a visitor in Belleville and enjoyed a picnic supper on Zwick's Island. Few cities can boast of such a beauty spot and I hope I may return another season to see that the "City Fathers". have further developed Zwick's Island to make it a greater attraction for the citizens of Belleville and visitors to the Bay of Quinte district.

A Visitor.

A SUNSET DREAM

Long lie the shadows o'er the quiet street,
The motor cars glide smoothly, swiftly by,
A little lad runs by on noiseless feet—
The only sound, the evening breezes' sigh,
So quaint and odd the tourists' cars that pass,
Guided by those who once despised our land,
Who now enjoy a haven here at last,
A hearty welcome, too, on every hand.
And in this sunset hour I seem to hear
The steps of him who faced this trackless wild
Built here a home, to every Briton dear,
With faith and hope and loyalty undefiled.
And in my dream of those far-distant days
I note the spirit of a mind elate,
And wonder if amid our modern ways
There lives a spirit now so brave and great.
Are we too fond of pleasure and of ease
To venture on a new, unbroken trail?
Are we too slow our spirits to release,
But waste our time on work of no avail?
Oh! may we learn a lesson from the past,
And emulate the deeds of those who came
To this unbroken land, so deep and vast,
And left to us a great and goodly name,
Who broke for us the new and virgin sod—
The land a legacy from a living God!

NO CHANGE, LOSES $500

HAMILTON (CP)—Michael Kuylus of Hamilton lost $500 yesterday, all because he couldn't change a five. After withdrawing the $500 from his bank account, Kuylus was approached by two strangers who asked for change for a five dollar bill. Kuylus was suspicious and refused until one of the men got mad and waving a handful of bills at him, shouted that they were no bums. Kuylus then extended his $500 to prove he couldn't make change and one of the pair grabbed the money and ran.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

NECKTIE OR ARTERY

A great religious leader in this country has declared that for some people religion is a necktie, depending upon taste and fancy for acceptance or rejection, whereas in reality religion is the chief artery of the neck, supplying life blood without which one would die in less than a minute.

It is one of the most amazing and disgusting things in life to observe how some people take their religion. "I am broadminded in my attitude toward religion," we hear one of them declare. "I don't think it is necessary to go to church in order to be good. I just try to put the Golden Rule into practice every day and let it go at that."

Religion is not something we can put on and take off like a necktie. It certainly does make a difference whether we go to church or whether we do not go to church. The difference between a praying man and an non-praying man, between a household in which the people are true to their religion and a household in which the people have no religion, is so astounding that the judges on the bench and the policeman in the station house discuss such situations in no uncertain terms. Whatever your religion is, stick to it and show yourself in some measure worthy of its basic contentions.

Religion is not a necktie, it is an artery. It is as necessary to your happiness as blood circulation is to the continuance of your life

MEAT, MILK AND CALCIUM

University of Minnesota investigators maintained one group of rats 35 days old on a milk diet, another group of their littermates on cooked lean meat plus enough calcium gluconate and phosphates to keep the intake of these essenials up to the level the animals received in milk. The two diets were adjusted to provide the same amounts of protein, fat, carbohydrate, vitamins, calcium phosphorus and water.

The animals were kept on these diets for six weeks—that would be equivalent to four or five years of human life—and at the end of this period both groups of animals were found well within the normal in all respects; for instance in the amount of calcium, phosphorus and protein in the bloom serum.

From this experiment the investigators inferred that a diet of cooked ground lean meat supplemented with calcium, phosphorus, carbohydrate (lactose, sugar of milk), fat and vitamins, is as good as a milk diet.

The investigators confirmed their conclusion by keeping two children, ages 12 and 14 years, on a milk diet for fifteen days and then on a calcium-phosphorus-carbohydrate-vitamin enriched or supplemented cooked lean meat diet for another fifteen days—throughout both periods the children's serum, protein, calcium and phosphorus levels did not change significantly from the normal levels.

Offhand it may seem that such an investigation involves a great deal of painstaking scientific work to show—well, what does it show? Does it prove that children or adults can thrive as well on a meat diet as they can on a milk diet if the meat is supplemented with amounts of calcium, phosphorus, fat and vitamins equivalent to the amounts of these essentials present in milk? Uh-uh.

Even if such an experiment did prove that meat when carefully supplemented as described is as good as milk for human nutrition, especially in childhood and youth, of what practical value would the knowledge or information be? Who would take the trouble to add calcium gluconate, di-calcium phosphate, vitamin A, vitamin C, vitamin D and a reasonable amount of fat to his hamburger if for some freakish reason he or she could not or would not consume his minimum daily ration of milk—1 1-2 pints, three glassfuls?

But there is another reason why the inference the investigators drew from the experiment should not apply to human nutrition. There is enough difference between rodent and human economy, physiology and nutritional requirements to invalidate diet or feeding experiments unless they are made on human subjects.

The estimate of a minimum daily consumption of 1 1-2 pints (three glassfuls) of milk for every child or adult is, I believe, the consensus of the nutrition authorities.

This need not be entirely in the form of fresh milk. If one prefers it may be varied by taking instead of part or most of the three glassfuls of milk such items as sour milk, buttermilk, skim milk, cream, butter, any kind of cheese one likes, Bulgarian or Acidophilus milk, yoghurt, custard, evaporated or condensed milk, dried or powdered whole or skim milk.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Let the Man Doze

My husband, a columnist like yourself, sits up late nights reading—and often if I awaken at 2 a.m. I find him dozing in his chair. I tell him he should sleep in bed. (Mrs. ———.)

Answer —You're right, Ma'am, everybody should, more or less, but if the man enjoys napping in his chair like that, it is all right so far as his health is concerned. What I said about dozing after a hearty meal does not apply. It is a bad habit to nap or doze right after dinner, especially for persons of sedentary habit past middle age. What they need after dinner is a walk of a mile or two before they settle down. I hope this is clear without even mentioning apoplexy.

Danger

We are anxious to know whether it would be dangerous to pluck your eyebrows. (L. K. and V. D.)

Answer—You wouldn't live to regret it. But there is no danger in plucking your own if you are silly enough to want to do so.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Certain words and expressions have a tremendous vogue in war time and are almost immediately lost when peace returns. In the first war, it was the word jake. Everything was jake, or jakealoo. The word meant okay, swell, good, agreeable. That'll be jake, said everybody from company cook to colonel. As an adjective, it was universally employed in describing a jake billet, a jake dugout, a jake cigarette. It was a word used by everybody in all the services.

The word died in a few months. It may have died before the troops got home. In the second war, the word was wizard. It began in the Air Force and was obviously of English origin. A man was a wizard pilot, and he flew a wizard plane, and he was in a wizard show. It was a wizard day. Wizard meant even more than jake had meant, thirty years before. It meant not good, but superb.

By the time the war got really going, the word had spread from air force to army and navy. It became the normal everyday word to express the utmost of anything.

In the armed services, you had men from all walks of life herded together on terms of equality and deep integration. The words, the terms they used in their normal speech in their former walk of life were not always of equal meaning. But certain key words, of temporary value, were adopted so that these men of all degrees of education, experience and intelligence, would integrate their ideas at a common level. This may explain the intense popularity of a few words in wartime, and their abrupt abandonment the moment war is over.

To hear two carpenters discussing or planning a job in hand is to discover words that are to be found in no dictionary. All the trades and crafts have expressions, probably dating back hundreds of years, which are incomprehensible to people outside the craft. There is no intention of secrecy or exclusion in these words. They belong to the craft, and can be used in the Maritimes, or California or Yorkshire with complete assurance that the carpenter, the steamfitter, the printer or the upholsterer is understood by his fellow craftsman. Jake and wizard and a few others that come to any soldier's mind belonged to the craft of war.

U.S. Will Soon be Buying Uranium Ore from Two Foreign Sources, S.A. and Australia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uranium ore for the ever-expanding United States atomic program will soon be coming from two new foreign sources—South Africa and Australia.

The U. S. revealed this today in a report disclosing substantial progress in developing improved atomic weapons during the last six months.

The Atomic Energy Commission in its 12th semi-annual report to Congress further disclosed additional uranium may come from new milling facilities in Canada—long an American supplier—and that new sources within the U. S. itself are nearly ready.

Extensive Work

The A.E.C. also said its atomic reactor is scheduled to do extensive work this summer at the Arco, Idaho test station. Described as the world's most powerful research reactor, it is designed to test materials which might conceivably be used in construction of atomic furnaces.

This reactor is said to produce more atomic rays for a given amount of atomic fuel than any known reactor.

Until completion of the reactor this year, Canada had the lead over the U. S. in this field with its heavy-water atomic pile at Chalk River, Ont.

Indicating a vastly increased tempo, the commission revealed its plants for producing atomic explosives had at times been pushed even beyond their designed operating capacity. But new ones are being built and still others are in prospect under the recent $3,500,000,000 expansion program.

New Uranium Sources

As for the new foreign sources of raw uranium, the A.E.C. said the first of several plants being constructed in South Africa to recover uranium from gold ores of the famous old "Rand" gold field is nearly ready to start production, first product of a three-nation agreement of December 1950 whereby Britain and the U. S. will purchase uranium from South Africa.

Concerning the Australian source the A.E.C. said only that an agreement was reached with Australia to supply uranium to the U. S.

The A.E.C.'s report also listed:

1. Progress in the development of atomic propulsion for aircraft.

2. Continuance of a project to build a second type of atomic engine for possible use in a submarine.

Conspicuous by its absence was any reference to progress on the projected hydrogen bomb.

Belt-Tightening Drive Prepared By Great Britain

LONDON (AP)—Britain today prepared a new belt - tightening drive to get out of the red after Parliament approved Prime Minister Churchill's plan to divert some production from defence to exports.

The House of Commons last night approved the Conservative government's new economic program by a vote of 299 to 277 after Churchill warned the alternative was bankruptcy. The plan also calls for a slash in imports and continuation of the wage freeze.

Churchill said full schedules on the arms cutback necessary for solvency will be worked out at a commonwealth economic conference here next November.

The government's proposal to build up exports at the expense of arms was not unexpected. Earlier this month, as Britain's trade became more unbalanced and vital gold and dollar reserves sagged below $1,700,000,000, Churchill warned that "very serious measures affecting the domestic and defensive aspects" of British policies were being planned.

Since Churchill became prime minister last fall, Britain's £,500,000,000 defence program has been stretched out from three to four years.

First Stations In Radar Network Now Operating

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has the first stations in her radar network operating now, their screens probing northern skies, and Americans will be coming into this country shortly to man stations of their own.

So far nothing approaching a network is in action and it will be months yet before the chain really is in operation in a big way. But there never will be anything like the vast screen across the far Arctic wastes that has so often been reported. This joint network will cover certain vital areas and will be much farther south than the Arctic circle.

Had Initial Test

Exercise Signpost, finished last week, gave the first few Canadian stations their initial test and another, bigger joint Canadian-U.S. exercise is coming up this winter.

It will, however, be a year yet before Canada's air defences—the radar stations are the outer rim—are in the shape officials envisage. Even the stations now partly operating are not completed.

The U.S. stations—they actually are going to be more numerous than Canadian stations—are being built to supplement the Canadian group to provide added protection for certain American cities.

Stations Not Completed

Original plans were for the first U.S. Air Force station crews to come to Canada in July but officials say this has been put off until September because of delays in getting the stations ready.

Officials are loathe to talk about radar and Defence Minister Claxton has asked newspapers not to report the location of any stations.

It was decided long ago not to try to blanket Canada's northern horizon with radar stations, but to try to throw guards around certain key areas and let it go at that because of the prohibitive cost of doing more. Thus there are bound to be gaps.

Just what the total cost will be has never been made public but will undoubtedly be up in the hundreds of millions of dollars. The cost of a single station with all its modern equipment has been listed as $3,000,000 to $6,000,000.

Campaigns Will Be Costly And Elaborate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States political campaigns this year will be the costliest and best-financed ever staged.

Total expenses probably will run well into the millions of dollars, because the price of campaigning, like everything else, has soared, and the campaigns themselves will be elaborate.

Technically, federal laws fix a limit of $3,000,000 upon the spending of a major political party. But the laws are full of loopholes. For example, there is no limit on the number of national committees that may support a presidential candidate, and each is entitled to collect and spend $3,000,000.

Arthur E. Summerfield, chairman of the Republican national committee, told reporters yesterday his strategy is to first shape a winning plan and organization—and then figure the costs.

Chairman Frank E. McKinney of the Democratic national committee said at Chicago recently the democrats already have $226,000 available in their general fund and another $130,000 in a special rdio-television fund he hopes to build up to $2,000,000.

Price Boss Predicts New Steel Boost Will Cost Average American Family $100 a Year

WASHINGTON (AP)—Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall predicts that the new steel price boost will cost the average family in the United States about $100 a year in higher prices.

Arnall said in a television interview that the $5.20-a-ton price boost he signed reluctantly yesterday would touch off a new round of inflation.

He made it clear that the increase was not his own choice, but was ordered by the acting defence mobilizer, John R. Steelman. Arnall said it was "a very, very bitter pill for me."

Earlier price-control officials had said the cost of living, already at a record high, is almost certain to climb because of "inevitable increases" in some major industries.

A top official said the higher steel ceilings probably will force the government to drop its hold-the-line price policy and centre efforts on keeping apparently inevitable increases small as possible.

Arnall May Quit

Reluctant to discuss the new policies being considered, they said, however, the situation may call for a complete revision of stabilization standards.

This decision probably will await President Truman's return to Washington Aug. 5. Arnall is expected to seek a conference with the president sometime next week.

Some of his close associates, however, said the former Georgia governor may decide to quit as price chief because he considers some of his main weapons for controlling prices have been broken.

Arnall and his aides fought bitterly to hold the steel price hike to $2.84 a ton permitted under the law and existing price standards. Arnall has said that anything above that figure would break the price line.

O.P.S. officials feel the $5.20 increase granted to settle the 54-day strike will lead to a series of price rises and force up the cost of living, many of these increases undoubtedly being felt at retail levels before long.

Mossadegh Given Free Hand In Iran's Policy

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Iran's parliament today gave tentative approval to Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's demand for a free hand to deal with this near-bankrupt country's economic and financial problems

In a speed-up session, members of the Majlis (lower house) passed through two readings a single-article government bill granting Mossadegh unlimited powers for the next six months to implement the nine-point program he had submitted last Sunday.

The bill still must be approved on a third reading, but this was expected to occur without difficulty on Sunday.

Under the terms of the bill Mossadegh can do anything he wishes—actually rule by decree — carry out the reforms he has proposed in economics, finance, banking and employment.

CLAIM FALSIFIED DIARY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army charged last night that Soviet propagandists completely falsified and twisted excerpts from Maj.-Gen. Robert W. Grow's famous diary for which the general was court martialled. The spokesman said the Russian version of what Grow allegedly wrote in his diary "twisted" the general's statements in such a way as to make the United States instead of Russia appear as the potential aggressor.

ISSUE INJUNCTION

TORONTO (CP)—Justice J. L. McLennan yesterday granted the strikebound Sunshine - Waterloo Company plant at Waterloo an injunction barring picketers of Local 3292 of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) from obstructing persons from entering or leaving the plant. A union shop is the main stumbling block in negotiations for settlement of the strike which began July 3.

Minister Makes Bold Statement On Seaway Project

SHEDIAC, N.B. (AP)—Transport Minister Chevrier said last night a heavily-financed "pressure campaign" in the United States Congress has been blocking American participation in the St. Lawrence seaway project.

He said the campaign was probably backed by railways, seaports and private corporations.

The impromptu remark was made at a question-and-answer session following his address to a public meeting here.

A listener asked if private lobbying wasn't the reason for failure of the United States to join with Canada in the $800,000,000 project.

"You have hit it right," he replied and added that a pressure group of railways corporations and seaports, including New York and Baltimore had blocked full participation for many years.

This has been obviated recently, he said by a plan whereby canals necessary for navigation purposes would be built on the Canadian side of the international boundary while the State of New York would handle the power development end in conjunction with Ontario.

Mr. Chevrier said the 100-year-old dream of a deep sea waterway linking the head of the Great Lakes with the Atlantic Ocean was closer to reality now than it has ever been.

WEDDINGS

KELLOGG—RUTHERFORD

On Wednesday, July 30, at 3:00 p.m., Colborne United Church, Colborne, was the setting for the marriage of Mary Helen Rutherford, of Colborne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mackenzie Rutherford, to the Rev. James Clare Kellogg, of Cookstown, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Kellogg, of Port Hope. The Rev. A. Peebles officiated, assisted by the Rev. M. R. Brown.

Mr. S. A. Gordon, church organist, rendered the traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Margaret Hillis.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her floor-length bridal gown of white lace over white satin, with fingertip veil and headdress of seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white and pink roses.

Mrs. J. R. Fleming was matron of honor, gowned in green net over taffeta, while the bridesmaids, Mrs. Lloyd Kellogg, and Miss Verna McNally, were attired in grey net over rose taffeta. All carried baskets of sweetpeas.

Mr. Lloyd Kellogg, of Port Hope, was groomsman, and the Rev. F. J. Whiteley, of Picton, and Mr. D. M. Rutherford, of Morrisburg, were ushers.

At the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother, attired in grey crepe and lace with navy and pink accessories received, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore navy lace and crepe with white accessories.

For motoring through Northern Ontario, the bride chose a navy and white checked dress with navy accessories and corsage of pink roses.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg will reside in Cookstown, Ont.

ROSS—O'NEILL

A pretty, double-ring wedding ceremony took place on Saturday, July 12, at 10:00 a.m., in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, when Rose Elizabeth O'Neill, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James O'Neill, became the bride of John Raymond Ross, of Belleville, son of Mrs. William Ross and the late Mr. W. D. Ross. The Rev. Francis J. O'Neill, brother of the bride, performed the ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass. Mr. James Cox and Mr. Robert Ross were acolytes. The altar was beautifully decorated with gladioli and hydrangeas interspersed with ferns.

Miss M. Flurey rendered the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Miss Carolyn Forhan, who sang, "Ave Maria", "Panis Angelicus", and "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a gown of white nylon net over satin, featuring a molded, strapless bodice and nylon lace jacket with lily-point sleeves. Her three-quarter, lace-edged circular veil of tulle illusion was held by a Juliet cap inset with lily-of-the-valley, and she carried a fan-shaped bouquet of red Sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Kenneth Rashotte, of Tweed, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a floor-length gown of pastel blue nylon net over taffeta with lace cape, featuring a Madonna collar, with matching headdress and mitts. She carried a fan-shaped bouquet of pink Sweetheart roses.

The Misses Mary and Joan O'Neill, sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids, wearing gowns of mauve and yellow nylon net over taffeta, respectively, fashioned on lines similar to that of the matron of honor. They wore matching headdresses and carried fan-shaped bouquets of coral Sweetheart roses.

Mr. William Ross, of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Mr. Leo Ross, of Belleville, also brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Leo Callaghan, of Toronto, were ushers.

Following the wedding ceremony, dinner was served at Tobe's County Gardens. The bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, and vases of summer flowers. Later, a reception and buffet luncheon was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother, attired in navy sheer with white accessories and corsage of pink roses, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a gown of navy and white figured nylon and white accessories and corsage of pink roses.

Following the reception, the young couple left for Bel Air, Maryland, U.S., where they were guests of the bride's brother, Mr. John O'Neill, and Mrs. O'Neill. For travelling the bride chose a dress of navy sheer with white accessories, and corsage of pink cornflowers. Mr. and Mrs. Ross will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Prescott, Kingston, Oshawa, Tweed, Peterborough, and Stoco.

LUPENETTE—PARNELL

Tall standards of pink and white gladioli and ferns formed a lovely setting in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, on Saturday, July 26, at 9:00 a.m., for the marriage of Doris Helene Parnell, of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. Harry C. Parnell, to Ronald Angelo Lupenette, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Lupenette. The Rev. Father Murphy officiated. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

The traditional Wedding March and "O Mother Beloved" was rendered.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Wrexford Gilmour, the bride was radiant in her ballerina-length bridal gown of white silk eyelet organdy and nylon sheer featuring a bouffant skirt over white taffeta, and a fitted bodice of eyelet organdy. She wore a matching hat and mittens with shoulder-length veil, and carried a shower bouquet of glamelias, stephanotis and adiantum fern.

Miss Arlene Lupenette, of Belleville, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid, gowned in a lime green taffeta with tight-fitting bodice, with matching bolero and nylon net overskirt. She wore a bonnet styled hat and matching mittens, and carried a nosegay of yellow Gloria roses, button poms and gladioli florettes.

Mr. Ronald Guest, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Russell Langman, and Mr. Gerald Bullied, both of Belleville, acted as ushers.

The wedding breakfast was held for fifty guests at the Golden Acre Inn, Kingston Rd., where the bride's mother, wearing champagne crepe with brown accessories, received, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore navy blue sheer with white accessories. The former wore a corsage of Talisman roses and the latter, a corsage of Bettertime roses. The bride's table was centred with a pillared wedding cake, while pink and white streamers and bells formed a cascade canopy.

For the wedding trip to "Delmonte-in-the-Pines", Muskoka, and Niagara, the bride donned a white faille suit with navy and white accessories with corsage of glamelias. Mr. and Mrs. Lupenette will reside at 25 Bridge Street East, Belleville.

24 Newfoundlanders Will Study Welfare and See Life In Canada by Short Course

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—An experimental course at the University of Toronto school of social work has brought 24 Newfoundlanders here to study welfare and incidentally to see life in central Canada.

The 21 men and three women are welfare workers with the eastern province's public welfare department. This advanced course was organized for them at the request of Newfoundland's minister of public welfare, Dr. Herbert L. Pottle, as a natural followup of training they took in St. John's.

"The minister felt it desirable that welfare workers with the department have more continuous training," said Prof. John S. Morgan of the school of social work, director of the course. "Secondly, Dr. Pottle is anxious that his staff have real contact with the rest of Canada."

Mornings the students attend lectures on such standard topics as case work, interviewing and legislation.

Visit Agencies

Afternoons they frequently visit neighboring welfare agencies. Already they have attended a session of Toronto juvenile family court, visiting the girls training school at Galt, Ont., and the boys training school at Guelph.

Stuart Godfrey, Newfoundland's assistant deputy minister of welfare, is here as a member of the group. He also acts as information officer when discussions turn to welfare problems peculiar to Newfoundland.

Juvenile delinquency, he explained, is perhaps less of a welfare problem in Newfoundland than it is in other parts of Canada. Communities are close-knit and small. Church and school have woven strong ties.

On the other hand, housing has become a difficulty in St. John's and also in the rapidly growing industrial centre of Corner Brook.

"What to do with the able-bodied unemployed," was another problem in a province where the scattered population largely was dependent on seasonal work such as fishing.

Enthusiasm for welfare work runs high in this new province. Seven hundred persons have applied for the 70 openings in the public welfare department since it was organized two years.

Teachers Preferred

Workers were given preference if they had been teachers or worked in related fields because they would have had experience in dealing with people.

Women were kept pretty much in St. John's, not through any discrimination but because living could at times be rugged in the outports where many a welfare worker did his visiting by boat or dog-team.

A basic in-training program was set up by the department, but after two years the minister wanted his staff to have further training. As a result the six-week course was opened this summer.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Divorced her husband — Now wants him back

Dear Miss Fairfax:

After five years of a very unhappy marriage because my husband shirked his responsibilities as a father and husband, I divorced him two years ago. He never could hold a job very long, which naturally caused quarrels in which I was abused and mistreated.

However, since my divorce I have not been happy either, as I still have love for my ex-husband. A few months after the divorce he got himself tangled up with a woman, and as she was to have his child, he married her even though he did not love her. A few weeks ago I ran into him, and he told me that he still loves me and is so upset mentally because now, at the age of 28, he realizes the wrong he did me. I love him and always will, and feel that if I could have him back, all three of us—myself, my ex-husband and our little daughter—would be very happy.

What do you think I should do?
U. M.

Dear U.M.:

I would not be at all certain that to remarry your former husband, if he were to divorce his present wife, would be at all the wise thing for you to do. Even though he tells you he now realizes that he treated you badly, it does not prove that he has really changed sufficiently so that you could be sure there would be no danger of his repeating the same kind of behavior.

During the time that he has been married to this second woman, has he shown that he has gained in responsibility by keeping a steady job? Have you any reason to believe that he has done right by his second wife in every respect? In what do you place your apparent belief that a future with him would be better than the past turned out to be?

Personally, I'm inclined to think that the chief reason you want to marry him again is because you are lonely. If some other man were to come along who loved you and wanted to make a good home for you, and was the dependable, responsible type whom you could trust, and with whom you would have a chance of real happiness, don't you think perhaps you would be even more anxious to marry him?

Unless you have more sound reasons than you have told me for believing that your first husband is a changed man, I advize you to put him out of your mind and get busy finding opportunities to make new friends and create a whole new life for yourself in which you will be busy and happy whether married or not.

If you defy convention, you must accept the consequences

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Why do nosey neighbors so often make life uncomfortable for a widow who happens to have men friends who come to see her and sometimes take her out?

I am a woman 45, and think I should be able to live my own life without having my neighbors gossip about me, especially when I am doing nothing wrong. But because I see a great deal of a man whose working hours make it impossible for him to come to see me except after nine o'clock at night, so that he usually stays until one or two o'clock, I hear that rumors have started in my neighborhood that I am not living the right kind of life.

What is your view of such a situation?—A. W. R.

Dear A. W. R.:

None of us can afford to defy convention entirely unless we are quitely willing to accept the natural consequences.

Surely you realize that, however harmless it may be, people are going to gossip of any woman, single, married or widowed, does anything as unconventional as entertain a man till all hours of the night. I think you will simply have to decide which means the most to you, your friendship with this man, or what other people are going to think and say, and be guided accordingly.

Food for Thought

Homemade Vegetable Soup

By Mary Moore

From a completely reliable authority I have the assurance that Canadian housewives do not need to panic because of the U.S. steel strike causing a shortage of tinplate for canned goods. Canadian supply of tinplate for tin cans is independent of American production. Steel plants in Hamilton, Ontario, fabricate tinplate for Canadian manufacturers of canned goods.

This does not mean that hundreds of you are not or will not be busy as bees canning, jamming, jellying and freezing your surplus supplies of vegetables and fruits. Just as it should be in our beloved land of plenty too.

I have made a promise to Mrs. U. S. to print in this space of ours a method for making a good homemade vegetable soup for canning and today's the day.

CANNED HOMEMADE VEGETABLE SOUP

(With meat)

Six lbs. of beef soupbone with some meat—about 2 lbs., 5 quarts water, 2 tablespoons salt, 12 peppercorns, 1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate (MSG or Ac-Cent), 1 cup each chopped onions and celery. Roughly cut the meat from the bones and cut small and brown in 4 tablespoons beef drippings or other fat. Add the bones, and the water, cover and bring to boil and simmer 3 hours. Add all remaining ingredients, bring to a boil, cover and reduce heat and simmer 1 hour longer. Strain. Return pieces of meat to the broth. Chill, then remove fat.

There should be 16 cups of this stock. To it add 2 cup each peeled chopped tomatoes, finely chopped celery, cut up green beans, fresh peas, chopped onion, finely diced carrot, 1 cup finely diced turnips, 1 cup macaroni alphabets, 2 tablespoons each chopped parsley and chives, and if desired, 1-2 cup raw rice. Cover and bring to boil and simmer 20 minutes. If rice is used boil it 1-2 hour. If desired to keep their green color the parsley and chives may be added during the last 2 or 3 minutes. Pour into sterile jars and seal to within 1-4-turn of tight. Process in hot water bath for three hours. Since this soup contains so many non-acid vegetables this long processing time is absolutely essential. Pressure canner 55 minutes at 10 lbs. for

(Without meat.)

These quantitieis make about 10 quarts.

One peck tomatoes, 10 medium onions, 2 quarts corn cut from cobs, 2 quarts shelled-out lima beans, 2 medium bunches of celery, 5 quarts water, 1 large head cabbage very finely shredded, 2 cups diced or ground carrots, 3 sweet red peppers, chopped, 2 sweet green peppers, chopped, 1-2 to 1 cup salt (depending on your taste), 1 teaspoon pepper. Peel and pare and wash all of the vegetables. Add the beans to the boiling water first and the tomatoes last with the salt and pepper. Cook slowly covered until all vegetables are tender. If desired add 1 to 2 teaspoons MSG to give the soup a flavor reminiscent of chicken. Pour into sterile quart jars and seal. Process for 3 hours in hot water bath as above.

CANNED SWISS CHARD

(Use this method for spinach or beet tops or kale.)

Use only sound tender leaves —it is preferable to cut off stems. Wash in 5 or 6 waters until no traces of sand are left. Cook, covered, in water which clings to leaves, until thoroughly wilted—about 5 or 8 minutes, turning several times during cooking. Pack loosely, very hot, in sterile jars. With long sterile knife cut greens crosswise to bottom of container. Add 1 teaspoon salt to each quart. Cover with boiling water, leaving 1-2 inch headspace. Process in boiling water bath 3 hours for quarts; pressure canner at 10 lbs. 60 minutes.

EEL KING

LONDON (CP)—Bob Cooke, known as London's "jellied eel king," left his widow an estate of £40,000 on his death recently at age 60. Most of the money was from sale of the curious delicacy. Cooke believed in a quick turnover with no middle man.

GOOD MANNERS

By CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Don't sign gift-card "Mr. and Mrs. —— and family" . . instead list names

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our family is a large one, and every now and then we want to "pool our resources" and send one present; for example, an important wedding present, or a wedding anniversary present. But always there arises the problem as to how we should write the card to be enclosed with the gift. To list all the names seems a bit overdoing it. Would you advise our signing the card "from Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brown and family"? (We are very soon to send a gift for the September wedding of the daughter of dear family friends.)—"Us."

No, I definitely don't advise this. . .because since each member of the family makes an individual contribution, it's only fair that he and she should be individually, and therefore clearly, listed. Please do this, no matter how many names are to be listed. As a matter of fact, the more names, the merrier. . .The bride and groom will be delighted with such "community" thoughtfulness and generosity. And I think there should be the "extra, added attraction" of having each one sign his or her name on a generous-sized card! Not much satisfaction in the vague "and family". . .vast delight to the receiver-of-a-gift in knowing who devotedly contributed.

Informal invitations should say definitely when there is to be no reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When invitations to an informal wedding are given by telephone or by notes, would it be improper to casually mention that no reception or celebration of any kind is to be held after the wedding ceremony?—C.

It is proper. . . very wise and practical too. . .to say, when the invitations for the informal church wedding are being given by telephone or note, that there is to be no reception or gathering after the ceremony. And this information should not be given casually, but straightforwardly, so that each person being invited will be informed of the plans, and so will not feel "left out" of an invitation to the reception. The information might be worded (after the information has been given as to the place, day and date, and hour): "We do want so much to have you with us at the church ceremoy. . . .and particularly since there is to be no reception of any kind after the ceremony."

Should have breakfast waiting at reception-place

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are to be married in a Catholic church in the city, and our reception is to be in my aunt's home in the suburbs. (My parents are dead, and my aunt has always been very kind to me.) It will be necessary for us and our six attendants to fast until after the marriage ceremony has been performed. This creates a problem as to our stopping to have breakfast on our way to the reception, and thus arriving at the reception after the guest arrive. This seems most discourteous to me. But how can we solve it? My aunt suggests she can explain to the reception guests why they have to wait.—Marion S.

This isn't a very unusual problem. . . .and the practical way to do is to plan to have breakfast, the simplest and quickest breakfast, waiting at the reception. Do realize that if you and groom and your attendants "stop to have breakfast on your way" to the reception the chances most definitely are that you'll take a lot of time not only breakfasting, but also talking of this-a and tha-a about the wedding. It just isn't courteous to keep your guests waiting.

BEAUTY

Superfluous hair

Few good-looks defects can make a woman more unhappy than an incipient moustache or little fuzzers on the chin. Facial fuzzers may appear at any age— in the late teens, at the mid-channel period or in the seventies. There is no accounting for the appearance of hair on a woman's face, though sometimes it is inherited when both parents have a heavy grouth of coarse hair. It has happened in many cases.

Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Facial hair may appear at any age

In every pore of the body, except the palms of the hands and the soles of the feet, there is a tiny hair. It is only when these shafts develop into elongated threads or bristles that they should be regarded as blemishes. If there is a soft down on the cheeks, it should not be tampered with. If bristles appear on chin or lip, they can be removed by means of the electric needle, a method that has been used successfully for more than fifty years. This treatment is not suitable for the removal of growths on the arms or legs, as each shaft must have individual attention and the process of elimination is slow.

A soft, pliable needle, usually of gold, is inserted in the pore beside the hair. An experienced operator will have fingers so sensitive that, if the pore slants or twists, the needle will be directed to the root. The electric current is turned on. The papilla, which creates the hair and from which it emerges, will be destroyed. In that event a new growth is impossible.

Correctly accomplished, with a limited current, the delicate tissues of the skin will not be burned; no scars will result. In the old days, when a stiff steel needle was used, scars were a common occurrence.

The hair is removed with the tweezers. If it offers the slightest resistance, the operator knows that the papilla has not been destroyed; then the needle is inserted again.

The beauty-patient can make an appointment for a fifteen-minute sitting, during which time—with the multiple needle method —a considerable number of shafts will be removed. She can watch results. If there are no new hairs within a month or so, she can know that everything is going well, can resume treatments, have longer sittings. Operators who do this work are listed in telephone directories under the heading "Electrolysis."

It is not true that electrolysis stimulates a heavier growth, as one hears from individuals who know nothing about the subject. Nor is it true that a hirsute growth is caused by the use of oily cosmetics. If that were the case, there would be no baldheaded men. Mama's cold cream would restore Pappy's crowning glory.

Leader U.S. Delegation Says Communists Debasing Red Cross Perhaps Destroying It

TORONTO (CP)—James T. Nicholson, vice-president of the American Red Cross, today struck back at attacks made against the United States for the last week at the 18th International Red Cross conference.

The leader of the U.S. delegation—which so far has maintained silence in the face of daily attacks by Communist countries attending the conference—said the repeated charges "are debasing the Red Cross and perhaps destroying it."

He spoke after Polish, Red Chinese and North Korean delegations monopolized nearly two hours of discussions which were supposed to concern only the ratification of the 1949 Geneva conventions. A few minutes later the general commission of the conference voted 60 to 13 to cut off the debate.

The U.S. delegation, Mr. Nicholson said, had been convinced that "certain" countries would attempt to use the international conference as a platform for continuing their propaganda attacks against the U.S. His country had decided to remain silent and so far had done so.

"However, the patience of the U.S. delegation has been sufficiently tired," he said. "We feel we jently tried," he said. "We feel we should not much longer be plagued with such allegations.

"The United States Red Cross is not on trial at this conference, and the United States is not on trial. Ladies and gentlemen, the Red Cross is."

Immediately after the session, C.B. Marshall, head of the U.S. government delegation which has only observers and not voting delegates here, held a press conference.

He said the countries which had monopolized the meetings here for propaganda purposes "understand human relations only in terms of conflict."

Mr. Nicholson, who also attended the press conference, said in reply to questions that he has a real fear that the Red Cross could be destroyed by the Soviet bloc attacks.

"Once you destroy the basic Red Cross principle, which is compassion, you destroy all its organization," he said. "If the Red Cross is destroyed, it means a return to barbarism."

French Swimmer Wins Gold Medal For 400 Metres

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—Jean Boiteux of France won the gold medal in the men's 400-metre Olympic swimming today, first of three final events to be decided.

The United States, anxious for points to catch up with Russia in the point standing, took second with Ford Konno, Ohio State University star from Hawaii.

Canadian Boxer Wins

Canada's Len Walters of Vancouver advanced to the quarter-final of the boxing tournament in the featherweight class, defeating Germany's Willi Roth on a split decision.

In basketball the United States advanced to the final round by defeating Brazil but it was a close call 57-53, and the Americans had to overcome a 26-24 half-time deficit.

Argentina lost its first game of the semi-final series, an upset overtime 66-65 win for Uruguay, and France took a shocking defeat at the hands of Bulgaria 67-58.

Records Broken

In the women's 400-metre swim relay, the United States team broke an Olympic record in winning a preliminary heat. Eight teams advanced. Canada did not qualify.

Boiteux's time in winning the men's 400-metre race was 4:30.7, well under a record 4:33.1 he set yesterday in a heat. The old mark is 4:41 made in 1948.

Walters and Roth fought a rather tame bout. There was some mild booing when the verdict was announced.

Walters fought coolly and cleverly. The shock-haired German kept boring in, swinging wildly but seldom doing much damage. It was pretty much a case of brains vs. brawn, with Walters getting in some fine counter-punching.

In water polo the United States pulled a surprise by upsetting Belgium 4-2 in the semi-final round.

RAWDON

Ninety-Six Members Attend Hubble Clan Reunion Picnic

RAWDON. —The third annual family re-union of the Hubble clan was held at Stirling Agricultural Park on Sunday last.

A basket dinner was spread on the long tables in the dining hall and 96 members of the clan and their friends enjoyed an appetizing meal. The cool breeze blew in the various openings in the buildings making it an ideal place to eat. Plenty of ice-cold orangeade was passed around and the full-course meal lacked nothing in variety.

Tribute of Silence

Following the dinner the vice-president, Mr. Everett Hubble, Sidney township, spoke briefly and expressed deepest sympathy to Mrs. Lorne Hubble, whose husband was the president of this group, before his death last autumn: a period of silence was held in his memory.

Mrs. Jack McColl, Wooler, arranged the prize list and they were distributed as follows—

Oldest person, Mrs. Walter Barker, Stirling, 80 years of age.

Youngest baby, Doreen Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hubble, Glen Ross.

Child under one year, Jimmie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Orr, Hastings.

Newest married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hubble, Kingston.

Largest family present, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hubble, Glen Ross. Eleven were in the group, children and grandchildren.

Family coming greatest distance, Mr. and Mrs. Selburne Theed, and daughter, Montreal.

Longest married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hubble, Foxboro, 45 years.

An ovation and birthday greetings were tendered Mrs. Lorne Hubble, who had a birthday anniversary on Monday, July 28.

Indiana Guests

Mention was made of six guests from Evansville, Indiana, U.S., Mr. and Mrs. John. Reid and daughters, Beverly and Barbara; Mrs. Edna Sherry and Mr. Thomas Hampton, who were holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Irvine, Ivanhoe and came along for the picnic dinner.

Members of the clan were present from Montreal, Oshawa, Coe Hill, Tweed, Foxboro, Belleville, Kingston, Hastings, Toronto, Batawa, Burnbrae, Wellman's, Mt. Pleasant, Stockdale, Frankford, Springbrook, Peterborough, and all nearby points in Sidney township.

Over 25 additional persons arrived in the afternoon and all enjoyed a social visit under the shady trees.

The children were entertained with a few races in charge of Messrs. Everett, Albert and Donald Hubble.

Under five years (mixed)—Kathie Hubble, Doreen Hubble.

Under 8 years (mixed)—Peter Orr, Bobby Kemp.

Girls, 8-12—Dawn Hubel, Gwen Kemp.

Boys, 8-12—Bobby Kemp, Bobby Orr.

Girls 12 and over—Betty and Gwen Kemp.

Boys, 12 and over—Carl Kemp and Glenn Flood, and these two boys also won the three-legged race.

Treats were provided for all the children.

Mr. Everett Hubble called the gathering to order and spoke briefly. Mrs. Wallace Orr gave a resume of last year's picnic when 17 families registered. Seventy invitations were mailed for the 1952 picnic by the secretaries.

Officers Elected

President, Mr. Everett Hubble, Belleville, R.R. 5; vice-president, Mr. Cecil Hubble, Foxboro; treasurer, Mrs. Wallace Orr, Hastings; secretaries, Mrs. Ross Hubble, and Mrs. Percy Hubble, Frankford, R.R. 1; sports committee, Mrs. Jack McColl, Wooler; Mrs. Don Terry, Frankford; historians convener, Mrs. Russell Hubel; assistants, Mrs. Don Terry, Mr. Edward Montgomery, Mr. Everett Hubble and Mrs. Percy MacMullen.

A special book will be purchased to keep intact, minutes, finances and registration.

Entitled to Crest

The registration of names in attendance was in charge of Mrs. John Schwass, Stockdale.

It was pointed out that the correct spelling is Hubbell and all who use that mode are entitled to wear the special clan crest. All others who spell their name differently are not able to use the crest, however, there are a lot who spell the name Hubble and a few who use Hubel.

Mr. Edward Montgomery, of Foxboro, was asked to write some notes regarding the pioneer Hubble families. He has always resided where they were his neighbors. In Murray, his birthplace, he lived beside Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hubble and son, Lorne. When he married and resided on Pump Street in the Mount Pleasant community in Rawdon township, his next door neighbors were Mr. Ira Hubble, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hubble.

In Foxboro, where he now resides he is next door to Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hubble, so it was thought that he could jot down several items of interest for the next picnic.

The contributions were gathered and amounted to $34 and this will be used for current expenses and to supply ice cream and drinks for next years' picnic.

The 1953 picnic will be held the fourth Sunday in July in Frankford Tourist park. The menu is to be sandwiches, cookies and tarts provided by the ladies.

Each year the re-union group has grown and a larger number is expected to be in attendance another year.

Labor Picture During June Much Brighter

OTTAWA (CP) — There were fewer strikes and lockouts during June than in the previous month and the corresponding month last year but there were more workers involved and more time lost, the Labor Department announced yesterday.

During June there were 40 strikes and lockouts in existence, involving 59,364 workers with a time loss of 708,382 days, compared with 42 work stoppages during may, involving 22,973 workers with a time loss of 247,733 days. In June last year, there were 53 strikes and lockouts with 15,937 workers involved and a time loss of 128,510 days.

More than 51 per cent of the time lost during the month and 56 per cent of the total number of workers involved was accounted for by the strike of loggers, lumber and wood products factory workers in the coastal regions of British Columbia. This one dispute involved 33,500 workers and accounted for a time loss of 365,000 days.

Of the 40 strikes and lockouts in existence during June, 13 were in effect prior to the first of the month. Of these 13, five were terminated by the end of the month and of the 27 work stoppages which started in June, 12 were terminated by June 30, leaving 23 strikes and lockouts still in effect at the beginning of July.

For the first six months of this year, there were 119 strikes and lockouts, involving 88,522 workers with a loss of $1,323,045 days. During the corresponding months last year there were 147 strikes and lockouts with 41,800 workers and a loss of 227,927 days.

13 Cars Derailed

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Two Grand Trunk Western freight trains sideswiped south of here today, piling up 13 derailed cars and blocking the road's main line between Chicago and Montreal.

The spectacular collision tossed loaded freight cars into a huge hodge podge but only one person was injured seriously.

He was W. T. Bell, of Battle Creek, conductor of one of the trains, who was taken to hospital for treatment.

The Grand Trunk said its main line would be closed until tonight and possibly tomorrow. Other trains were re-routed.

A broken truck on the eastbound 67-car freight was believed the cause of the crash.

Britain Working On Powerful Rocket Engine

LONDON (AP)—Britain is working on rocket engines "so powerful that they will leave the jet engine behind in a standing start," the Society of British Aircraft Constructors said yesterday.

The society said in a statement it is testing new, powerful rocket devices to drive guided missiles.

"A secondary task for the rocket motors," it added, "is to give an auxiliary boost to jet-powered aircraft for short periods, on take-off, climb or in combat."

Churchill Believes Britain Can Strike Balance Between Defence and Export Problems

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill told House of Commons yesterday that because of financial difficulties it has been decided to "alter the pattern of the defence program," freeing part of the engineering industry to make goods for export.

"It cannot be dogmatically stated that defence has priority over exports or vice versa," Churchill said in the Commons debate on economic affairs.

"We hope and believe that we can with patience strike a balance which will build up our defences without endangering our solvency."

If the cold war continues "we must organize our defence on lines which do not require a constantly expanding expenditure of money and materials over an indefinite period."

Rising prices had pushed up the cost of the three-year rearmament program originally planned by the Labor government. Had the Conservatives not slowed down this program it would have far exceeded the £4,700,000,000 which had been earmarked.

Technical development and improved types of weapons would enable many economies to be made which would result in "a positive increase in war power."

"There can be no assurance of lasting military strength without a firm economic foundation and no defence program can stand without economic resources to carry it through," he added.

This statement was greeted with cheers from Labor members.

Churchill reaffirmed, however, Britain's determination "to stand fast with the Commonwealth, the United States, and our other allies in resisting the encroachment of Communism."

SWEDES PLAN TV

STOCKHOLM (CP)—Sweden was allotted frequencies for 50 television transmitters at a recent european conference here, but it will take 10 or 15 years before the planned Swedish television network of 50 transmitters can be completed. Stockholm expects the first station in 1954.

THOMASBURG

Mr., Mrs. M. Adam's Celebrate Their Golden Anniversary

THOMASBURG. — Tuesday, July 22, will be a day of pleasant memories for Mr. and Mrs. Melburn Adams, of Thomasburg.

Taken for an interesting drive in the morning by their nephew, Ronald Adams, they were surprised on their return, to find their home decorated for a festive occasion, their golden wedding. Their near relatives, nieces and nephews realizing their aunt and uncle had not been too well of late decided to help them celebrate this day of days.

Golden streamers, bells, candles and a three-tiered wedding cake, with gold-beribboned knife and a golden corsage for the bride, were all in readiness.

In the evening, nearly 60 relatives and friends gathered to wish them well. A beautifully worded address written by Mrs. H. Davis, a niece of Mr. Adams, was read and they were presented with a purse of money and several other lovely gifts.

Rev. and Mrs. Norman, newly arrived in Thomasburg, graced the occasion by their presence. Mr. Norman's congratulatory remarks were much appreciated.

Bounteous refreshments were served and a most enjoyable social evening was spent on the spacious and well-lighted lawn.

Their friends and neighbors join in wishing them many more happy anniversaries.

Ike and Adlai Will Swing Into High Gear Around Labor Day for U.S. Presidency

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It will be "Ike against Adlai" when the contenders for presidency of the United States swing into high gear around Labor Day.

"Adlai," is Governor Adlai Ewing Stevenson of Illinois, 52, a Lincolnesque type of intellectual but not a product of the backwoods.

He was drafted by the Democratic party at their hectic and strife-torn convention in Chicago last week and it was a real case of the office seeking the man.

Aloof and Reluctant

Probably Stevenson's friends spent no more than the price of a modest home in an effort to interest the delegates in him as a candidate. He remained aloof and reluctant until called to the convention floor to accept, saying that to reject would be "to repay honor with dishonor."

"Ike" is Gen. Dwight David Eisenhower, one of the greatest and most popular war heroes of modern times, 62 next October and possessor of most of the attributes that make for popularity and public trust.

He too was drafted, in a sense, as the Republican hope to lead that party out of 20 years in political wilderness, but he accepted the draft nearly two months before the convention and really went after the nomination in a dignified and comparatively modest manner.

Small Expenditure

Total cost of the Eisenhower movement and its successful completion probably would total enough to set up a sizeable family in perpetual wealth and security.

In a sense the main battle will be fought by political amateurs and the voters need not expect fireworks and no-holds-barred oratory from the two leaders.

That sort of thing, if it is necessary and politicians apparently believe it is, will be provided by their vice-presidential running mates, Senator John Sparkman, 52-year-old Democratic senator from Alabama with Adlai, and 39-year-old, red-hunting Senator Richard M. Nixon from California, the general's choice.

President Truman has promised to do a typical, whistle-stop campaign for Stevenson, the kind of campaign that snatched for him a Democratic victory in 1948 when virtually none of the forecasters gave him a chance against Governor Dewey of New York.

It is possible Eisenhower will have support in the hustings from Senator Robert Taft of Ohio who suffered a bitter defeat at the Republican convention when his party decided on the first ballot that Eisenhower was most likely to win them the White House.

Adlai 'The Just'

Stevenson was named for his paternal grandfather. "Adlai" is from the Old Testament and means "The Just."

The Democrats' candidate says it should be pronounced "Ad-lay" so far as he knows, but many of the speakers at the convention pronounced it "Ad-lie."

Eisenhower got "Ike" when he was quite young because a child in the family had difficulty with "Dwight" and made it sound like "Ike."

The general came from comparatively poor parents but all his family did well and he is a product of West Point. Stevenson was born to comparative wealth in a family of lawyers and he is one himself. His grandfather was vice-president under Grover Cleveland.

Eisenhower was born in Texas and is, in that sense, a southerner, but most of his young life was spent in Kansas. His running mate is from California and so the ticket can hardly be said to have any deep south appeal.

Young Running Mate

Because it is a common saying that only a heart-beat separates a vice-president from the presidency itself—a fact so tragically exposed in April, 1945, when Roosevelt died suddenly and thrust Harry Truman into the White House—the youth of Eisenhower's running mate may operate against success.

Stevenson is a mid-westerner but an internationalist and liberal in his public views—rather a moderate liberal. His running mate comes from the deep south and is fairly popular there, but not so popular with the northeastern liberal Democrats who would like to see racial equality enforced on the south by federal action. That is a policy which caused a split at the convention last week as it did to a far more serious degree in 1948.

Bulk of the voting members of the Negro population—about 13,000,000—are in the northern states. Negroes have great difficulty in getting to the polls in the deep south. That may be one reason why northern Democrats attach so much importance to their civil rights policy.

Democrats Chances

It would seem that the Democratic team might be the most favorably situated for success next Nov. 4. But their party has been in power 20 years and the mounting instances of petty wrong-doing in high places, favoritism and dipping into the public funds by trusted public servants, high taxation and business controls, may swing the people toward a change.

Obviously the change can come only through a few million people who have voted Democratic in the past five presidential elections, swinging over to the Republican ticket.

Thus the issue will largely swing on the success of two men of outstanding brilliance and proved integrity in selling themselves to the people.

Radio and television have brought to the people in a remarkably intimate degree, the weaknesses and strengths, the personalities and mannerisms of their public heroes.

Need New Tactics

The day is gone when a candidate can have a few set speeches and a few appealing sets of mannerisms and peddle them throughout the country.

What the candidate does and says in New York will be instantly known in Chicago and San Francisco and seen on television by perhaps 60,000,000 people.

Their appeal will have to be at the whistle-stops, the small, impromptu meetings at isolated places and to as many of the people as they can reach in person.

Ike and Adlai are words that will be on the lips of the United States people in a steady drum-fire from now until election day and how the people react will be of interest throughout the world on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

But whichever takes over in Washington next January it seems unlikely there will be any great change in the relations of the United States to the world outside it.

Klan Leader Given Four Years in Prison

WHITEILLE, N.C. (AP) —The Ku Klux Klan's pudgy imperial wizard, Thomas L. Hamilton, was sentenced to four years in prison yesterday for masterminding a flogging.

Superior Court Judge Clawson L. Williams ordered the maximum term for the Klan leader who once boasted he would spread his hooded anti-Negro, anti-Catholic and anti-Jewish secret society across the United States.

Sentence was passed against Hamilton and 62 other Klansmen as the climax of one of the largest mass trials in North Carolina history. It followed a wave of floggings by nightriders who spread terror through the coastal Carolinas last year.

In the other cases, Judge Williams gave sentences ranging from one to two years, many of them suspended on payment of fines. All but one of the Klansmen had pleaded guilty or no contest.

Child Drowns

HALIBURTON (AP) — Five-year-old Herbert Johnston of West Guildford was drowned yesterday in Grass Lake near here. He was playing with a group of other children while on a picnic and apparently slipped into the water.

His body was found floating in the water by searchers who had noticed his absence from the main group.

Haliburton is 110 miles north-east of Toronto.

30 Helicopters Rescue 1,000 U.S. Soldiers

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA — (AP)—Thirty helicopters rescued 1,000 American troops yesterday from a flooded island where they were marooned two days by the rising Pukhan River in eastern Korea.

The river, swollen by heavy rains which began last Saturday, swept over the island around the army camp.

Shortly after noon the fleet of army and marine helicopters began shuttling the men over the river. By late afternoon the movement was completed.

Second Blaze In Three Weeks At Metal Plant

WELLAND (CP)—The second fire in three weeks smouldered early today in raw rubber at the Welland Iron and Metal Company's plant after an outbreak that lasted more than 14 hours and was battled by three fire brigades.

Five firemen were overcome in the fight but suffered no serious ill effects. Much of the plant was gutted in a $50,000 blaze July 8.

There was no immediate estimate of damage in the latest fire. One official said it probably started from cutting torches as a gang of men worked on renovations.

All that remained of the plant following the first fire was the main warehouse, filled with raw rubber owned by the Stokes division of the General Tire and Rubber Company.

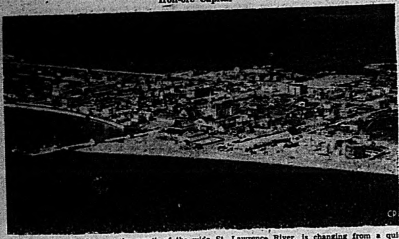
Iron-ore Capital



Seven Islands, Que., at the mouth of the wide St. Lawrence River, is changing from a quiet fishing village to the capital of the huge iron- ore project in Labrador-Ungava. It is the jump-off point into the Ungava wilderness where the ore is found. It will be the railway and docks terminal where the ore is transferred to ships for Canadian and United States mills. — (CP Photo.)

Seven Islands, Part for Ungava's Ore Is 'Home' to 6,000 Construction Workers

(Editor's note: Takeoff point for the new iron-ore development in Labrador-Ungava is Seven Islands, an active little town on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River some 300 miles downstream from Quebec. Forbes Rhude, Canadian Press Business Editor, describes what is happening there in this story, one of a series.)

Seven Islands, at the wide mouth of the St. Lawrence River, is "city lights" for some 6,000 men who work along the 360-mile railway being built into Labrador-Ungava and on associated projects.

There is not much night life, and the honky-tonk features of older construction days has been discouraged, but there are some taverns, bars and lounges and a few places of recreation.

There a man may forget the wilderness for a while or join in a sing-song when someone brings out a guitar.

Sometimes, however, a man in from the bush may be lonely. He may meet a "friendly stranger" who will talk with him, sympathize with him, flatter him—and live off him the manner to which the "friendly stranger" has become accustomed. In a week, a man may spend the stake he has saved in the wilds.

Banker ursemaids

W. D. Ross, manager for Imperial Bank who has served in such other frontier communities as Pickle Crow, Ont., and Yellowknife, N.W.T., says:

"We act as nursemaids for men up and down the line, doing virtually everything for them except their shopping.

"Our ledgerkeeper speaks six languages, our teller four, and the rest of our staff speak French and English. Nearly every race seems to drop in."

Ross says the history of frontier towns is something like this:

"First you can trust everyone—you are dealing with the prospectors, trappers, engineers.

"Then the drifter appears, hoping to take a few dollars while the boom is at the height. You see the same types; sometimes, even, the same individuals. When the tinsel of the construction period fades, they move on. Now they are talking of Kitimat (B.C.) and the aluminum development there."

Seven Islands, before iron-ore development hit it in the '40s, was a village of 800, mostly fishermen depressed through loss in storms of their fishing gear and a band of Indians who eked out a precarious living from the fur trade.

It is located where the St. Lawrence River, about 100 miles wide, flows into the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and it shelters itself behind the seven islands which form a bay and give the town its name.

Today, it is something of a boom town of 3,000 people, with two new luxury hotels, new supermarket, other new construction.

The old section mostly still shows the signs of the hard days and is still without modern sewage, though it hopes to have it soon. A few Indians cling to their ramshackle homes on the outskirts, though modern houses and a large schoolhouse have been built for them a few miles away.

Well Planned

Fortunately, the town as originally laid out has wide streets, parallel to the waterfront, which seem to lend themselves to development along sound lines. It is self-governing municipally — not a "company" town.

Today, it embraces a lot of territory, about 10,000 acres, with a 13-mile waterfront.

Within it, about three miles from the old town, are the modern buildings and services of the base camps of both Iron Ore Company of Canada and the contractors on the railway and associated projects.

Within it will be the giant iron-ore terminals and loading docks, and a townsite for the people who will be employed on them and the railway.

It is even suggested that it may become a grain port, with ore-carrying ships returning from the Great Lakes with grain cargoes which would be transferred there.

Early optimistic reports envisioning a city of up to 50,000 population have tamed down.

Mayor Jack Layden, native of Paris, Ont., who came to Seven Islands in wartime as a radio operator with the R.C.A.F. and now is personnel manager of Iron Ore Company, predicts a population of about 5,000 when construction ends and the town settles into an ore-handling port.

However, Labrador-Ungava probably is only at the start of its development. Some of the more optimistic forecasts may yet come true.

Shiny New WSB In Existence With New Powers

WASHINGTON. (AP) — A shiny new Wage Stabilization Board, free from the controversy which surrounded its predecessor, came into legal existence today.

As yet unmanned, the new board will look much like the old W.S.B. which, with a membership of 18 representing the public interest, labor and industry, was ordered disbanded by Congress because of recommendations it made last March in its effort to settle the critical steel dispute.

The new W.S.B. has no power to deal with country-wide labor disputes; all its members will need Senate confirmation; and all regulations it may issue to control wages must be cleared first by the economic stabilization agency headed by Roger L. Putnam.

Crossed One Hurdle

The new board has already crossed one hurdle; the A.F.L. announced that it will reappoint its representation on the old board to the new board. The C.I.O. maintained official silence but there was no question that it would participate.

Scheduled for the chairmanship is a Harvard law professor, Archibald Cox, now co-chairman of the Construction Industry Stabilization Commission.

The new W.S.B. to be named by President Truman will likely contain several men who served on the old board.

Missing from the new board will be Nathan P. Feinsinger, chairman of the outgoing board.

Feinsinger was chief target of congressional wrath for the settlement proposals in the steel dispute.

East Germans Restricted By New Travel Decree

BERLIN (CP) —East Germans may not leave their homes for mmore than 24 hours without telling Communist police, it was learned yesterday when West German authorities received the text of a new travel decree.

The new law affects travel both to the west and within the Soviet zone of Berlin. Would-be travellers to West Germany, or even to the western sectors of divided Berlin, now face a searching inquisition as to why they want to go and whom they intend to see.

The Soviet-style wording of the law, dated last Saturday, indicates that permission to visit the west will rarely be granted.

The law also provides that the vigilant eye of the state security service will be on all East Germans who dare to travel away from their own town or village.

Anyone who wants to go away for three days or more must get police permission. Anyone who spends 24 hours away from his own district must register with the police of the place he is visiting.

FOOD CAMPAIGN

KARACHI (CP)—The Punjab provincial government in Pakistan estimates the "grow more food" campaign will eventually result in cultivation of all the present uncultivated area of more than 2,000,000 acres in the Punjab.

More Steel Will Go to US Defence Production

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States defence production will take double its normal share of the country's steel output during the next six months.

An official handling military production problems said today this will necessarily mean less steel, temporarily, for civilian use, and a return in part to the system of wartime priorities for military production.

He said the U. S. lost 20,000,000 tons of steel during the 54-day steel strike.

Defence orders would have taken about 15 per cent of that production, he said. To make up this 3,000,000-ton loss, the military's share of the first 20,000,000 tons produced after resumption of full production will have to be increased to 30 per cent, or 6,000 tons.

MINOR BASEBALL PLAYDOWNS!

The Ontario Baseball Association in its bulletin yesterday paved the way for the minor baseball playdowns in a manner that should not only relieve the secretary and his staff of a lot of work but result in general satisfaction with leagues and clubs.

The parent body has appointed classification chairmen, all of whom will direct and supervise playdownas in their respective classes. They will be responsible for playdowns and championships and will handle all details from their own offices. This should result in not only quick championship decisions but get them "in the bag" by the time the fall school semesters start.

The chairmen of their respective series will be the sole boss and his decisions will be final. OBA secretary Tom Rowden emphasizes the fact that the score of all games must be sent to the chairman of the series immediately following the game. All correspondence pertaining to the series must be made with the series chairman and not the OBA head office. Officials of clubs taking part in playdowns are reminded that OBA rules will govern all games.

The chairmen of each series will be sent a list of participating teams and he in turn will forward playdown draws to the club or association officials.

The lists of chairmen insofar as Belleville is concerned, this city being in Class "A" since it has a population of 10.000 and over should be carefully noted by peewee, midget, bantam and juvenile club officials, also the secretary of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association. Here it is. Peewee, Tim Turow, Preston, Ont. Bantam, JoJhn Leask, 51 Princess St. Fort Erie, Ont. Midget, Earl Nicholson, Waterdown, Ont. Juvenile. George Sullivan, 41 Chatham St. Hamilton, Ont.

The finals of the juvenile and midget seies will be held in a city of the Intercounty Baseball Association. The bantam finals will be played in St. Catharines, Ont., Saturday Aug. 30th., and the peewee finals will take place in Niagara Falls on the same date.

The playdown breakdown will be published as soon as received from the various chairmen. A previous OBA bulletin states that all peewee and bantam teams must be ready for playdowns on August 2nd.

FINE GESTURE!

One of the first things fans notice about a visiting club no matter what phase of athletics, is its uniforms. A neat, nattily-garbed team wins instant approval besides adding to the general color and atmosphere of a game.

And Ted Schwab, sponsor of the little Giants, peewee representatives in the OBA playdowns, will never let it be said that his squad was not properly attired.

A set of brand new uniforms arrived yesterday and will be worn exclusively by peewee teams representing the city not only this year but in years to come. The are white with a stripe and complete from cap to stockings. The uniforms will bear the name "Belleville" in plain letters across the back while a small maple leaf inscribed with the name "Schwab's" will adorn the left breast. The small crests will be removable so that next year's representatives will be able to don the uniforms.

"These uniforms," Mr. Schwab said today, "are for the exclusive use of the city peewee representatives. Immediately following the playdowns, they will be turnd in and put away for next year's squad regardless of its sponsor." A right generous gesture of a fine sportsman who has the interests of the younger baseball fry at heart.

HAVE TROUBLES

The Belleville and District Softball League executive have been having their troubles handling their bulging playoff schedule in a manner suitable to the tastes of all clubs concerned. The official palate was not particularly soothed Tuesday evening when the outcome of the Crawford Metals-Melleville Motor Car game was reversed when the scorer discovered after the contest that Crawfords shad scored two runs in the fourth instead of one which was officially credited to them at the time. That run would have resulted in a Crawford victory in nine innings. As it was both teams played two extra innings on the assumption they were trying to break a tie. When Motors pumped a run over in the 11th frame it appeared they had won the series in two straight games.

In an effort to iron out the obvious entanglements that arise in a situation like this the executive, the team managers, the scorer, and the OASA district representative will hold a solemn parley this evening. Until the matter is settled the intermediate AA playoffs are postponed and there will be no game this evening.

* * *

An interesting sidelight to the Frankford-Point Anne controversy, that was emply covered here yesterday, is that the league executive tossed a coin to decide the winner of the Point Anne-Frankford series in an effort to speed up the playoff schedule. In addition to the city league playoffs that are curently occupying six teams (as this is written) Point Anne and the CNR Diesels will have to play off for the OASA intermediate A spot, while Wooler, Frankford and the RCAF Flyers will meet to decide a representative for the intermediate B playdowns. And the OASA is insistent on having the representatives declared by August 15th, which obviously crams a considerable amount of softball into the next two weeks. It was to avoid postponing the district league playoffs for an indefinite time that the league chose to toss a coin. The executive also stated that the possibility of having to toss a coin was mentioned to the Point Anne management prior to the conclusion of that series and that they accepted the explanation of its necessity should the occasion arise.

P. S. The Glen Roy Juniors are off to Kingstson this evening to play the Alcans at the Alcan Field in an exhibition tilt.

BOOST SHEEP FARMS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Efforts will be made to turn the Cape Shore area into an important sheep farming section this summer. There are already 2,176 sheep on farms in the district but officials say the area could handle 5,000 with little need for winter feeding.

BUSY PRIEST

MONTREAL (CP)—Rev. J. A. Hats of Sao Paulo, Brazil, on a visit here explained he has three full-time jobs. He is priest of St. Sefan's church, teaches Latin and history in high school, and is secretary and columnist for the Hungarian language newspaper there.

Bombers Blanked by 6-0 Score As Red Sox Scalp Indians 5-4; Surging Phils Win 6 in Row

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Robin Roberts is proving his right to the title-best pitcher in the National League.

While Philadelphia and the rest of the majors are going wild over Bobby Shantz of the Athletics, Roberts quietly piles up wins for the Phillies. He leads the National with 16 wins after last night's 7-3 success against Cincinnati.

Roberts counts on razor-sharp control to put him over, plus a strong, willing arm. First in the majors to pitch 200 innings, Roberts has allowed only 30 walks in 206 innings.

Phils Continue Surge

The Phils continued their surge in the National with a sixth straight over the Reds on a wild six-run rally in the eighth. Willie Jones' three-run homer featured the attack. Willie also hit a homer in the seventh.

Brooklyn snapped its five-game losing string, shading Pittsburgh 4-3 in the 10th on Carl Furillo's first hit in 16 times at bat. The victory added one-half game to the Dodger lead, now measuring 4½ games, after the runner-up Giants split a twi-night doubleheader with Chicago. The Giants won the opener, 10-6, taking advantage of three Cub errors to score four in the eight, but Hank Sauer's 25th homer helped Johnny Klippstein take the second, 6-2.

Warren Spahn cooled off the sizzling St. Louis Cards as rookie Ed Mathews hit a two-run homer off Joe Presko for a 2-1 Boston triumph. Stan Musial's 14th homer was one of the Cards' seven hits.

Yanks, Indians Beaten

New York Yankees lost 7-0 to Chicago, but their American League lead remained at three games because Cleveland fell before Boston, 5-4. The Red Sox's triumph over Bobby Feller left them in third place only 3½ games off the pace.

Washington ended a four-game losing streak, whipping St. Louis 6-2 on Bob Porterfield's five-hitter to pull within 5½ games of the Yanks. Allie Clark's two doubles drove in all the runs for Philadelphia in a 4-3 squeaker, with Detroit.

Lou Kretlow was the boy who manhandled the Yanks. He held Mickey Mantle, the grand slam hero, without a hit and allowed only two blows—a double by Phil Rizzuto and a single by Joe Collins.

Took Ten Hours To Land 32½ Pound Trout

GRAVENHURST, Ont. (CP) — Three Toronto men fought a 32½ pound lake trout for 10 hours and 25 minutes on an 18-pound line yesterday before landing it.

George Milburn, Bill White and Whit Nourse said they went out for a "few minutes fishing" on Lake Muskoka before breakfast and didn't reach shore with their prize until 10 p.m.

Milburn said he played the fish for eight hours and then White and Nourse took turns in half hour shifts.

Win Yacht Race

TORONTO (CP) —Harry Jammett and Hendrey Connell of the Kingston Yacht Club yesterday sailed their Firefly class craft over Toronto harbor's 1 1-2 mile course to finish first in both opening day races of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club's international junior regatta. The host club's Billy Wilzon and Al Rae took second spot.

Many of the young sailors had trouble with the rough waters. A Henderson Harbor, N.Y. twosome even dropped out of the race because of high waves.

Ontario, Quebec Junior Puckists Interlock Games

TORONTO (CP)—Eastern Canadian junior hockey took a bold step yesterday when the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A loop and the Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey Association agreed to play an interlocking schedule during the 1952-53 season.

The idea, from Quebec representatives, came into fruition at a meeting here today. Sam Pollock and Kenny Reardon of the Montreal Canadiens' farm system represented the Quebec circuit while seven of the nine O.H.A. Junior A clubs had officials at the meeting. Barrie and Windsor agreed to the idea in absentia.

The new home-and-home schedule will see the Ontario teams meeting each Quebec club twice, eight more games each for the O.H.A. groups. The four Quebec teams will play 18 additional games.

There will be no guarantee or split gate. It is a straight exchange on a year's trial basis with all games counting in the standings of each league.

Tentative plans call for the Ontario clubs to play the two Montreal clubs, Quebec and Three Rivers in a single eastern trip. The Q.J.A.H.A. teams will meet Toronto Marlboros and St. Mike's, Oshawa and Barrie on one trip and Guelph, Windsor, St. Catharines, Galt and Kitchener on another.

Panthers Lead Intercounty Loop By 4½ Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener Panthers, even while inactive, continue to bolster their first-place lead in the senior Intercounty Baseball League.

Guelph Maple Leafs and Brantford Red Sox, separated in second and third positions by only a few percentage points, today trail the Panthers by 4½ games. Guelph last night slipped under 6-2 to London Majors while Brantford was beaten 7-2 by Galt Terriers. St. Thomas Elgins, after pounding Guelph 20-5 Tuesday night, found themselves on the short end of an 18-1 lacing by Waterloo Tigers.

Guelph, in acepting their 11th loss in the last 13 starts, were allowed only three hits by London hurler Arnold Early. Southpaw Early coasted along holding the Leafs scoreless 'till the eighth inning when Pat Seerey rapped his ninth homer of the season with Marv Rich on base.

Evon Homers

Russ Evon, London, homered in the second with two on. Marty Philp started for Guelph and was replaced by Lew Fauth. Philp was blamed for the loss. Don Cooper, Evon and Rich of London each collected two hits in five trips.

Don Miller held Brantford to six hits while Galt picked up twice as many. Brantford used three pitchers, Frank Parker, Buck Tanner and George Copeland with Tanner charged with the loss. Galt shortstop Mike Pontarelli homered in the eighth but Brantford leftfielder, Tom McGrattan, stopped Galt catcher, Johnny Moore, from adding another when he leaned out over the fence to snare the ball in the seventh.

Waterloo Tigers pounded out 15 hits off three St. Thomas pitchers. The Tigers started out by collecting five runs in the first inning off Ed Niwinski who was tagged with the loss. Gord Ariss paced the winners with four hits in six trips while Ed Flick contributed three for six.

Russians Lead United States By Sixty Points In Olympic Standing

Point-Getting Frenzy Eases As Events Start Thinning; Canadian Entries Eliminated

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP)—The Olympic schedule today was a little short of finals interesting to the Big Two still huffing and puffing for points but otherwise offered plenty of championship and intermediate action.

In the four finals on the program the United States had only one point-scoring hope—15-year-old Barbara Stark, a backstroke swimmer from California.

The Russians didn't qualify anybody for this race. And neither the United States nor Russia got anybody as far as the finals of three cycling races which complete the gold medal competitions for the day.

Russ Held Lead

No matter what Miss Sark does, the United States won't do any appreciable overhauling of Russia, which has 523½ points in the unofficial standing against 463 for the United States.

It would be a spectacular achievement if this young swimmer picked up a couple of points that meant the difference in the final over-all standing.

Twenty-eight finals were left, including 10 in boxing, before this big international sports carnival comes to a close Sunday.

The cycling finals today were the 1,000-metre scratch race, the 1,000-metre time trial and the 2,000-metre tandem, with Australia and Italy battling for top honors.

Canadian Wins

Boxing moved into the quarter-finals today in all 10 weight divisions. Canada had only one fighter left—featherweight Len Walters from Vancouver, who won a decision yesterday over Germany's Willi Roth. Clayton Kenny, Ottawa lightweight, lost the decision to Istvan Juhasz of Hungary and Charlie Chase, Montreal middleweight, was knocked out in the second round by Laszlo Papp of Hungary who is trying to retain the Olympic championship he won in 1948.

Italy had 11 men going into today's quarter-finals, in every weight class except flyweight. The United States and Russia had seven each.

Basketball opened its final two round-robin series—one to determine the first four places among the United States, Argentina, Russia and Uruguay; the other to determine the last four places among France, Brazil, Bulgaria and Chile.

Begin Diving Events

In the steam-heated Olympic pool tucked into a wooded hillside, men divers began their series of high dives. Men swimmers ran off heats in the 1,500-metre free-style race and 00-metre breaststroke and semi-finals of the 100-metre back stroke. The women began heats in the 400-metre free-style in addition to deciding the champion in the 100-metre backstroke final.

Two championships were decided at the pool yesterday. Jean Boiteux of France won the starry 400-metre free-style, with Ford Konno of Honolulu second. The 17-year-old French lad broke the Olympic record with his winning time of 4:30.7 and the pace was so furious that the next six swimmers were also under the old Olympic mark.

In swimming preliminaries yesterday, Canada's team failed to qualify in the women's 400-metre relay. Teams from the United States, The Netherlands, Hungary, Britain, Denmark, Sweden, France and Germany go into tomorrow's final.

Two Eliminated

Peter Salmon of Victoria and Lucien Beaumont of Quebec were eliminated in preliminaries of the men's 100-metre backstroke.

The United States picked up 14 points in the women's springboard diving when Mrs. Pat McCormick finished first and Mrs. Zoe Ann Jensen third. Mady Moreau of France was second.

In maintaining its undefeated streak at six, the United States basketball team yesterday had a narrow squeak against Brazil's aggressive quintet and had to come from behind in the second half to win 57-53. Russia came strong toward the end to defeat Chile 78-60, and the other two games produced upsets: Uruguay squeezed out a 66-65 overtime win over Argentina and Bulgaria defeated France 67-58.

The Hungarians won the team sabre competition in fencing to nobody's surprise because they haven't been beaten at it since 1928.

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—The steel shortage didn't worry contractors on a new bank building here. To support the floor they used beams made of glued pieces of British Columbia fir, nine by 16 inches and 20 feet long, with similar but longer beams for the roof.

Sport in Brief

The Ontario Golf Association has announced postponement of the Ontario amateur golf championship draw until Friday because of a last-minute rush of entries. The tournament is to be played at the Kingston Catarqui Golf Club Aug. 6-9.

More than 100 entries have already been received for the draw which was scheduled to close yesterday. The list will be closed when 128 are received.

With 128 entrants, the first day's qualifying round will feature 96 games with 64 in the first round and 32 in the second. Thursday and Friday, two rounds of 18-hole matches are scheduled while Saturday will feature the 36-hole final.

Officials of Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union have recommended to the executive of the Argonaut Rowing Club, which owns the team, that it not be sold.

A football official said an offer to buy the club was [illegible] out even opening the envelope to see what figure was mentioned or who made the offer.

A spokesman said their decision did not close the matter since the rowing club executive would have final say.

Undefeated Johnny Saxton, stunned by a first-round knockdown, came back to win a unanimous decision over Virgil Akins last night in their 10-round bout in the Chicago Stadium. The victory was Saxton's 31st consecutive triumph.

Record-breaking States Attorney, owned by Andrew Reese Jr., of Hamburg, N.Y., won his seventh and eighth consecutive races at Thorncliffe Raceway yesterday when he captured both heats of the featured "Dr. Stanton Pace." The featured race was named for the great Canadian-owned pacing gelding which has won more than any other horse in the history of his division.

Maybe shortstop Willy Miranda of Chicago White Sox hoped to hoist his lagging batting average, but the umpires made him change his favorite hitting stick during the game yesterday against New York Yankees at Chicago.

The umpires checked the business end of Miranda's bat before his second appearance at the plate and ruled it had been tampered with.

Willy's bat appeared discolored to onlookers, but otherwise shaped in the conventional style.

Good Time, biggest money winner in harness racing history, has another golden opportunity to boost his earnings closer to the $300,000 mark tonight in the $50,000 Nassau two-mile pace at Roosevelt Raceway.

Good Time already has earned $261,958, and can collect an additional $22,500 if driver Frank Ervin can get him home first after four times around Roosevelt's half-mile oval.

The opposition includes Dr. Stanton, owned by W. L. Fraser, Forest, Ont., and Prince Adios, from Grant Hodgins' stable at Clandeboye, Ont.

Hard-up little Finland is not reaping the rich harvest of foreign dollars she expected from the Olympic Games.

The Fins admit they were over-optimistic in their financial expectations from the games.

They prepared for 50,000 foreign visitors—and only about 20,000 to 30,000 came. They reserved half their admission tickets for foreigners, who bought only one-quarter of them.

Birds Blast Wings As Leafs Trim Springfield 7-4

(By The Associated Press)

A month ago Baltimore Orioles were floundering in the International League cellar. Today somehow, they are in fifth place and scaring the pants off the first division elite.

Last night Orioles put the skids to Rochester with a rousing nine-run rally in the seventh and eighth innings to win 10-4.

With the score tied at 1-1, Orioles loosed six hits good for five runs and drove starter Fred Hahn from the mound. Rochester came back with three runs in the top of the eighth, but Orioles shelled reliefer Fred Martin for four more tallies. Starter Bob Miller, although replaced by Dick Starr in the eighth, lasted long enough to gain his 10th victory.

Ottawa, trailing Buffalo Bisons 8-2 after 5 1-2 innings collected runs in bunches of ones and twos to squeeze out a 10-8 victory. Neal Watlington singled home the winning run in the 10th.

Toronto Maple Leafs beat the Springfield Cubs 7-4. The Leafs put together a 10-hit attack to rout three Cub pitchers.

'Wonder Swimmer' Beats World Mark

HELSINKI (AP) —Shiro Hashizume, Japan's wonder swimmer, today won the first of six trial heats in the men's 1,500 metre free-style Olympic swim and set an Olympic record. His time was 18:34, beating the previous record of 19:12.4 set in 1934 by fellow countryman K. Kitamura.

Gerry McNamee of Vancouver was timed in 20:02.5 in the same heat, placing sixth.

Jimmy McLane of the United States won the second heat almost as easily as the Japanese had taken his. His time of 19:17.9 also cracked Kitamura's old record.

You Can't Blame 'Joisey' for This, 'Greying Old Geezer' Wants Dough

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—The man who finds himself in a very tough spot now is Jersey Joe Walcott, and you are certain to witness a good deal of squirming and twisting before the greying old geezer from Camden finally signs to defend his heavyweight title against Rocky Marciano.

Joe is in much the same position as another veteran, Jim Braddock, was after he won the crown from Max Baer back in 1935 and looked up to see a killing young puncher named Joe Louis blocking the trail. Jim was able to crash in only on a single three-round exhibition, chicken feed, before they tossed him in with the dark destroyer.

As it came out later, however, Braddock didn't do too badly. There was a highly secret and leak-proof covenant which provided that the outgoing champ—it was pretty definite that Jim fitted the description—would receive 10 per cent of the new champ's ring earnings.

Payday Wanted

That came to such a comfortable sum in the ensuing years that Braddock never has had to go back to stevedoring.

Walcott was at the ringside the other night, looking quite contemplative, when Marciano exploded that left hook on Harry Matthews' jaw, and it seems safe to suggest that he and his manager, Felix Bocchicchio, must since have given the future a lot of earnest thought.

Up to now, the veteran Negro fighter has made relatively little out of the title. He's going to have to be guaranteed a real payday, somehow, by somebody, before he samples Rocky's depth charges.

Bocchicchio already has drawn one yelp of anguish by insisting that his tiger must receive 5 per cent of the net for a September fight.

"He's crazy," wailed Al Weill, who admits to being matchmaker for the International Boxing Club but bleeds at the suggestion that Rocky is his personal property. "He ain't going to get any 5 per cent. Why don't he ask for 100 per cent and be done with it."

Heads Together

It is customary for the promoters to split 60 per cent of the net between the main eventers, with the champion getting the heavier end. It is doubtful that the I.B.C. would go over this figure, so it may be seen that Felix's demand is not a modest one. It is his way of saying to Weill, or whoever Rocky's manager might be, that maybe we boys had better get our heads together.

Another slight problem concerns the fact that Walcott's pilot, a Philadelphian, has no licence to operate in New York state and was not, at latest report, in line to receive one. He has said that Jersey Joe never, never will fight here again until he, Felix, is eligible to represent him.

This circumstance will lend emphasis to Felix's threats in coming weeks to let Walcott fight somebody or other at widely scattered points over the country and leave Marciano sitting on his large hands. The I.B.C., for its part, has no wish to promote a Walcott-Marciano bout anywhere except in one of the local ball parks.

Eventually, of course, something will give and the fight will be held and it will draw somewhere close to $1,000,000. The heavyweight division is in business again. But when you see old Joe climb through the ropes you will be looking at a man who has no more financial worries.

Queen at Races

GOODWOOD, England, (Reuters)—The Queen was among a vast crowd which yesterday watched French Design win the Goodwood Stakes, Britain's oldest handicap, by a length.

The Queen's visit to "Glorious Goodwood" was the first by a reigning monarch in 25 years. Her grandfather, King George V, made the last.

While the floodlit royal standard flew over the towers of Arundel Castle last night, the Queen attended the annual Goodwood ball.

GOOD DEAL

NEW YORK (AP) —Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, yesterday announced a new agreement with the International Boxing Guild managers for a minimum of $2,000 per main-go fighter for television rights to Wednesday night network CBS shows. The current contract, expiring Oct. 1, calls for $1,250 per fighter.

The $2,000 is a minimum and pay can increase sharply for championship bouts or other outstanding attractions.

Macken, Main Canada's Hopes For Davis Cup

By MAX McMAHON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada likely will pin her Davis Cup singles hopes on Brendan Macken and Lorne Main while Mario Llamas and Manuel Galeana are expected to handle similar chores for Mexico in the North American zone tennis matches starting tomorrow. The unofficial draw will be held today.

The Canadian team is made up of Macken, Main, Henri Rochon and Jack Spencer, and the Mexican team of Llamas, Galeant and playing-captain Pedro Vega. Matches take place at the Mount Royal Tennis Club.

Dr. Georges Leclerc, Canada's non-playing captain, said Macken is a sure starter. This year he captured the Ontario and Quebec provincial championships and his play has sparkled in practice.

Main is expected to get the nod over Rochon because he is ranked No. 1 in Canada, though Macken has beaten him twice since the ranking, and has showed well here and in U.S. tournaments this season.

Macken and Main might even get the doubles' nod unless the singles play is long and tiring. If so, French speaking Henri Rochon will go in the doubles with Macken. Solidly-built Macken is well able to handle the strain of Davis Cup play.

Rochon is expected to be passed up as a starter despite his six years in Davis cup competition, because he hasn't played much this season and is off-form. He was beaten yesterday in two sets of singles by Macken and Main.

Swimmer's 'Pop' Makes Big Splash

HELSINKI (AP) — When France's Jean Boiteux won the Olympic 400 metre free-style swimming championship in record time, it was his father, Gaston, who made the big splash.

The elder Boiteux jumped into the Olympic pool, fully dressed and with his beret still on his head, to embrace and kiss his son on both cheeks, even before all the others in the race had finished.

Jean's mother was a member of two French Olympic teams, in 1924 and 1928, but never could win a medal. His father was a top-rank swimmer in France, but never got anything better than a second place in French title events and never was picked for the Olympics.

Still dripping and grinning proudly Gaston Boiteux sounded a note of warning to future Olympic contestants:

"We have two more at home—Henri, 14, and Marie-Therese 12. They're going to be swimmers, too, and anyone counting on an Olympic title had better watch out when they get ready."

Olympic Athletes Start for Home

LONDON (Reuters) — Forty members of the Canadian Olympic team— including eight girls —flew into London airport last night from Helsinki aboard a chartered airliner, the first of several groups of the team expected to arrive here during the next few days on their way back to Montreal.

Among the party was the team's coach, Bruce Humber, of Victoria, who said: "I couldn't be more pleased with the team's showing in the 1952 games. Several individuals have set up enviable times, and on the whole we have everything to be pleased about.

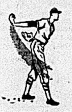
"The spirit of this year's games left nothing to be desired."

Relations with athletes and team members of the Iron Curtain countries was discussed by track and field athlete Miss Eleanor McKenzie of Vancouver.

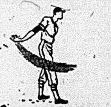
"With the Russian girls in particular we were on very good terms," she said.

"COOL CONTROL"

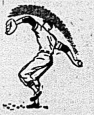
PITCHING FROM THE RUBBER



1 Your pivot foot must be in contact with the "rubber" on every pitch. You should not walk into a pitch. "Rubber" is 24 inches long and 6 inches wide. If no runners are on base, begin with right foot on "rubber" a few inches in from 3rd base side.



2 Left foot is slightly behind right leg; spikes on right shoe hang over "rubber" and bite into earth. Hold ball behind right leg, body relaxed and slightly bent. Gloved hand hangs loosely.



3 Distribute weight about evenly on both legs while receiving signal from catcher, with right leg taking slightly more lean. Keep windup simple by not wasting motions and energy. Delivery begins by transferring weight to right leg as arms swing in front.

Yes, it's control that counts, in baseball as in every sport—control which brings the extra-ordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

BREWERY LIMITED

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bridge is a game in which your pair must be determined to make the most points in each deal. Your opponent pair is equally anxious to prevent it. That makes it interesting.

More often than not you win the most by bidding your hands to the limit and beyond. Often, however, you may gain more by defeating your foes. Knowing when is an important part of the game.

Sit north in this partnership pair:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠K J 8 5	♠A 10 9 3
♥Q 2	♥K
♦7 5 4	♦A K 10
♣8 7 6 3	♣A K J 10 2

You have opened your north hand with a bid of one club. Your east opponent has stuck in a bid of three hearts. Not having enough for a free bid of three spades, your south partner passed.

You are now in a fancy position. You know your own strength. It is good enough to make you believe you can defeat three hearts. It is also good enough to bid again.

Your south partner may have values that the three heart kept him from showing. He may even have enough to help you make a game contract. Nor is it unlikely for him to have slam help.

So, you could bid four clubs in this spot and see what comes of it. With eight tricks your hand is strong enough to stand the strain of such a high bid. At least it gives partner another chance.

Or you could double for a takeout. When opponent bid is not more than three in a suit, your double asks partner to bid if he has not yet bid. If no bid then intervenes, partner must bid.

Furthermore, such a double asks partner to state first if he has any unbid suit with any four cards or more in it. Lacking such a holding, partner will have support for you in some form.

As between bidding four clubs and doubling for takeout, the double is more desirable for partnership fitting. It seems made to order for just such a spot as this. Say it.

Movie Column

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Fame has come to Charles Farrell for the second time in his lengthy acting career, and he's not too sure he likes it.

Farrell was the heartbeat of the late '20s and early '30s, when he co-starred with Janet Gaynor. Now he is co-starring with another winsome lass, Gale Storm, in a television series called "My Little Margie." He plays Miss Storm's father in the episodes, but he's a romantic figure, too.

What started as a lark for Farrell may end up as a whole new career. As summer substitute for the Lucille Ball-Desi Arnaz show, "My Little Margie" started out none too promisingly. But the quality has vastly improved and the show has landed the number-three spot in audience ratings.

Show May Be Sold

"There's a good chance that the show will be sold after the summer is over," said Farrell. "It looks as though I'm going to be a busy boy."

Farrell found it wasn't easy to return to the cameras after a 15-year absence.

"Brother, was I nervous," he recalled. "My knees were shaking noticeably, and I was so tense my voice got into the higher registers."

He managed to conquer his nerves and has settled down to the hard work of turning out the series.

"Television on film is a lot different from the movies in the old days," he observed. "We might have sat around for two days doing nothing back then. In TV, we shoot a half-hour's show in three days. That's about a third of a feature movie."

BIG CLEAN-UP

FRANK, Alta. (CP)—Town council ordered a clean-up in preparation for the tourist rush, and a clean-up here is something. It involves removal of huge piles of rubbish from the east entrance of the Frank slide, where a village was buried with loss of about 80 lives in 1903.

DONALDA, Alta. (CP) — Two calves owned by Palmer Hagen were drowned in a shot hole dug by an oil survey crew some years ago. The hole undermined a strip of land so that when the calves ran over it recently they broke through the crust into 12 feet of water.

Actor's Son Acquitted of Bad Cheque Charges

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP)—Tough guy actor Edward G. Robinson's 19-year-old son, Edward Jr., yesterday was acquitted of bad cheque charges by a superior court jury.

After thanking the jury, both the actor and his son shook hands with Superior Judge Robert Gardner, who told the youth, "I hope this will be a lesson to you and that you will be more careful in the future."

The actor took the stand in his son's defence and said:

"Perhaps I was too generous with my son because of my own lack of early advantages. He is still my son—not kicked out, disinherited or disowned. That sort of publicity is a lot of poppycock."

Young Robinson was charged with writing a worthless cheque for $119.48 in purchasing tires.

His actor father told the jury that he was unhappy over the youth's marriage last Feb. 6 to actress Frances Chisholm, "but not enough to cut off his credit."

The son testified he stopped payment of the cheque because he thought he was overcharged for the tires.

Glen Roy Peewees Win Over Rotary

The Glen Roy peewee softballers won another game at Firemen's Park last night defeating the Rotary youngsters by a 29-3 score.

Reid went the distance for the winners yielding seven hits, striking out three and walking three. He aided his own cause with a home run.

Howard and Dever shared the hurling duties for the losers giving up 30 hits between them. They whiffed two and walked seven.

MacDonald and Keller were the heavy hitters for the Glens getting five and four hits respectively. Bull, Young, Reid and Keller hit home runs for the winners.

Clarence Johnson Stock Car Racer Injured in Crash

The stock car races at Shannonville Speedway took on a sober note last night as a result of an accident in which Clarence Johnson of Belleville was rushed to hospital after the second race with undetermined injuries.

The accident occurred on the third lap of the second qualifying heat as Johnson rounded the west turn. It was difficult to discern exactly what happened for dust. Witnesses say he rolled the auto three times. As his unconscious body was removed from the almost totally wrecked car, it was noted the safety belt had snapped, probably through force of the impact.

Hospital authorities report today he is resting quietly and appears "all right." X-rays will be taken today to determine whether or not any bones were broken.

In the first heat, Jim Edgar, Napanee, rolled his car on the third lap but was not injured. The second heat was called at the end of the fourth lap due to the accident and Frank Andre leading, took first place. Bob Colliver of Picton placed second.

Frank Andre, Kingston took first place in the feature and Earl Handley was close behind him for second spot.

First qualifying heat: Ray Johnston, Belleville; Howard Sanford, Belleville; six laps 4.20.

TRAVELLING HEN

NEW LISKEARD, Ont. (CP)—Daisy, the travelling hen, has settled down here at last with her family of seven chickens—hatched and brought up in the nest she built on the back of her master's truck which travelled 900 miles in the meantime on work around this district.

Juniors Eliminate Point Anne In Two Straight

Glen Roy Juniors eliminated Point Anne Cementmen from the Belleville and district Softball League playoffs last evening when they came from behind with two late nining rallies to rout the Pointers 11-3. Juniors took the first game of their best in three series 12-2 at Point Anne last Monday night.

The Cementmen erected a 3-1 in the first five and one-half innings but prosperity went to their heads. A double play ball was thrown wide at second base with one out and one in and then the carnage started. Before it was over the Glens had rammed over six runs, chased starter Buck Burshaw, and had crushed the Pointers with a handicap from which they never recovered.

Hull opened the inning with a double, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Batchelor's single to right field. Pete Green popped out to left field and then O'Brien dumped a grounder to third. Horwood scooped up the roller and fired to second to start what could have been a double play. But his throw was wide and Batchelor scored. O'Brien wound up at third before order was restored.

Wannamaker and DeGray singled and that was all for Burshaw. Maracle came on to douse the fire but served up a solid single to Bob Green that was good for two runs. An outfield error on the hit, and then an error on the throw to the infield let Green come all the way in to score.

Grand Slam Homer

In the eighth inning John Batchelor completed the rout with a grand slam home run off the centrefield fence. Bob Green aboard on an error, Carr, safe on a single and Hull who had walked all scored in front of the Batchelor blast.

Juniors collared their frist run of the game in second on O'Brien's double, a passed ball and a catcher's error.

Point Anne used a single by Bert Whalen, an error at second base that gave Burshaw a life, and Jack Elliott's triple to score two runs in the fourth. Elliott provided the power to drive in the Cementmen's third tally in the sixth.

Burshaw started for the Pointers and worked well until the roof fell in on him in the sixth. He walked two, struck out five, and gave up seven hits for six runs. Maracle toiled two and two thirds innings in relief walking four, striking out two and giving up five hits for five runs.

Bob Green went all the way on the hill for the Glens. He walked nine, struck out 10, and gave up six hits for three runs.

Jack Elliott led the losers at the plate with three of his team's six hits.

Batchelor with two singles and a home run in five tries led the winners.

Lineup: Point Anne: Elliott cf; Horwood 3b; Strachan 1b, ss in 6th; Mallory ss, c in 6th; B. Whalen rf; M. Green lf; Brannigan c, replaced by Buchanan 1b in 6th; Burshaw p, replaced by Maracle in 6th, Wood 2b.

Glen Roy: Barclay lf; Carr 3b; Hull ss; Batchelor 2b; P. Green c; O'Brien rf; Wannamaker cf; DeGray 1b; Green p.

"Follow the Sun"

Aspiring to hit the big time in professional golf Ben Hogan (played by Glenn Ford) is self-contained, not a crowd-pleaser, and freezes up in competition, with the result that he fails to click until he reaches California and in tournament play finishes in the money. He also vanquishes his fear of the gallery, and in the next few years things begin to look up, although he is still regarded as a grouch. En route to Texas to buy a home, he and his wife are involved in an auto accident, and Hogan's life is despaired of. But Ben, a zealot, fights to live and regain his health. He stages a comeback in the Los Angeles Open, and — although losing in the playoff — knows that at last the crowd is with him.

"I wouldn't take anything for the good results I got by taking Syntona Herbal Compound and I am glad to tell for the benefit of other sufferers just how this medicine helped me," said Mr. J. Bennett, 49 Hughson Street N., Hamilton, Ontario, in a recent report.

"During the past few months I was having an awful time with indigestion, cramps, and so much gas and distress after my meals. I would get heartburn, sick dizzy spells, and throbbing headaches. I got so that I couldn't eat my meals, couldn't get my proper sleep at night, and felt all tired and worn out.

"Having heard about Syntona and what it was doing for other people I thought I would give it a trial and in a very short time this medicine has given me great relief. The cramps in my stomach, heartburn, and gassy, bloated feeling is now cleared up. I now eat better, sleep is more sound and restful and my nerves are calmed down. Also, the dizzy feelings and headaches do not trouble me and I feel better than I did for many months."

Summer Dream

By Irene Ernhart

"But I want to," Laurie said stubbornly. Though she knew that her mother would be horrified and Fletcher might disapprove, she found a queer sort of gratification in it. She wore an old pair of jeans and a white shirt and, she got all dirty and dishevelled sacking up nails and climbing up and down ladders hunting for hinges and things, but it pleased her no end when after a while people got over their antagonism toward her apparently and began to refer to her as "Louie French's girl."

It pleased her also to see the affection and respect with which people in Ridgeville regarded her father. How different her life would have been, she thought wistfully, if she had been allowed to grow up here with her father, or better still if her mother had never gotten the divorce.

Fletcher phoned in July, long distance from New York. He was going to London for the government and then to Rome. He wondered if she wasn't fed up with the "sticks" by now and ready to come home, marry him and go abroad with him.

"Of course not, Fletcher. I haven't had my visit out yet."

"Darling, I don't understand what the attraction is out there!" Fletcher's usually calm voice was edged slightly with anger. "According to Emmy your father is nothing but an old bore."

"Emmy doesn't know him!"

"I'm beginning to think I don't know you," Fletcher said. His tone was definitely one of anger now.

"Please Fletcher, don't be angry."

There was a long pause and then Fletcher said, "I'm sorry to be impatient, Laurie, but I miss you. Nothing's any fun without you."

After the conversation was over, Laurie thought about that one sentence. Fletcher missed her to the point of bitterness. And the appalling thing was, she didn't miss him at all.

She still was searching for the answer to the question as to why her feelings for Fletcher had undergone some sort of a change the night Steve took her to the Saturday night dance in Ridgeville. She found out a lot of things about Steve that night that she hadn't known before and one or two about herself.

Her father raised his eyebrows when he heard she was going to the dance with Steve. "And what's he going to do about Evelyn?"

"Evelyn?"

"Hasn't Steve ever mentioned Evelyn Crane to you? Why they have been practically inseparable since she came to teach here a year ago. Steve sort of took her and her little boy under his wing. She's a widow and the boy isn't too strong."

So that explained Steve's occasional evenings in town and once in a while an afternoon, Laurie thought.

She decided to wear a little white tulle evening dress to the dance. It was pretty formal, but no one would notice because it was so simply made; deceptively simple in fact, but it brought out the incredible smoothness of Laurie's shoulders.

She sensed by the way Steve's eyes flickered when she came down the stairs that the dress was right. She was sure of it when she saw the envious glances that came her way when they reached the dance. There was one girl especially, a tall blonde who seemed unable to tear her eyes away from either Laurie or the dress. She kept staring, and after a while Steve took Laurie over and introduced her. It was Evelyn Crane.

"So you're Laurie," the girl said. "Steve told me a lot about you." There was no friendliness in her smile. "You've been monopolizing him this summer. Steve's other friends have hardly seen him at all."

"I'm sorry," Laurie said. An interested little group had gathered to eavesdrop around the three of them and Laurie didn't go on.

"You must bring Laurie to the carnival at the school next week, Steve." Evelyn Crane turned back to Laurie still forcing a smile. "Steve's putting on a magic act for the kids. My boy Johnny is just crazy about him."

As the dance music started and Steve took her into his arms to dance she heard someone at the edge of the group whisper, "just because she's a society girl from New York she probably thinks she could get any man here!"

Laurie flushed and she saw that Steve could scarcely keep his laughter hidden. She wished all at once that she hadn't worn the tulle dress, and she felt a sort of guilt at the way Evelyn Crane's eyes kept following her as they danced.

Laurie had a wonderful time, but all the same felt a certain sense of relief when the dance was over and she and Steve were in the car driving home.

"You were certainly the belle of the ball," Steve said, as he lit his pipe and turned the car into the river road. There was a suggestion of mockery in the words.

Was he, too, feeling guilty about Evelyn, Laurie wondered. "Well, there's nothing wrong with being the belle of the ball, is there?"

Steve laughed. "No. Only it struck me during the evening that it wasn't quite fair the way you bowled the men over. You've had so much more time for playing and flirting and making yourself attractive to men. You have not had to earn a living or do without things or—"
